A War Romance

BOSTON.—Miss Irene McIntyre, whose exploits as a Salvation Army lassie overseas won her the Distinguished Service Cross, was married here to Robert E. Walbridge, of Peterborough, N. H. The bride is a daughter of Col. and Mrs. W. A. McIntyre, of the Salvation Army. The bridegroom was a lieutenant during the war.

Doughnuts for doughboys at any time and most any place—that was what made the McIntyre sisters, Irene and Gladys, loved by a dozen divisions of the A. E. F. and their names familiar throughout the American lines in France. They were the only women war workers whom Gen. Pershing recommended for the Distinguished Service Cross.

Gladys went overseas in November, 1917, and was followed by her sister three months later. Starting in the Toul sector, they began making and serving doughnuts and pies for men in the battle lines in almost incredible quantities. More than half a million doughnuts and 50,000 pies went from their kitchens to the hungry mouths of weary doughboys. Sometimes by working 15 hours, they made 150 pies and 1,500 doughnuts in a day.

They were in the midst of the Battle of Seicheprey, not more than a mile from the point of furthest advance attained by the Germans. Here Irene was gassed when she forgot to put on her mask—forgot because she saw another woman in the kitchen who couldn't get her mask out of its satchel and went to her aid. Later in the same year Irene was gassed during the fighting in the Argonne.

As far as is known they were the only American women who ever looked into real German trenches inhabited by real Germans. This they did at Boucouville, where they climbed to an observation post in a church steeple.

Their doughnuts and pies were so popular that colonels used to come and split wood for them and details of officers did their kitchen police. On one occasion they ran from their hut to escape a German bombardment and returned to find their dough filled with shrapnel. On another occasion they were thrown out of their beds when a shell struck just outside their billet.

Rumor has it that Irene's romance culminating in her marriage, began in one of her kitchens in France.

PROUD MOMENT.

An old gentleman was interviewing applicants for the post of gardener. The one before him did not look promising, but the old gentleman thought he would give him a fair chance.

"How long were you in your last place?" he asked.

"Eh! that's not long. And the place before that?"

"Three months, sir," the applicant replied boldly.

"That's better now, and the time before that?"

The applicant drew himself up proudly as he said: "There weren't no time before that, sir. I got off with a $10 fine."

N. Y. WOMEN FLOCKING TO JOIN KLAN.

"First Lady" of Ku Klux Has Busy Time, She Says.

NEW YORK, Sept 15—Just before she left the Hotel Pennsylvania to try to find a "movie" to be liking along Broadway, Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler, the "first lady" of the Ku Klux Klan, talked about how New York women were taking to the Klan.

Since coming to this city Mrs. Tyler has been attending to her business affairs herself, but found she had to hire a secretary.

"The day after I arrived here," she said, "I received 300 letters from women throughout this State seeking information about the Klan You can say quite correctly that New York women are flocking to join us.

"Counting letters and callers I have had at least 700 inquiries in two days. And 95 per cent. of the persons who sought to line up with the Ku Klux Klan were women. Why not? New York women ought to join us and when they know the real purposes of this organization they will want to become members ever more than they do now. The Klan stands for the things women hold most dear.

"Right now, according to the last figures I have been able to obtain people throughout this country are joining the Klan at a rate of 1,000 a day. Most of them are asking to be taken in, although we have our organizerhs in every State. In some States we have only a few men; in most of the States we have men in every county. There isn't an inch of this country the Klan isn't covering.

Unfortunately, all the inquiries tat have come to me must get the same answer—the organization for membership of women has not been completed. I have, therefore, either to advise the inquirers to wait or to get in touch with headquarters in Atlanta.

"At my suggestion the women's organization will be on a par with that of the men. We plan that all women who join us shall have equal rights with the men. This women's division now in process of organization will not be in any sense a dependent auxiliary of the Ku Klux Klan. It will be a separate organization, but of course, will be bound to the parent organization.

"Yes, the women's organization will have the same ritual and the same costumes. I wish that I had brought no my silk costumes from Atlanta. There have been so many wild yarns circulated about the costume of the Knights of the Ku Klux that I'd like to show just what the costume consists of. It isn't half as dreadful as it has been pictured."

Then Mrs. Tyler started for the "movie" theatre.

THREE DAYS' GRACE.

Maggie's sweetheart, a proverbially tight-fisted Scot, had taken her out for the afternoon, and that was about all. They rode some distance on the trolley, turned around and rode home again. Never was mention made of food or entertainment.

Back within her own gateway, Maggie, who had keenly felt the neglect, sarcastically proffered Sandy a dime.

"For the car fare you spent on me," she said, meaningly.

"Hoots, toots, woman," returned Sandy, pocketing the coin. "There was nae hurry. Saturday wad hae been time enough."

Mme. Frances

The Famous Creator of Fashions.

SEVERAL very interesting fashion tendencies are revealed in the accompanying illustrations, the originals of which I showed at my recent opening. Of particular appeal to the woman who is planning her summer wardrobe, they represent the newest trend in modish dress. Their neutral tints are especially admirable at this time when spring flowers are making their appearance.

One feature that I specially direct your attention to is the disposal of fullness on the skirt. This is drawn toward the sides where it may be closely pleated or it may be accentuated by panels. Novel arrangements of drapery also reflect the decoration of the sides of the frock.

Another noticeable characteristic is apparent in the bodice. While the style tendency dates back to olden times, when tight-fitting bodices and bouffant skirts were all the rage, yet the modern woman will have none of the tight-fitting waist. So instead of a nipped-in effect we have the snug-fitting bodice that depicts the long, straight lines of the figure. In such bodices the material is drawn very tightly across the front and back, but on the sides it is frequently disposed in soft folds that enhance the gracefulness of the form.

Skirts Are Lengthening

That skirts are lengthening is quite apparent, although as I wrote in a recent article it is being done mostly by clever artifice. The union of panels of various lengths, the introduction of novel draperies, and other attractive devices help to camouflage the descent of the skirt.

Black is favored greatly for the dress, be it for daytime or evening wear. Of course it makes an admirable background for the dash of bright color or for the wonderful addition of such a filmy material as white mousseline de soie.

One of my creations which I admire immensely is the dress of stiff black satin combined with beige chiffon. This frock shows the long, tight-fitting bodice which is so typical of the modes of the day. As you will note the satin is drawn tightly back from the front so that a very smooth appearance is achieved. On the sides the line is slightly irregular as the satin is inclined to fall in soft folds, as there are no "bones" to give it the stiff case-like outline that in by-gone years was considered so beautiful.

Outlining the round-cut neck is an interesting braid, for this trimming is now taking the place of the once favored embroideries. The centre band of this braid is stitched in gray and white, while the outer edges are done in beige wool—the whole being most effective.

There is a little bow of braid in the front, while the armholes—for they are too abbreviated to be called sleeves—are outlined with this trimming. Around the overskirt this adornment is also used with excellent effect.

The fullness on the sides of the skirt is attained by cartridge pleats. These are disposed somewhat differently from those formerly in vogue. They are arranged over a piece of crinoline and set very, very closely together. This tends to accentuate the bouffancy of the skirt, as the crinoline, although extending but a few inches below the waist, helps to hold the pleats in position.

The underskirt is made of tongue-like panels of beige chiffon, which float merrily about as the wearer of this gown steps forward. I have named it "Mary, Mary," as its quaint style brings to mind the "Mary, Mary, quite contrary" of childhood days.

The hat is an immense leghorn in the natural color. The underbrim is faced with black taffeta. Black violets repose in the centre front and encircle a large rose of beige color that perfectly carries out the color scheme of the dress.

While personally I am most enthusiastic over this dress, it may be that you like the model which is fashioned from black satin and white mousseline de soie even better. It, too, is most attractive and rejoices in the name of "Garden Party." The black satin is drawn tightly about the figure and caught at the sides. The white mousseline de soie is enriched with diamond shaped inserts of most exquisite lace. The only other decoration is a small lace flower perked jauntily on the left shoulder. A cloudy scarf of tulle partly envelops the head and is gracefully draped about the shoulders.

Hints for a "Rounded" Figure

A rather intriguing drapery is a salient feature in the gown of black meteor. For this creation I have chosen to exploit the shiny side of the silk, although should you elect you might develop this model with the dull side outwards. The meteor is drawn cleverly to one side and draped into ruffles. At this line of contact between the drapery and the skirt a cording is introduced, and this more clearly defines the junction.

The corsage shows the V-shaped decolletage that is always a flattering line to the woman of rounded lines. Under the arm the black meteor is cut away in generous measure where the delicate tints of the flesh are repeated in the satin that appearing at these points also fills in the opening in the front of the gown.

The black tulle hat with its embellishments of uncurled ostrich depicts another of the favored ideas in the realm of millinery. Such hats are usually fashioned on lines that affect the turban mode and are frequently distinguished by the beauty of their feather trimming.

Another model is illustrated with the gown that completes the group on this page. However, the straggly ostrich gives way to sweeping strands of paradise that are extremely long and, you must admit, really very decorative.

The dress shows a charming union of cream thread lace and black satin. The latter silk is quite soft and clinging. It is favored for the crush girdle and ties that appear on one side of the dress. The satin is also employed to make the binds that give such a trim finish to the lace panels.

The front panel of the lace is tucked up underneath, while the side panels swing free, thus emphasizing what I have already written about the irregular hem and its relation to the new length of the skirt.

The upper part of the corsage dispenses with the background of black satin. The neckline is fairly high, but it is decidedly pleasing and is, if anything, more attractive because of the manner in which the satin is cut away.

With some of the afternoon frocks where the neckline is open tall collarettes of lingerie are worn. These flare out in the back in the style of the Medici collar or curve outwards more gently so that they reveal the lovely line of the nape of the neck. The finest of lawn is a fabric frequently chosen for such delicate originations.

Fine Irish lace as well as braid lace is also used for these dainty accessories of a woman's dress. For those who prefer colorful touches in their neckwear there are innumerable fascinating creations. Organdie is a well-liked material and this season it is shown in many bright shades. Onion peel, turkey red, tangerine and jade suggest some of the lovely colors that are worn.

The Use of Gingham

Of course if you prefer something less striking there are delicate shades of gray as well as plaided effects in pastel shades combined with white. Perhaps, too, you will be interested in the gingham neckwear. One very stunning set of bright red and white checked gingham looks charming when used with a black taffeta dress.

If you should wish to make any of this neckwear you will find that the patterns of gingham best adapted to this use are those with checks about three-eighths of an inch in size. Solid red and white or green and white are extremely good-looking. Such sets are made with a plainly tailored vestee and Peter Pan collar. The straight cuffs are sometimes tied with ribbons, or when the collar is finished with a small pleating or ruching of the gingham the cuffs are designed in matching style.

The Fashion Forecast

The backless evening gown will be supplanted by one cut much higher in front and back, yet slashed to the waistline under the arms.

WARDS OF PETERBOROUGH SHELTER WILL REMAIN IN THIS DISTRICT

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY HELD A MEETING YESTERDAY AFTERNOON--ONE BOY WANTS TO BE A LUMBERMAN

The first meeting of the season of the Children's Aid Society took place yesterday afternoon at the Shelter on Water Street, with a good attendance of the members.

Rev. F. E. Malott, who will act as president for the balance of the year, occupied the chair.

Members present were: Mesdames W. A. Sanderson, Evans, Brealey, Wright, Knox, Gibbs, Stocker, Welsh and Kimberley, and Messrs. G. W. Powell, R. H. Parsons, J. Edgar, F. H. Dobbin, and Dr. D. C. King.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mr. J. Edgar, Mrs. W. H. Gibbs gave the report of the purchasing committee, and Mr. G. W. Powell read several communications with regard the the business of the society.

Considerable discussion arose over a letter received regarding a production of a play entitled "The Girl in Red," which has been produced under the auspices of the Children's Aid Society in North Bay and Sault Ste. Marie, and which the organiser is desirous of producing in Peterborough in the same way.

After careful consideration of the expense, time, and labour which would be involved in this undertaking, it was decided to do nothing in connection with it at the present time.

A letter was received from Mr. Kelso, the superintendent of the Society in Toronto, offering to place wards of the Peterborough institution in his district, if railway fare and a portion of their maintenance were paid from this end. It was decided to keep the children here, as being a less expensive proceeding.

One child who was placed out with a local lady was returned to the Shelter for the peculiar reason that she didn't talk enough to suit her guardian, and a communication was received from a fifteen-year-old lad, who is at present on a farm. His earnest desire is to be returned to the shanties, where he may become a lumberman, and he has addressed several petitions to Mr. Powell in this regard.

A ward of the Society, with whom her former teachers had difficulty in teaching, has been placed at the Queen Alexandra School, and the teachers there are credited with helping her to a great extent. She is now taking a decided interest in her studies and also in domestic work at the Shelter, and it was decided to leave her under the matron's care.

Annual Tag Day.

The annual tag day of the Institution has been set for the second Saturday in October, and Mrs. Knox was appointed supervisor of all arrangements, with power to appoint her own committees.

Arrangements for the annual meeting in November were discussed, and a committee to secure a speaker for this occasion was appointed as follows: Messrs. F. E. Malott, F. H. Dobbin, and J. Edgar.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered by the meeting to Mrs. W. J. Hogwood for her kind entertainment of the children of the Shelter at Chemong Park.

The Matron's report recorded 16 children in the Shelter during the month of August, five admitted, six sent out, with no sickness during the month.

Mr. Powell's reports for July gave: Applications 6, children brought in 1, returned to parents (not wards) 6. In August: Applications for children 4, children made wards 1.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(Canadian Press).—The market made a partial recovery in the first hour under the lead of Baldwin. Five per cent. opening for call money despite heavy income tax payments maturing today, also was regarded as a favorable development. Rebound was not long sustained, however, Steel Equipments, Oils, Motors and Rubbers re-acting one to two points. Shippings and Rails also fell back, the only exceptions being some of the more important coalers. Foreign exchange was again unsettled on lower quotations from London. Marks made a new low record at 0.905.

Shorts were active at the opening of to-day's Stock Market, directing their efforts mainly towards Oils, Equipments, Motors and Coppers. Mexican Petroleum, Shell Transport and Royal Dutch fell 1 to 1⅛ points. Baldwin, Pullman, Harvester, and Studebaker averaged one point declines. Anaconda, Utah and American Smelting sustained fractional losses, as did American Car and Westinghouse Electric. Offsetting features included United Drug, American Linseed, General Asphalt, Central Leather and Sumatra Tobacco, these gaining large fractions to 2½ points.

Temporary ease of money, encouraged further operations by bull pools in to-day's stock market, but the absence of public support effected many re-actions at the end. Sales approximated 600,000 shares.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange steady; demand 3.69¼; Canadian dollars, 10 13-16 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Initial wheat quotations was varied from unchanged figures to 1.34c lower, with December 1.30 to 1.30¼ and May 1.34 to 1.34½, were followed by a slight rally, and then by a moderate downturn all around. After opening ¼ to 3-8 off to a shade advance, including December at 54 3-8 to 54½.

Wheat—December, 1.28½; May, 1.33.

Market closed unsettled, ¼ to 2-3 net lower, with December 1.28½ to 1.28 3-4, and May 1.33 to 1.33¼.

The corn market underwent a general sag. Oats were weakened by the action of other cereals, starting 1-8 to ¼ down, December 39 3-4, and later showing a decided set-back.

In later dealings rallies failed to hold. The market closed weak, 5-8 to 3-4 to 1 cent net lower, with December 53½ to 53 5-8.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Sept. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Local Stock Exchange was quiet all morning and was without feature. Laurentide was up a ½ at 72, while National Breweries, which closed at 54, was quoted at 52½ this morning. Riordon appeared 3-4 weaker at 2, and Wayagamack lost its early half point gain and closed at 43.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

TORONTO, Sept. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Receipts, 451; trade brisk. Quotations: Butcher steers, choice, $6 to $7; butcher cows, medium, $3 to $4.50; calves, $10 to $12; lambs, $8.25 to $8.50; hogs, selects, $10 to $10.25.

WONDERFUL SCENIC VARIETY IN LATEST PICKFORD FILM

From a photographic standpoint, greater variety will be offered in Mary Pickford's next production, entitled "Through the Back Door", than in anything this star has ever offered to theatre patrons. This production will be featured at the Capitol Theatre, beginning to-day.

The story opens with colorful scenes at the pleasure resort of Ostend as it was in the gala days of 1903. Then farm scenes in Belgium are shown, wherein are featured the picturesque peasant costumes, the pastoral scenes and the quaint architecture that have made this kingdom famed for its rural beauty. The scene then shifts to the modern castles of the rich on Long Island, and here we glimpse modern architecture in all its magnificence both in exterior and interior views. We see marvelous furnishings, and beautiful women in all the elegance of fine feathers prescribed by the world's greatest modistes.

There is also a glimpse of New York's "Great White Way" in all its scintillating brilliance, and a peek at one of America's great hostelries with the sumptuous appointments that distinguish these modern palaces. Native-born Americans are given a chance to see New York and famous Ellis Island through the immigrant's eyes. A view that promises a thrill to those who have never seen it.

The diversity for locale represented in "Through the Back Door" is said to be one of its best box office features. The par-excellence of Charles Rosher's photography, the pleasing and wholly satisfying nature of the story as written by Marion Fairfax and the capable direction by Alfred E. Green and Jack Pickford add all that could be asked for in support of Miss Pickford's splendid interpretation of the play.

Balance of the program and the very excellent music of the Capitol orchestra completes a show that will no doubt mean capacity crowds for this popular resort for the balance of the week. FAN-FAN.

AT THE ALLEN.

"HEARTS OF THE WORLD."

For the first time at popular prices the Allen Theatre will show for the last three days of this week D. W. Griffith's great play, "Hearts of the World." If such a thing could be said, we might call this picture a sister (or would it be brother?)-picture to "The Birth of a Nation." The great Griffith himself says that no greater realism was ever achieved, because the filming of the battle scenes was done literally under the nose of the cannon on the battlefields of France. Permission was gained from the British and French Governments to bring the cameras and screen stars nearer than any civilians ever were before to the front line. Besides an all-star Griffith cast, there are actual photographs of the Royal Family, of Queen Alexandra, Lady Diana Manners, of the French President and of Clemenceau. In many respects it is one of the world's most interesting pictures.

Two French Marshals, Joffre and Fovolle, and General Badoglio, Commander-in-Chief of the Italian Army, have been made members of the Army and Navy Club of America.

AT THE GRAND.

A large crowd saw the performance of "Wildly Woolly" at the Grand Opera House last evening. A comedy which is funny enough to the onlookers but deadly serious to the performers, one of those productions where the audience knows the meaning of the various situations and the actors don't, is the latest offering of the versatile Rex Stock Company, with Mr. Rex Snelgrove and Miss Zana Vaughn in the leading roles. Rex enacts the part of George McFarlane, a wealthy young New Yorker with a clipped accent and a monocle, whose thoughts are far removed from the wild and woolly west, but circumstances and a hazard involving $30,000 pitchfork him into the mountains of Colorado and into a jail in the same state, where at one moment he owns the key to his prison and in the next is lugging a ball and chain which is supposed to keep him stationary while he orders chocolate eclairs for breakfast. A beautiful, sharp-shooting, golden-haired damsel in leather riding breeches, a lonely mountain cabin and a fugitive poker sharp complicate matters for the New Yorker, who narrowly escapes a long session in Sing Sing as a result of his rash belief in himself and his unfortunate "believe me, Minerva."

Zana Vaughn is the imperious, quick talking young heroine, who has things pretty much her own way. Arthur Soule is enacted by Wm. Mitchell and Thornton Brown by Wm. Seymour, who also does "the bad guy" in a villainous characterization which leaves nothing to be desired. One of the best minor characters in the whole production is Violet, the exceedingly tough, "doubtful lady" enacted by Hazel Williams.

This entertaining little comedy will be repeated this evening, while to-morrow night's bill consists of the quaint comedy, "In the Valley of the Moon." Not by Jack London.)

A pleasing part of the programme last evening was the excellent performance of the orchestra, whose selections were well received.

AT THE REGENT.

PEARL WHITE HERE IN POWERFUL DRAMA

Whenever Pearl White appears on the screen her admirers flock to see her—always sure that they are going to be well entertained. It matters not whether the subject be a Kentucky feud, a story of adventure or a domestic problem, Miss White can always be depended upon to handle her role with convincing power. The latest picture in which William Fox presents her, shown at the Regent Theatre last night, is no exception.

The title is "Know Your Men," and in it Miss White plays the part of a young society girl who faces many problems through the business failure of her father and desertion by her fiance. Had she known her men better, perhaps Ellen Schuyler could have warded off a lot of trouble for herself; but she had been eagerly guarded from knowledge of the world, so when she met a man with a fine name and a winning manner, it was natural he should be her ideal.

Miss White as the social butterfly, who went through considerable heartache before she finally woke up, gave a splendid portrayal.

Wilfred Lytell, the leading man, played the society bounder in an able manner. "Know Your Men" is an enjoyable drama.

WOMAN CAUGHT ATTEMPTING TO SMUGGLE GOWNS.

Called to Explain Substitution of New York Labels For French.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15. — Mrs. Jeannette Hannah Thompson of 305 West Seventy-second Street, who has returned from her first trip to Europe by the French liner Paris, appeared before the Law Department in the Custom House here to explain why she had taken the French labels from eight gowns purchased abroad and substituted those of a Fifth Avenue firm.

When the liner docked Mrs. Thompson expressed her intention to swear off $800 worth of gowns as having been bought in this country and taken abroad by her. She declared a little more than $100 worth of property, and attracted the attention of Customs officials by carrying a golden-haired, blue-eyed, life-sized doll in her arms, stylishly dressed.

When Mrs. Thompson was at the window of the customs office one of the Acting Deputy Surveyors said to her, "Did you take much baggage abroad with you?"

"No; not very much."

"How long have you been away?"

"About three months."

"Well, don't you think it would be better not to swear off the $800 worth of gowns and admit they were purchased in France?"

"Yes," Mrs. Thompson was said to have replied. "I admit that the dresses were bought in France and will not swear them off."

She also was said to have explained that she had cut off the French labels and sewn on the American labels, and as it was her first voyage abroad she was not aware what a serious thing it was to attempt to smuggle goods.

The trunks containing the gowns were sent to the Public Stores and the case was turned over by the Collector of the Port to be dealt with by the Law Department. Mrs. Thompson was asked if she had anything to say regarding the seizure of the dresses and the question of changing the labels, but she declined to make any comment.

The American dead in Europe, according to plans submitted to Presidetn Harding for approval, will be concentrated in four American cemeteries in France and one in Belgium, and another in England, over which the Stars and Stripes will save forever. Originally the bodies were scattered in 2,400 burial places and 10,000 isolated graves.

TELL TRUTH AND AVOID APOPLEXY.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—"Tell the truth and avoid apoplexy." This advice was given free today to women of the world by Dr. H. S. Langford, one of the most noted English psychologists. He was speaking at the annual session of the British association at Edinburgh.

Langford, who has studied the causes of high blood pressure for 20 years, declared: "Exhaustive tests show that the blood pressure rises when a person tells a lie. This peculiarity is more marked among women than men."

According to Langford, this explains to a large extent woman's habit of blushing when cornered.

RESISTS LURE OF GEMS, CAN'T RESIST CANDY

NEW YORK, Sept. 15. — Mrs. Elinor Abbott, painter and illustrator of children's books, would like to find the taxicab driver who thought more of her last chocolate cream than of $250 in bank notes, her rings and other more or less valuable contents of her handbag. She was so pleased at his driving back to her hotel and handing her the bag that she gave him several of the bank notes and forgot to ask his name or number. When Mrs. Abbott re-examined the bag and found everything in place except the lone chocolate cream, she remembered about his name.

"I think that his employers ought to know that they have one taxi driver, who, although he has a sweet tooth, can resist the lure of money," said Mrs. Abbott. "Besides, I'm ready to load him with five pounds of anybody's best candy and he can do what he likes with it. A New York taxi driver like that deserves to be rewarded."

Mrs. Abbott lives in an artist colony in Rose Valley, near Philadelphia. She was on her way home from Hartford and took a taxi at the Grand Central Terminal to the Colorne in Washington Square. She had a kit bag, a handbag and a pocketbook. Mrs. Abbott paid the driver and a few minutes later found that the handbag was missing. She hastened to notify the police and "information" at the Grand Central. Just then the elevator girl reported that the taxi driver who brought the lady fare from the Grand Central would like to see her. He handed Mrs. Abbott the missing bag. Inside was the money, the rings, several sketches and other valuables. Mrs. Abbot gave him $25 and he drove away.

On looking the bag over again to make sure that all was in order, Mrs. Abbott found that the bonbon box containing one last chocolate cream was missing.

"I remembered it," she said, "because the chocolate cream had a tin foil wrapping and I disliked to eat it, it looked so expensive."

But the $250 was in plain sight, and the rings just where they belonged. The only thing missing beside the chocolate cream was the taxi driver's name, and that Mrs. Abbott is anxious to learn.

SPORT COMMENT

We are seeking to verify the rumour that a golfer was discovered last week who, after turning in a 98, admitted this was at least seven strokes better than his average game. It is our personal belief, however, that the rumour is a base and malicious fraud.

A correspondent writes in to know what the Finstein Theory of Relativity is all about. Off-hand we should say it is about six columns more than we care to read with the pennant races so close, a tennis championship in full bloom, and a new golf title at stake.

"Where will American tennis be when Johnston and Tilden have gone back?" says an exchange.

What happened when McLoughlin faded and Williams slipped a bit? First Bill Johnston and then Bill Tilden. In two or three years from now, how many will be above young Richards? More and more youngsters are taking up the game. More and even greater stars are on the way.

We notice in one paper that in a certain match "Jim Barnes, in order to get around a cluster of trees, played an international slice." We have seen some sliced shots in our time that we thought were more than merely national in their scope.

Some scientist has invented an instrument that will be able to photograph Mars at close range by 1924. It will be interesting to see whether they play stymies there, and whether their local Babe Ruth is a left hander or a right hander. Tex Rickard is also anxious to know whether the action snapshot will locate a suitable opponent for Jack Dempsey.

The pennant race in the National League rests between the Pirates and the Giants, but neither one would go into any ecstatic spasms over playing St. Louis for a lot of money as a players' side bet.

We understand that National League leaders are confident that Pirate or Giant left handers can stop Babe Ruth. Possibly they will go back to his old 1920 weakness—a base on balls.

"BIG BILL" TILDEN CONTENDER FOR THE 1921 TENNIS CROWN

FIFTH ROUND OF TENNIS TOURNAMENT OPENS TO-DAY---STARS FADE AWAY

(By Henry Farrell—United Press).

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—With "Little Bill" Johnston Richard, Norris Williams and "Vinnie" Richards faded out of the picture, the face of "Big Bill" Tilden loomed up sharply to-day, under the 1921 tennis crown.

Three Easterners, two Californians and two foreigners start to-day in the fifth round of the international tennis championship in a series of matches that have become almost a formality attending the coronation of Tilden as king.

Gordon Low, the ruddy faced Englishman, who is almost surprised himself to have gone so far in the tournament, will go against the 10) to 1 shot proposition to-day of trying to be at Tilden in the feature match of the day's card.

On the game shown in his defeat yesterday of Billy Johnston Tilden should now have more than a half hour's job in removing the last of England's Davis Cup stars from the play.

James O. Anderson, the tall Australian, who became a dark horse yesterday by defeating Richard Norris Williams, and causing the biggest upset of the tournament, is drawn against Francis T. Hunter, New York, and he looks to have a fine chance to get into the semi-finals. Wallace F. Johnson, Philadelphia, seems sure of a place in the semi-finals to-morrow, as he is drawn with Craig Biddle, Philadelphia. The fourth battle of the day will remove another Californian from the tournament, as Robert Kinsey and Willis Davis, both from San Francisco, will face each other.

Julian S. Myerick, president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, said to-day that the present tournament so far has been the best and most successful in history. Practically all the seats for the remaining games have been sold, which makes probable a total attendance for the tournament of close to 100,000.

Cloudy weather conditions prevailed to-day, but there was no great threat of rain in the air.

HOCKEY EXECUTIVE OF ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION IS SET IN MOTION

BIG MEETING IS CONFIDENT THAT RIGHT STEPS ARE BEING TAKEN

The hockey committee of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association was set in motion at a largely attended meeting of the Association, held at the Y.M.C.A. last night.

All the officers elected at the hockey meeting in the Chamber of Commerce last week were present, as were also all the executive members of the Athletic Association, together with Dr. N. H. Sutton, Dr. R. W. Frank, D. A. Loomis, and A. C. Kay, representing lacrosse, track and field, basketball, and baseball respectively.

C. R. Widdifield, elected president of the hockey executive at the public meeting, made formal application for affiliation with Association, and when this application was accepted, the hockey department of the Association, becomes a member of the hockey executive, the other members being J. P. Bond, C. R. Widdifield, Eddie Wright, Frank Convery, and Don. Loucks.

The executive will start work at once, and will report to a meeting of the Association to be held next Wednesday night. The rink management must be interviewed, and the Holy Name Society will be approached to ascertain what the Society proposes to do in O. H. A. circles this winter. The Society has the franchise for a Junior O. H. A. team.

The Association believes that the interests of the players and the hockey public are safe in the hands of its hockey executive.

The executive was made to feel at the meeting last night that it has the full confidence of the Association.

Track and Field.

To Dr. Frank, G. H. Roper, and D. Loomis were assigned the task of bringing in a report dealing with the City Athletic Championships. They will survey the prospects and advise the Association what in their opinion should be done.

The Ontario Track and Field Championships will be held at Belleville on Wednesday, 21st September. Dr. Frank and Charlie Thorpe will take part as entries from the local Association.

RUGBYISTS SHOW SURPRISING FORM

YOUTHFUL PLAYERS WITH THE M.A.A.A.—"SHAG" ON THE JOB

MONTREAL, Sept. 15.—(Canadian Press.—Surprising form is being shown by some of the more youthful players with the M.A.A.A. first rugby squad and when the season opens it is likely that the lime light on the Winged Wheel squad will be taken by some of the more recent players in senior company. Jack Gardner, speedy half with this year's senior aspirants, proved the most outstanding back at to-night's workout. This practically recent acquisition to senior company demonstrated his ability to the coaches and spectators when he outkicked and outran his team mates and proved the heaviest tackler on the field. Gardner worked at outside wing for a time in the line-up against the seniors and was later sent to the half line where his work was equally as brilliant as on the line. Delo, who played part of last season, is also displaying great ability as a line plunger and along with Gordon Findlay, the squad has two men at least who can hit the opposition line for yards.

The work out last night was one of the fastest engaged in by the squad this year and Art Ross should have a well-condition machine when he puts his squad into the first struggle against Ottawa. The team is slightly light for a championship aggregation, but it is expected that this handicap fwill be overcome by fielding a well-trained twelve, which will be perfected in the trick plays to be used.

MONTREAL, Sept. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Frank Shaughnessy, coach of the McGill rugby football squad, is expected to reach the city to-day and to take over the handling of the Red and White aggregation this afternoon. A letter to this effect was received from "Shag" to-day and immediately caused a flurry around the college gridiron, where the players put in a hard afternoon putting the finishing touches on conditioning to be ready for the redoubtable squad leader when he puts them through their paces. Most of the squad are in good condition and ready for a hard grueling, while the late-comers are expected to be out shortly as soon as academic pursuits of the summer months allow the aspirants sufficient freedom to don uniforms in the late afternoon.

WOMEN BALK AT JURY DUTY.

Think Court Should Not Interrupt Pleasure.

HACKENSACK, Sept. 15.—Sheriff Joseph Kinzley, of Bergen County, has received about a score of letters and as many telephone calls from women who have been summoned to appear to serve on the petty juries for this month. Judging from the messages, only a few will be present.

The Sheriff said the majority of those summoned appeared to think that serving on a jury was something like attending a tea party—that they could appear if they wished or stay away at pleasure. The Sheriff said he had done his duty in summoning them and that if they did not appear it was up to the court to decide what should be done.

The first letter the Sheriff opened was from a prospective juror. In it the woman said:

"It will be very hard for me to appear, as I haven't concluded my vacation as yet, and I don't think the court ought to interfere with my pleasure."

As the Sheriff put this letter to one side he was confronted by another with this:

"Since I offered my services I have secured a good position, and if I serve I am afraid that I will lose my job. What will I do?"

The Sheriff didn't send any advice, saying that he would let the woman decide for herself.

So it went along all day, excuse after excuse, until the Sheriff didn't know which way to turn. Thirty-five women are scheduled to appear in court before County Judge John B. Zabriskie, they having stated several weeks ago that they were willing to serve.

Voice of the People

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—It rejoices me greatly, sir, to see the advertisement calling the Liberal-Conservatives of West Peterborough together once more. It's like old times, and never, never will we let anybody destroy that great and good name, founded by Sir John A. Macdonald himself for any other. With all respect to you, sir, there is no other name like it in Canada. Let everybody, men and women, come to the convention to elect officers, and, above all, to choose a candidate. We have fought hard to save the old name, and now it's saved. And let all the old-timers get together on 28th September, and let us have a good old Tory time of it, and no mistake. I feel like a young man again, and could throw up my hat and cheer. Now you will see work done and see fur fly. It was all a great sorrow to me, but the Old Guard is as wise as well as old, and will right all things.—Yours,

Old Timer.

THYROID EXTRACT AIDS WOMAN THIEF.

Beneficial Effects Lead Court to Send Her to Hospital For Further Treatment.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—In an effort to cure her of the thieving habit, County Judge Bayes of Brooklyn permitted Mrs. Fannie Leibowitz, 37 years old, mother of eight children, to be taken to a hospital yesterday. She had been brought into the court on an indictment charging her with burglary at the home of Mrs. Anna Dusine of 556 Gravesend avenue.

Mrs. Leibowitz has served two terms for burglary. On account of her inclination to steal, Judge Bayes, last June, decided to have her placed under the care of specialists. She has been in jail three months. During this time District Attorney Lewis had Dr. Ernest M. Vaughan and Dr. Carl Boettiger have inquired into her mental condition.

Both doctors reported that although the woman is sane her mental powers are at a low ebb because of the absence of secretion in her thyroid glands. The doctors said they had administered to the woman thyroid extract taken from sheep. There has been some improvement in her condition since she received the treatment.

To enable her to receive more complete treatment, Judge Bayes imposed a sentence of one year upon Mrs. Leibowitz and then suspended the sentence for the remaining nine months of the term, because of her three months in jail.

Mrs. Leibowitz, who lives at 644 Snediker avenue, has an excellent home. Judge Bayes was informed. Her husband and two sons provide every comfort for her, they say, and she has obtained no gain from her thefts.

ACT SAFELY, THINK SAFETY

BOY STRUCK BY TRUCK.
TORONTO, September 15. — Joseph Yolles, aged five, of 74 Niagara Street, was bruised about the abdomen last night, when he was run down by a motor truck on Niagara Street. The child was taken to the Hospital for Sick Children. Yolles, it was stated, came from behind a stationary car in front of the truck, driven by Thomas J. Walsh, 115 1-2 Niagara Street.

INTOXICATED IN CAR?
TORONTO, September 15. — Charles Carr was charged yesterday in the Police Court with being intoxicated while driving a car and having liquor in his car illegally.

Mr. W. D. McPherson, K.C., appeared for the defendant, and put the police officers through a severe examination regarding their description of alleged symptoms of intoxication. Judgment was reserved.

CHILD STRANGLED.
QUEBEC, September 15. — Getting the leather door strap entangled about her neck while at play in her home, a little girl, Marie Milhomme, daughter of a farmer of St. Gerard Magella, near here, was stranged to death when a sudden gust of wind blew the door open.

SNATCHED TOTS FROM FIRE.
NEWMARKET, September 15.—In her efforts to save her two young children from being burned to death early yesterday morning, Mrs. Kiddo was badly burned about the face and hands. Mrs. Kiddo was awakened by the smell of smoke and found that fire had nearly cut her off from the room in which the youngsters slept. She rushed to their rescue and succeeded in bringing the children safely down the stairs before the flames had cut off that escape.

HEAVY FIRE LOSS.
BELLEVILLE, September 15. — Fire caused several thousand dollars' loss in farm machinery on the farm of Donald Gunn at Bayside, a few miles west of this city, yesterday.

The origin is unknown. The machine shed, which contained nearly all the farm machinery, including a new binder, the poultry house, and the pigsty were wiped out. Only the assistance of the workmen on the Provincial Highway and of the neighbours saved the large barns, which twice took fire.

Insurance on the machinery will not nearly cover the loss.

EXPRESS TRAIN DERAILED.
BELLEVILLE, September 15. — The engine of the Canadian National Railways express train No. 7 was derailed at Yarker yesterday morning, toppling over as it ran into a switch. Engineer D. McPhail, of Trenton, was cut about the face as he jumped, and lost several teeth. The train was delayed for five hours.

ARREST LED TO STREET BATTLE NEW YORK CITY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—One detective was shot and another was beaten into unconsciousness when they were attacked by a crowd of 250 men at Mott and Hester Streets after they had arrested Antonio Scinto, 19 years old, of 187 Hester Street, on a charge of selling heroin to one of them. More than twenty of the men who attacked the detectives, it was said, discharged pistols in the course of the small-sized riot, and it was not until the arrival of the reserves from the Elizabeth Street Station that Detectives Patrick J. Kirley and Charles Meisenzahi of the Narcotic Division got their prisoners to Police Headquarters, three blocks away.

Some of the attackers ran to roofs of neighboring tenements, tore down chimneys and hurled the bricks on the detectives. Several of the bricks struck Detective Meisenzahi on the head, shoulders and body, but he held to his prisoner until Detective Kirley got to his side.

It was about that time that the shooting began. Kirley had drawn his pistol and was threatening to shoot when pistol shots rang out all around him. Two bullets cut deep furrows in the detective's head, but he tightened his grip on Scinto. When he and Meisenzahl reached the office of Dr. Carleton Simon, Special Deputy Police Commissioner, in Police Headquarters, Kirley collapsed and was removed to St. Vincent's Hospital by Dr. Miseli. Meisenzahl knocked unconscious by the shower of bricks and other missiles, was revived at Police Headquarters and treated by Dr. Miseli for bruises on the head and body.

Scatter As Reserves Appear.
With the appearance of the reserves the rioters scattered, and although the police apprehended several men in the neighborhood neither Kirley nor Meisenzahl was able to identify them.

Meisenzahl later told Deputy Commissioner Simon he had struck up an acquaintance with Scinto, who was reported to be trafficking in drugs among young men and children in the district. He said he arranged to meet Scinto in the hallway of 121 Mott Street, where Scinto was to sell him a small quantity of heroin. Detective Kirley accompanied Meisenzahl, and when they were about a block away from the Mott Street tenement Kirley dropped behind.

Just as Scinto gave him the heroin, Meisenzahl said, and had accepted money in return, Kirley started toward the hallway, and Meisenzahl grabbed Scinto. As the detective got him to the sidewalk, Scinto, he said, began to fight. Kirley and Meisenzahl were struggling with him, when Scinto shouted in Italian to a group of ten young men standing on the corner of Mott and Hester Streets.

Within a few seconds the men had surrounded the two detectives and tried to wrest Scinto from them, Meisenzahl said.

Two of the would-be rescuers struck Meisenzahl with blackjacks, felling him, but he managed to get to his feet when Kirley drove the group back with his pistol. Meisenzahl then pulled out his pistol, and started to aid Kirley to get their prisoner to Police Headquarters when Scinto was alleged to have shouted to the others: "Don't let these kid detectives pinch me." Both detectives are young looking and athletic.

BRITISH EMBARGO REPORTS
Favourable to the Admission of Canadian Cattle.

LONDON, September 15 (Canadian Press). — Word that the British Cattle Embargo Commission has reported in favour of the admission of Canadian cattle is received here with the keenest satisfaction.

The removal of the embargo means the satisfactory termination of the fight which Canada has waged for over thirty years.

The view of experts of the Department of Agriculture is that it will give stimulus to the export of Canadian live stock.

The embargo has been in force since 1892, and the main objection was that Canadian cattle were subject to disease.

OTTAWA, September 15 (Canadian Press). — The British Embargo Commission reports are entirely favourable to the admission of Canadian cattle. It rejects the disease theory, but admits that the removal of the embargo would have certain prejudicial effect on the Scottish and Irish farming interests.

CRISIS PRECIPITATED THE IRISH SITUATION

LLOYD GEORGE ILL

Special to Examiner.

LONDON, September 16. — England to-day day possibilities of renewed warfare looming on the Irish horizon. A gloomy view of the situation was held here. It was felt, as the Daily Chronicle said, that De Valera "by sullen persistence, has precipitated a crisis."

To-day's press was alligned as though a resumption of fighting in Ireland were almost a certainty.

"If the fight begins, Labors whole sympathy must be with out sister people struggling to be free against naked, shameless Imperialism," the Daily Herald, a labour organ, declared.

LIKE A BOMBSHELL.

Lloyd George's telegram came like a bombshell to the Irish people. It shattered the optimistic outlook that had been steadily maintained throughout the country, and shook Irelands faith that its leaders were certain to bring about successful negotiations leading to peace. It was believed likely when the Sinn Fein Cabinet met to-day that it might recommend a plebiscite. This would mean a long delay, but would give the Irish leaders a respite from the predicament in which it was admitted they found themselves to-day, faced by the choice between withdrawing from their position or bringing on war.

The Irish press to-day insisted that the masses in both Britain and Ireland demanded peace, and reiterated the belief that mutual statesmanship would avert war.

Every effort was made to-day to keep up the spirits of an Irish people bewildered by the sudden turn of events. Many preparations for war were evident in different parts of Ireland to-day, according to reports reaching Dublin.

The over-night change in the situation from the prospects of a conference to possibilities of a break cast gloom over the mass of people, who, while sympathizing with the Sinn Fein, dread a resumption of hostilities, but are making plans for it.

DOOR NOT CLOSED.

While the Dail Cabinet, at its meeting to-day, was to decide upon the next step towards peace or war, it was recognized here that a crisis had not actually yet arisen.

The Lloyd George telegram, while it flatly refused to treat with the Irish plenipotentiaries in the manner they wished, did not "close the door." DeValera and his colleagues had only to find some fresh wording of their position which would prove acceptable ,and it was believed the conference could yet be held without any further difficulties.

LONDON, September 16. — Canadian Press. — Relations between Great Britain and Ireland stand to-day as they did previous to De Valeras' coming to London, on July 14, to discuss with Premier Lloyd George a possible basis for the ending of the Irish controversy.

In the Premier's telegraphed reply to De Valera's letter he made it plain that he could meet the Sinn Fein delegates only if the demands for separation were abandoned.

Their are no indications that either the British government or the Sinn Fein will denounce the truce arrangements two months ago, and resume guerilla warfare that has cost scores of lives and destroyed property valued in the millions. Warfare is the last thing that either side desires, and no effort apparently will be spared to prevent any overact that will place on either the re-

AEROPLANE TRIP AROUND WORLD

OTTAWA, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—The first round-the-world trip by aeroplane is contemplated by Sir Ross Smith, British airman, who last year flew from England to Australia. The starting date is not yet made, but it is believed will be before winter sets in.

Starting from England, the line of flighting will probably be Middle Europe, Mesopotamia, India, China and Japan, then northward across the Behring Sea to Alaska. Sir Ross will come into Canada from Wrangel, Alaska, on the northern boundary of British Columbia. In connection the Canadian Air Board has mapped out a combined seaplane and aeroplane route from Kodiak Island, Alaska, to St. John's, Newfoundland.

FAVOURABLE NEWS ON THE BRITISH EMBARGO ON CANADIAN CATTLE.

TORONTO, September 16 (Canadian Press). — Live stock men generally express great satisfaction at the news of the favourable report on the British embargo on Canadian cattle.

The Hon. Manning Doherty, who made a trip last winter to urge the removal of the barrier, states that he is personally gratified and feels that the report is a preliminary to Parliamentary action that will be favourable to Canada.

TO-DAY ANNIVERSARY OF WALL ST. TRAGEDY

Extraordinary Vigilance Maintained By Police.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Extraordinary vigilance was maintained by the police on duty in the financial district to-day—the anniversary of the Wall street explosion of 1920, which cost 40 lives and resulted in injury to more than 100 persons and property loss of thousands of dollars.

With the expiration of a year, the cause of the disaster still remains mystery. The general belief is that the explosion was that of a bomb prepared by Radicals, although an accident theory was advanced, as well as a theory that it was an outgrowth of a building trades war. The Department of Justice agents and police who still are working on the case, have maintained close secrecy regarding their progress.

German Women to Form Union To Enforce Demands on Their Lords

BERLIN, September 16 (United Press). — If a German husband comes home at night to find no dinner and the baby crying it may be that the Housewife Labour Union has declared a strike. The Government has temporarily refused to recognise an association of housewives formally as a union, but only on technical grounds.

The inability of the women of the association, which has members in every city in Germany, to decide whether they were employers or employees, led the Government to postpone action.

The German women say a union will soon be organised, and that wives themselves will be enforced by strikes, lockouts, and arbitration.

If a man's wife continues to perform her household and other duties despite the union's orders, he will find himself barred from home some night by pickets.

Huge Distributing Agency For Liquor Unearthed States

(By United Press.)

JAMAICA, September 16th. — There is no demand to-day for Jamaica rum. At least that is what Jamaican manufacturers have found, they say, and several large manufacturers are making arrangements to put in machinery for the manufacture of industrial alcohol and rectify spirits, for which there is a big demand.

(By United Press.)
(Paul R. Mallon.)

NEW YORK, September 16th. — Huge liquor manufacturing organizations, now emcloying some hundreds and operating illicit wholesale drug stores, has been discovered by the Federal prohibition enforcement leaders here, it was learned to-day.

This organization has been feeding the entire United States with whiskey, gin and rum, supposed to have bene smuggled into the country, but which in reality was manufactured here and sold with fake "London" and "Cuban" labels.

One arrest has already been made, and the entire band is now under surveillance.

Yellowley, an associate enforcement director sent here from Washington, told of the operations of the band, in an exclusive interview with the United Press.

"When we have cleaned out these illicit wholesale druggists, the work of enforcing prohibition will be easy" he said. "Practically all of the liquor now in New York comes from this source. It is also shipped to other parts of the country. There are some smugglers in operation," Yellowley declared, but most of the stories of rum running have been exaggerated."

Druggists Operate.

"These druggists have obtained permits to obtain alcohol . They have set in a small line of staple drugs to make the places look legitimate. We have discovered that they are operating 'drug stores on wheels,' carting their small line of goods from one place to another as the prohibition agents come around for inspection.

"We have evidence that they have attempted to bribe our agents. We have alread yarrested a man who offered a $600 bribe and actually gave $400.

"They take alcohol, and by a simple process manufacture gin, for the most part. Gin is the easiest made, but rum and a certain kind of whiskey can be made.

"They have printed "Gordon Gin" labels and "Rum," dummy labels, exact duplicates of the originals. These labels and even some of the bottles have printed on them "London," "Santiago," and all precautions have been taken to make them look real.

"I have been informed they have even taken the stuff out of the three mile limit on boats, and then smuggled it back to make the procedure look real to the prohibition agents, who believe the liquor is smuggled.

"There are 1000 aplications for wholesale drug permits in my office now. We are tracing them all. It is exceedingly hard to get the goods on these illegitimate druggists without hurting legitimate alcohol manufacturers.. We have been checking all the permits issued and are slowly ferreting out the crooks. I expect more arrests within a few days."

ELECTION NEWS

OTTAWA, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press.)— No further light has been shed on the personnel of the re-organized Cabinet which the Premier is expected to announce Monday or Tuesday. During the morning Premier was secluded from callers and no information is obtainable regarding appointments, Cabinet or othrwise.

ROSCOE ARBUCKLE AGAIN AT LARGE

(Special to The Examiner.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 16.—Body of Miss Virginia Rappe will be sent to Hollywood to-day.

Witnesses in the Arbuckle case are being guarded by the police to prevent their possible intimidation. The case will come up for hearing in about three weeks, according to a statement of District Attorney Brady, who added that he believed he had sufficient evidence to convict Arbuckle of murder.

Arbuckle staed last night that he had ordered reservation on a train to Los Angeles and that he was going back to his home to-day. He continued that he intended going back into pictures and that the case would clear up as soon as the public heard all about it.

CANADIAN ROUTE TAXED, CAPACITY

CANADIAN GRAIN MAY BE DIVERTED TO THE UNITED STATES

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

WINNIPEG, Sept. 16.—The congestion of western grain at Georgian Bay ports is becoming more alarming, and this, with a decision of the Railway Commission to maintain rates on grain until the end of the year, is causing much worry to the grain trade, as the two combined will hold back the crop from the market. Vessel agents here figure that there is now enough grain at Montreal and on rails between Georgian Bay ports and Montreal and in store at Georgian Bay ports, combined with sales made for shipment to the East, to keep the Canadian route taxed to capacity for the next fifty days. The Canada Steamship Co. laid up this week six boats with a carrying capacity of a million and a quarter bushels, because of congestion at Eastern lake ports. This will force Canadian wheat from necessity to move to a great extent to Buffalo.

LETBRIDGE, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press.)—The forty-first day of his hunger strike finds Capt. Janney, according to latest despatches, considerably worried. Though he does not show actual signs of breaking up, he is in a flushed and excited state. Foricble feeding has not yet been resorted to.

GENERAL DEBATE ON NATIONS' LEAGUE WORK

GENEVA, Sept. 16.—(Canadan Press.)—General debate on the work of the League of Nations was resumed by the Assembly of the League here this morning, there was little interest taken in to-day's session ,however, as it was expected thatd questions already discusse would be taken up.

It was hoped that the debate would be completed to-day, so that reports from committees would be in order.

VISITORS' DAY ENTERED IN FAIR BOARD'S BOOKS AS BIG SUCCESS—THIS AFTERNOON ALSO PROMISED ANOTHER THRONG—SPECIAL BAND CONCERTS ARRANGED FOR REST OF EXHIBITION—DON'T FORGET SATURDAY NIGHT'S PROGRAMME.

Thursday's record attendance at the Exhibition totalled 12,204, as compared with 5,806 on the corresponding day last year. Mr. J. E. Sullivan, accountant for the Board, who has succeeded Mr. Felix Brownscombe, had a complete statement for the directors this morning.

It substantiated even the most liberal estimates of yesterday's crowds, and set a sound basis for an attendance for the four days of the Exhibition, which will be realised on Saturday by the further patronage of the citizens of Peterborough and the County.

SPECIAL BAND CONCERT.

Arrangements have been made for special band concerts on the lawn in front of the Manufacturers' Building to-night, and also on Saturday afternoon and evening. It was not positively decided which of the local bands would fill this engagement, but the choice lies between the Great War Veterans' and the 57th Rangers' Bands. While one is playing a concert programme, the other will provide the music for the caudeville acts. This will be welcome news to the crowds who have come to expect more features of interest in the east half of the Park, and the decision was doubtless crystallised by the reception given the Cobourg Band, whose concerts on Thursday were most favourably received.

BOARD IS GRATEFUL.

"Please say to the people of the city and the county and to the other visitors that on behalf of the Fair Board I wish to thank them most heartily for the manner in which they have co-operated with us this year. The exhibits have been most encouraging, and so far the attendance has been all that we could hope for. If the people turn out to-day and on Saturday as they did on Thursday, we will have a fine report to make when the Board clears up the details of this year's Exhibition."

PROMISING AGAIN TO-DAY.

This afternoon crowds scarcely seemed to bulk as large as Thursday's, but the grounds were swarming with people at one o'clock.

Slightly warmer weather provided the most agreeable outdoor conditions, and the midway was alive and busy. This year the array of booths and amusements, by the way, is bifurcated. It not only follows the old line running west to the grand stand, but there is a new avenue extending to the rear of the Merchants' Building. This increases the attractions at which the people amuse themselves.

THE GRAND STAND PERFORMANCE.

The local Exhibition has never offered its patrons a more extensive or meritorious grandstand performance than this year's programme provides. In addition to splendid horse racing and attractive music by the band of the 57th Regiment, there were seven vaudeville acts, a dance revue by the Cassidy Sisters, singing by a chorus of school children under the direction of Miss M. R. Rannie and selections by the Caledonian Pipe Band.

The vaudeville features have never been surpassed here. The Four Mellos contribute a spectacular aerial casting performance, in which the lady member of the quartette rcores heavily. D'Loura does some startling stunts at the top of a seventy-five foot steel pole, his acrobatic work and balancing being a thrdilling exhibition. Comedy is supplied in full measure by the White Bros., whose merry pranks and laughable tumbles are responsible for continuous merriment. The Steiner Trio furnish some more fun and incidentally offer an act full ow difficult feats on the horizontal bars. The Royal Yositos, Japanese artists, have an unusual foot juggling exhibition, while the La France Brothers show themselves wonderful exponents of the art of head balancing. Last, but not least are Marie and Chas. Racko, who do some surprising acrobatic work, in which the woman member of the act reverses the usual order of such performances by doing the under-standing.

The Cassady youngsters scored a triumph in their clever dance numbers, the Scotch reel, hornpipe, a Dutch dance and other specialties highly pleasing to the crowd.

The children's chorus, under Miss Ranney's capable direction, was a revelation of what training can accomplish. The chorus sang half a dozen numbers in most effective fashion, opening with the National Anthem and their work delighted everyone. So, too, did the Caledonian Pipe Band, whose numbers were a stirring contribution to the programme.

THE RACING.

Better racing has seldom been seen at the Peterboro Exhibition than was witnessed in the two races that featured yesterday's programme. Four heats were required in the 2:30 class and the 2:50 event took the full five heats to nominate a winner and in both events every heat was a race, several of the finishes being of the blanket variety. Mr. A. Brownlee of Barrie officiated as starter in the absence of Dr. Sinclair of Cannington who is on duty at Ottawa, and the new official handled the afternoon's programme in good style.

The 2:30 class was won by Eddie Jones' Lloyd George which after finishing second in the first heat came on and took the next three in commanding fashion, although always challenged by the two black mares, Lena Rivers and Reta Hall. The latter took the first heat in one of the most sensational finishes of the day, catching the judge's eye by inches, after a thrilling drive odwn the stretch. The summary:

1	Lloyd George, E. Jones, Peterboro	2	1	1	1
2	Retta Hal, Elmhirst, Keene	1	3	2	2
3	Lena Rivers, L. Ferguson, Peterboro	3	2	3	3
4	Captain Peeler, Schooley, Peterboro	5	5	4	4
5	Betty D., F. Montgomery, Peterboro	4	4	5	5

The 2:30 class produced some great racing, Charlie Chaplin, owned by Hodgson of Lindsay, captured the first heat, and Frank Montgomery's mare, Lady Barnsgate, won the second by a head, with Charlie Chaplin and Jim Elliott, owned by Charlie Armstrong of Havelock, so even that only the judges were in a position to name the second place winner, Charlie Chaplin getting the decision.

In the third heat, Charlie Chaplin Lady Barnsgate and Jim Elliott had a great battle until the last quarter. In rounding the south east corner, the two first named horses got into a jam in which the sulky of Charlie Chaplin lost a wheel. Jim Elliott came on and finished first. The officials, however, set the Havelock gelding back to fouth for crowding at the turn and Charlie Chaplin was given second place. Jim Elliott won the next two heats in decisive style.

There was some doubt as to the conditions governing the race as to whether it was an elimination contest or whether the best showing in the summary of five heats settled the winners.

Starter Brownlee withheld a decision until he had consulted the directors. Afterwards it was stated officially that the best showing in five heats decided the winners, Charlie Chaplin thus winning first money. The results:

1	Charlie Chaplin, T. Hodgson, Lindsay	1	2	1	4
2	Jim Elliott, C. Armstrong, Havelock	3	4	1	1
3	Lady Barnsgate, F. Montgomery, Peterboro	2	1	3	2
4	Dan Bingen, Elmhirst and Todd, Indian River	4	4	2	3

Judges Praise Cattle.

W. A. Dryden, of Brooklin, Ont., and G. A. Brethen, of Norwood, judges of the cattle, both commented upon the increased number of the exhibits in the beef and dairy classes and upon the superior quality of the stock shown. Mr. Dryden is a son of the former Minister of Agriculture, he is a Shorthorn breeder of international reputation, and is recognized as one of the best judges in this class in the country. Only a few days ago he returned from the Illinois and Iowa State Fairs, where he was judge of the Shorthorn exhibits. At the Illinois Fair 400 cattle passed before him, and at Iowa 350.

FOREIGNERS ARE GAMBLING TO GET RICH QUICK

Low Price of German Mark Lures Them to Buy Cheap Money.

There is much pathos and not a little grim humor in the assiduity with which foreigners, natives of Central Europe, are buying up German marks and Russian rubles, stacking them in trunks, and dreaming of the day when they will be able to go back to their native land, live in luxury on the paper they have accumulated at such ridiculously low prices here, and be among the great ones of their country.

It is no uncommon sight to see hard-working men and women go into one of the numerous money exchanges in the city with all their wages, minus the very little required to keep them alive, and change the good Canadian dollars for a most imposing looking roll of gaudy bills which are worth little more than waste paper. And the trouble is that they refuse to be told they are making a foolish speculation. Did they not know what German marks and Russian rubles were worth? they demand when told of the real situation. They had often had them before, but in nothing like the numbers they now have. They are under the impression that it is the Canadian who is foolish for selling the bills at such a rate.

It is easy to imagine the feelings of these foolish unfortunates when they are disillusioned. Many of them have put the savings of years in what has all the earmarks of a most foolish speculation; they believe that the mark and ruble will, when they go back to Europe, purchase almost as much as they did in pre-war years, and that they are but taking advantage of a most wonderful opportunity.

Prices Away Down.

The mark is selling at less than a cent to-day, while five dollars will purchase a roll of rubles that looks like a million. Although speculation on German money has almost altogether stopped on the foreign exchange, owing to its utter collapse, and the freely expressed opinion that Germany will go into bankruptcy, local dealers in exchange are reaping a nice harvest from foreigners, who cannot resist the temptation to jump at the wonderful "bargain."

Some of the foreigners display a most remarkable ignorance regarding European affairs, for not being able to read English and seldom receiving papers from their native countries, they have got out of touch with times. They only think of the native land they left as they left it, and this is unquestionably what induces them to speculate in the bills which used to be worth real money, but which now are worth little more than so much blank paper.

VOLSTEAD ACT ALLOWS HOME-MADE WINE.

WASHINGTON, September 16 (Canadian Press).—The whole question of home wine-making was being considered to-day by Prohibition Commissioner Haynes, who may ask the Parliament of Justice for a new ruling on the subject.

Reports reaching Haynes show that the public has suddenly began to take advantage of an interpretation of the Volstead Act, made more than a year ago, which allows the manufacture of 200 gallons of wine a year for personal use.

CAR BACKED INTO DITCH

JANETVILLE MAN IN AN ACCIDENT —BETHANY NEWS OF INTEREST

STREET LIGHTING

BETHANY, Sept. 16.—Mr. James Armstrong, of Janetville, met with an accident on Sunday last which might have proved serious. It appears Mr. Armstrong was motoring to the village and was coming up the hill known as the hog's back when something went wrong with the rear axle of the car and it began to back down the hill. Mr. Armstrong tried to turn into the ditch to stop the car, which caused it to turn over on its side, smashing the wind shield and the door. The occupants of the car were unhurt, but received a good shaking up, besides being badly frightened.

Women's Institute.

The members of the Women's Institute held a meeting in the town hall on Tuesday night regarding the street lighting plan. The business men of the village were also present and a discussion followed whether to put in an electric plant or try once more for Hydro. So, after some talk, a committee was appointed to canvas the village and surrounding farmers and see how many subscribers could be procured; also Miss Dewell, secretary, was instructed to write different firms regarding wiring fixtures, etc., and procure prices.

September Meeting.

The Women's Missionary Society held their September meeting at the home of their president, Mrs. Ryley. Quite a number were present and the opening 'chapter' and 'foreword' of the new study book, 'Canada's share in the world's tasks,' was given by Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Monk. A paper entitled 'The essence of Christianity,' was given by Mrs. Ryley. After a postal card from Mrs. J. K. Moore, district superintendent, was read regarding the district missionary convention to be held at Warsaw on Oct. 5th. It was moved and approved that Mrs. Monk and Mrs. Jackson be delegates to attend the convention on this date.

Mrs. Jackson then gave a short talk on the subject, 'A noble army,' meaning our missionaries, with Christ as their captain.

Epworth League.

A meeting of the executive of the Epworth League was held Monday night in the basement of the church. Programme for the winter's work was planned and it was decided that the League will open on the first Wednesday in October with a social evening. No pains are being spared to make the Epworth League this winter both instructive and entertaining to all those who attend.

Church News.

OUTCLASSED CAVAN TEAM

MILLBROOK GRABBED LONG END OF SCORE—BIG GATHERING AT "SHOWER."

MILLBROOK NEWS

MILLBROOK, September 16.—A baseball games between Cavan and Milbrook was played at the agricultural park here on Wednesday afternon, the game being called for 5 p.m. Both teams began well but it was soon evident that the visitors were outclassed by the home players, the score being 17-4. Mr. G. W. Sayles acted as umpire.

A delightful 'shower' in honour of Miss Mabel Howden was held at the home of Mr. John Pitt on Tuesday evening. Over 50 guests were invited and a most enjoyable evening was spent. The 'shower,' which in this case was a miscellaneous one, contained many beautiful and useful gifts, showing the high esteem in which the bride-to-be is held by her numerous friends.

The wedding will take place on Wednesday, September 21st, in the Anglican church.

Miss Alice Elson of Regina, is holidaying at the home of her parents, Mr and Mrs. H. Elson of the 7th line, Cavan. Her sister, Miss Ella Elson, who has been visiting in the west for several weeks, accompanied her home.

The Religious Eductional Council of the Peterboro District, met in the Methodist church on Tuesday evening and transacted some important business. Amongst the other things it was decided to hold four Sunday School Institutes in November, and also a District Epworth League convention in Trinity Church, Peterboro ,on either the 11th or the 18th of that month. For this convention it is hoped to secure the services of Rev. Mr. Beaton of Chentu, China, now home on furlough.

Amongst those from out of town who attended the funeral of the late Miss Harriet Dean, were her brother, Mr. A. Dean, and his two sons, Dr .Ernest and Mr. Percy, and Rev. Dr. Armstrong, all of Toronto; and Colonel and Mrs. Miller, and their two daughters, from Peterboro.

Sunday, September 20th, will be observed as 'Rally Day' in the Methodist Sunday school, in common with the other Protestant Sunday Schools of the Dominion, when the special programme issued from headquarters in Toronto, will be used, and Rev. Manson Doyle, one of the general Sunday school secretaries, will deliver an address.

Rev. Mr. Doyle will also preach at the morning and evening services.

The funeral of the late Miss Harriett Dean took place from the family residence, King street, on Tuesday, September 13th, at 2:30 p.m.

A large number of friends gathered at the house to pay their last respects to the deceased, who, from her life-long residence here, was well known and highly respected by the entire community.

The services were in charge of Rev. Mr. Tucker, pastor of the Methodist church, of which church Miss Dean had been a member in good standing almost from her girlhood days.

Rev. Canon Allen of the Anglican Church, spoke in the highest terms

LUNENBURG, N. S., Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—The decision of the trustees of the International Fishermen's Trophy to bar the Boston schooner, Mayflower, as a contestant in the races this year was received with general approval by fishing skippers here. The feeling throughout the fishing communities of Nova Scotia had been that the American Committee, giving expression to the views said to be prevalent among American fishermen would declare the Mayflower ineligible.

COMMISSION'S REPORT.

EDMONTON, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Alberta stands to gain a good deal in the opinion of Hon. G. H. Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture, if the commission's report recommending the removal of the British cattle embargo is adopted.

It will not entirely solve the problem, Mr. Hoadley says, for the question of the cost of getting cattle to the British market will still remain, but to have an entry there with provision for a sufficient time for finshing off will go a long way toward making a profitable export business possible.

SOCIETY WEDDING.

OTTAWA, Sept. 16. — (Canadian Press).—The smartest society wedding of the season took place yesterday afternoon, when two the most popular members of the capital's younger set, Miss Ida Evelyn Woods, younger daughter of Col. WILL STABILIZE PRICES.

REGINA, Sask., Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press). — "It will be a very satisfactory state of affairs for Canadian cattle raisers if it is endorsed by the Imperial Government," stated F. H. Auld, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Saskatchewan, commenting on the findings of the British Cattle Embargo Commission. "It will not mean greater prices for all our cattle, but it will keep prices from falling lower," he said.

The freight receints decreased less than one per cent., but the passenger receipts increased 16 per cent., or $1,136,423. This was $1,104,810.17 less than last year, despite the increase of ten per cent. in the passenger rates.

CONFERENCE CANCELLED BY PREMIER

LLOYD GEORGE WILL NOW CONSULT WITH COLLEAGUES ON IRISH QUESTION.

REPLY TO DEVALERA

LONDON, Sept. 16.— (Canadian Press.)—Mr. Lloyd George cancelled the conference in his reply to the communication of Eamonn De Valera, made public here. The Prime Minister said he must now consult with his colleagues on the course of action the new situation necessitated.

Mr. Lloyd George told the Sinn Fein leaders that he would communicate the result of such consultation as soon as possible, but that he must make it absolutely clear the British Government could not reconsider its position as stated to him.

The text of Mr. Lloyd George's reply, which was telegraphed last night, says:

"I informed your emissaries who came to me here Tuesday that reiteration of your claim to negotiate with His Majesty's Government as the representative of an independent and soverign state would make a conference between us impossible.

"They brought me a letter from you in which you specifically reaffirmed that claim, stating that your nation 'has formally declared its independence and recognizes itself as a sovereign state,' and it is only, you added, 'as representatives of that state and as its chosen guardians that we have any authority or powers to act on behalf of our people.'

"I asked them to warn you of the very serious effect of such a paragraph and offered to regard the letter as not delivered to me in order that you might have time to re-consider it. Despite this intimation you have now published the letter in its original form. I must, accordingly, cancel the arrangements for the conference next week at Inverness and must consult my colleagues on the course of action this new situation necessitates. I will communicate this to you as soon as possible, but as I am for the moment laid up here a few days' delay is inevitable. Meanwhile, I must make it absolutely clear that His Majesty's Government cannot re-consider its position, which I have stated to you.

"If we accepted a conference with your delegates on the formal staement of the claim which you have reaffirmed it, would constitute an official recognition by His Majesty's Government of the severance of Ireland from the Empire and of its existence as an independent republic.

"It would, moreover, entitle you to declare was of right acknowledged by us, that in preference to association with the British Empire you would pursue closer association by a treaty with some other foreign power. There is only one answer possible to such a claim as that.

"The great concessions which His Majesty's Government made to the feeling of your people in order to secure a lasting settlement deserved, in my opinion, some more generous response, but so far every advance has been made by us.

"On your part you have not come to meet us by a single step, but have merely reiterated in phrases of emphatic challenge the letter and the spirit of your original claim.

"I am, yours faithfully,

"Lloyd George."

RECORD BREAKING CROWD FOR THURSDAY OF THE EXHIBITION RESULT OF CATTLE JUDGING

SUMMONED MEMBERS OF THE SINN FEIN

DUBLIN, Sept. 16.—(Special to the Examiner—President Eamonne de Valera summoned members of the Sinn Fein Cabinet to-day to consider the situation arising out of Lloyd George's action in cancelling the proposed Inverness Conference. Upon the shoulders of the republican inner ring, full responsibility for the full making of peace or war in Ireland rested.

DEALING WITH UNEMPLOYMENT

PROVINCIAL EMPLOYMENT CONFERENCE NOW MEETING IN WINNIPEG.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 16.—(By Canadian Press.)—Institution of a fund by the Dominion, Provincial and Municipal governments for launching undertakings to provide employment this winter was suggested at the Provincial Employment Conference, which opened here yesterday. A report submitted by the subcommittee which has been investigating the unemployment situation for the past six weeks recommended renovating governmental buildings, construction of a national highway transportation of firewood and rock to the city for sale, clearing up arrearage of clerical work in municipal, provincial and federal government departments, construction of sewers and opening new streets to provide employment this winter.

The sub-committee's report set out reasons for unemployment as being to the influx of rural residents to the cities during times of industrial activity who failed to return to the country when they were unable to obtain industrial employment seasonal conditions; financial conditions ;fluctuation in industry, permitting immigrants to enter the country who are unfitted physically for farm work, and lack of organization of productive industry with a view to continuous employment.

All delegates present favored a federal conference called by the minister of labor. Representatives were chosen to represent Manitoba should the conference be called.

British Columbia and Saskatchewan representatives attended the conference and stated their provinces were faced with the same problem as Manitoba. J. D. McNiven, deputy minister of labor for British Columbia, said the only solution was the dealing with the matter in a nation-wide manner, as this would put a stop to the migration of unemployed from one province to another.

ONE OF THE MOST GRATIFYING DAYS IN THE HISTORY OF PETERBORO'S FAIR—GRANDSTAND ATTRACTION, HORSE RACES AND MUSIC ALL COMBINED TO PLEASE THE THRONGS ON VISITORS' DAY—COBOURG BAND A FEATURE.

Pending official figures of Thursday's attendance at Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, it may be safely predicted that the total will exceed by a large margin the best previous figures for the first day, or as it has now become, the second day of the Fair.

That crowd was obviously bigger than the attendances on the main days of comparatively recent exhibitions, and it was confidently believed that the Friday and Saturday count at the turnstiles would be both higher still. Wednesday is entered in the chronicles of the Fair as a day of unalloyed satisfaction. The grand stand, with its doubled capacity, was packed at both the afternoon and evening performances and at the secretary's office and throughout the grounds there was nothing but commendation for this year's programme.

The vaudeville acts and acrobatic antics and comedy stunts won the approval of the 57th Rangers' bandsmen, who have been playing the music for these features many a year. Their praise is praise indeed, but the prevailing sentiment of unstinted satisfaction from the crowds was even more gratifying to Mr. Webber Turner and his committee who engaged the performers and laid out the programme. By the way, the other members of the Amusements and Advertising Committee are Messrs. G. O. Cameron, E. B. Fowler, C. G. Graham, T. H. Hooper, and Gordon Matthews, all of whom no doubt would award most of the credit for the arrangements to Mr. Turner, whose experience as former manager of the Grand Opera House has been of invaluable service to the Exhibition directors.

Visitors Were Conspicuous.

The presence of many visitors who had not been noticed at Peterborough's Fair before was generally remarked upon. Unquestionably they materially boosted the attendance, thanks to the preparatory arrangements of the Transportation Committee, who had secured special trains for the accommodation of the homegoing citizens along the G.T.R. lines to Campbellford and Cobourg. This reaching out for new friends yielded more abundant returns than ever this year, and Visitors' Day may be regarded as an established fixture to be amplified and expanded as the Exhibition grows.

The Cobourg Band.

In this connection the Cobourg Citizens' Band proved a decided acquisition. They gave afternoon and evening concerts on the lawn in front of the secretary's office, to the west of the main gate, and the numerous audiences that enjoyed their music was conclusive evidence of the merit of this feature. It impressed the directors with the fact that music is a special and highly appreciated attraction in itself.

FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 16, 1921.

A FARMER LOSS.

Perhaps the most interesting and important development that has yet occurred in the Federal political arena since the announcement of Premier Meighen that there would be a general election before Christmas, lies the refusal of Dr. Michael Clark to accept nomination as a Progressive candidate in Alberta. The association of the brilliant member for Red Deer with the Agrarian party during the last session of the House gave them the support and services of one of Canada's finest orators and most influential public men. It is undoubtedly a serious blow to the National Progressive Party that he should decline to fight under their banner in the present campaign; the reasons that he so lucidly expresses for his decision are perhaps even more serious, for they strike at what has always been the most apparent weakness in the Agrarian cause. Dr. Clark declares that he cannot longer support the Farmers' political movement because it is a class movement, and because he is opposed to group government. Coming from a parliamentarian who had been counted upon as one of the most able leaders of the Agrarians, this criticism is not to be lightly shaken off, and Dr. Clark's defection is a sad loss to the Progressive party.

THE BANNER EXHIBITION.

Cogratulations are due to President R. Denne and the members of the Peterborough Exhibition Board upon this year's Exhibition. Leaving the financial side of the question to itself—and from that angle, too, all records will be broken—it is but simple justice to say that as an Exhibition the 1921 fair reaches a new level. The co-operation of every section of the community, of farmers, manufacturers, merchants and the public generally, with the energy and vim and enthusiasm of the management, has elevated the Exhibition to a plane of excellence never before attained. The improvement is not confined to one department; it is found everywhere, but perhaps the greatest growth has been attained in the exhibits of the industrials and business firms. A few years ago the one small "main" building housed all the displays of this kind; this year every foot of space in the Manufacturers' building, in the main biulding and in a huge tent is occupied, and the exhibits have overflowed into the grounds in spite of the increased accommodation. Nothing so extensive has ever been shown here, and this one department alone places the Peterborough Exhibition so far ahead of its rivals as to leave no opportunity for comparison. The spirit of progress and advancement is found everywhere throughout the grounds, and the transformation that has been accomplished is a surprise even to those who know the driving power that the present directors have put into the organization. This year's Exhibition is Peterborough's banner fair—there has never been such an array of exhibits and features since the institution was launched.

WHERE WERE THE FLAGS?

Canadians generally are not given to a widespread display of the national flag on public occasions, and more than once it has been remarked that the people of Peterborough are even more backward in the flying of the Union Jack than their fellow countrymen elsewhere in the Dominion. The parade in connection with the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition went a long way towards demonstrating the truth of that contention. In the whole of the procession, with scores of cars and other vehicles in line, four bands furnishing the music, and a most creditable turn-out representing local manufacturers and business houses, how many Union Jacks were in evidence? Exactly two, one flying as a pennant on a tractor, the other smalll one decorating a horse. There was no flag at the head of the parade, not one of the bands carried the ensign, and with the exception of the two mentioned, there was not the slightest indication of the nationality of the paraders. Canadians are sometimes inclined to smile at the flag-waving of their American cousins, and perhaps our neighbors do go to extremes, but certainly it is impossible to imagine a procession such as yesterday's in any city across the line that would not have been brightened with hundreds of United States' flags. The absence of British flags yesterday was so general as to attract more than usual comment.

THE FIGHTING 21ST.

The members of the 21st Eastern Ontario Battalion are holding their annual re-union in Peterborough this evening, and the Examiner, in extending to the survivors of this famous fighting unit a hearty welcome to this city, feel confident that it is voicing the sentiment of the community. Peterborough takes a particular interest and pride in the 21st Battalion, for not only were there ninety Peterborough soldiers in the original battalion, but throughout the war fresh drafts of men from this city were sent to the 21st on many occasions, and Peterborough was never without a strong representation in the battalion. The record of the 21st is second to none. It was recruited in 1914, went overseas early in 1915, and in September of that year was at the front taking part in all the heavy fighting of the Canadian corps until the end of the war. The battle honours of the Eastern Ontario unit make a long list, and as might be expected, its casualty list was equally as long.

At the re-unioi to-night, members of the battalion from far and near will fight their battles over again and revive the memories of the old days in training camp and trench. It is a coincidence that to-day is not only the anniversary of the date upon which the 21st entered the trenches, on Sept. 15, 1916, but also of one of the most brilliant exploits of the battalion, the capture of the Sugar Refinery at Courcellette on Sept. 15, 1916, during the battle of the Somme. The people of Peterborough hope that the 21st men will enjoy their visit here and that their gathering will be in every way a success.

MUNICIPAL ECONOMY.

At a recent meeting of an association of Saskatchewan municipalities, the Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs, Mr. J. J. Smith, directed attention to the necessity for economy in municipal management when he said:

There are three measures which might be adopted by the municipality in an endeavour to bring about a reduction in the amount of interest paid on municipal loans. They are:

1. Economy and retrenchment in municipal expenditure.
2. Enforcement of the prompt payment of taxes.
3. Creation of a surplus in the municipal treasury.

1. In times like these, when general conditions are unsatisfactory, and collections of taxes is difficult, the expenditure of the municipality should be reduced to a minimum. In no case should the council embark upon a policy of heavy expenditure unless the municipal finances are in a perfectly sound and healthy condition. The municipality can only give to the ratepayer what it has already taken from him in taxes. If the municipality bororws from the bank, it pledges the taxes levied against the ratepayer, and this, in my opinion, should only be done where the expenditure is fully justified, and where there is every prospect that the taxes will be promptly paid.

2. The second measure which I would recommend is the enforcement of the prompt payment of taxes. No doubt the abnormal conditions which have prevailed in certain portions of the province during the past few years have given rise to a considerable accumulation of unpaid taxes. I am convinced that considerably more drastic measures will have to be taken by municipalities to recover their taxes than have been taken for some years past if the municipalities of the province are to continue to do satisfactory work.

3. My third sugestion is that every municipality should endeavour to create a surplus of municipal funds sufficient to enable the council to meet the necessary current expenditure of the first few months of the year without borrowing from the bank. I am strongly opposed to the creation of large and unnecessary surpluses by municipalities. Every municipality should aim, however, to place its finances in such a position that it will be unnecessary for the council to pay out large sums in interest on money borrowed for current needs. This can easily be done by the creation of a reasonable surplus in the municipal treasury.

LITERARY GEMS

CHIVALRY.

That chivalrous spirit which has exercised so powerful an influence on the politics, morals and manners of all the European nations, was found in the highest exaltation amongst the Norman nobles. These nobles were distinguished also by their skill in negotiation, and by a natural eloquence which they assiduously cultivated. It was the boast of one of their historians that the Norman gentlemen were orators from the cradle. The French-Canadians are largely descendants of the Normans.

On Wednesday 14th instant at 1.30 at the home of the bride, Fairview Farm, Cavan, the marriage of Miss Ella Mary McGill and Harold Tate was solemnized by the Rev. A. H. McConachie of Centreville Presbyterian Church. The bride who was given away by her father was becomingly gowned in white satin veiled with embroidered lace and pearl trimmings and caught with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of roses. The dining room was beautifully decorated with evergrens and astors. While Mendelsohn's wedding march was being played the bride took her place under the floral arch, during the signing of the register Lohengrin's wedding march was played. At the close of the ceremony, dinner was served, catered by Hooper of Peterboro, and the toast of the newly wedded couple proposed by the minister.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, including the groom's which consisted of a set of black fox furs. TELEGRAPHED UNDERTAKER TO WHISPER IN DEAD GIRL'S EAR

"HENRY LOVES YOU" WAS THE MESSAGE SENT BY MISS RAPPE'S FIANCE IN NEW YORK

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 16.—The indictment read:

"We, the Grand Jury, charge, to wit: That on or about the ninth of September, 1921, Roscoe Arbuckle did then and there wilfully, unlawfully and feloniously and without malice aforethought, kill Virginia Rappe, a human being."

Arbuckle was not in court.

District Attorney Brady explained that Arbuckle would not be admitted to bail until two murder charges pending against him had been disposed of. He is to confer with the Chief of Police and other authorities later in the day as to the exact charge on which Arbuckle shall be tried.

District Attorney Brady announced to-night that no decision had yet been reached whether to proceed against Roscoe ("Fatty") Arbuckle in police court on the murder charge preferred against him or to ask for dismissal of this charge in view of the Grand Jury indictment against Arbuckle for manslaughter.

The decision will be made sometime to-day, Brady said. His statement was made after a conference with his deputies and with Chief of Police O'Brien and Captain of Detectives Matheson.

The body of Miss Virginia Rappe was not removed from San Francisco to Los Angeles last night, contrary to an announcement made by District Attorney Brady, but will be taken to the southern city to-day

The manager of the establishment was asked in a telegram from Henry Lehrman, Miss Rappe's fiancee in New York, to whisper in the dead girl's ear, "Henry loves you."

"She will hear you," the telegram continued.

The exact time for the departure of Miss Rappe's body had not been set late to-day but it was expected to forward it this morning. The body was prepared for shipment yesterday.

Mrs. W. B. Hamilton, chairman of the special committee named by the Woman's Vigilante Committee to co-operate with District Attorney Brady, in the investigation of the Arbuckle case and Mrs. Robert H. Dean, a prominent member of the special committee, waited on Brady and pledged him the full support of the committee.

The women announced that the Vigilante Committee, which is made up of a number of San Francisco club women, will have members of the special committee at every public hearing of the Arbuckle case; will provide every possible protection to the women witnesses and will co-operate in every way possible.

A PREMONITION.

Chapter 64.

We reached New York earlier than we had expected. It was just four o'clock when our train pulled into the Grand Central Station.

I had told Nancy that we would probably not be back much before six o'clock. Now I would be able to get home before Kent Jr. had his supper. He always had a baked potato and a glass of milk and bread and butter about 5.30, and then went to bed before Kent and I had our dinner at 6.30.

I had told Nancy she could let him wait up for us in case we might be a little later than six o'clock. Now I looked forward to getting home early and surprising him.

I waited in the station for Kent while he hurried out to buy some flowers to take home to baby, and he came hurrying back in a few minutes with half a dozen of the most exquisite little yellow rosebuds.

I pulled the tissue paper apart at the end of the package and peeped in.

"Do you know, Babs, we are so early I think I'll run on down to the office for a while. It will give me a chance to 'tend to something important," Kent told me, glancing at his watch.

"All right, dear," I answered a little reluctantly, "but be sure and get home soon after six o'clock, because Kent Jr. will want so much to see you before he goes to bed," I admonished.

Somehow I dreaded going home without Kent. I felt that there would be some reason why I would need him. I wanted to tell him so, and was on the point of asking him not to go down to the office, but I hesitated a moment and he took my arm and guided me up the steps toward the taxi stand.

"I guess you'd better go up in a taxi," he suggested. "It will save time and you'll avoid the crowds around this hour of the day."

I took the flowers and Kent kissed me and helped me into a waiting cab.

"I'll take the subway downtown—see you later, dear," he said, and lifted his hat as he stepped back from the taxi door. I saw him turn and hurry back toward the subway entrance in the station. I hated to lose sight of those broad, dependable shoulders.

The old taxi seemed to crawl up the Avenue. I was so anxious to see Kent Jr. that the trip was unending.

It seemed, too, as if the driver of the taxi was unusually reckless in his driving. He did not seem to make much headway, but stopped, and dashed ahead with sudden reckless grindings and squeakings of the gears and brakes. Again I wished for Kent beside me.

I was not really nervous or frightened for myself, and yet I felt greatly agitated. Each moment I became more disquieted about getting home to Kent Jr. Some strange feeling of doubt and anxiety seemed to envelope me. I could not shake it off.

When we stopped for traffic at 50th Street I wanted to jump out and run. I thought the policeman would never give the signal for us to turn into the Park.

Finally when we did reach the apartment I jumped out and rushed for the front door without stopping to pay the taxi driver. He called me back. I turned with flaming cheeks and fumbled nervously with my purse. Each moment of delay was agony to me.

As I rushed for the elevator my knees seemed suddenly weak and shaking. I felt sure the elevator boy loked at me with a solicitous sort of expression as though he knew what news was waiting for me. He was usually very talkative, but now he just touched his cap respectfully and brought the elevator quickly to my floor.

To-morrow—Kidnapped.

SAY CONFESSED TO SLAYING IN CHICAGO.

Tale of Cold-Blooded Assassination Now Laid Bare—Murdered Victim to Get Possession of Motor Car.

CHICGO, Sept. 15.—Two confessions obtained are believed by the authorities to clear up the mystery surrounding the murders of B. J. Daugherty and Carl A. Ausmus, automobile salesmen.

Harvey W. Church at whose home the men are alleged to have been killed after Church had led them there to receive payment for an automobile he pretended he wished to purchase, late last night confessed that he was aided in committing the crimes by two accomplices and implicated Leon Parks employed in a garage where he formerly worked, and Clarence W ld er, another friend, as accomplices.

Parks, who had been taken into custody several days ago, when confronted by Church, confessed according to the police, telling the parts the three had played in the two murders.

Wilder, the third man alleged to be involved in the crime, is in the custody of the police to-day and is being questioned to verify essential details as told by his alleged confed erates.

Wanted Car.

Parks' confession for the first time bared the real motive of the double murder. The only reason given by Church in his original confession of the $5,400 automobile he was dealing for.

Parks asserted the three had planned to steal the car from Daugherty nd Ausmus, sell it and divide the profit.

Parks said Wider, according to Parks, waited in the basement of Church's home until Church brought Daugherty there at the point of a gun after Daugherty, Church and Ausmus had driven to the Church home, Daugherty was handcuffed, bound and then struck over the head with a baseball bat and his throat cut. Ausmus, who came to look for Daugherty, suffered a similar fate. Parks, in his alleged confession blames Church for the actual slaying of the two victims.

The three dug a home-made grave in Church's garage where they buried Ausmus. Then they ate supper and at 3 o'clock the next morning, Parks and Church took Daugherty's body and threw it into the Desplaines River, Parks said.

With Church already held for the grand jury as the result of a coroner's inquest, speedy action in bringing the case to trial was anticipated to-day. Church's mother was to-day in a critical condition here, having collapsed when she learned of her son's confession yesterday.

Coroners' Verdict.

A coroner's jury investigating the deaths of Daugherty and Ausmus, automobile salesmen, returned a verdict finding that they came to their deaths through external violence inflicted by Church and recommended that he be held to the grand jury on a charge of murder in both cases without bail.

Church, a 20-year old youth, heard the verdict calmly. His face showed no nervousness or emotion as he faced a crowd of several hundred jeering men after the inquest. It was necessary for the police to clear a way through the threatening crowd for the prisoner.

The body of Daugherty was found Friday in the Desplaines river and that of Ausmus in a garage behind the Church home on Saturday. Church was arrested Friday night at Adam, Wis., where he had gone in the car for a visit to his former home.

HE PROTESTED.

The stern parent was about to apply the strap to his offspring, who had erred.

Robert was the erring offspring's name, and he was well "up" in the "rights of man."

"Father," he objected, "unless that instrument is properly sterilized, I must protest."

The father stopped for a moment.

"Moreover," continued little Robert, "the germs that might be released by the violent impact of leather upon a porous textile fabric but lately exposed to the dust of the street, would be apt to affect you deleteriously."

But through all history it has always pained the parent more to whip the child than it has hurt the child.

IS WORLD BEATER SAYS CONTRACTOR

SENIOR MEMBER OF BURY & HUSSEY, CONTRACTORS, GIVES PUBLIC BENEFIT OF EXPERIENCE.

"Well, sir, I've got to hand it to Tanlac, for it knocked out my rheumatism and indigestion when nothing else even so much as helped me," declared Ogden Bury, 120 Auburn Ave., Toronto, Ont., senior member of the well-known contracting firm of Bury & Hussey.

"Up to about two years ago," said Mr. Bury, "I don't believe there was a healthier man in Canada than I was. But about that time my stomach went wrong and everything I ate disagreed with me. I had so much gas on my stomach it was alarming, and kept me in misery alll the time.

"I also had rheumatism something awful, with shooting pains in my legs and arms, shoulders and back; in fact my whole body just seemed to be a bundle of aches and pains. At night I would lie awake by the hour and get up in the morning feeling more dead than alive. I tried everything I could think or hear of, but nothing did me a bit of good and I got awful weak and run down.

"My case was certainly a stubborn one, but by the time I started on my third bottle of Tanlac I saw I was on the road to recovery. I kept right on with my Tanlac, and to-day every trace of indigestion and rheumatism is gone. I eat and sleep like a schol boy and am just in the pink of condition in every way. In fact I am as well as I ever was in my life. Tanlac is simply a world beater."

DUBLIN ALSO HAS ITS WAR RUINS

DUBLIN.—(By Mail to United Press).—The main street of Dublin O'Connell, if you are a Republican Sackville, if you are a Unionist—is being rebuilt. This business section, which was shelled by the British artillery when held by the Republican forces in the Easter Rebellion of 1916, is now being faced with neat new stores and office buildings.

Two bleak scars mar the city. The fine stone Post Office, the most imposing building on the street, was shelled in the rebellion till nothing but the four gaping walls and a heap of debris within remained. The other is the Custom House, burned by the Republicans early this summer, a large stone structure left a ruin, with the small domed tower still tonned by a sad statue.

The people of Dublin look like the houses, some of them fine, but most of them shabby. The children in the streets are frequently without shoes, and there is more begging than in Vienna.

The people, however, with their sparkling conversations and charming hospitality, leave no question but that the Dublinite, be he ever so humble, is still an Irishman.

WITH ONLY 2 SUITS HE'S HALF NAKED

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 16.—The man with two changes of clothing is about half naked, according to the standards of L. C. Tyler, Chairman of the Fashion Committee of the National Cutters' Association. He declared $2,000 a year was an insignificant expenditure for clothing.

The style will give the men the "bustle" effect, according to Mr. Tyler. The trousers will have plaits in the front, "creating a large thigh," he announced.

The only other change will be in the waistcoat, which will be shorter and with 'round points."

Tyler said a man should have at least 16 suits.

The longest march ever attempted by an American military organization will be covered by the Third Infantry regiment of 750 men, coming from Camp Perry, Ohio, to Fort Snelling, Minnesota, a distance of 700 miles. The purpose of the hike is to down expenses of the War Department. They will march with full equipment.

BETTER TIMES FOR U. S. TRADE NOW PREDICTED.

Much Improvement For Industry Within Ninety Days—German Competition in South America and South Africa.

WASHINGTON, September 15 (United Press). —Better times are ahead for American industry and business, but no one should expect a miraculous recovery this winter from existing depression.

This fairly expresses the outlook for the coming winter held by Government officials, economists, bankers, and business men.

Facts upon which predictions of bettering conditions were based are briefly:

1—The recent development in cotton which has released large sums of money from use not only in the south but elsewhere.

2—Increased railroad tonnage. Last week idle freight cars decreased by more than 23,000.

3—The Government's readiness and ability to help business. Aid rendered the cotton and live stock industries greatly accelerated their recovery and has helped the whole agricultural business, it was agreed.

Depletion of stocks in almost all lines of merchandise to a point where buying in greater or less degree will soon be inevitable.

Eugene Meyer, Jr., director of the War Finance Corporation, who is in charge of the Government's relief work for business, and who is probably in better touch with business conditions than any in Washington, said the next ninety days would show much improvement.

"There is no doubt of the fact that we are in better condition than we were," said Meyer. "Cotton helped greatly, and will continue to help to accelerate the movement back to normal. Every good development like that breeds other good developments. Agriculture generally is showing a healthier condition. Industry is beginning to resume. When the railroads are helped to the buying of cars and other equipment, the process of recovery will be much more rapid. Unemployment will be tremendously decreased when the railroads place orders for new equipment."

Depression in Europe.

World-wide business depression has not yet reached an end so far as Western Europe is concerned, according to reports of foreign agents of the Department of Commerce.

"The principal cause," says the Department of Commerce report, "seems to be the continued hesitancy of merchants to liquidate at a loss, with the result that warehouse stocks, especially in transit countries, such as Belgium and Holland, remain high, slowing up commercial activities."

Labour costs in Europe, the report indicates, are somewhat less than during July, causing a tendency to increase activities in some quarters. The reduction of interest rates generally, together with increase currency circulation, seems to indicate a turn is approaching.

"A break in some commodities already has occurred," continues the report, "while prices are slightly higher than last month in some quarters. Belgium, especially, has increased her commodity index, showing that the downward trend has already reached its end."

Conditions in Holland, according to the report of J. W. Vanderlaan, American commercial attache at The Hague, continue critical.

"There have been 1,326 business failures since 1st January," cabled Vanderlaan. "About 20 per cent. of the labourers are without work, and strikes continue owing to a persistent demand for reduction of wages."

The Royal Dutch Company has organised a company for the sale of kerosene in order to compete with the American companies, and as a result kerosene prices have declined from 17 to 13 cents per litre wholesale.

German competition, which last week's reports indicated was usually keen in South America, is manifesting itself in South African fields also.

LOWER SKIRTS? CERTAINLY NOT

Subtley of Appeal in Them is the Thing, Stylist of Paris Says.

O, skirts will not be lower. They will stay right where they are now, although there will be in the coming styles an effort to veil, so to speak—to add a measure of subtlety to the appeal of knee-lengths. Skirts may be long part way around, but they will be tucked up in the remaining sector so that observers on the right side of the street will not notice any distressing difference. Or there may be overskirts of beads or filmy lace, but nothing that is not transparent.

Such is the dictum of Madame Hosac, who recently arrived in Chicago from Paris, to participate in the debates of the Fashion Art League now in session there.

Once, explains Madame Hosac, short skirts were impossible because hosiery manufacturers did not produce an article artistic enough to stand the constant gaze of the public. Our aesthetic senses were affronted. The young men hanging around the corner cigar store to watch the parade of femininity go past turned away trembling with indignation at such a violation of good taste. But now things are different; and the first reason for the short skirt's continuance in power is the superior quality of hosiery now on the market, Madame Hosac declares.

Ah! Such a Pity.

But there is another reason for the short skirt beneath this matter of hosiery.

"Ah," she said to a Chicago newspaperman, "it would be such a pity to cover up these pretty American girls! Fashion should not permit it. How fascinating! Am I correct?"

Madame Hosac offered her exhibits in the case. It was, so to speak, an empiric method of argument. It was proof by experience. And while the metaphysicians might not consider it a proper substitute for logic, what could more clearly prove or disprove Madame Hosacs contention that it would be a pity to cover up American charms? Madame Hosac merely said "Just see!"—and the models stood forth, dressed as fashion decrees.

So dresses will be worn short again this year, and milady relies on the conclusive force of her crural arguments to convince the world it is right and proper.

Subtlety Gets 'Em.

"The new fall skirt is not lengthy, it is just long part of the way around and the rest is tucked up in an evelope fold with a bit of coquetries that takes one into all the delicate secrets that might have been concealed," said Madame Hosac.

"It is much prettier for a girl to pull a long skirt up a few inches and reveal a flutter of billowy lingerie than for her to have a short dress on. Subtley's the thing!

"This is the feature of the new American styles. They have part of a hem caught up in a teasing drapery.

"The skirts are really no longer than those now worn, but to get the idea of length there is always something hanging down, perhaps an overskirt of beads, and often the odd bit of lace."

KEMAL FORCES SCATTERED BY THE HELLENES

BATTLE OF ESKI-SHEHIR WILL REMAIN AN EPIC IN MODERN GREEK HISTORY—SMASHED 14 DIVISIONS OF TURKS.

GREAT DECISIVE BATTLE

ESKI-SHEHIR, Asia Minor, Sept. 16.—(Associated Press).—The battle of Eski-Shehir probably will remain an epic in modern Greek history. It was here that the Hellenic army crowned its smashing 10-day offensive against the Turks by vanquishing 14 divisions of Mustapha Kemal and scattering his legionaries in disorder toward Angora. Some regard it as one of the most decisive battles in all of Greece's long time of struggles.

Seven Greek divisions shared in the honor of the victory. The Third Army Corps, commanded by General George Polymanakos, covered itself with especial distinction. The same army corps was the first to occupy Kemal's other great stronghold, Kutahia.

Trap For Greeks.

The Turks had sought to lay a trap for the Greeks. They retired from Eski-Shehir on the afternoon of July 19, and took up positions in the hills just outside the town. It was their intention to return to the city in a few days, when the Greek forces should be well within the town.

At noon on July 21, believing that most of the Greek troops would be caught unaware within the city, Kemal with all his available troops, launched a spirited attack from a point eight kilometers to the north of the town.

Descended Like Wolves.

The Turks descended from the crest of the long range of hills which encircle Eski-Shehir, like wolves bearing down upon a sheepfold. Eski-Shehir was too great a prize to be given up lightly. Not only is the town strongly fortified, but it is an important railroad head and links Constantinople with Angora. The town lay peacefully upon the broad wheat-covered plain, the surrounding mountains combining to form a vast amphitheater around its environs. It was a perfect setting for a battle. The weather was ideal. Within the city the population was preparing quietly for luncheon, with no thought that a struggle was about to ensue. Only the hum of Greek airplanes overhead disturbed the repose of the lethargic Turkish town.

More Than Prepared.

The Greeks had taken up positions on the outskirts of the city. They, themselves, had planned an offensive that afternoon. So the Turks found their adversaries more than prepared. Long lines of Kemalist troops could be seen crawling down from the summits of the mountains in serpentine fashion. The Greeks hurried to their positions and awaited the order to fire. The Greeks steeled themselves for the onslaught.

The Turkish guns soon were roaring out a fierce volley. Their aim was accurate and deadly. Scores of Greeks could be seen falling. By degrees the Kemalists advanced until they were within five kilometers of the city. Their artillery fire was especially effective. The Greek troops then got into action and answered the murderous cannon and rifle fire that met them. Their work was described by neutral military observers as superb.

People Panic-stricken.

In spite of the sustained rifle and machine-gun fire of the Greek infantry, however, the Turks were getting nearer and nearer to the city. Their shells were breaking within the streets. The population became panic-stricken. Some fled in terror to the cellars of their homes. Groups of them surrounded the Associated Press correspondent and sought some word of encouragement from him. "Would the Turks retake the city?" That was the question that worried them. For a time the situation looked dark.

But the Greek reserve divisions had not yet been heard from. They had been cleverly deployed around the city at the most advantageous strategical points. They were hurriedly brought up to the first lines where their rifles and machine guns did deadly work. The Turks, then within three kilometers of the city, fell back.

"Are they coming back?" the distressed Christian population kept repeating. Only the Greek troops could answer.

Three Greek divisions of infantry were now pouring a merciless stream of fire into the Turkish ranks. They soon were joined by the cavalry.

Yielded Ground.

Slowly the Kemalists began to yield their ground. By this time they were outnumbered two to one by the Greeks and the odds were becoming greater. Mortals could not stand such a relentless barrage of bullets. Kemal put up a brave and determined fight, but it was apparent he had not reckoned upon so great a host.

Additional units of Greek infantry made their appearance until it seemed as if a dozen divisions were in action. As the fury of the fire increased, the Turkish lines began to thin out. Those who were not killed turned and fled toward the mountains. The Greek forces swept on and drove the remainder into the recesses of the mountains. It was a day of triumph for Hellas.

After the battle it was found the Greeks had nearly annihilated three of Kemal's finest divisions. One Greek regiment of cavalry, in a daring charge, slew 400 Turks with the sabre. The total Turkish casualties, killed and wounded, were put at 7,000, while those of the Greeks were estimated at 3,500.

Famine Workers

The hardships and dangers of life in the famine and disease-stricken Caucasus are being braved by a former Winnipeg girl, who now has charge of 20,000 orphans in the Armenian city of Alexandropol. She is Miss Fannie Strowger, at one time a dietitian in the Winnipeg General Hospital.

Miss Strowger, who served in France during the war and later as a relief worker in Palestine and Syria, has been in the Levant as a representative of the Armenian Relief Fund Association and the Near East relief for almost two years. Until recently she was stationed at Ismidt, across the Bosphorous from Constantinople, where thousands of Greek and Armenian refugees from the war zones of Asia Minor were concentrated.

The development of the serious situation in Transcaucasia which threatened thousands of orphan children with death from starvation or disease, resulted in her assignment to Alexandropol.

According to word reaching relief headquarters in the United States today, 40,000 children will perish if Canadian and American assistance is withdrawn. In addition to the children a vast army of refugees is also said to be entirely dependent upon charity for their existence. Relief officials estimate that 5,000,000 bus. of grain will assist greatly in saving the situation. An effort is now being made in the United States to obtain this amount through harvest time contributions of farmers.

The relief officials declare that the grain can be collected, transformed into less bulky by-products, and shipped to the Neast East at a very small cost because of the number of volunteer workers and collecting and distributing agencies who have offered their services.

Another report reaching relief headquarters from Miss Strowger's station in Alexandropol announces that the city authorities have found it necessary to send wagon through the streets daily to gather up the bodies of starvation and pestilence

ONE OF 1,900 UNKNOWN DEAD

To Be Picked As America's War Hero.

PARIS, Sept. 16.—(Associated Press.)—There are 1,900 unidentified American soldiers buried in France, or about 2 per cent. of the total of the American dead in the World War.

From this number Gen. Pershing may choose the American unknown soldier to be taken back to the United States on board the cruiser Olympic for burial in his native soil. Most of the American unknown dead were killed in the Argonne drive and buried in the Romagne Cemetery, although a few of them lie at Bony and in the Belleau Wood.

The Graves Registration Bureau in Paris has not been informed just how General Pershing intends to proceed in choosing the body, but, although the General will visit all the American cemeteries in France the expectation is that the body of the unknown soldier will be taken from the Romagne burial ground.

It is thought that the grave from which the body will be disinterred will be picked by one of the forty-eight private soldiers, representing each State of the Union, who will accompany General Pershing.

The French Army is to be represented by veterans from Verdun Minister by veterans from Verdun als Foch and Fayolle.

The Leg Show That {Tickled / Shocked} the Department of Justice

"Personally, They Are Wonderful; but, Officially, They Are Terrible!" Exclaimed Assistant Attorney-General Figg After the Dress Parade Specially Provided for Government Officials Who Proposed to Cut Down Dress Goods Prices by Cutting the New Skirts Higher.

By Ethel Thurston

THREE dainty, sparkling young women walked into the office of Special Assistant-Attorney-General Howard E. Figg, in the Department of Justice Building, Washington, D. C., on a recent busy afternoon and said:

"How d'ye do?"

Everybody gasped.

"Perfectly stunning!" observed one or two of the men present.

"Terrible!" exclaimed Mr. Figg.

The reader, naturally, will want to know what it was all about and why the sudden appearance of three obviously charming young visitors should evoke such conflicting expressions of opinion among the ordinarily dignified officials and employes of the department of justice.

The photographs reproduced on this page will help to explain, although they are mere incidents in the unfolding of a quite interesting story which involves the proper length of a woman's skirt, government regulations fixing the prices of dress goods and the efforts of the attorney-general's department to cut down the existing elevated expensiveness of existence.

Some time ago the couturiers of the United States—the fashion designers, in other words—who established the styles, held a meeting at which it was decided that skirts were too short. They agreed that the 12-inch skirt which became so popular during the summer months was hardly the proper thing for autumn wear. So they unanimously lengthened the skirt by two inches, making it a 10-inch skirt, or, in other words, a garment which stopped 10 inches above the ground line.

Saving a Dollar an Inch

Just about the same time certain experts and government officials associated with the office of the attorney-general at Washington were trying to think up ways and means of conserving dress goods whereby to force a reduction in the wholesale and retail prices.

Asst.-Atty.-Gen. Figg was one of the men who had it all figured out that if the demand for dress goods was cut down the prices would have to be cut down accordingly. And when he heard that the length of the new fall skirts was to be increased by two inches of material all round, he concluded that the price of dress and skirt goods was due for another upward bound.

So he got busy. Statistics were compiled by several expert mathematicians, who have nothing whatever in common with style creators, to show that longer skirts were going to require more money and more material to make. The figures showed that every inch added to the length of a skirt would take a dollar from the pocket of some poor innocent voter.

The dollar-an-inch slogan appealed especially to Mr. Figg. The fewer inches of skirt the more dollars there would be to save. Indeed, it might be possible that by shortening the skirt somewhat and thus encouraging the conservation of dress goods, a great many dollars could be saved and prices would come tumbling down.

The next thing to do was to get in touch with the creators of American fashions and ask them to amend the new styles for fall so that skirts would be shortened, if anything, instead of being lengthened.

John W. Hahn, secretary of the National Garment Retailers' Association, was among the first to realize that something had to be done. And it had to be done quickly, because designers were going ahead with the new 10-inch skirt styles for fall and there would be an awful mix-up in the retail trade if the designers, after saying that skirts were to be cut a certain length were to change their minds several weeks later, when a great deal of the cutting had been done, and say that they had decided, on second thought, to establish a totally different length for the new skirts.

Those "Terrible" 18-Inch Skirts

Among the fashion creators with whom Mr. Hahn is associated in the business of making clothes are Mme. Frances, Lucile, Stein & Blaine, Joseph, Hickson, Bendel, Harry Collins, Thurn, Hollander, Grean, Wortzman, Nardi, Milgrim and several others whose names are equally famous among American couturiers.

They met to consider the problem and decided that the best way to convince the department of justice officials that skirts should be longer, not shorter, would be through an actual demonstration.

It was admitted by the fashion creators that the United States government had never gained any recognition as a style authority, even if it was an authority on every other subject. If Mr. Figg and some of his colleagues in the attorney-general's office could be made to see for themselves that if more material was required for some of the abbreviated skirts than will be needed for the new lengthened skirts, no further argument would be needed to establish the couturiers' point.

So an actual demonstration was arranged for and it took place in Mr. Figg's office. The models were purposely dressed in 18-inch skirts in order to show how dreadful the shortened skirt really would be and in order, also, to show how such a skirt would tend to increase, instead of decrease, the high price of dress goods, to say nothing about creating havoc with the styles for fall.

"We started to show Uncle Sam's legal department how styles should be," relates Heber MacDonald, of the Retailer Millinery Association of America, who had been entrusted with the arrangements for the demonstration, "but in the end the legal department showed us. Mr. Figg and some of the others were slightly agitated when the exhibits were ushered into the department of justice offices. The skirts were short, we admit, but it was generally agreed that they were pleasing rather than otherwise.

"'Personally,' Mr. Figg confided to me, 'I think they are wonderful, but officially they are terrible.'"

It was decided, though, that the new 10-inch skirt was not going to increase the cost of living, but would rather tend to decrease it and that as far as the amount of material was concerned, the 10-inch skirt actually required less than the shorter variety.

Expert investigators for the garment creators have been doing some very complicated figuring since then and have estimated that the longer, or 10-inch skirt, is going to cost just about 50 cents more than a skirt cut two inches higher.

And designers in general have decided that Mr. Figg did quite the proper thing when he ceased to differ with the fashion creators in the matter of regulating the length of the new fall skirts.

"I am glad," one designer declared when it was all over and the style creators had won their point, "that the Department of Justice cannot hope to figure as a court of last resort in the matter of American fashions. There are some things which the government can dictate admirably, but I fear that women's styles must be omitted."

Couturiers declare that many women never could wear the short skirt which Mr. Figg, at first, thought might aid in solving the problem of the high cost of material. They accented this by pointing out the very tall women and the women with wide hips for whom such a garment would be impossible.

It may be interesting to note that following the short skirt parade in Washington, Mr. Figg attended the fall fashion fete of the Garment Association held in New York City, as a special guest of the skirt manufacturers. There he had an opportunity to study all the new styles in hats, cloaks, coats, furs and skirts. The display of the 10-inch skirt models called for no adverse criticism on the part of the representative from the Department of Justice.

And there the matter rests.

FASHION NOTE—The fall skirts will be known as "10-inch skirts." The hem will reach to within 10 inches from the ground line. The 10-inch skirt will require less material in the making than was needed for many of the shorter summer models. There is a tendency toward a lowering of prices for dress goods.

WHY FABRICS WEAR LONGER.

Most people consider the "wearing out" of clothes as something which is unavoidable, inconvenient, but not worthy of attention. Yet the why and wherefore of this "wearing out" are full of interest.

All clothes wear out through exposure to sunlight, air, rain, mechanical strain and bacterial action. Of these, sunlight is by far the most harmful. Hence, clothes not in use should be stored in the dark, according to a textile chemist.

But light is selective in its action. A dark fabric is less affected than one which is brightly colored.

Not all fabrics are affected alike, for while wool and silk rapidly deteriorate in strong sunlight, cotton and linen are much more resistant.

In spite of this, however, it would not be economical to use all cotton clothing, since colors fade more rapidly on cotton than on wool. When a dyed woolen fabric is exposed to sunlight, the fabric is attacked first, and the dye is thereby partly protected. In the cotton fabric the dye protects the cotton.

A coarse dress material is more resistant than a fine one to sunlight.

Clothes are not much affected by pure rain and air. In manufacturing towns, however, the atmosphere is often slightly acid, and it is then particularly destructive to wool.

Some fabrics are most susceptible to certain kinds of microbes, and these flourish best under warm and moist conditions. Clothes wear better when they are frequently brushed free from dust.

Cotton and woolen fibers are very elastic and strong. They can withstand a great deal of rubbing. So that generally it is not until clothes have suffered from exposure to sunlight that they fail to resist the strains caused by ordinary wear.

DE LUXE PIANO TONE

Superb in architectural design as are the piano bearing the name of Ye Old Firme Heintzman & Co., Limited, George and Hunter streets, Peterborough, after all the great charm of these pianos is the tone and touch which has won the praises of many of the world's greatest artists. It was because of its beautiful tone, more than anything else, that Tetrazzini placed an order for a paino for her own home in Italy, and the same reasons prevail for Melba, who had a Grand piano shipped to her home in Australia for her personal use. A piano is something that is not bought for a day and it hardly needs the suggestion that any reader who is thinking seriously of placing a piano in their home will find the greatest satisfaction in the purchase of a Heintzman & Co. piano.

MINGO AND THE COAL OUTLOOK.

H. I. Phillips Talks on the Fuel Situation.

Something tells me that this winter
I'll be short of heat, by jingo!
For today my landlord told me
He depends on coal from Mingo.

Everything in the coal fields is lovely. Particularly in the West Virginian fields. Not many miners are doing any coal mining down that way, but they are doing a lot of wonderful shooting. If it isn't one thing in the coal fields it's another.

Some of the coal miners work in some coal fields some of the time, but all the coal miners never work in all the coal fields all the time.

The centre of the Mingo hostilities is around what is known as the Little Coal River, so called because little coal is being mined there. Mingo County is one of the richest coal producing regions in the country. The trouble is that it also happens to be one of the richest fight producing regions. And it takes a good miner to mine and fight at the same time.

When the disarmament conference meets it should consider Mingo at once. Either the miners must lay down their guns or the people of the country must lay down their coal hods.

The Mingo war has been going on nearly two years. It seems that most of the miners there are non-union. They believe in the open shop.

Neither side, evidently, believes in the open furnace. The union miners have invaded the county, determined to unionize the mines and put a union wrapper on every lump of nut coal.

The county is ideal for fighting purposes, there being so many mountains to hide behind that a man may go on fighting for years with a fair sense of security except from landslides.

Only fifty have been killed during the entire struggle. More than fifty people a day die in New York City worrying over the winter coal supply.

But martial law has been proclaimed and a good fight may yet be had by all.

Congress is investigating. By the time Congress arrives at a decision and files a report Mingo miners will have turned over affairs to their great-grandchildren.

In the mean time ask your coal dealer what he can do for you this winter. Certainly your coal man should be willing to send you up a half ton of battle reports.

LEGEND OF LOST DIAMOND MINE LURES EXPLORER.

Natives and white men within a radius of 100 miles of the Great Falls on the Orange River in Africa are familiar with the story of the lost diamond mine, where an English adventurer is supposed to have made a fortune, in rough stones. The legend says that he underwent such hardships in reaching the mine and in getting back safely that he swore he would never return. His bush-boy guide was killed by a snake, and with the death of the Englishman the location of the mine became a mystery.

But the stories of huge rough diamonds to be picked up by the handsful still lure adventurers who seek excitement and sudden wealth in Africa. Little is known of the Orange River. For hundreds of miles below the falls at Aughrabies it winds through deep gorges and inaccessible canyons, and is called the "River of Mystery." The Great Falls are twice as high as Niagara.

To the natives of the region rough diamonds are useless, and without value. They were surprised by the hazards the white men would brave in search of the stones, and it is difficult to obtain guides who will venture into the dangers below the waterfall.

MAKES BIG PROFIT IN "POSTOFFICE PENS"

Penholders are no longer to be found on postoffice tables in Berlin, but may be obtained from a window-framed official, on the deposit of a mark. One enterprising German buys himself a number of penholders at 50 pfennig apiece and sets to work writing at the desk of some busy branch postoffice. When he shows symptoms of being through with his pen some eager person is sure to ask him whether he will pass it on. "Yes," is the answer, "just give me the mark which I laid out for it, and you may have it. You will get the mark back when you return the pen to the wicket."

The transaction is accomplished: when the unsuspecting borrower returns the pen to the official it is looked on coldly and declined: "No such pen was taken from this window. It doesn't belong here." And the enterprising trickster has departed to duplicate the trick in another postoffice branch. It's a small way to make money, but he makes 100 per cent. on his investment.

To sweeten the imagination of the reader of some of our best sellers would take a ton of civet.

"More Stately Mansions"

AN important addition has been made to the monumental building of the Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada at Waterloo. Ceremonies attending its formal "Re-opening" have lately attracted a gathering of officers and agents of the Company from far and wide.

These swift recurring changes, this series of ever larger and larger "temples of Mutual business," symbolize the constantly widening spread of public confidence in the Mutual principle of life insurance. The growth in the business of the Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada has exactly corresponded to that development.

Organized without one dollar of share capital, in a little room over a tiny store in the town of Waterloo, Ontario, in the year 1869, with a Provincial Charter, granted the year before, and the first 500 policyholders secured, as by that Charter required, the Mutual Life of Canada to-day possesses assets of $45,000,000 and carries risks on the lives of 80,000 people.

In 1870 Mutual Life policies totalled $521,650. To-day the assurances in force on the company's books aggregate more than $220,000,000.

Time proves all things, and time has proved faith in Mutual protection abundantly justified. Three times The Chambered Nautilus of 1878 "has left the past year's dwelling for the new". And now we open yet another door.

ASKS FOR $50,000 FOR A HUSBAND

Hubby Wrote, "Ours Is a Perfect Life."

HERKIMER, N.Y., Sept. 16.—Obtaining an order for arrest of Naida S. Pope, who in January, she said, ran away with her husband, Mrs. Cora B. Hogan submitted to Judge Charles Bell a letter, declared to be from the young woman, which read in part: "Ours is the perfect life. Morgan and I are happy. It has gone too far now. We are so endeared to each other that nothing can ever separate us."

Mrs. Hogan, in her application, said the young woman "refused to let her communicate with her husband." She stated to the court that she believed the pair to be living on Cooper Street, Gloversville, as man and wife, and sought the order, fearing they would leave the State.

Judge Bell signed the order and suit has been entered by Mrs. Morgan against Naida Pope for $50,000 for alienation of affections.

Morgan B. Hogan married his wife originally in Gloversville on December 24, 1896, and they had lived amicably until this year, when the wife asserts Hogan and Miss Pope first went to Syracuse and to other cities on little "trips" and finally the husband did not return.

Voice of the People

A SPY SYSTEM.

The Editor.

Sir,—In a Toronto paper of July 29th, 1921, there is an article with some headings, among others as follows:

"Social Service Council is organizing a Hidden Army aim to furnish the officials with cases for Action," and it goes to say that "some 700 letters have gone out to recognized prohibitionists from the headquarters of the Social Service Council of Ontario, which ask for the co-operation of the recipients in a systematic and earnest effort to further the aim of the Council," and "that persons who want to use the office of the Council as a medium to forward information to the Government might do so," and in no case, however, would the name of the informant be furnished to the Government officials or to anyone else." Practices such as the above were put into operation at the time of the Spanish Inquisition, and should not be tolerated in Canada. No man's liberty will be secure, and a large portion of the population who are not above it, will act as spies on their neighbors and all neighbourly intercourse and friendship will cease, because no person will know that his or her neighbor is not a spy. Under section 61, subsection (2) of the Ontario Temperance Act, "informations or complaints may be made without any oath or affirmation to the truth thereof," and the effect of section 83, of the O.T.A., is that a conviction may be made if the magistrate or justice or justices of the peace think that an offence has taken place, or about to take place, no actual proof being necessary. The seven hundred recognized prohibitionists will, we suppose, not only act as spies themselves, but will no doubt employ their sisters and their cousins and their aunts to assist them, and as it is not necessary that an information or complaint be true, any lying or unscrupulous fanatic can secretly send his neighbor to jail without any cause whatever, and the above is the kind of freedom and liberty the boys fought and died for!

Yours, etc.,
July 30. J. B.

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—As an old-time Liberal in East Peterborough, I would like to see a convention called shortly for the purpose of nominating a candidate. There are a number of good men in the riding, some of whom I can name: Mr. Jno. Dewart, Dr. Munroe, Ernie Devell and W. A. Anderson, any of whom have, if they secured the nomination, would be very capable candidates.

I have every reason to believe that in the general election to be held this winter, the Liberals of East Peterborough would more than hold their own, with a good live candidate in the field.—Yours very truly,

An East Peterborough Farmer.

RACE OF TOOTHLESS MEN FOUND IN INDIA

There occurs in the Hindu Amil community of Hyderabad Sind, a town in India, a type of men who have no teeth. These men are further characterized by a bald head and an extreme sensitiveness to heat. They are known as "Bhudas," which literally means "toothless." The following facts are known about them:

When such a man (a "Bhuda") marries a normal girl having both parents free from these defects, all the children, both male and female, are apparently normal—that is to say, apparently free from the defect.

When the males marry normal females having both parents normal, their children, both males and females, are apparently normal.

No case is known in which a toothless man has married the daughter of a "Bhuda."

No females have been found showing the anodont condition.

There is no consolation for the man up a tree—he lives high.

It took exactly 15 years to develop the flavor, crispness and texture of

Post Toasties

And after you taste them it won't take you one minute to understand why "Post Toasties" are superior

I Want to Put Dollars In Your Pocket

There is no need to make a special trip to town for a load of chop if you have a Toronto Farm Engine and Grain Grinder of your own. And besides, it will save you a few cents on every bag.

Coarse or fine chop—for cattle or hogs—I would recommend the Toronto Grinder for efficiency and economy on your farm.

A Toronto Farm Engine, too, is a great labor saver. Attach it to your pulper, pump, cutting box, cream separator or fanning mill.

Think of the labor saved! It pays for itself in one winter.

I'll put dollars in your pocket if you'll come in and discuss Toronto Farm Equipment with me.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

RECORD BREAKING CROWD FOR THURSDAY OF THE EXHIBITION

but there is need of a regular concert in another section of the grounds.

In securing the Cobourg Citizens' Band the directors were fortunate in their choice. They assembled twenty-nine instruments, under the direction of Bandmaster Captain G. E. Hurt, formerly of the Royal Sussex Regiment, a veteran officer of the war, who is now with the Northumberland County Regiment, with headquarters at Cobourg. His band has the generous support of the Cobourg Council, which pays the bandmaster a salary of $1,200 a year, quite a contrast with Peterborough's wilful disregard of the community's need of music. Many of Capt. Hurt's players are quite young, some of them only youths. All but twelve of them began the study of their instruments this year, but assiduous practice has developed them rapidly.

Eight weeks after their organisation, they gave their first concert, and the crowds who heard them yesterday wished that they were remaining for another day. Their programmes were for the most part light, but they essayed more difficult numbers with confidence and musicianship that heightened the impression made by their numerical strength and neat appearance. The bandsmen stated that they had thoroughly enjoyed their visit to Peterborough, and hoped that they would be invited back next year. The crowds had been attentive and appreciative, the directors had been considerate, overlooking nothing that might increase their comfort, and the management of the Empress Hotel had looked after every want.

The Judging.

Promptly at 2 p.m. the judges in the agricultural classes began their duties, and by 6 p.m. the cattle and most of the heavy horses, together wit hthe sheep and swine, had been disposed of. The judging of the beef and dairy cattle was followed closely by quite a number of farmers interested in pure-bred stock, and by citizens who always react to that back to the land urge and its evidences in prize-winning Shorthorns, Holsteins, and the other breeds.

"It is interesting work," said one of the exhibitors, "but you have to stay with it all the time. City men close up their office or leave the shop at noon on Saturday and have nothing to worry about until Monday morning, but you can't build up a prize herd that way. You've got to look after them on Saturday and Sunday just as on any other days."

of his personal acquaintance with the deceased of her Christian character, and life of faithful service, he having known her and the Dean family since boyhood.

Rev. W. L. Armstrong, D.D., formerly of Winnipeg, now of Centennial Church, Toronto, a cousin of the Misses Dean, also made a very impressive and helpful address.

Miss Harriett was the eldest daughter of the late Andrew Dean, who and his wife also pre-deceased her some years ago, a sister, Miss Dorothy, died in September, 1920, and there still are left to mourn her loss, one sister, Miss Sara living here and one brother, Mr. Armstrong Dean, of Toronto.

The pall bearers were F. T. Wood, George Fowler, Albert Payne, Geo. E. Burnham, Joshua Whitfield and Isaac Needham.

Interment took place at Gardiner's cemetery where the family burial plot is located.

Mr. Bruce Dawson is attending the Normal school at Peterboro this term.

Mrs. I. Needham and daughter, Miss May, returned this week from visiting their cousin, Mrs. Ames, in Toronto.

Mr .and Mrs. Harry Dawson of the 7th line, Cavan, were visitors to Peterboro Fair on Thursday.

Mrs. William Turner had the misfortune to fall through a trap door leading into the cellar recently. Fortunately no bones were broken, but the shock of the fall ,and the severe shaking up made medical attention necessary. Her many friends hope for Mrs. Turner a speedy recovery.

Dr. Birchard of Montreal, and his mother, who are visiting friends in Cavan, were guests at the home of his cousin, Mr. A. A. Birchard, on Thursday.

MR. BURNHAM ON MICHAEL CLARK

To the Examiner, Mr. J. H. Burnham ex-M.P. said to-day that he was not surprised at Dr. Michael Clark's sensational break with Mr. Crerar reported to-day, although Clark acted in Crerar's absence from Parliament as chief of the Farmer's Party. A group is a clique and when this country comes to be governed by cliques and alliances and arrangements between cliques the day of the will of the people will be at an end. There are only two sides to every questions in the last analysis and there is no way out of that fact. But when Dr. Clark says that he is against "class" and that he has been fighting it for 40 years that is too much. It was Dr. Clark who attacked me fiercely in the House of Commons for my part in abolishing titles in Canada and who said we were all guilty of democratic can't and nothing better. He tried his best and hardest to fasten titles of aristocracy on Canada. I do not feel like letting him escape on that charge. It was too flagrant and outrageous Groups when small and made for sale when large for purchase. They can make themselves felt in no other way and often it is the one that suits them best."

Miss Stanton, teacher, of Lifford school, spent the week end at her home in Peterborough.

Miss Saunders, teacher of Galloway's school, spent the week end with friends in Lindsay.

Rev. A. L. Brown of Lindsay, spent a few days with his brother, Mr. Perry Brown.

Mr. Albert Gray, of Peterborough, was a business visitor to the village on Tuesday.

LET NO CORN SPOIL AN HOUR

Any Corn Can Be Stopped Now, Any Moment, by a Touch

Science has solved the corn problem. One can now stop a corn ache instantly, and shortly remove the whole corn.

The method is gentle, scientific, sure. A famous chemist invented it. A surgical dressing house of world-wide fame produces it.

It is Blue-jay—the liquid or the plaster. A touch applies it. The pain stops at once. Soon the whole corn, however ancient, loosens and comes out.

It makes harsh treatments unnecessary. It makes paring ridiculous. It makes every corn ache a folly.

Your druggist has Blue-jay. Let it end your corn—tonight.

A VISIT WITH THE FUNMAKERS AT THE PETERBORO' EXHIBITION

SOME HAVE BEEN IN THE SHOW BUSINESS FROM INFANCY—A CLOSE-UP OF THE JAP PERFORMERS

Under the open-air stage at the Exhibition grounds where, during the afternoon and evening, the acrobat's and juggler's skill amuse crowds of men, women and children, are the dressing rooms of the band of entertainers. In these tiny, box-like numbered compartments, which are, however, clean and well-lighted, the cheerful, happy-go-lucky players spend most of their time between performances. They are a care-free, light-hearted bunch, who sing and talk loudly to each other. The men pass in and out, smoking cigarettes or carrying in plates of sliced tomatoes and sandwiches, and the Mello lady, billed as "one of the greatest lady gymnasts of the world," looks after the little boy attached to the troupe, who cares more for his play toys than for the sensational stunts of his friends. This act is a quartette of aerial performers, who "fly through the air with the greatest of ease." There are three men and one woman, who "have been in the business since they were fourteen months old," on tha vaudeville circuit and under the "big top." They came from Worcester, Mass., and are going straight from here to Hanover, Pa. They are contemplating a trip to South Africa in the near future, with another to Australia later on.

Laugh Makers.

White Bros. are a couple of lithe, dark-skinned young men "whose sole mission is to make you laugh." They are a clean-cut pair, Joe and Albert, aged respectively 27 and 24, born in the circus, whose father and mother were circus acrobats before them. They were for years with the Ringling Brothers, and have been for four years travelling on the Pantages circuit throughout the United States and Canada. They have a number of press clippings from different towns worked, describing their act with enthusiasm. One says: "They must be made of flexible steel plates, for they certainly encounter hard knocks," and another: "Their act is full of originality, daring and nerve."

La France Brothers, who have an unusual act requiring skill and endurance are two brothers, wiry and keen-eyed, born in the United States, of French-Canadian extraction, and looking more like Canadians than Americans. They have been for 25 years on vaudeville circuits and doing circus work, and have appeared in Shea's theatres in the larger Canadian cities. They jumped in there from Westbranch, Mich., over 400 miles, and will go to Lindsay Fair next. What troubles them most in Canada is the exchange question. Their salaries are paid on the fifty-fifty basis, half-American and half Canadian currency, and they lose money in consequence.

Comedy Gymnasts.

The Steiner Trio are three excellent comedy gymnasts with an air of business-like common sense about them, who are old timers on the Loew circuit.

Perhaps the most interesting of the lot is the little Jap act, the Royal Yositos, Kikus, the lady and Yosito, her husband. The latter was all ready for his performance last evening and was enjoying a cigarette, but the lady was in the act of dressing and making up when interrupted. However, she donned a kimona and gave up her chair with the most charming manners, and was all soft smiles and dark-eyed serenity for the next five minutes. Born at Nagaski, in Japan, he is 36 and she is 28. He has been 14 years in the United States, and Canada, working on the Keith and Orpheum circuits, but she has only been in this country for three years. They volunteered their information in their precise, bookish English, interspersed with snatches of choppy Japanese, and seemed quite entertained during the proceedings. They have a little girl in Japan named Nobu. She lives with Mr. Yosito's parents, and the two have just returned from a trip home to see her. She will not be a vaudeville performer, but instead will be thoroughly grounded in Japanese and then brought to America for an English-speaking schooling. "She will have a good education," said her bright, intelligent-eyed father, and the pink-cheeked litle mother nodded strong approval. They were enthusiastic about their costumes, of real Japanese manufacture, heavy silk encrusted with gold. The lady smiled a soft good-bye and the little foreign gentleman bowed stiffly from the hips as the visitor went out.

A FAIR VISITOR FROM CALIFORNIA

MR. J. J. DUNBAR RETURNS FOR VISIT AFTER ABSENCE OF 30 YEARS

A visitor to the city during Fair time is Mr. J. J. Dunbar, of Sonoma, California. Mr. Dunbar was born near Port Hope and went to California some 30 years ago. This is the first visit to his native heath, and he is renewing old acquaintances throughout the district around Garden Hill and Campbellcroft. Mr. Dunbar, who is engaged in the hardware business in Sonoma, a city of about 1,500 inhabitants, is, from his appearance, one of those Canadians who have gone out from their native land to make a success of whatever they undertake, but who never forget their own birthplace. He is impressed with the many changes in this district since his departure 30 years ago, and particularly with the advances made in the city of Peterborough, over which he was particularly enthusiastic. At the rate at which Peterborough is going ahead, and the facilities afforded for manufacturing in this centre, he confidently predicts a city of between fifty and sixty thousand in the next quarter of a century. He was surprised to see susch an Exhibition as we are holding here this week, and was unable to take it all in in one visit. He intends to make several more trips to the grounds before leaving for Picton to-morrow.

LADIES! LOOK YOUNG, DARKEN GREY HAIR

Use the Old-time Sage Tea and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous and you appear years younger.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press.) — Announcement that a $25,000,000 issue of Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railway of Canada, 15-year, six per cent., sinking fud, gold debenture bonds, has been underwritten in New York, was made here by Dillon, Read and Company, brokers.

TRAIN WILL NOT BE ELIMITATED

The Chamber of Commerce has received a letter from Mr. C. E. Horning, Distriet Passenger Agent of the Canadian National Railways, which contains the assurance that the 8.10 train leaving for Port Hope each morning will not be cut off. This repudiates a rumour that has been in circulation here regarding the proposed elimination of this particular train. Mr. Horning said he did not anticipate any changes in the Peterborough service. In event of any change Peterborough will be given due notice and consideration.

"Had my fortune told to-day, dear," said the young wife.

"What a waste of money!" said her husband.

"Not at all! I gave the woman five shillings and she told me I would inherit five hundred pounds Wasn't that a bargain?"

REVIEW OF MAIN BUSINESS DISPLAYS AT THE FAIR

The standard of excellence so generally manifest in all the special business displays at the Exhibition, calls forth much admiration. The great interest shown by visitors is also a gratifying result of these displays.

So great is the crowds that one is reminded of the analogy of the farmer driving sheep. You have seen a farmer try to drive a flock. They wont move forward ,and the front ones keep moving back, until one of the sheep starts suddenly ahead, and then they all follow. What then happens? It is harder to stop them than it was to get them started. Just so with the crowds yesterday at the Fair. They won't stop admiring some feature of interest until they see some one commencing to view a new attraction. Some wise one commences and then they all start moving off.

ELEGANT FURS BY BARRIES LIMITED

Seldom in years has such a display of Fine Furs of such unchallenged quality been shown by our local furriers, Barries Limited in the Main building. The new models and designs are comprehensively represented in all their luxurious richness.

This firm of old-established furriers has done itself infinite credit by the presentation of such a complete and valuable display of the accepted furs for the coming season. It is one massed exhibit of luxurious furs, fur garments and beautiful examples of the art of peltry. The styles depict the real touch of extreme fashion, with the unmistakable smartness of those expensive little salons of American and Parisian fashion centres. So many citizens are intimately familiar with the Barries Limited efficient organization and service that little needs to be said in that regard. Not only in Peterborough, but in their other three prosperous branches in Regina, Saskatoon and Moose Jaw, as well as throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, Barries Furs are worn by the best of judges.

"From Trapper to Wearer" is the well known slogan of this fur house. Buying the raw furs from trappers by exerts of long training—selecting only high quality or 'prime" skins—manufacturing entirely in their own workrooms under close and personal supervision, the firm hold themselves responsible for every detail. Styles are always important; and in order to give the public the latest in vogue Barries send their designers each season to visit the fashion centres to gain information and ideas in designing and adapting to the Canadian climate and demands.

Among the extensive rich variety of furs reflected in the charming exhibit at the Fair, the following were noticed:

Hudson Seal Coats, trimmed with natural mink. Extra large shawl cape, collars and cuffs.

Very fine Mole Dolman Coats in the newest designs.

Persian Lamb Coats, trimmed with Alaska sable.

Coon and Beaver Coats in the very popular designs of this season.

Squirrel Sport Coats and Mole Coatee, with large, dark and blue squirrel collar and cuffs.

Natural Muskrat and Black Poney Coats, looking very smart in the contrasting trimmings of seal, opossum, beaver, etc.

Straight Shawl Stoles, in mink, squirrel, mole, beaver, opossum and Hudson seal, ranging in length and width from 10 in. by 66 in. Also 18 x 88 White Foxe Stoles, black, red and the very newest shades of pearl grey and celestial blue, silver grey and cross foxes, very popular summer and autumn furs. Also a very fine showing of ermine and other fashionable furs in capes, chokers and stoles.

Large display of dressed skins of all kinds, out of which garments are made for stock and to order—being among them some beautiful Alaska seals; also pretty mounted Rugs of wolf, bear, leopard, etc.

This exhibit was in charge of the firm's expert salesman, Mr. Richardardson, whose painstaking was much appreciated by the crowd of visitors who thronged the exhibit.

It may be remarked here that some of the market observers incline to the opinion that the decreased supply and the high quality of furs would stimulate prices again. The directors of the wholesale auction sale believe that the shortage of furs will send prices higher, especially in view of the competition of buyers from abroad.

THE SINGER NO. 101.

"The last word in Sewing Machines" is being demonstrated by the enterprising local representative of the Singer Sewing Machine Company in the western section of the Main building.

The "Singer No. 101" is the very latest perfected electric sewing machine on the market. A newly designed motor is built into the head of the machine and is always ready for use. Quiet, smooth-running spiral gears transmit the drive direct to the sewing machine mechanism.

This is a rotary machine, light-running and practically noiseless. As the entire machine is completely enclosed, lubricant cannot leak to cause annoyance.

But the perfection of this machine is shown by the manner in which the head and working parts can be enclosed and the hinged cabinet parts folded down so as to form an attractive desk or library table. The cabinet is finished in brown mission or mahogany.

Mr. C. B. Coones is the active business agent for the Singer Co., located at No. 345 George street.

PRESTO LITE BATTERY SERVICE.

Fisher Bros., of the Premier Storage Battery Service, have a very practical display in the Annex of the Main Building. This firm shows a range of storage batteries and accessories, and give expert information regarding their use and treatment.

Fisher Bros. are equipped for doing the highest class of battery work and re-charging. Repairs and replacements on all makes of batteries are skilfully made. Thorough inspection of batteries are regularly made when desired, and all tests made to avoid trouble.

They announce substantial reductions in Presto Lite Storage Batteries, even below pre-war prices. The firm is reliable and thorough in their business methods.

WOMEN IN FIGHT WITH KNIVES

One Receives 13 Wounds in Kitchen Battle.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Sept. 16.—A duel with potato knives over the affections of a husband of one of them was fought by two women domestics in the kitchen of the Royal Palace Hotel yesterday morning. One of the women was seriously wounded. Mrs. Bettie Richardson and Mrs. Mabel Herber were the principals and Richardson is regarded as the cause of the dispute.

Mrs. Herber had thirteen knife wounds which required thirty-seven stitches to close. Only three wounds were inflicted on Mrs. Richardson, all of them on her right arm. Mrs. Richardson, who is held by the police on the charge of atrocious assault and battery, told the police that Mrs. Herber made faces at her, and added offensive remarks. She made no move to injure Mrs. Herber, she said, until Mrs. Herber approached her brandishing a sharp knife. Mrs. Richardson admitted to the police that she caught up a knife and that a battle followed.

THE DISPUTE IN SOUTH AMERICA

Peru's Claim To Be Presented at Geneva.

BERLIN, Sept. 16.—(Associated Press).—American officials at Coblenz have issued a written warning to the German civilian population that German girls should refuse proposals of marriage from common soldiers unless the girls are provided with sufficient money to convince the immigration authorities that they won't become a State charge, according to a despatch to the Rhenish Westfalische Zeitung.

The warning adds that the cost of living is much higher in America than abroad and the common soldier's pay is insufficient to support a wife.

MILLIONS ARE WASTED EVERY YEAR ON TIRES.

Motorists Waste Money By Neglect—Fail to Get Mileage.

It is unfortunate that it is necessary to warn the average motorist who owns and drives a motor car not to waste money on tires. But that is exactly what the said average car owner does. He literally throws away a goodly number of hard earned dollars every year through failure to get the mileage from his tires that is in them.

In the aggregate this wastage amounts to tens of millions of dollars every year, so that any educational campaign, any means of pointing out to owners their mistakes in this particular is a direct contribution to our national prosperity.

During the last few years the big tire companies have conducted campaigns to educate their patrons in how to get the proper returns on money invested in tires. There is no question that this has done much good, but there still remains much to be done. There is no other item of wastage in the operation of the car of equal magnitude to this except possibly in excessive consumption of fuel through incorrect carburetor adjustment and operation.

Under-Inflation Troubles.

The failure that causes the greatest loss in tires is under-inflation. The big tire companies are a unit in agreeing on this. It is for this reason that all the tire manufacturers are so careful to instruct their patrons in the air pressure needed by any given size of tire. If the pressure is permitted to fall even five points below that proper figure it is bad for the casing, obviously ten pounds in worse and below that is atrocity to tires.

The weakest part of the tire is its side walls. When the air pressure is below the mark, these side walls bend and flex as the weight of the car falls on them in the course of travel. This induces friction, which inevitably breeds heat. Soon the rubber is loosened from the fabric, dirt and stones force their way under the tread, and soon the casing is a complete wreck.

Overloading Your Car.

Through education car owners are becoming a little more careful about actual under inflation, but very few of them realize that all the effects of under-inflation may be produced in quite other ways. For instance, suppose a 34 x 4 tire is designed to carry a load of 900 pounds. If 1,200 pounds are loaded on this tire, we have all the effects of under-inflation through the pressure is actually at the designated poundage.

Of course it is impossible to ask a car owner to weigh his passengers as they take their places in his vehicle, nor is it possible to avoid acrrying an overload in cases of emergency, but is possible to avoid habitual overloading. Simply do not carry seven passengers in a five passenger car, nor four in a small roadster. And if it is necessary to carry a considerable overload for an extended run, it is not difficult to increase the pressure in the tires to care for the added weight.

After under-inflation as a destructive agent for tires, I believe that pure neglect will come next. Few owners are as particular as they should be in keeping the threads of their casings whole by making immediate repairs of cuts and abrasions that appear in the rubber surface. After all, the rubber tread of the tire is simply the protector that shields the fabric base underneath. The rubber is selected for this purpose because it has elasticity to bend as is necessary and at the same time strength to assist the fabric in withstanding the pressure of the air within.

If cuts in the rubber tread are allowed to remain open, dirt and water rots this, and a blowout is the result. Dirt and small stones entering a cut force their way along the fabric, separating the rubber from the cotton cloth as they go. Again the result may be a terrific blowout, sometimes half way around the casing. The only remedy for this is constant watchfulness and plugging of small cuts as fast as they appear. Larger cuts over half an inch, must be vulcanized without delay.

Tire Mending Methods.

A word as to the modus operandi of tire mending may not be out of place. The cut to be plugged or vulcanized must always be thoroughly cleaned in the first place. A cloth soaked in gasoline is the best method for cleaning the cut. If it is a deep one the cloth may be used on the end of a screw driver.

After the cut and the surrounding area has been thoroughly cleaned and is dry a coat of cement is applied to the sides and bottom. After this has dried another coat is put on, and when this has dried the tire filler is applied. A bit of the filler is worked into the cut with the blade of a knife or screwdriver. In case the tire must be used on the road immediately a small piece of cloth or paper should be cemented over the repair to keep the dirt from being picked up.

No car should go on the road without a complete tire repair outfit, portable vulcanizer, cement, filler, patches, etc. These outfits may be had in a variety of forms and they will repay their cost times over.

Another common cause of tire failure is the misalignment of the wheels. This condition sets up a scraping movement of the tires in addition to their rolling. The result is that the tread rubber is ground off by the rough surface of the ground. This trouble may be eliminated by having the alignment of the wheels checked up a couple of times a year and as often as a bump or accident might lead one to suspect that they had been knocked out of line.

HOME CIRCLE

PARADISE.

Within each heart their lies apart
From all its cares and sorrows,
A paradise which knows no sighs,
A world of happy morrows;
A heaven of light unknown to blight
Of winter, bleak and dreary,
Whose days are long and sweet with song,
Whose hours are never weary.

What matter though earth's pathways glow
No more with springtime gladness?
What if each June has flown too soon
And left a look of sadness?
No real love so soon will prove,
No tones are half so tender,
No lips so pure as those which lure
The soul to visioned splendor.

—Eugene Field.

The principle of beginning no better than we can hold out, is a good one to follow. In the good old days our mothers began with very slim house furnishings. Among the middle class a half dozen silver teaspoons was the usual amount of silver, a mesh bottom rocking chair and a half dozen kitchen windsor chairs, a few dozen dishes, some home spun linen, a table or two and as many bed steads, were the principle part of the outfit. People got married for love and they thought more of pleasing each other than of stunning the world with their appearance. It was the rule to live within our means.

It seems a shame that this rule is not more generally adhered to today. We wonder sometimes if young people get married today with any sense of the real responsibilities of marriage or if it is more with the idea of keeping up with some other young couple or couples in town. That seems to be the thing toward which they bend all their energies. In doing so they fail to get the best out of marriage. To them it is one grand scramble to "keep up with the bunch." In a short time the whole scheme looks like pretty much of a failure to them. Some of the more level headed ones find out the cause, turn about face and straighten things out, but a sad majority go recklessly on and their marriage finally breaks up in a divorce. Show us a young couple who have the courage to start out and live within their income and we'll show you that same couple twenty-five years later, living happily together with no worries about what the future will bring them.

The proper influence in a home is love—patient, tender, long-suffering love—it is a child's right. The child who is denied it is defrauded. Just as it takes the warm sunshine to bring out the beauty of a flower, so the soul of a child, must have the warmth of affection, continuous and never failing, to develop the graces which make it clean and sweet.

Amidst the worries, the stress, the disappointment of life, it is often hard to always keep an unruffled temper at home. But it is what the parents must do, or at least try to the limit to do if the children are to have a fair chance.

Difficulties are placed in our way that we may overcome them, and in overcoming them we learn the great lessons of life. Then, when we are about to finish this short span we come to the wonderful realization that we are prepared to make a braver and better beginning in the life that is to follow because of the hardships and the conflicts that we have endured here.

Fashion is a great and frivolous folly. He whose individuality is swallowed up in fashion or society, has lost that which he may never see again, and without which his life must be a vain and aimless one.

TIMELY HINTS FOR MOTORISTS.

Very often carburetor trouble can be traced back to the intake valves. If one of the intake valves does not seat properly, or if the valve stem sticks in its guide occasionally, it will be a difficult matter to obtain a satisfactory carburetor adjustment.

If the car starts with a jerky motion, owing to a "fierce clutch" and you have no time to correct just then, try starting on second speed instead of first. As this throws more load on the engine the jerky action will not be so apparent.

Considerably increased tire mileage can be obtained through the careful handling of a car. If the driver starts and stops his car with a jerk and tries to turn corners on two wheels, he can soon expect blowouts. It is estimated that by careful driving one can increase tire mileage fully 30 per cent.

Ground cork mixed with heavy grease is often used to advantage in rear wheel hub caps to reduce rattling of the axle shaft dog. Floating axles using driving dogs are noisy when worn. The cork in the grease will serve to reduce the noise.

When the starter fails to start the engine after a reasonable time, the trouble should be investigated, such as ignition, or carburetor trouble, cold engine, choker not working, etc. The starter is not supposed to crank the engine indefinitely. It makes a heavy drain on the battery every time it is used, and should have long rests between use, so that the generator may put back the current.

Learn and follow the local traffic rules, speed limits and driving ordinances. These are made for the common good of all drivers, including yourself, and of all pedestrians.

Keep a can of powder, for your tubes, in your tool kit.

Motor engines are being designed for greater accessibility nowadays.

Each cubic yard of the air contains about three hundred million particles of dust.

HOT WATER FOR SICK HEADACHES

Headaches are caused by auto-intoxication—which means self-poisoning. Liver and bowel poisons called toxins, sucked into the blood excite the heart which pumps the blood so fast that it congests in the smaller arteries and veins of the head, producing violent, throbbing pain and distress, called headache. You become nervous, despondent, sick, feverish and miserable, your meals sour and almost nauseate you. Then you resort to acetanilid, aspirin or the bromides, which temporarily relieve but do not rid the blood of these irritating toxins.

A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drank before breakfast, will not only wash these poisons from your system and cure you of headache, but will cleanse, purify and freshen the alimentary canal.

Ask your pharmacist for a quarter pound of limestone phosphate. It is inexpensive, harmless as sugar.

If you aren't feeeling your best, tongue is coated or you wake up in the morning with bad taste, foul breath or have colds, indigestion biloiusness constipation, or sour acid stomach, begin the phosphated hot water cure to rid your system of toxins and poisons.

BELIEVES IN TURK HAREM

Says Its Seclusion is Best Adapted to Woman's Nature.

ANGORA, Aug. 27.—(By Mail.)—"The seclusion of the harem is best adapted to woman's nature and it is best for the social order that she should be there," declared Mufide Ferid Hanem, the Nationalist novelist and beautiful wife of Ahmed Ferid Bey, ex-Minister of Finances, to the correspondent in an interview. "The harem grew out of the intelligent understanding of the marriage relation. It represents the wisdom of the East.

"I am a reformed woman's rights advocate," she continued. "I used to yearn for the indpendence of the American and European woman, but now I believe the mistress of the harem is a superior product to the spendthrift Russian woman, the sentimental Austrian, the nagging English woman and the calculating, self-centered American woman.

Foolish Spending.

"To these women, woman's rights means the right to spend money on foolish finery, to marry late, and be childless. They live for the store and the theatre. They are responsible for a good deal of factory labor expended in useless directions. They won't work with their hands to make their clothes, their minds are filled with fashions, novels, and candies.

"Men have become their slaves, and you call this western civilization. We Turkish women have had our heads turned by the effort to become like these civilized women, and in doing so some of us have lost our sterling old-fashioned qualities and become a costly, vain, destructive creature like our sisters of the west.

No Polygamy.

"We Nationalists are in favour of abolishing the theory of polygamy, though in fact it has long since ceased as an institution. But we are sure woman's place is the home, and the best way to keep her there is the harem, which gives her much liberty but not license. We are good housewives, we wear more or less a uniform gown and veil in the streets, which prevents us being victims to fashion, and at home, if we do not wish to see our husbands we are not obliged to do so. Surely that is liberty enough."

CHARMING HOME OF HEALTH AND CHEER

AT THE CORNER OF DELIGHT AND REINDEER STREETS

At the corner of Delight and Reindeer streets, South City, there has sprung into existence the last few days a charming comfy home for two, stored with makings of the staff of life, aplenty for keeping the hunger-wolf from its old-fashioned two-section brass-knockered imitation oaken doors, the coming winter.

This attractive little dwelling is "The Home of Health" as the passer-by is arrestingly informed by two name plates in black and white, affixed one each to its eastern and southern deep brown walls. Beneath the name one is also faced with this timely aphorism in keeping with the spirit of optimism which should prevail at all times:

'Tis on the corner of Reindeer Wheat
'Tis on the corner of Reindeer Street,
And those within are plumb and bright,
For their Pastry is made of pure Delight.
Each hour of their lives is a happy hour,
'Cause their bread is made of Reindeer Flour.

Of course there are no such permanent streets in this city as Delight and Reindeer, but they, together with the little brown home in question compose the Peterborough Cereal Company's altogether most unique and striking exhibit in the Manufacturers' Building, at the Exhibition, which unquestionably stands alone in a class by itself—an exhibit originating in the mind of some one blessed with forceful initiative.

Both walls and thatched roof this inviting little home are constructed of wheat sheaves in heavy head—the winter brand grown in our own Ontario—, while three double-sectioned perpendicular opening diamond-paned windows on Delight street, together with one of similar design each side the door on Reinder street, are framed in immitation oak. Incidentally, it might here be mentioned that these streets find their names in the Petrborough Cereal Co's widely-famed Delight Flour for pastry and Reinder Flour for the best of bread, buns and cakes.

Entering the interior of this feature exhibit one is somewhat startled at finding it substantially furnished throughout with wheat flour, excepting for the floor covering, which happens to be of matting while walls and ceiling are decorated in contrasting blue. A comfy davenport and restful chair are both cunningly contrived of bags of Reindeer Flour, which product also enters wholly into the admirably constructed fire place and old-time lofty mantel, dominated by a commendable sample of bakers skill in a huge loaf of tempting bread, also from Reindeer Flour, in wheat sheaf design, and baked to a turn by Wm. Stock & Sons, this city. In fact, choice samples of these well-known bakers' every-day, modernly manufactured bread, in varied kind, are found here and there throughout this model little home in outstanding relief, and tastefully displayed.

This remarkable exhibit is electrically illumined from yellow shaded hanging lamps and a handsome tall stand light with deep fringed red shade, which, together with a cheerful "white coal" fire, combines in diffusing a warm and harmonizing colorful glow over the interior of this 'Home of Health" exhibit, a work of constructive art reflecting exceeding credit on both the Peterborough Cereal Co., and all concerned in its novel creation.

WILL LINK UP OUR EMPIRE

First Station in Imperial Wireless Chain Recently Opened.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—(Associated Press, by mail.—Postmaster General Kellaway has just opened at Leafield, Oxfordshire, the first station in the Imperial wireless chain which, when completed, will link up almost every part of the British Empire.

The Leafield station, which has been designed entirely by the post office, will communicate with the corresponding station at Abu Zabal near Cairo. This station is expected to be completed in three months. It will also be used for communication for broadcasting news to India, with Mesopotamia and probably for broadcasting news to India.

Leafield and Abu Zabal will form the first pair of a series of four stations, the third being in East Africa and the fourth in South Africa.

First Message

The first message sent from the station, as part of the opening ceremony, was a message of greeting to all British and to all European and other foreign wireless stations within range. That to British stations expressed the wish that the station would "help to knit still closer the bonds which bind together the different parts of the Empire." That to the other stations concluded with the wish that the development of wireless communication will help to knit still closer the bonds of unity which bind the British Empire to all other states."

Within half an hour replies were received from Malta, Paris, Christiania, Posen, Prague, Denmark, Budapest Rome and Berlin.

Lloyd George Interested.

Mr. Kellaway said in an address that at the imperial conference great interest was taken by Prime Minister Lloyd George in the possibilities of wireless telephony. If those possibilities could be realized they might yet have Premier Hughes in Melbourne talking to Mr. Lloyd George in Downing street.

"It sounds like fairyland," said Mr. Kellaway enthusiastically. "It will make the world a great family in a sense that they have never been before."

GAY FALL HATS

One may meet fall in a hat of brilliant tomato red felt that is wreathed about the crown with brown and white pheasant. The hat itself is round with a slightly mushroomed crown. To the left is a more formal hat of blue crepe which is almost completely covered with a scarlet fan of feathers.

COURT ORDERS JURY TO PROBE KU KLUX

Florida Judge Tells N. Y. Lawmakers They Have Authority.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.— Judge William B. Sheppard, of Florida, sitting in Federal district court, told the Fedeal grand jury it had the power and authority to investigate secret societies which "are reported to be interfering with the constitutional rights of citizens.

"Any organization," he said, "which holds its meetings by the light of bonfires in secret places, and the members of which wear white suits and masks, which attempts to prevent orderly citizens from the enjoyment of their constitutional rights, freedom of speech, conscience and right of trial by jury is a proper subject for investigation by a grand jury. That is because such behaviour on the part of a secret society is a conspiracy and the law can be brought to bear upon them."

Continuing his charge, Judge Sheppard said in part:

"There is a law here that can be brought to bear upon any group of people or secret organization which adminsters justice in the woods.

"When you get to that state of affairs, one may well ask what difference there is between the United States and Bolshevism in Russia," he added.

WOMEN'S DOINGS.

Miss Marguerite Zoff, of St. Louis, Mo., is the only woman naturalization examiner in the United States.

After long service, Mrs. Olive B. Mackan has retired as owner, editor, reporter and business manager of the Plain City (Ohio) Advocate.

Mrs. H. L. LaFlesh, of Sedalia, Mo., is compiling a scrapbook of Missouri history and will have the three volumes ready for the Missouri centennial at the State fair.

Miss Winifred Holt, the American girl devoting her time, efforts and money in behalf of the war blind in France, has received the medal of honor, being the fifth American so honored.

JUSTICE DEMANDS DRESS REFORMS

BIG RAPIDS, Mich., September 16.—Strict observance of a curfew ordinance which which has been on the books here for many years is expected to be the outcome of a mass meeting of women called yesterday afternoon by Justice H. I. Dresscher, of the Mecosta County Probate Court.

Justice Dresscher called the meeting, he said, with the idea of doing something to improve the morals of Big Rapids. He declared that he was moved to take this action because of the large number of secret marriages he had been forced to perform in the last few months.

The Justice announced several days ago that he had leased the largest theatre in Big Rapids for Tuesday afternoon and that he wanted all of the women in town to hear what he had to say. According to those that attended—and nearly every woman in Big Rapids was there—the Justie "read the riot act."

He scored the women for paying little or no attention to the moral condition of Big Rapids while interesting themselves in foreign missions, and uregd them to form women's clubs in every ward and see that the boys and girls are kept off the streets at night.

He also demanded of the mothers present that reforms in dressing of young girls be instituted at once, and that "cheek-to-cheek and head-to-head" dancing be stopped.

Woman's organizations in the city voiced approval of Justice Dresscher's action and declared that, while they believed that conditions were no worse than in other cities, they intended to take his advice and try to bring about reforms, the first of which will be insisting that the curfew law be enforced.

Pare and core six tart apples; place in a baking pan; cover with one cup brown sugar, two tablespoons of butter and one-third cup water, and bake.

Sliced Cucumber Pickle.

Take seven pounds of cucumbers, table size; soak in strong brine three days, then in clear water for three days, chancing water every day; then cut up in slices, having the pieces 1½ inches thick. Take 1½ cups vinegar, add water enough to cover, and simmer two hours on stove, drain. Heat one quart vinegar, one pint water, two and one-half pounds brown sugar, one and one-quarter package mixed spices, a small piece of alum. Pour this hot mixture over cucumbers, repeating for three days, then can.

Unemployment—Freight Rates——And the Railways

THE indicator of true prosperity is employment. The presence of unemployed men, unemployed machinery, unemployed railway equipment, and unemployed capital in Canada is reason enough, therefore, for every large Canadian business interest to study its relation to the general problem—to see whether anything in its power remains to be done to advance the general prosperity of the country.

IN this connection the railway companies have been specially interested. Freight rates touch everyone and, because they touch everyone, are always close to the public consciousness, and more conveniently attacked than the true causes of depression which are less easily discerned and more difficult, if not indeed impossible, to control.

FURTHERMORE, the railways, while joining with everyone else in the general agitation for deflation of prices and wages—found themselves recently in the seemingly anomalous position of demurring when it was proposed to lower railway rates. They were made to appear as though they were endeavoring with one hand to put wages down and with the other hand to keep rates up, thereby securing for their own treasuries instead of passing on to the Canadian public, any saving effected on the wage rolls. They were placed in the equivocal position of having urged blanket increases of rates when wages went up—and of opposing blanket decreases when wages were seemingly decreased.

THE following statement is offered, therefore, with a view to exhibiting what the railways believe to be the true relation of railway freight rates to the question of unemployment, outlining the history of Canadian rates, explaining something of the groundwork of ratemaking, and clearing up the seeming anomalies referred to, so that none may remain as possible causes for future weakening of confidence between the public and the carriers.

Freight Rates and Unemployment.

With a large part of the world's population idle, or only partially efficient owing to wars or disturbed political conditions —with inventors in many parts of the world almost afraid to expose their inventions, organizers afraid to organize, capital hesitating to invest—a corresponding proportion of world production is missing. The total of goods available for the world is less than normal. Those who do not produce, speaking generally, cannot buy. Few purchasers—few sales; few sales —little employment. This is the great world-wide fundamental of the unemployment situation.

The condition is international, not local to Canada. If Canadian railways rates were a determining factor in making the sale prices of our export goods, in other words, if Canadian prices were higher in international markets than the goods of our competitors, then railway rates would be contributing to unemployment in Canada by depressing our sales abroad, lowering the number of our customers, and the orders coming to our producers.

But in the first place the real effect of freight rates on price making is a debatable point. This is proven.

(1) By the fact that prices fell last Fall after the rates were increased instead of rising as the retail trades had prophesied.

(2) By the fact that a ten per cent. reduction on western coal rates, offered in order to stimulate the coal movement in the Summer months, was followed by a drop in the coal tonnage offering instead of an increase.

In the second place, assuming for the purposes of argument they did have serious effect, Canadian export rates are lower and not higher than the rates in countries with which Canada may be compared. Mile for mile, the haul from Western Canadian points to the head of navigation is cheaper than in the United States. The export rate on grain is lower than it was last August.

In other words, in international competition on her chief items of export, Canada is helped by her railway rates. So far as international trade is concerned, they are alleviating unemployment rather than aggravating it.

Inside Canada the same is true. Although it is a very difficult point to prove or disprove, the railways of Canada are sincere in claiming that, by and large, goods are carried more cheaply in Canada than in the United States. Canada had one blanket reduction of five per cent. last January, whereas there is still no decrease, nor immediate prospect of a blanket decrease in the United States.

The Trend of Freight Rates.

With the exception of war and post-war conditions—the whole tendency of freight rates in this country, as in any other progressive country of its kind, is downward. As Canada's population rises, as our industries multiply and the density of traffic becomes more nearly like that of older countries, some of the principal costs of railway service can be sub-divided among a greater number of shippers and travellers, levying on each, therefore, a smaller fraction of these costs than before. For twenty years prior to the war, traffic was on the increase. For twenty years, therefore, the railways have been adjusting rates downward—quite apart from special decreases put in effect by the Board of Railway Commissioners. These revisions have been skilfully applied by experienced, practical economists—that is, by the freight traffic experts of the railways, whose business it is to know all branches of industry intimately, so that the benefit of these voluntary rate adjustments would go to "key commodities," thus stimulating further growth of the country, increase in traffic, and in the end, further reductions of rates. The difference between giving a reduction to a "key industry," rather than spreading over all kinds of goods, is illustrated in the case of a certain small railway which by concentrating rate reductions on lumber enabled the mills of that region to remain open and the people to remain at work, whereas if the effect of the reductions had been scattered over all the goods carried by that road each family would have been able to save a small handful of silver in a year (provided the decreased rates had been passed on as decreased prices by storekeepers)—but there would have been almost no employment.

So much for the day-to-day reductions arranged on thousands of articles by the Traffic Department of the roads. In 1907 a substantial reduction in Eastern rates was made. In 1914 a very material cut was applied in the West. So that the trans-continental lines entered the war period with a depressed earning power.

Now, while all—even the railways—see the desirability for low freight rates, there are certain limits beyond which no one urges reductions. Of course, there are theorists such as Mr. Bernard Shaw, who believe that all railway service should be free. But leaving aside views so far in advance, as yet, of public opinion it is assumed by most people that a railway will give best service at least cost—because, of course, even free railways must be paid for by the taxpayer—when their managements are allowed to show their mettle by meeting the obligations of their properties out of their earnings. It is usually recognized that these obligations fall into two groups:

GROUP ONE—To pay their employes; to pay for current supplies of materials, such as coal, etc.; to pay for repairs and replacements.

GROUP TWO—To pay such a wage or hire for the use of the capital which built these railways as will make Canadian railway securities always desirable and easily marketed whether as bonds or stocks. This involves more than the mere payment of the established rate of dividend in the case of privately-owned roads. It involves the earning also of some surplus—a safety margin of income over expenditure which will assure investors of complete safety. This principle of a surplus was definitely established by the judgment of the Board of Railway Commissioners in 1914, under the chairmanship of Sir Henry Drayton, and upheld by its judgment of 1920, when the matter was again considered exhaustively. On this principle rests Canada's ability to enter the money markets wherever she may need, and feel confident of bringing back funds for extending her railways as she may require in the future.

War conditions, following the Western and Eastern rate adjustments, brought the railway managements sharply up against these fundamental problems. Comparing the Government's figures for 1907 against 1919—the last year for which the Railway blue book is available—the wage bill of the railways rose 306 per cent., coal 345 per cent., ties 320 per cent. But neither the volume of traffic or the sale of freight rates increased in comparable degree during that period. The actual revenue per ton per mile (which is the real proof or disproof of the matter), advanced only twenty per cent. over 1907. The year 1920 enlarged the discrepancy, although an increase of 35 per cent. on Western lines and 40 per cent. in the East was supposed to yield enough additional revenue to meet the increased wages. The increased wages were effective from May 1st; the increased rates not until September. The effectiveness of that increase depended on the volume of traffic remaining at a fairly high level. It did so for a time, then began to drop. Today it is very low. Nevertheless a five per cent. decrease was applied in January.

For the first six months of 1921, as compared to the first six months of 1920, the volume of traffic on the most fortunately-situated Canadian road fell 26.72 per cent. And its revenue on this business, in spite of the higher rates, fell 11.14 per cent.

The net result of these changes has been a state of emergency in the offices of even the most fortunately situated of all Canadian roads. Wages could be paid and bills met on time. Even the usual dividend was paid and a very slight surplus, one of the factors in maintaining the reputation of Canadian railway securities, was earned.

But this was only done by deferring work that must ultimately be done on current account.

Such economies cannot long be continued without eating too far into the broad safety margin which the Canadian roads maintain. Nothing but slackened speed of trains and reduced Canadian industrial efficiency can result if these savings have to be long continued. Falling traffic still further aggravates the condition. Maintenance cannot continue to be sacrificed to protect the credit of our railway securities. Neither can be neglected.

In May the managements approached the task of reducing their wage bills. For the first time in many years it was the managements and not the men who were taking the initiative. They had been forced to adopt the war-time increases granted in the United States, where 92 per cent. of the members of the railway unions lie. Therefore when the reverse movement was undertaken in that country the Canadian roads at once gave due notice and a provisional and conditional decrease of roughly 10 per cent.—corresponding to the same movement in the United States—was put in effect, tentatively, as from July 15th. This reduction has not been accepted by the United States membership of the unions, where a vote is being taken on the question; nor by the Canadian membership, who have applied for a Board of Conciliation. Every resource of the managements will be used to sustain this imperatively necessary and only too moderate reduction of their wage bills—which account for sixty per cent. of the cost of operation—they are compelled to regard the matter as still unsettled and therefore not to be considered as a basis for the reduction of railway rates, a view which a majority of the Board of Railway Commissioners has just expressed in its judgment.

In Conclusion

The railway managements welcome deflation of railway rates, and are working steadily toward that end. On two grounds, however, they asked that any general decrease be deferred.

First—Because the so-called wage decreases are not yet assured and cannot be until the parallel decreases in the United States, where 92 per cent. of the union membership lies (and where no general freight rate reductions have been ordered) are settled.

Second—Because the volume of traffic in the immediate future is problematical and any serious decline, if coupled with a decrease in rates, would have very grave effect on even the most favorably situated managements.

The railways have spoken against blanket decreases on the grounds that it would be in the interests of the country as a whole to concentrate any beneficial effect to be expected on "key commodities" rather than distribute them over all classes of goods, thereby benefitting only the distributors.

They have been actuated throughout by the desire to assist in the process of deflation, objecting only when that process might seem to threaten their solvency and injure them, and through them, the ultimate interests of the Canadian public.

MINING PROSPECTS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

C. P. R'S EXECUTIVE HEAD ON TOUR OF INSPEOTION

NELSON, B.C., Septembe 16. — A busy programme of inspection, with little time for interviews, has thus far featured President E. W. Beatty's tour through Eastern British Columbia in the course of his tour over the western lines of the Canadian Pacific railway.

Coming from the East Kootenay, where with Vice-President D. C. Coleman and his party of Canadian Pacific directors, he inspected the Sullivan mine and Kimberley, the greatest zinc mine on the continent, with the capacity to become the greatest in the world. He arrived at Nelson yesterday at midnight and spent the night here.

At nine o'clock the following morning the President's special pulled out for Trail, where the executive head of the C. P. R. will spend the day going over the great aggregation of smelter plants and refining plants that comprise the Trail smelter ,owned by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co., of Canada, an associated concern.

En route to Trail the president's special is stopping at Bonnington Falls, 1370 feet below Nelson ,to inspect the power plant of the West Kootenay Power and Light Co., which drives the wheels of industry in the mountains, and which is a subsidiary of the Consolidated Co.

Mining and Power.

Giving a brief interview in Nelson President Beatty referred to his visit to Kimberley and his approaching visit to Trail, but had nothing new to announce respecting the great Concentrator projected for the Sullivan mine or that which is projected at Trail for the Rossland mine, whose output will then be trebled, or respecting the power extensions that will be thereby required at Bonnington.

The mining operations in British Columbia are particularly satisfactory considering the condition of the metal market all over the world, commented Mr. Beatty. Smelting and refining operations are all keeping up well at the Trail smelter in spite of the low prices obtained for the metals.

On the Up-Grade.

That the United States railways are picking up in traffic, and that the Canadian railways may be expected to gradually move in the same direction, was intimated by the president when asked how traffic conditions compared.

"Business conditions are on the up-grade," he said, "but the progress to a full recovery, though steady, will be slow."

The coming year's programme of maintenance and betterments has not been discussed, Mr. Beaty stated, but the company will be prepared to secume a policy of extension "if the conditions are found to warrant it".

WEDDING BELLS

STEWART—CLAPHAM.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, September 14th, at Knox Church, when Lillie Clapham, of Wallace's Point, was united in marriage to James Evans Stewart, of South Monaghan.

The bride looked charming in a travelling suit of navy blue with a black hat and wore a corsage bouquet of sweetheart roses.

BICKELL—SWITZER.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at Port Perry September 7th, 1921, when Melva, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Switzer, was united in marriage to Mr. John Bickell, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Bickell, Smith Township, Peterborough. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. J. T. Hall.

The bride was attired in her travelling suit of navy blue French serge, with feather hat to match.

They were attended by Miss Ethelwyn Switzer, sister of the bride, and Mr. Elwood Girven.

Mr. and Mrs. Bickell will reside in Smith.

PARKER—GALLOHER.

The marriage took place on Thursday, September 15th, of Miss May Elizabeth Galloher and Mr. John Edward Parker. Rev. J. R. Webb, pastor of Murray street church, officiated.

The bride, who was attired in a stylish travelling suit, was attended by Miss Mabel Galloher and Mr. Mossom Galloher supported the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Parker will reside in Norwood.

THURSDAY CROWD MORE THAN DOUBLE SECOND DAY LAST YEAR

In some of the sections there were from 25 to 40 Shorthorns from which he had to select the prize-winners.

Mr. Dryden is a genial judge. An expert on Shorthorns, there is no pretense about him, and in his three years as an arbiter for the Peterborough Board, he has given the fullest satisfaction. In a brief reference to this year's exhibit, he remarked to the Examiner that the breeders in this district should give their stock the most careful attention.

"Not only for purposes of exhibition," he explained, "but for everyday financial returns. It has been my experience that when a buyer comes to my place he usually selects my fattest and sleekest bull. I couldn't expect to get top prices if my stock was not in top condition. That is the point, and the more local breeders realize that fact the better showing they will make and also the more money.

"The Ayrshires are much better than last year, and Shorthorns also show improvement, but not so noticeably as in the Ayrshires. You had a lot of good Shorthorns here last year, and while I think you have more than ever, I can't say that the quality in this class shows as much improvement as in the Ayrshires."

Mr. Brethen's Comment.

Mr. Brethen found the Holsteins particularly fit for show purposes, and affirmed that the dairy class as a whole disclosed marked progress. The Jerseys were out in greater numbers and the competition was more than usually keen.

Lighting Is Excellent.

Between 1,200 and 1,500 electric lamps have been distributed over Exhibition Park, producing a diffusion of light that is most effective. This system is the work of Mr. Harry Beatty and his linemen under the general supervision of Mr. H. O. Fisk, manager of the Utilities Commission. Before any work was begun certain important details, involving transformers and other technical features of the wiring, had to be estimated, and even then Mr. Beatty and his men were on the lot two weeks before any of the other grounds workers.

Sanitary Ice Supply.

Visitors looked twice before realizing that everything was free at the Sanitary Ice Supply booth. Mr. Herb. Kendry does things right when he undertakes them, and to give the general public a closer acquaintance with his enterprise he has an attractive booth at which the well water used in the manufacture of his company's ice is given away to all-comers. Yesterday he had 6,000 individual paper cups in which the water was handed out, but this quantity, all he could get, ran out, and five dozen glasses were used instead. The water is of the purest, and is obtained from an artesian well at a depth of 100 feet. It was served at a temperature of 40 degrees yesterday, and cooled with the company's ice, which is essentially pure, and may be used directly for cooling purposes.

FORMER PETERBORO BOYS.

Messrs. Wilbert and Wesley Brown, formerly of Peterborough, now owners of a transter company in Saskatoon, suffered damages to the extent of $800, in a fire which broke out a fortnight ago in a barn building where hay was stored. The fire, which broke out about 5.30, was under control by six o'clock. Flames leaping to a height of sixty feet attracted a crowd of more than 600 spectators. Fifteen horses, lodged in the barn, were rushed to safety, and, beyond considerably charring the roof of the brick building and consuming its contents, the fire did little injury.

"The Demoness of the Tennis Courts"

How the Agile Contortions of a Demure Little School Girl Have Been Astounding the European Experts Who Predict Championship Honors and an American Tour.

Elizabeth Colyer, the 17-Year-Old "Demoness," in Repose.

By Jean Seivwright

ENGLAND has just discovered a new tennis prodigy—a demure, bashful, unassuming schoolgirl of 17 summers. Her name is Elizabeth Colyer, but her school chums call for "Shyboots." Tennis experts, after watching her play, bestowed still another name on her. They christened her "The Demoness of the Tennis Courts."

After her recent remarkable batting streak at Hurlingham they began preparations for an American tour for this newest English marvel with the intention of matching her against some of the best tennis players in this country. In case the arrangements for the tour are carried out as originally planned some of us may have an opportunity to see how a sedate little English schoolgirl earned the title "Demoness" by her extraordinary leaps and contortions and frantic mid-air plays which are declared to be very much of an innovation to the game of tennis as played in England.

She began by beating Miss Evers, the English champion on the hard courts. Tennis critics immediately sat up and took notice. Wild speculation ran rife about this wizard of the racquet. Was this the looked-for champion that would vanquish Mlle. Lenglen? Could she beat this famous French player who had triumphed over the English at their own game?

Playing at "Demon" Speed

Discussion was still going strong when the 17-year-old girl gained new laurels. She won a set from Mrs. Wightman at the Hurlingham courts. After the first set, however, her luck seemed to desert her and Mrs. Wightman again scored.

But her marvelous playing set all England a-talking. Will she really develop into a tennis champion? That's the question that's agitating all tennis enthusiasts. They are wildly excited. And Miss Colyer? Well, she has a charming personality and the twinkle in her smiling blue eyes invites all sorts of speculation about her play. Is she treating it all as a joke or is she going to be a really big player one of these days? Chances at the present are uncertain.

Her speed is demoniacal as she leaps fully three feet high to meet a ball. Agile as a young fawn, she twists, turns, dodges, darts forward—but her racquet always strikes the ball. Overhand, underhand she serves or returns with equal skill, and so swiftly that her wrists seem to be made of elastic.

But despite this dazzling play, she has not yet acquired the cleverly-calculated strokes of Molla Bjurstedt, whose mental play is as fascinating as her physical prowess. When this player hits a ball you know she'll send it to the very point where her opponent least expects it.

Not so Elizabeth Colyer, according to some experts who have watched and studied her playing. Quick action minus calculating thought is revealed in her methods. Of course she's very young and full of "pep" and apparently never thinks of using her head to weary her opponent's feet, as she dashes from one end of the court to the other. She revels in the many different ways in which she can return the ball and seemingly doesn't worry about her rival's game.

But in spite of her somewhat erratic play which makes the critics hesitate as to whether they'll christen her the "new champion" or merely a "freak," they are already looking up her schoolday triumphs. On one thing they are all agreed, however, and that is that she possesses a delightful personality. Her blue eyes have a look of boyish frankness, while many of her little mannerisms suggest a childhood spent with her brothers. But, little sister, always a good pal in all their sports, has outstripped them all in the game of tennis.

She Covers the Court in the Most Astonishing Leaps and Bounds.

She preferred the world a-field to the world of books. A skilled swimmer and oarswoman, she revelled in all outdoor sports. And to their practice from babyhood she owes her marvelous physique.

While her father delighted in the study of dead languages and preferred at all times the bypaths of the scholar, her mother believed in all kinds of outdoor activities. The laws of the Romans and the literature of Greece did not greatly appeal to her, although she decided when 8 years old that Diana, the Goddess of the Chase, was the only one who interested her.

Still at school when the war broke, she found other means to keep herself fit when sports had necessarily to be neglected. During her summer vacations she worked in the fields. Her manner of pitching hay was characteristic and the speed with which she could load a wagon amazed her companions. With the world's return to normal ways her enthusiasm for tennis revived and her attainments at Hurlingham have now brought her before the world.

The Clothes of a "Demoness"

Of course the "Demoness" has some decided opinions, especially in the matter of clothes. She gives the Greeks credit for good judgment about their attire when they played Olympian games. So she has adopted a style that is decidedly individual yet extremely practical. Her loose white dress—somewhat like a modified toga—extends to the knees, for she will not permit anything to interfere with her speed. And garbed in this manner she knows that there's no possibility of tripping on her skirt as she bends or leaps forward to hit a ball. She dispenses entirely with corsets—in fact she has never worn them. Her muscles are so splendidly developed that she needs no artificial support.

Reaching for a High One.

The "Demoness" in Action.

When asked if she had any fads in regard to diet she smiled one of her disarming smiles, for while she is not a beauty yet her smile and the expression of her face are full of charm.

"Oh dear," said she, "I'm no authority on foods. I haven't studied calories and I don't know how many I should eat or for that matter what any one should eat. I always eat what I need and being out-of-doors so much I always have a splendid appetite."

And that was all she could say about food except that she had always been brought up on simple, wholesome fare.

Regarding the hours she spends in practice; that also evoked a smile.

"Why I never count them. When you're doing something you're crazy about you just go on whenever you have the chance. Of course some people may have to have certain laws and hours and regulations but I don't think I come of a very systematic family. I'm only a perfectly natural person and never having been interviewed before don't know whether I'm saying what I should or not."

With the exception of the spectacular "Demoness" and the old reliable Kingscote, England seems to have very little tennis talent on display just at the present time. In fact, the British were reported to be very much in the doldrums regarding the tennis outlook a few weeks ago when they were called on to face another American lawn tennis invasion and another Davis cup competition with a lot of veterans whose days of effectiveness were over years ago.

Half of Her Plays Seem to Be Made When Her Feet Are Off the Ground.

Of all the British tennis players only Kingscote was considered worthy of being regarded as a serious contender in the cup contests. Miss Colyer's game, while spectacular and particularly vigorous, and calculated to wear down a less strenuous opponent, was finally adjudged of scarcely championship calibre. Still the "Demoness" in action is worth going miles to see, if only to study her remarkable antics while making almost impossible shots.

A close rival of Miss Colyer, Zeno Schmitzu, the Japanese tennis player, proved the sensation of the world hard court titular tournament recently held in Paris. Schmitzu holds the championship of Japan and India.

A Millinery Shop Where Styles Never Change

STYLES never change in one millinery shop in New York city. A bonnet which was in vogue five or ten or even twenty years ago has just as much chance of being sold as one which was finished yesterday. There are no last year's shapes or trimmings and those made this year will be stylish the next.

The millinery shop operated by the Salvation Army is one of the busiest in New York, and turns out an average of 300 bonnets a week. In it are made all the hats worn by the Salvation Army lassies all over the country.

They go to every city, town and village where there are Salvation Army lassies to wear them. From Maine to California, from the Canadian to the Mexican border, and even from far-off Hawaii orders pour into the little shop daily for the blue headgear with its silk trimmings and streamers.

Although the neighborhood for the fashionable modiste and milliner has changed many times on its several jaunts "uptown," the Salvation Army's establishment is more popular than ever, for just as it exists independent of style, so it prospers irrespective of neighborhood. Moreover, it can be truthfully said of the Salvation Army's millinery adventure that every hat that is sold is imported. Every shape that is used to make the world-famous bonnet comes all the way across the Atlantic.

When at the first remonstrance at the cost, the saleslady rolls her eyes and assumes a superior attitude—that is if employes in Salvation Army shops did these things—and replies airily, "All these are imported, and if you want the best you must pay for it," you know she is telling the truth. The bonnet is English, the trimmings American and the wearer embraces every nationality in the world.

And the bonnet which is sold in the little shop in four different types of trimming in order to differentiate officer from private, field worker from staff worker, is the same bonnet which was adopted in 1877 to be the headgear of the Salvation Army the world over.

It is the same bonnet that was hooted and jeered on both sides of the Atlantic when it first appeared on the streets. It is the same bonnet that has been a symbol for quiet and efficient effort to relieve suffering and wretchedness through all the intervening years. It is the same bonnet that was temporarily laid aside for two long years in favor of the close fitting khaki trench cap.

And today it is coming into its own. The millinery shop where styles never change is turning them out by the hundreds. Into the hospital, the rescue home, the nursery, the slum settlement, the haunts of the miserable, the prison and the bleak spots of the nation, wherever there is poverty, suffering or want, the Salvation Army bonnet goes and brings its messages of help and relief and hope and cheer for the future.

SPORT COMMENT

Members of the O.B.A.A. sub-committee investigated the trouble in the Tri-county League at Sunderland last night, and ruled that Cannington and Stouffville play a sudden death game in Sunderland for the championship of the League.

Canadian Generals will have to consider Pitcher Croft of the Picton team. He whiffed fifteen in the second game of the Madoc-Picton series.

A touch of interest has been added to a fading baseball season, with the announcement that Bankers, winners of the local Juvenile series, will play Young Varsity, winners of the Spalding League at Toronto, in a series of three games for the juvenile championship of Ontario. The first game may be in Toronto on Saturday, September 24th.

The local Collegiate Rugby team has been given the opportunity of entering a circuit with Kingston and Belleville. The Collegiates have a big squad of candidates for the team and an effort is being made to help the boys with their problem of finances and playing grounds. They are outfitted and ready to take to the gridiron.

Kilties and Indians won double bills yesterday, while the Giants threw another missile into George Gibson's machine, giving the Pirates a further set-back. These events and the feat of "Babe" Ruth in breaking his 1920 record for all-the-way-home clouts were yesterday's features in the Majors.

Peterborough fans can set up a new attendance record by buying a ticket for the game arranged for Saturday afternoon. It is an opportunity for the fans to show their appreciation of the services given by Roy Cherrett to baseball and other sports.

FOOTBALL SEASON OPENS TO-MORROW

SEMI-FINALS OF THE TENNIS TOURNAMENT THIS AFTERNOON

FIGHTING IT OUT FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP—FEATURES OF YESTERDAY'S GAME.

(BY HENRY L. FARRELL)

(United Press)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16th.—Four of the 108 stars who started in the chase after the National championships a week ago will play to-day in the semi-final round at the Germantown Cricket Club.

Two Philadelphians, an Australian and a Californian survived the rather flat fifth round yesterday and will pass through the process of being halves to-day.

Wallace F. Johnson, the big Philadelphian, who perhaps, has been nearer the championship than any other player, is to play James O. Anderson the long Australian star, considered by many as having a fine chance to get into the finals round.

Johnson was a finalist in 1912 when he lost the title on a "funny bounce" he was a sure finalist 1919 and 1920 and again this year finds himself among the last to live through. Anderson seems to have reached the form that caused such glowing accounts to be sent out of Australia about his game. he has much more steadiness and his game is much better all around that it was at Newport when his wildness helped the Japanese team beat the Australians.

The Johnson and Anderson match is billed as the feature of the day and will be played at 4 o'clock on the East Side of courts. Willis E. Davis, San Francisco, regarded from the start as a semi-finalist and one of the favorites in the tournament did the expected and reached the next to last round with William Tilden, the worlds champion.

Chances of Davis to get into the final with either Johnson or Anderson are considered very small although he has been playing a very good game. However, it took him five sets to beat Clarence V. Todd, of the Australian team and four sets to beat Phil. Noor, the inter-Collegiate champion.

Johnson worked through the early rounds with only one hard match against Watson Washburn of New York, which he won in five sets. His other opponents were comparatively easy.

Tilden had the hardest day of the four survivors, he started by beating Irving C. Wright, then P. L. Goldsborough, then Zenzo Shimidzu William Johnson and Gordon Lowe of the British team.

BENEFIT GAME TO-MORROW IN AID OF ROY CHERRETT

Fans are reminded of the benefit ball game at Riverside Park tomorrow at 3 o'clock between the Peterborough Central League team and the C.G.E. City League champs, the proceeds to be given to Roy Cherrett, the Petes' short-stop, who was the victim of an accident in the Port Hope game that resulted in a broken leg. Cherrett has always given of his best for baseball in Peterborough, and the fans have an opportunity to-morrow of showing their appreciation. There should be a splendid crowd out to witness the battle.

ALLEY BOWLING SEASON OPEN

The announcement of the opening of Jake Solomon's, Water street Bowling Alleys is another indication that the summer is over. It promises to be a great season for alley bowling and there will be more than the usual number of five-pin and ten-pin leageus.

FOOTBALL NOTES

The following members of the Caledonian Football Club are requested to report at Nicholls Oval on Saturday afternoon at 1.30 for the kick-off at 2 o'clock sharp in the game with the War Veterans: Brunton, Hogarth, Ralstone, Brown, Anderson, McFeat, Murray, Hannah, Terrace, Rorrison, Burgess, Calder, Clarke and Dingwall.

The following Canadian Woollens players are requested to be on hand at the Nicholls Oval on Saturday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock sharp for the game against the C.G.E.: J. Swan, C. Fenner, J. Cridland, J. Chambers, S. McMillan, A. Roberts, H. Frost, E. Downes, M. Shaw, H. Jones, J. Hensby, A. Dixon, R. Hillman.

All players who have kit in their possession are requested to bring the same along. This is most important.

The following members of the G. W.V.A. football club are requested to be at the Oval at 2 p.m. Saturday 17th, 1921:

FOOTBALL RESULTS.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—In a Northern Union rugby football game played yesterday Hull defeated Hunslet by 24 to 4.

THE DIFFERENCE.

As every golfer is aware, it is against the rules to remove anything growing on the course.

The other day a player asked: "What would I do on the putting green if a worm lay between my ball and the hole? Am I entitled to lift it or brush it aside?"

"Well," said his companion, "I think you should brush it aside."

"Yes," he said, "you may be right, but this was a young and a growing worm, you know!"

LAWN BOWLING

DOUBLES TOURNAMENT.

A doubles tournament for fobs presented by R. Hendry will be commenced on Monday night. The draw will be published on Saturday.

THIS TIME LAST YEAR.

Cleveland took first place in the American League.

Dave Robertson hit a home run in the ninth inning with two on, the Cubs beating the Phils.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

"KNOW YOUR MEN" IS PEARL WHITE WINNER

Once more William Fox has provided Pearl White, famous on the screen, with a vehicle that enables her to show that she is a versatile actress. Of late she has been seen in mountain melodrama or high society plays, but last night, at the Regent Theatre, the star gave a fine portrayal of an emotional character in "Know Your Men", the scenario for which was written by Paul H. Sloane.

Miss White's part called for her to work at high tension in several scenes that would have taxed the ordinary screen player's ability to get them over without becoming overemotional. It was the force of suppression and suggestion which she gave to these scenes that stamps her as an actress of extraordinary merit.

Last night she appeared as a carefully nurtured young society girl, who was suddenly awakened to the hard and cold facts in life when her father's fortune was swept away, carrying her friends' investments with it. Miss White ran the gamut of emotions that did not end until the last scene, when she realized that there are some real men in the world despite the treatment she received at the hands of one.

AT THE CAPITOL.

The Capitol Theatre has an especially good bill this week. With the Pickford picture is a double vaudevilel act, Gladys Evans, a dramatic mezzo soprano, who entranced her audiences with operatic and popular selections of the highest order, and the Ruth Herbert Trio, in singing, dancing and instrumental selections. These are performers of the highest class also, and brought down repeated applause by their clever dancing, vocal and instrumental selections.

It has been said that "Through the Back Door" is the best of Mary Pickford's pictures, and those who saw it for the first time last evening will not be inclined to doubt this opinion. The curls and roguishness and winsome ways of "our Mary" were never displayed to better advantage than in this lovely production, where the blithesome heroine dances her way through the "back door" of Ellis Island into the United States, and through the "back door" of her mother's kitchen into that lady's heart. In the farm land of Belgium through the first cruel war days, on board ship with her two adopted "children," orphaned waifs and in the palatial Long Island home of the parent who has forgotten her, she wends her lovable way, her beauty working havoc in the heart of her lover and her kind heart mending a complicated marital tangle in the home. And the whole picture is rounded and perfected by those human touches of pathos and mirth which Mary Pickford knows so well how to enact.

"The Purple Riders" offers a new and exciting situation, the Pathe Review is very interesting this week, and the Hallroom Boys appear in a hot and spicy comedy, entitled "Chili Romance."

Hunting in the dark is the quickest way of finding a thing you are not looking for.

AT THE GRAND.

"LADIES' NIGHT"

Get ready to laugh—laugh as you never laughed before. The most brilliant and mirthful dramatic frolics of a decade. "Ladies' Night" will be the attraction at the Grand on Wednesday, September 21st., and if the verdict of New York, which kept this spirited farce on Broadway all last season holds good here, as it unquestionably will, local playgoers are facing the merriest week of many seasons. Naturally there are no sad moments in "Ladies Night" and it may be set down right here that neither are there any dull moments in this frisky frolic of three model young men who unexpectedly find themselves astray in a Turkish bath on ladies night. The young men face a situation that threatens lurid possibilities, but the worst that happens is a colorful entertainment, filled to the brim with fun and spiced with a dash of lingerie that is a feast for the eyes. A. H. Woods, the producer of this most successful of all last season's New York play, has given "Ladies Night" a production of rare beauty and a typical Broadway company including Ralph Bunker, Muriel Hudson, Josephine Saxe, Ebba Andrus, Dave Jones, Stanley De Wolfe Ellen Best, Antoinette Crawford, Mary Mixon, Helen Courtney, Marjorie Chester, Alma Wall, Bobbie Lee, Dell Farlardeau, Lillian Smalley and William H. Dorbin, Josephine Deffry.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press.)—The uncertain trend of prices at the active opening of today's stock market indicated further divergence of speculative sentiment. Baldwin, Studebaker and Reading made one point gains but Baldwin promptly reacted under pressure. Fractional gains in Mexican Petroleum, General Asphalt, Crucible Steel, General Electric and American International were offset by heaviness of Royal Dutch, Northern Pacific, St. Paul preferred, Texas Pacific and specialties comprising the Rubber, Chemical and Copper divisions.

The early reaction was checked on buying of Rails, Oils, Equipments, Shippings and favorite specialties. Reading and New York Central averaged 1 1-2 point gains. Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Rose 4 1-2, Mexican and Pan American Petroleums gained one to 1 1-2 and Baldwin, American Car, Studebaker, Atlantic Gulf, Republic-Iron, International Paper, Industrial Alcohol, Tobacco, products were appreciably higher. Liberty issues featured the more active bond market at gains of twenty to thirty points while call money opened and returned into next week at five per cent.

Call moneys decline to 4 1-2 per cent. at noon coincided with a broad demand for Steels, Equipments, Motors, Shippings and Specialties. Crucible, Repubuc and United States' Steels advanced 1 1-2 to 2 1-2 and American Locomotive, Studebaker, Mercantile Marine Preferred and Atlantic Gulf one to two points. Oils, Tobacco and Sugars also hardened.

Confusing rallies and reactions marked the later dealings. United States' Steel extended its gain to two points, but Baldwin, Mexican Petroleum and mionr specjalties were easier. The closing was steady.

Railway Bonds Sold

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Canadian Railways, $25,000,000 issue of bonds has been over subscribed, Dillon, Read and Co., the house which heads the syndicate handling the sale announced to-day.

Sterling Exchange

NEW YORK Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press.)—Sterling Exchange steady. Demand 3.70 1-8. Canadian dollars 10 7-8 per cent discount.

Chicago Market

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Initial wheat quotations, which varied from 1-2 to 1 1-4 cent lower, with December 1.27 3-4 to 1.28 and May 1.31 1-2 to 1.32 1-2 where followed by a decided further setback and then some thing of a rally.

Corn was easier with wheat, opening unchanged to 3-8c lower, Dec. 53 3-8 to 53 5-8, and then sagging all round.

In the later dealings, Corn hardened in response to the Wheat rally. Corn closed unsettled, at the same as yesterday's finish to 1-4 lower, with Dec. at 53 1-2 to 53 5-8.

Subsequeutly the market scored an advance owing largely to an upturn in Foreign Exchange and to reports of damage by rain northwest. Close was unsettled at same as yesterday's finish to 3-4 higher, with Dec. 1.29 to 1.29 1-4 and May 1.33 to 1.33 3-34.

Talk of better export call in prospect tended somewhat to steady oats. After starting unchanged to 3-8 c off the market declined a little more, and then recovered in full.

MONTREAL MARKETS

MONTREAL, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Trading continued dull and uninteresting and the close this morning was unfeatured. Abitibi was up a half point at 31, as was also Atlantic Sugar at 30 1-2 Brompton remained unchanged at its opening figure, as did Laurentide. National Breweries appeared at 52 1-2, its closing level yesterday afternoon, and Spanish River strengthened at 1-2 point to 53 3-4.

TORONTO MARKET

TORONTO, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Stock market gains and losses were for the most part confined to fractions in the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day with no definite trend either way. C. P. R. opened at 127 1-2 which was half a point higher than yesterday's close but failed to hold, dropping to 126 1-2. Bell Telephone opened at 105 3-4 and moved up to 106. There was a better demand for Victory Bonds, one lot of seventeen thousand 22's going at 98.70 and the prices for the larger lots of 34's after selling up to 94.45 weakened to 94.35.

REVIEW OF MAIN BUSINESS DISPLAYS

CANADIAN RAYBESTOS.

One of Peterborough's youngest industries, The Canadian Raybestos Company, Limited, are for the second time since locating here, about a year ago last July, exhibiting in the Manufacturers' Building the many and varied utilities into which asbestos enters, including, of course, their world-famed motor brake lining. This exhibit is not only instructive, but the visitor is impelled to the fullest measure of interest in the demonstration of Raybestos products offered, from the fact that everything shown is purely Canadian, from raw material to the manufactured article. And in this connection many visitors no doubt will be surprised at learning that 85 per cent. of the world's asbestos is a Canadian mineral.

Messrs. W. S. Dickson and J. F. King, the courteous attendants in charge here, are kept busy explaining the various processes in manufacture of asbestos products, from the raw material mined at Thetford, Quebec, to asbestos wool, and thence to yarn for finished goods from the Peterborough factory.

Among other features of this tastefully displayed section is Raybestos Molded Clutch, an original type of Facing for Multiple Disc Clutch, and a new product manufactured by no other factory. Its one great advantage is that it can be made endless. Also a never-failing Sheet Packing for Gaskets, Flanges, etc., exclusive to the Canadian Raybestos Company.

All this firm's products are trade-marked by a silver-edged lining, the guarantee of excelling quality and dependability.

The Canadian Raybestos Company, since establishing in Peterborough, have enjoyed a booming business up to last July, and to-day the demand on their output is again picking up, with indications for continued and steadily increasing activities to a capacity basis. And the recent addition to their factory here of a fully-equipped packing department for the manufacture of all kinds of steam-tight, gas-tight and water-tight packing, with the installation of a Twister Machine for manufacturing valve stem packing—making of these and gasket jointing specialties for future operation—reflect that spirit of enterprise which presages expansion and assured prosperity.

DE LAVAL SEPARATORS AND MILKERS.

At the Manufacturers' Building yesterday interested crowds from near and far found a centre of attraction in The De Laval Company's instructive and revealing exhibit of Cream Separators and Mechanical Milkers, for which they are justly famous the world over. And here timely revelation was strikingly displayed of the revolution effected in Separators by this enterprising Canadian manufacturing concern of Canadian dairy supplies. For visitors to this attractively dressed section saw an old-time Hand Cream Separator of 20 years ago, with a capacity of 100 lbs. an hour, and costing $33.50, in arresting contrast with a De Laval Separator today of the same capacity selling at but $20. Following this thought of values, as affected by the manifold improvements and inventions originating with the De Laval people, farmers and dairymen are rejoicing that in twenty years the value of milk has increased from 60c to $1.60 the 100 lbs.

At this showing of up-to-the-hour utilities for modern dairying is also found the last word in Separators, one of 1,000 lbs. capacity per hour being electrically driven by compactly attached 1/6 h.p. motor and capable of ready attachment to any convenient electric lamp socket. A special feature of this handy little apparatus is its belt pulley tightener which takes up all shock and incidentally conserves the machine's mechanism.

This instructive exhibit is also featuring an innovation in the De Laval Universal Power Attachment for Separators of from 350 to 2,200 lbs. capacity, and driven from individual gas engine or line shaft, together with Separators of from 350 to 6,500 lbs. capacity per hour, thus meeting dairying requirements in both a large or small way.

Here also is demonstrated the De Laval Milker, highly recommended by a veritable army of satisfied Canadian users on the farm or in huge milk products plants, as a mechanical system for sanitarily milking which eliminates the drudgery of milk extraction from the cow and accomplishes this work in just one-third the time. Designed and manufactured in Canada by the oldest, largest and best known makers of dairy machinery in the world, these Milkers offer the maximum of efficiency with a minimum of expenditure. In brief, a description of this modernized plan for milking is as follows: Simplicity of installation and operation and an independent pipe-line controlling the pulsator's action. The milk is drawn alternately from the front and rear teats, and passes into the pail. The vacuum is controlled by the vacuum control, any variations being plainly shown by the gauge. The sanitary trap collects any moisture that may be in the line—preventing any foreign substance from entering the vacuum chamber of the pulso-pump. The pulsation pipe-line connects the under pulsator with the pulso-relay and the pulsating mechanism of the pulso-pump. This pipe-line is entirely independent of the continuous vacuum pipe-line. The simplicity of installation and operation of the De Laval Milker is of importance in both large and small dairies.

Whether city born or country born, The De Laval Company's exhibit section will furnish unqualified interest for all visitors.

A RICH LIVING-ROOM CONCEIT

At the western entrance to the Main Building, the prettily conceived exhibit by Messrs. Richard Hall & Son has been challenging the attention of thousands of visitors since the opening day of the Fair. It was an object-lessen in modern home decoration evolved for the benefit of rational home-lovers. Service and refinement were represented in perfect harmony in this dark blue setting of wicker work designs—such as will best survive the test of careful blending of tones—a model of comfort and artistic color harmony. To really appreciate its full significance, one required to look and look again, to realize wherein lies the soft restfulness and home-likeness effects. The colorings on the furniture had a soft richness which gave one that feeling of home comfort so desirable in a living-room.

The home-like features shown in their natural accuracy consisted of a pressed brick fireplace and grate, a luxurious Chesterfield banked with lovely cushions of various shapes and sizes, a day bed, a centre table, a large casement window dressed with white net curtains and over-hanging of velours, net door portiers, a fancy electric reading lamp, and a smoker's lamp. The floors were covered with rich Wilton rugs of corresponding shades, two gems in water color, richly decorated with gilt frames and hung with silk cord and tassels, and a unique 3-piece ceiling light in hammered brass.

In this model living-room the amount of happiness and comfort which one saw reflecting culture and refinement was shown and the tout ensemble struck a responsive chord. The skilfully chosen selections contributed to make a pleasant and artistic effect in design. The handiwork of the members of the firm's drapery department was in evidence. The Chesterfield and chairs were constructed throughout in Richard Hall & Son's own work-rooms, the upholstering and material being the best that could be put into them. The draperies on the door and windows were done in the same colorings to harmonize with the other furnishings. The draperies were artistically arranged with a fine white English breeze net. The walls of the room were done in a blended paper with a soft effect.

The whole idea was directed towards giving naturalness—avoiding stiffness in every way. How hospitable the reception to your friends would be an evening where the welcome extended covered the enjoyment of a living-room such as is here depicted.

Richard Hall & Son's facilities for furnishing living-room furniture is most complete. It is not necessary now to furnish the room with complete suites. One can take advantage of separate pieces of furniture by securing arm chairs, sofas, divans, rockers, as individual productions when luxuriously furnished in fancy covering of any desired material.

This work is done by an expert decorator employed by Richard Hall & Son. If decorations, curtains, rugs, etc., in keeping are needed to complete the scheme of furnishing, they can easily be selected from the wide range of samples in the Richard Hall & Son's store.

A COMBINATION CLOTHES REEL.

Visitors were loud in their praises of an ingenious combination of a clothes drier and tent reel which was shown outside adjoining the Annex of the Main Building.

It is a novelty you should not miss. This clothes reel—"Supreme" Tent Reel—disposes of worries, such as fixing up lines, falling or sagging lines, shovelling paths in winter, and all the other inconveniences of wash day.

The "Supreme" Tent Reel is built entirely of metal. It is light in appearance, yet the strongest clothes drier ever made; very simple in construction, nothing to get out of order and built to last a lifetime.

Combined with its other advantages, the "Supreme" Tent Reel is exclusive in its possibility of usefulness and pleasure. The patented cover converts the clothes drying feature into a shade from the sun, or protection from the rain, without in any way interfering with the operation of the reel.

The tent thus constructed adds to the beauty of any lawn; and where children are in the home would be invaluable, as it cannot be destroyed. It will prove its worth in every particular.

CRISIS PRECIPITATED THE IRISH SITUATION

responsibility for resuming hosilities.

Special to the Examiner.

BELFAST, September 16. — The tension in Belfast to-day was close to the breaking point.

A fresh outbreak of sectarian warfare was feared at any moment, as a result of the rioting and fighting in York street yesterday, when when the military armed cars were called out to fire over the heads of unruly crowds. Two women were in the hospital to-day suffering from bullet wounds sustained during a battle between gunmen.

LLOYD GEORGE ILL.

INVERNESS, September 16. — It was learned to-day that Lloyd George is ill at Garloch and that Lord Dawson, physician extraordinary to King George, has been sent for to attend him. He is suffering from chills and neuralgia. A dentist has also been summoned. However he is contemplating an early return to London to consult with colleagues on the Irish situation.

BELFAST, September 16. — Canadian Press. — Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, commenting on the hitch in the Irish negotiations, declared to-day his belief that the questions at issue did not afect the six northern counties.

PRESS COMMENT.

BELFAST, September 16. Canadian Press — The Belfast correspondent of the Press Association states that well informed Dublin sources believe that the government intends to call an early session of the British parliament.

In this event the masses of the Irish people may get an opportunity of giving a considered verdict on the issues most vitally affecting their country.

BELFAST, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press.)—Encounters between opposing factions in interior Ulster were reported here this afternoon.

Two unarmed constables, on cycle patrol near Cookstown, in East Tyrone, were shot at by scouts alleged to be covering Republicans at drill. They reported the matter to their barracks and a patrol was sent out which inter cepted three cylists, one of whom had a loaded revolver and other weapons. This man was arrested.

Unionist farmers in the district, arming themselves, and setting out surprised the party of Republicans and shots were exchanged. Cookstown cyclist contingent captured eight loaded revolvers they reported having found on members of this party, and seized a youth who had been shot in the leg. Wounded prisoner was taken to hospital in Belfast.

LONDON, September 16. — Canadian Press. — In an editorial discussing the Irish question, the Manchester Guardian says the important thing to recognize is that a "breakdown and not a break-off" has occurred in the negotiations.

The newspaper expresses regret that Prime Minister Lloyd George adopted a "venerable formula,' and did not put "the most favorable construction of Mr. De Valera's words.

DUBLIN, September 16. — The Freeman's Journal blames Lloyd George for the cancellation of the conference on the Irish question and declares that he made an extravagant misconstruction in cancelling the conference on the ground that to confer on the terms of De Valera's note would be to recognize Ireland as independent republic. It points out that Ireland, many years ago, was a sovereign state within the empire, and holds that reclaiming that sovereignity does not mean separation.

With the Cork Examiner it refuses to believe a dedlock has been reached ,and declares that there has been too much letter writing and calls for a conference to frame the peace terms instead of discussing theoretcal objections.

BELFAST, September 16. — Canadian Press. — Appeals to Premier Lloyd George and the leaders of the Sinn Fein to make every effort to effect settlement of the Irish problem are made by the Northern Whig (unionist) of this city, in commenting on the critical situation that has developed.

The News Letter (unionist) states De Valera's note was an ultimatum and that Sinn Fein is at the parting of the ways for good or evil to Ireland. It hopes for the abandonment of the independence claim.

MRS. E. ROSEBOROUGH WINS ROSE BRAND HAM

OFFERED BY CANADIAN PACKING CO. FOR ESTIMATING WEIGHT OF HAM AT EXHIBITION.

As the result of keen competition in the Manufacturers' Building at the Fair yesterday for the Canadian Packing Co's Rose Brand ham exhibied ahere, the ham goes to Mrs. Ernest Roseborough, R. R. No. 4, Peterborough, who estimated the weight of the ham as 25 lbs., 6 oz.

The actual weight of this ham was 25 lbs. 5 1-2 ounces, as weighed by H. A. Sisson of the United Farmers' Cooperative Store; and as twelve persons estimated its weight at 25 6 oz. and one at 25 5 oz. each coming nearest the correct weight by half an ounce—there resulted a tie of twelve competitors. Consequently to decide the winner in all fairness, Miss Hazel Mahood of this city kindly consented to draw the name of the winner from the 12 tie tickets, the choice thus going to Mrs. Roseborough.

And here it is interesting to note that either in a jocular spirit or from natural inability to judge of weight by proportions of a given substance, some of the estimates were humorously extravagant. For instance, one competitor's estimate was 411 lb 12 oz and another 175 lb. while the lowest level reached was 5 lb 7 oz. Of course, it is possible that two of these competitors were estimating on the Canadian Packing Company's huge ham in the industrial parade yesterday; which won second prize. This float showing a faithful replica of a Rose Brand Ham in natural wrapping and bearing the every-day label used, was a highly commendable sample of constructive skill in canvas and wood. The exhibit ham thus produced was 22 feet long, 11 feet high and 6 feet wide and reflected considerable credit on the firm and whoever designed and created it.

Remember, this competition for a Rose Brand Ham, at the Exhibition is continued today and also tomororw, when the one who estimates nearest the correct weight of the ham on exhibit in the Canadian Packing Co's section, will get the ham free. Don't miss an estimating blank.

THE IRISH SITUATION UNSETTLED

MATTER WILL BE DISCUSSED AT BRITISH CABINET MEETING NEXT WEEK.

A NEW SENTIMENT

(BY LLOYD ALLEN, United Press).

LONDON, September 17. — The Irish situation will be taken up at a meeting of the British Cabinet at Inverness next Tuesday or Wednesday, it was learned to-day.

The latest DeValera note—a plea explaining his previous reply—practically makes another Irish-British conference a certainty, it was believed.

The Dail itself is cheerful, according to despatches from Dublin.

"All will yet go well," The Chronicle's Dubin correspondent quoted Irish leaders as saying.

A new sentiment has sprung up in Ireland, according to the Cork correspondent of The Daily Telegraph. He declares a vast majority of the Irish people have decided in favour of Dominion Home Rule, but they will accept it only for the whole of Ireland. They are not disposed any more than DeValera to discuss the partition of Ulster, he stated.

"DeValera has lost no time answering Lloyd-George's telegram," The Chronicle stated editorially. "But the rejoinder is wholly unsatisfactory."

The Daily Telegraph declared that if negotiations were re-opened in the conference it will be upon the fear of both parties to discontinue the work they already have begun.

"The methods of negotiations hitherto pursued," The Times states, "created a spirit of controversy, not a spirit of reconciliation. It is therefore essential that the policy should be abandoned, and private personal conversations be developed."

DEVALERA'S TELEGRAM.

DUBLIN, September 17 (Canadian Press). — Eamonn DeValera's telegram sent yesterday to Prime Minister Lloyd-George, was to-day declared by the Freeman's Journal to make it more evident that the Prime Minister had been "too hasty in his conclusion that the Sinn Fein letter conveying details of the Irish acceptance of his invitation to the conference implied a demand for recognition in advance of the Irish Republic."

PRESS COMMENT.

LONDON, September 17 (Canadian Press). — The Sinn Fein acceptance of membership in the British Commonwealth as a basis of negotiations with Prime Minister Lloyd-George is seen as the only way out of the present Irish situation and deadlock by the London newspapers, although the prospects regarding the conference are considered improved by Eamonn DeValera's latest note to the Prime Minister.

The Daily Chronicle to-day said that such action by the Irish Republicans would mean that peace was in sight, the newspaper adding that until the Sinn Fein does accept, peace is unattainable.

SITUATION IMPROVED.

DUBLIN, Sept. 17.— (Canadian Press.)—In official quarters here the most favorable construction is placed on De Valera's telegram. The impression voiced is that it has smoothed the situation greatly, some going so far as toebpress the view that a conference before the end of next week is still possible.

LLOYD GEORGE IMPROVES.

GAIRLOCH, Sept. 17: —(Canadian Press.)—Lloyd George passed a good night at his home here and he is feeling much better. Date of his return to London has not been fixed and the next meeting of the Cabinet depends upon his progress. Receipt by the Prime Minister of De Valera's telegram of yesterday in which the Sinn Fein leader expressed the view that peace negotiators should meet untrammelled by any conditions except those imposed by facts as they know them, is considered to have brought a change in the situation. It has opened up the possibility that Lloyd George may reply to this communication before consulting with his Cabinet.

UNMASKED ROBBERS HELD UP A CIRCUS

GOT AWAY WITH BETWEEN $25,000 AND $30,000

PORTLAND, Oregon, Sept. 17. — (Canadian Press).—Three unmasked robbers held up the Sells Floto Circus treasurer late last night at Vancouver, Wash., and obtained between $28,000 and $30,000 in cash and drafts, according to a report to the Vancouver and Washington police. The robbers were said to have knocked down Mrs. Grace Hannaford, aged 60, and her son, Poodles Hannaford, who objected to the search of his mother. The money was being transferred from the circus grounds to a safe in the treasury car in the railroad yards. The transfer was being made in motor, in which five men and four women were riding.

Situation Is Worse

HUNGER FASTENS GRIP ON LOWER VALLEY OF THE VOLGA

TSARITSYN, Russia, Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press—By Courier to Moscow).—Hunger is tightening its grip on the lower valley of Volga. Officials of the Near East Relief who reached this city to-day after making a survey of ten provinces in sun-scorched south-eastern Russia, said conditions indicated wholesale starvation in January if outside help on a large scale did not arrive immediately. The situation at Samara was found to be grave, but farther south it became worse. There, the soil is poorer and starvation is already at the door.

21,173 ADMISSIONS PAID TO EXHIBITION

THREE DAYS' ATTENDANCE THIS YEAR ALMOST EQUAL TO TOTAL FOR LAST YEAR'S FOUR DAYS

Friday's total attendance at the Exhibition was 8,409. To the 7,815 tickets sold at the grounds should be added 594 tickets sold at Mr. R. Denne's store. This brings the total for the first three days up to 21,173. This morning's sudden change in the weather was unlooked for, but it is not expected to interfere with the attendance success of this year's Exhibition. Only 1,875 tickets needed to be sold to equal last year's total, and in spite of the threatening clouds there should at least be that many visitors.

HEAVY RAIN DELAYS WEST HARVESTING

RAIN FELL FOR 24 HOURS—GRAIN BECOMES WATER-LOGGED.

ESTIMATE LOSSES

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

REGINA, Sept. 17. — Incessant drizzling rain, falling for twenty-four hours, has been the lot of Saskatchewan since Midnight Thursday. Coming before the ground had time to dry up after the previous heavy rains precipitation has put another severe check on the continuance of threshing operations. No matter how favorable the weather may be, the water-logged grain cannot now be threshed for at least a week.

Losses in crops are estimated at various points, now from five to twenty per cent., and whether this will be increased will be determined by weather conditions of the week-end. Many points are reporting an exodus of harvesters back east, and a shortage of men is anticipated when threshing resumes.

The highest estimate of crop loss comes from Moosomin, where crops will suffer damage to the extent of twenty per cent.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press.)—To-day's brief and dull session of stock market resolved itself into contest between professional bull and bears latter gaining upper hand.

Prices were higher at beginning but weakened when Mexican Petroleum and some of other Foreign Oils as well as domestic issues fell one to 3 1-2 points. Food issues were equally heavy and low grade motors and their subsidiaries broke one to 1 1-2 points. Standard Industrial and equipments showed comparative steadiness and coppers were in demand but rails moved irregularly within narrow limits. Closing was easy. Sales approximated 250,000 shares.

Selected shares were irregularly higher at opening of to-day's stock market, shorts evidently closing out contracts over the week end. Baldwin Rose 1 3-8 points, with gains of large fractions to one point for Crucible, American International and Northern Pacific, Delaware, Lackawana and Western, American Linseed preferred and international Agricultural preferred. Mexican Petroleum was moderately lower at the outset but soon reacted. Foods products fell 2 5-8 points to new low record. Further recovery of marks was the feature of the foreign Exchange market.

CHICAGO MARKET

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press.—Wheat opened 1-4 to 3-4 c lower on Chicago Board of Trade to day with December 1.28 1-2 to 1.29 and May 1.32 1-4 to 1.32 3-4.

Corn was dull and slightly easier at start and dropped with wheat when Eastern selling was extended to coarse grains. Opening prices were 1-8 to 3-8 off with September at 54, December 53 3-8 to 53 1-2 and May 53 1-2. Oats followed corn, advanced a fraction and then sagged to 38 7-8.

TORONTO MARKET

TORONTO, Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press).—The closing session of week on local stock exchange was extremely dull with total turnover approximating 250 shares of listed stock. The opening prices held through entire session and in no instance, save war loans was there change from first quotations.

SENATOR EDWARDS DIED THIS MORNING

OTTAWA, Sept. 17. — (Canadian Press).—Senator Edwards, one of Canada's best known public men, died at his home here this morning in his 78th year. For several seasons he has been suffering from heart trouble, but only during the last month had his health seriously been impaired.

Senator Edwards in the business world will be best remembered in the part he played in the sixty million dollar merger with Riordon Pulp and Paper Company, which took place last year when the interests of W. C. Edwards, Gilmour and Hughson, Ticonderoga Pulp and Paper Company were sold.

ELECTION NEWS

VANCOUVER, September 17 (Canadian Press). — Supporters of the Meighen Government in Vancouver Centre Riding will nominate a candidate for the House of Commons at the forthcoming election, on Friday, 30th September.

WM. FAWCETT DECLINES U.F.O. NOMINATION

He Says He Has Definitely Refused to Enter the Contest.

KINGSTON, Sept. 17.—William Fawcett,, Wolfe Island, defeated U. F.O. candidate at the last provincial elections, has been urged to accept the nomination for the dominion parliament in the coming general election. Several of the county leaders, who were intimately associated with him in the last campaign, and who appreciate his worth and the sacrifices he made for the farmers in that election, have approached him to stand once more, pledging every support. Mr. Fawcett polled a splendid vote, considering that he had to meet a three-cornered fight. He has declined, however, to stand for nomination, and has so intimated to his friends. Questioned by a represenatvee of the Whig as to his answer to those calling upon him, he said that he had dennitely declined to enter the contest.

MR. ROBERT TAYLOR OF PETERBORO' WON FRIDAY'S PRIZE HAM

ESTIMATING CONTEST AGAIN RESULTED IN A TIE OF TWELVE COMPETITORS—CONTEST CONTINUES TO-DAY.

Another 12 minds moved in the same groove yesterday when as the day before exactly one dozen competitors estimated the same weight for the Canadian Packing Company's Rose Brand Ham, inviting competition n the Manufacturers' Building at the Ex.

Estimating this ham's weight at exactly 16 lbs., there were 12 competitors who tied for the for the prize, and 16 lbs. proved the correct figure when the ham was weighed by Mr. Clifford Lowes of the New Centre Meat Market.

Following the principle adopted on Thursday for deciding the winner in case of a tie, Mr. Reg. Turner this morning drew the name of Mr. Robt. Taylor, 35 Lafayette street, city, to whom Friday's contest ham will go free of charge, constituting a very acceptable souvenir of Peterboro's exhibition.

Estimating yesterday was keener than that of Thursday, an evidence of the increasing interest focused on the daily contest at the Canadian Packing Co's section, where competition will be continued today for another ham, which bids fair to tax the estimating talent of visitors. Get an estimating ticket and try your skill.

THE KEENE-NORWOOD BALL GAME

To the Sporting Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Re your editorial in The Examiner under the heading of Sportsmanship, I presume this editorial refers to the Norwood and Keene game. In reply, I may say the Keene management, recognizing the need of good, clean sport, called Norwood on the telephone the previous evening and tried to arrange to have Norwood play their regular East Peterborough League team. If they would do so, the Keene management would also play their regular line-up. By the conversation over the telephone, Norwood absolutely refused to agree to this suggestion of clean sport, and the Norwood management very strongly intimated that the Keene team was afraid of the challenge. Under these conditions, Keene was forced to use outside players to compete with the outside players on the Norwood team. In regard to clean sport, Norwood utterly failed to use it. As regards Keene and community, the people have always tried to keep sport up to its highest plane, both in support of the home team and toward the players and fans of outside teams, and will always continue to do so. Would you kindly give this space in your paper, the same as your other editorial.

Thanking you, respectfully yours,
W. FLETCHER.

A GAS WAVE ENVELOPED NEW YORKERS

AMMONIA FUMES BREAK LOOSE WITH DISASTROUS RESULTS—MANY AFFECTED.

200 "GASSED"

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(United Press)—Two hundred persons were "gassed' in New York early to-day when ammonia fumes spread over an area of twenty blocks on the upper east side, driving thousands from their homes.

When the choking fumes rolled over the neighbourhood crowds of men, women and children, many of them in night clothes or half dressed swarmed into the streets choking and gasping.

Many fell unconscious.

At one time police said there was more than sixty people sprawled in the streets, overcome. Police estimated fully 10,000 were forced to flee from their homes.

People, holding handkerchiefs to their faces poured out of the gassed neighbourhood, there was great confusion. Scores of children were temporarily lost when families became separated.

Policemen and firemen wearing gas marks or with vinegar soaked handkerchiefs tied over their faces penetrated the affected district and carried to safety those who had fallen. They were carried to a temporary emergency hospital.

For an hour after fumes escaped, it was impossible to go within a block of the ice plant without a gas mask.

BANKER FINDS FRANCE THRIVING.

Industries Busy and Savings Show Increase.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The economic and financial position of France is better than generally supposed according to H. R. Ickelheimer of Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co., who has just returned from a two month, visit abroad. "French industries are very active with business and savings of the people increasing,' said Mr. Ickelheimer. "Spendings of tourists help the situation, also the ability of the French to do without imports, especially food.

"Decrease in note circulation is a good sign. The worst fiscal danger was the possibility that too many short term borrowings might be presented for remdemption some day when resources of the Bank of France happened to be taxed to the limit. But apparently present financing will enable the country to carry on indefinitely. In Great Britain also money is fairly plentiful with loans going well. The recent Norwegian loan of $15,000,000 quickly rose to a premium above the initial price. The Irish question leads all English classes to get together behind the Government.

"Even Germany's situation has advantages. Reparation requirements for delivering shipping for example keep shipyards busy while those in other countries stand still. Low exchange is making it possible to pay unprecedentedly high wages and get relatively good prices for exports. People are not in the frame of mind to back up the over throw of the present Government, which from a police and military standpoint has the country well in hand.

"Only rich Germans, however, can get all the food they need. Milk and butter are particularly scarce. People still hope for a loan from the United States, but realize they cannot give adequate security. Bankers all doubt that it will be possible to keep up the reparation payments."

"CELTIC PASSION."

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. Canadian Press. — "The Celtic passion for having the last word marks and mars the latest reply of De Valera," says the New York Times today, adding that the Sinn Fein leader's correspondence has been marked by love of rhetoric and overmastering instinct for argument.

The rhetoric went well, it says, until the reply was received by Lloyd George. In this regard, the paper says that there was really nothing for him to do but to cancel the conference of which De Valera had, while seemingly accepting it, repudiated the essential conditions.

The World says British opinion throughout the world will be behind Lloyd George in his reply to De Valera's latest note.

The Tribune says De Valera is engaged in the ancient and honorable practice of saving his face.

UPWARD MOVEMENT IN FOOD PRICES

RETAIL COST OF FOOD SHOWED AN INCREASE DURING AUGUST

(By Jas. T. Kolbert—United Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—An upward movement in food prices is under way again, it was shown in figures made public to-day by the Department of Labor. The retail cost of food increased 4.3 per cent. in August, as compared with July, the Department announced. The cost, however, on August 15 was still 25 per cent. under the figures for the same date in 1920.

THE DEFENSE HAS A BARREL OF HARD COIN

ARBUCKLE REMAINS IN THE COOP WHILE OPPOSING SIDES PREPARE FOR BATTLE.

AN APPROPRIATION

(BY M. D. TRACY, United Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., September 17. — A nation-wide scandal probe will result from the disclosures of the secrets of the "Fatty" Arbuckle party, District Attorney Matthew Brady intimated here to-day.

An appropriation of $1,000 was obtained from the Board of Supervisors to run down the rumours of widespread scandal which have developed from the investigation which followed the arrest of Roscoe Arbuckle in connection with the death of Virginnia Rappe, actress, a guest at the party.

Brady declared that $1,000 will be insufficient to obtain the prosecution evidence he desires. He said he would appeal for more money when the supervisors meet to-day.

While his prosecutors made plans for the widespread investigation, Arbuckle still rested in his cell in jail here. He will be arraigned to-day on a manslaughter charge, returning in an indictment by the Grand Jury. The State, however, has decided not to prosecute on this charge, and has planned its case to obtain Arbuckle's conviction for murder.

One of Arbuckle's legal corps will enter a plea of not guilty to the manslaughter charge, and the case probably will be continued indefinitely. But it will be impossible for the prosecution to complete its case without additional funds, Brady said.

"The defence has an unlimited amount of money to be spent,' Deputy D. A. Golden declared. "Without sufficient funds the prosecution will be defeated before it begins."

Brady did not give any details of the probe he expected to begin, but it was believed it will centre about Hollywood, th home of the California movie stars, where rumours of "wild parties" have been brought to the police.

The body of Miss Rappe was being taken to Los Angeles to-day under an escort of a representative of an undertaking establishment.

WHITEHOUSE & SONS RE:OPENING

BEAUTIFUL TRANSFORMATION OF THEIR NEW PIANO SHOWROOMS

Naturally it is a matter for congratulation by Messrs. Whitehouse & Sons to have made so successful a formal opening event of their new piano warerooms at No. 158 Hunter Street to-day. Visitors were so much surprised with the complete evolution of the former crowded showrooms that it required some explanations to understand how such a charming change was effected.

A description of the splendid new features presented by these beautiful suite of rooms, and the artistic display of instruments, will appear on Monday; but all who can make it convenient to call this evening are recommended to do so.

OTTAWA, Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press).—An unqualified denial of the story emanating from Toronto to the effect that 70 to 80 per cent. of various branches of existing soldier organizations in Canada had signified their intention of joining the organization known as the Canadian Legion was given here to-day by officials of the Dominion Command G.W.V.A.

TRENT RIVER HAPPENINGS

TRENT RIVER, Sept. 17.—Ideal weather favored the efforts of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church here last evening when a large gathering assembled to enjoy the bountiful repast provided.

The tables were placed the entire length of the buildings and fairly groaned with delicacies. Over the tables were draped Union Jacks and bunting caught at intervals with bunches of snow drops, cut flowers of all varieties were placed in receivers a short distance apart the length of the tables. After the tables were served the large concourse of people assembled in the auditorium of the church, where a short programme was given. Rev. Mr. Seymour, acting as chairman, gave a short address, and called upon the Ladies' Aid Society for the opening chorus.

Mrs. Seymour gave two readings, "Pillar Fightin" and "The Ladies' Aid," both of which were heartily applauded. Mrs. Geo. Chiles rendered a solo, "The Little Brown Owl" very sweetly, but did not respond to the encore. Mr. J. Ruttan gave a reading, followed by two recitations by Leslie Chiles. The pleasant evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem. The proceeds of the supper amounted to upwards of $100.

Personals.

TELEGRAPH AND CABLE NEWS

THEFTS CLEARED UP.

SARNIA, Ont., Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press).—With the arrest in Port Huron of Jack Johnson, 21, and Herman Easau, 19, local police believe that lumber thefts on this side of the river St. Clair, totalling in the neighborhood of $20,000, have been cleared up.

Johnson and Easau, according to the authorities, have been making nightly trips from the Port Huron side of the river with a boat, and up until the time of their arrest they are alleged to have taken large quantities of lumber from the piles of the Cleveland and Sarnia Mills along the shore on this side of the border.

WILL DISCUSS ISSUE.

SARNIA, Ont., Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press).—It was announced last night that at the next meeting of the local Trades and Labor Council the delegates will have as their chief issue for discussion the supporting of Candidate White of the United Farmers, who has been nominated for West Lambton.

Last night delegates of the Trades and Labor Council announced that since the announcement was made the Sarnia Trades and Labor Council had voted to support the United Farmer candidate, all has not been easy sailing for the Trades and Labor delegates.

THREE FLYERS KILLED.

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press.) Lieut. Jas. F. Armstrong and two enlisted men, Sergeants Andrew Gibson and P. J. White, from Post Field, Fort Sill, Oklahoma, were killed at Love Field, Dallas, yesterday, when an army De Haviland observation plane went into a spin at an altitude of about 150 feet and crashed to earth. The machine burst into flames as it struck the ground.

COUNSELLED MODERATION.

EDMONTON, Alta., Sept. 17. — (Canadian Press).—With oil as the subject of discussion, the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy got in a big morning's work, commencing the third day of the annual convention yesterday morning. George Sheppard, geologist for the Imperial Oil Company; Dr. D. B. Dowling, and Dr. N. Y. Williams, eminent geologists, who know the northern field thoroughly, all counselled moderation and practically unanimously declared that nothing had been discovered as yet to warrant the wild statements that have been made in some quarters.

READY FOR FIGHT.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press). — Featherweight Champion Johnny Kilbane and Danny Frush, of Baltimore, challenger, expressed themselves as being in perfect condition to-day after the final day of secret training for their 12-round decision bout here this afternoon. After his workout, Frush weighed 125½ pounds, half a pound less than he is required to make at ringside. Under the contract, Kilbane is to receive $60,000, win, lose or draw, and, Frush $25,000 for training expenses.

SOLDIERS RE-ESTABLISHMENT.

OTTAWA, Sept. 17.— (Canadian Press.)—Training under auspices of Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment shows signs of coming to an end not too long hence. There are only now 1,147 men undergoing training, most of whom are incapacitated. They are completing training at the rate of some sixty a week. Others who are discharged from hospital from time to time still have claim on department for training, but the number is very small compared with the high peak reached in March of last year when there were over 26,000 men benefitting by this scheme.

SOLDIERS INSURANCE.

OTTAWA, Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press.)—Business in insurance division of Civil Re-establishment is reported as being very brisk just now. An average of more than 200 applications for policies per week is being received and number of returned soldiers holding policies now total more than 5,000, involving some $13,500,000.

MARKET CONDITIONS.

MONTREAL, September 17 (Canadian Press). — The local market for cash grain was without any new feature to note. The undertone to the flour market continues easy. The cheese market on the whole was dull.

CHECKER COMPETITION.

MONTREAL, September 17 (Canadian Press). — American checker players defeated a Canadian team from this city last night here by 3½ to 1½. This defeat puts Montreal players a point behind those from the United States. Results yesterday were:

W. Beauregard, champion of America, defeated P. A. Lamarre, of Montreal.

APPOINTED MAGISTRATE.

MONTREAL, September 17 (Canadian Press). — J. A. Calixte Ethier, M.P. for Laval-Two Mountains, will be appointed by the Provincial Government to the position of magistrate at Hull, replacing Magistrate Coyette, who has just resigned to enter the political arena. His nomination will, it is expected, be made early next week at Quebec.

GRECO-TURK WAR.

LONDON, September 17 (Canadian Press). — According to information received in London, the Greek Army is likely to retire on Eski-Shehr.

The Turks are believed to be trying to outflank the Greeks both from the south and the north.

LICENSE FEES.

WINNIPEG, September 17 (Canadian Press). — Demand for the return of the license fees imposed by the Manitoba Government on firms operating under a Dominion charter was made to-day by solicitors for an incorporated company operating under a Dominion charter.

The Province, until the autumn of 1920, collected a license fee from all companies starting in business in Manitoba. A decision handed down by the Privy Council relieved incorporated companies operating under Dominion charter, from taking out a Provincial charter.

TOWN PLANNING.

MONTREAL, September 17 (Canadian Press). — Plans have been perfected for the Town Planning Conference, under the joint auspices of the Town Planning Institute of Canada and the Montreal City Improvement League, which will be held here on 29th and 30th September and 1st October.

A feature of the conference will be the holding of an exhibition of plans for city development, including a number of plans for the development of Montreal, extending over a number of years past, which is expected to prove of particular advantage to the city architects and others.

STORM IN PROSPECT

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press).—All shipping hugged the harbor here to-day following weather bureau warnings that a hurricane was approaching. The Norwegian steamer Torre from Emden for New York put in here this morning, after receipt of storm warnings off Cape Race. The United States steamer Passiac Bridge also is here with engine trouble.

PLAY IN FINALS TO-DAY

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17. — (Canadian Press).—William T. Tilden, II., and Wallace F. Johnson, both of this city, will meet for the national turf singles tennis championship on the courts of the German town Cricket Club here to-day. Each won his way into the final round of the fortieth titular tournament of the United States Lawn Tennis Association by decisively defeating opponents in the semi-finals round.

A TRADE COMMISSION

OTTAWA, Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press).—The government has authorized the establishment of a trade commissioner office in Jamaica, G. R. Stevens has been appointed to the post at Jamaica and will shortly leave to take up his duties there. Stevens is now junior trade commissioner in Ottawa.

CONTINUANCE CONFERENCE IS DESIRED

DEVALERA SENDS A TELEGRAM TO LLOYD GEORGE—CONFERENCE PROPOSED.

LONDON, Sept. 16.— (Canadian Press.)—In a telegram sent last evposition had been so stated in his loch, Scotland, Eamonn De Valera is considered in high quarters in London to have indicated a desire for a continuation of the negotiations looking to peace in Ireland which were terminated, momentarily, at least, by Mr. De Valera's communication of earlier in the week insisting on the independence of Ireland and Mr. Lloyd George's cancellation of the conference with the delegates of the Sinn Fein which he had proposed for next Tuesday.

The general view in London is that the hitch has arisen because Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. De Valera are compelled to keep an eye on the Extremists in their respective cabinets, but that behind both there also is a strong public opinion in favour of peace, this feeling being as strong in England as in Ireland.

From advices received in London the Sinn Fein leaders were surprised by the effect of Mr. De Valera's letter which induced Mr Lloyd George to cancel the proposed conference. From these advices it would seem that the Sinn Fein leaders in Dublin hold the view that their leader's letter was unfortunately phrased, and that it is advisable to make a further attempt to bring about a conference. It appears to be realized, however, that some weeks will be lost in the process of attempting to clarify the situation. There is now some talk of holding a conference in London in October.

Mr. Lloyd George has not yet called the meeting of his cabinet but it is expected this will be heard early next week at Inverness or at Gairloch, where the Prime Minister is now staying. It is also expected that there will be an early session of the Dail Eireann to consider the new aspects of the situation.

Situation Improves.

DUBLIN, Sept. 16. —(Canadian Press.)—Men closely in touch with the leader on both sides of the Irish question in conversations have expressed the opinion that the telegram sent to Mr. Lloyd George by Eamonn De Valera seemed greatly to improve the situation. They thought that if the Irish leader's ening to Mr. Lloyd George at Gairletter to the Prime Minister, Mr. Lloyd George probably would not have cancelled the proposed conference.

It is clearly evident here that neither side to the controversy desires a break, but both factions seem unwilling to waive points of principle or make admissions which possibly might afterwards prove embarrassing. It is considered here that Mr. De Valera's telegram to the Prime Minister withdraws nothing that he previously has contended for, but that it is intended to facilitate a decision by the British Cabinet in favor of a further conference.

HUNGER STRIKER HAS A COMPLAINT

HIS CASE WILL RE INVESTIGATED BY THE GOVERNMENT

EDMONTON, Alta., September 17. — Canadian Press. — An investigation into the complaint of "illegal and inhuman treatment" made in behalf of Captain E. L. Janney, the hunger striker in the Lethbridge jail, has been ordered and will be carried out as soon as possible.

Hon. Alex. Ross, minister of public works, under whose department the provincial jails are administered, has granted the request of Janney's solicitors and the attorney general has arranged for E. N. Barker, police magistrate at Cardstone, to conduct a full investigation of the case.

The telegram sent Hon. J. E. Brownlee on Wednesday by the Lethbridge law firm acting for Janney, was the first intimation received by the government authorities that any but proper treatment was being shown the prisoner, and the matter was at once taken up with the public works department.

It is a strict condition of the inquiry however that the hunger strike must be lifted before any further step is taken in the matter.

Janney's complaint will not be considered or investigated by the magistrate while he is still on strike and along with the government's promise to make a full and searching inquiry there goes the stipulation that the prisoner must break his 41 day fast and start taking nourishment again.

LOWER FREIGHT RATES

WINNIPEG, Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Following strong protests against the decision of the board of railway commissioners not to reduce freight rates, the council of the board of trade yesterday afternoon passed a resolution emphasis the necessity of the commission reconsidering its decision and calling upon Board of Trade throughout Canada to co-operate in getting the whole question re-opened.

EXHIBITION ATTENDANCE IS AHEAD OF LAST YEAR'S AND TO-DAY SHOULD SWELL RECORD

FIRSF THREE DAYS SHOWS COMFORTABLE MARGIN OVER CORRESPONDING DAYS IN 1920 BUT THIS AFTERNOON AND EVENING'S CROWDS ARE NEEDED TO MAKE A SUBSTANTIAL SURPLUS

DIRECTORS CONFIDENT

Friday's crowds brought the Exhibition attendance figures within approximately 2,500 of last year's total for the entire four days. To-day's gate should complete the success of this year's Fair.

Last night the directors assured themselves that the Saturday attendance should at least equal yesterday's. In that desirable event, the aggregate figures will hang up a new record, with a wide margin to spare. If the citizens and farmers extend their co-operation right up to the last minute, Peterborough's Exhibition will have reached a proud position of eminence among its fellows.

In the attainment of that end, however, there should be no resting up this afternoon and evening. The same generous support that has placed the atendance thus far within sight of a new record should be sustained to the close.

Last year's total for four days was 23,048. The last three days have produced the handsome figure of 20,579. In other words, 2,469 paid admissions to-day equals last year's count, and it was the biggest in the history of Peterborough's Fair. All over that will constitute the new record. Why not make it as big as possible?

In 1920 the Exhibition was held on the first four days of the week, with the following numbers of paid admissions: Monday, opening day, 29; Tuesday, 5,787; Wednesday, 14,219; and Thursday, 3,013—with the aggregate of 23,048.

This week's figures so far—and they are the actual count checked up several times by Mr. J. E. Sullivan and his assistants: Wednesday, opening day, 560; Thursday, 12,304; Friday, 7,815; total, 20,579.

The question uppermost in the minds of the directors last night after they had received the day's returns, and last night's figures from Mr. J. E. Sullivan, was what Saturday would yield. With an afternoon and evening performance, including the special judging attractions in several classes of horses, President Denne and his directors ran their estimates all the way from 5,000 to 9,000 for the closing day. The last figure, as his friends might naturally surmise, was suggested by Reg. Turner, invincible optimist.

A comparison of the returns for the first three days of the two years gives a majority of 544 for 1921. It rests with to-day's crowds whether the ambitions of the Fair Board and of most of the citizens and farmers who are loyally behind the directors are to be realised now.

Weather Man Has Been Great.

There is nothing but praise for the Weather Man. Ideal September days and moonlit nights have afforded the fullest opportunity to the public to attend the Exhibition. Last night, although a trifle cool, was perfect. The afternon crowd numbered 5,144, and the turnstiles checked through 2,671 for the evening show.

The programme was as attractive as ever, and as an agreeable extra the Caledonian pipers appeared before the conclusion and were given a cordial reception by the crowd. Music by both the G.W.V.A. and the 57th Rangers' Band was thoroughly enjoyed during the afternoon and evening.

Some of the exhibitors in the Manufacturers' and Merchants' Buildings volunteered the statement that they had found business good. This probably applied to the others, and is a decidedly encouraging aspect of present conditions, and also conveys the fact that the Peterborough Exhibition affords highly desirable publicity.

FRIDAY'S RACES.

The programme of races at the Peterborough Exhibition on Friday afternoon consisted of the 2.15 class and the 2.35 event. Although both were won in straight heats, there was some lively racing, and several of the finishes were very close.

Hazel H, Eddie Jones' speedy brown mare, captured the 2.15 class, negotiating the second heat in 2.17, while Reta Hal showed under the wire first three times in succession in the 2.35 class.

The races were well handled by Starter Brownlee, of Barrie, and by Messrs. J. M. Brooks and Gus White of Peterborough, who officiated as judges.

The Summary.

THE UNEMPLOYMENT SITUATION.

The announcement that the Toronto Board of Control has decided to do away with the system of giving "doles" and meal tickets to the unemployed this winter should be an intimation to the local authorities that it would be the part of wisdom to consider the situation without delay and decide upon a policy to be followed here. A discussion of the unemployment crisis cannot safely be deferred and the Council should be ready to deal with the situation before it reaches its most serious stage. Undoubtedly there will be a large amount of unemployment and considerable distress. What is to be done? Toronto has decided that no healthy men who are fit to work will be provided with relief in the form of cash or meal tickets. There was too much abuse of that system last winter to warrant a repetition of the plan, while it is generally admitted that to give something for nothing has a demoralizing effect. Consequently the Queen City has come to the conclusion that, if possible, work of some kind is to be provided. It would be well for Peterborough to decide upon a course of action as soon as possible. Any further delay would be unwise.

A SPLENDID RECORD.

Successful as has been the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition in attendance and from the standpoint of exhibits, it promises, unless to-day's report makes a difference, to set up a new record along another line. Up to late yesterday afternoon Chief of Police Newhall declared that he had not been the recipient of the slightest complaint in connection with the exhibition. The Police Department had received no reports of pocket-picking, short-changing, unfair games or disorderly conduct. Furthermore, although there were nearly 15,000 on the grounds on Thursday and, perhaps, an aggregate attendance of 10,000 yesterday, not a single person had been noticed by the police under the influence of liquor. That is a report upon which the people of Peterborough and the surrounding district can well pride themselves. There is nothing wrong with the morale of a community that can show such a clean sheet.

Incidentally, a word of praise is due the Police Department. Never has the exhibition been so efficiently and effectively policed. The big crowds have been handled smoothly and there has been no confusion nor friction, the arrangements made by Chief Newhall working out in a way

BUY AT HOME.

As a medium for impressing upon the people the desirability of purchasing made-in-Canada goods the manufacturers' exhibits at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition should prove decidedly effective. The splendid displays of articles manufactured in Canada are in themselves a striking argument for the buying of Canadian products, and each exhibit in addition has been provided with placards which urge Exhibition visitors to help keep their fellow Canadians employed by, as far as possible, purchasing Canadian products and manufactured articles. With over 20,000 visitors to see the exhibits, the cumulative effect of the display of Canadian-made goods and of the bulletins so prominently shown should be of much assistance in giving a stimulus to the buy-in-Canada campaign. Far too much Canadian money is going out of the country to keep foreign workers employed, while Canadian mechanics and workmen walk the streets unable to find positions. The unemployment situation would be greatly relieved if the Canadian people could be made to realize that the more articles produced in their own country they buy the better it will be for the general welfare of the Dominion. In bringing this important matter squarely before the residents of the Midland district the Peterborough Exhibition furnishes another excellent reason why it should be enthusiastically supported.

CANADIAN SAMPLE TRAIN.

The French exhibition train which is now touring Canada, and will visit Hamilton next month, is doing a great work in advertising the commercial and intellectual resources of the French Republic in this country, and it is confidently anticipated that an increased business between the two nations will be the result. As has been before explained, the Franco-Canadian sample train is accompanied by a staff of experts who are prepared to give prospective Canadian customers full information and to take orders. The railways of the Dominion are providing free haulage and the Canadian Government is assisting the movement in every possible way.

In connection with this tour, also, the Canadian Pacific Company has issued a beautiful souvenir for the use of the French visitors. It is illustrated with several coloured plates of famous spots in the different provinces, and the text, in the French language, gives a concise and instructive description of all the cities and towns through which the train will pass, as well as a brief account of the Dominion as a whole, of its resources and geographical features.

The Department of Trade and Commerce is now arranging for a similar train, containing Canadian exhibits, to tour France next year, "for the purpose of presenting to the French buyers, in an attractive, picturesque, and practical way, the resources of the Dominion."

The rench Government will offer the following inducements: Free transportation of the Canadian goods both ways across the ocean; free warehousing of the Canadian sample goods in the docks of the French port selected; gratuitous use of the railways and other equipment required for a complete exhibition train and its circulation throughout the principal cities of France; the use of the best theatres in practically every city visited by the Canadian train, with the net proceeds of the entrance receipts for theatrical displays of films and other devices demonstrating the natural resources, industrial development and natural beauties of Canada; free use for a period of six months of the most suitable building in the city of Paris for a fixed exhibition of the Canadian goods.

The advantages of such an undertaking for Canada is obvious. The wealth in natural resources and in scenic beauty of this country will be brought home to many thousands of French people in a most attractive form.—Hamilton Spectator.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A Montreal man has been sentenced to jail for the seventieth time. He'll have to be careful or it will grow to be a habit with him.

Already the Peterborough Exhibition Board are planning more improvements for next year. And they have a way of putting their plans into commission, too.

With the Exhibition over, Peterborough can begin to turn its attention to the election campaign.

The Board of Censors have put the bar on any films showing Roscoe Arbuckle. Surely such action was unnecessary. Nobody would want to see any Arbuckle films just now.

It is a queer political situation. The Labour Party is to enter candidates in the campaign, and yet in a number of ridings Labour and Farmers have formed an alliance.

Legislation of twenty-one States has provided cash bonuses to former soldiers totalling $370,939,200, or approximately $75 each for every man in service during the World War.

Where lies the land
To which your ship must go?
What silver strand
In azure distance shining,
Shall through the years
Your vessel's glory know,
Its voyage divining?
Perhaps some isle of tears,
Or some green promontory
Where golden summer cheers
Its fadeless glory?
Ah, life's unchartered ships!
How fast they fly

Very often people who would not take the chance of keeping large sums of money in their homes will think little of leaving valuable bonds or other documents practically unprotected.

CROP REPORT

Below will be found a brief synopsis of telegraphic reports received at the Head Office of the Bank of Montreal from its branches. The branch managers have complete and intimate knowledge of each local situation and are in close touch with crop conditions in all sections of the district shown.

Prairie Provinces.

Summary— Cool dry weather is minimizing the damage to crops by the recent rain and snow. Some lowering of grade is expected, particularly in grain not stooked, and there is danger of farmers threshing before the grain is thoroughly dry. Deliveries continue heavy with high grading. Edmonton District — Threshing delayed owing to wet weather. Heavy frost reported in several districts, but too late to do material damage and good average crop assured. Calgary District — Cutting practically finished. Some threshing done but not general, owing to snow and rain last five days. Wheat grading well, but general results as to grade and yield cannot yet be ascertained. Lethbridge District—Practically all grains cut. Threshing delayed by four days' storm rain and snow. Moisture of inestimable value to summer fallow and to fall rye sown. No damage from frosts. Regina District — Heavy general rains, with some snow in west have held up threshing. A week's fine fine weather is necessary before operations can be resumed. General outlook indicates good average crop. Saskatoon District — Ten days' bright weather required before threshing can be continued. About 15 p.c. oats still uncut. About 10 p. c. of the threshing is done. Land in first class shape for fall ploughing. Winnipeg District — Heavy rains have delayed threshing. Grain movement very heavy, with over 2,000 cars inspected last week end.

Province of Quebec.

Root crops and grass pasture have improved through recent rains.

Province of Ontario.

The corn crop is excellent and in another few days will be in the silos. Late apples are filling out well and promise to be of good quality. Root crops improving. Late potatoes will probably be an average yield. Tobacco crop is now being harvested and a large yield is looked for.

Maritime Provinces.

Root crops have improved of late and in some districts a good yield of potatoes is looked for. Early apples are being picked in Nova Scotia and although not large the quality is good.

Province of British Columbia.

Weather cold and generally fair with frosts in some districts. Rain has not affected grain to any extent and threshing results to date indicate good average. Development of roots retarded by cold nights. Okanagan apples show up well. Peaches and pears up to expectations. Fruits other districts below average. Weather continues to retard tomatoes and Kootenay District reports plants killed by frost.

A Car as Fine As Its Wonderful Motor

Everywhere you hear the Chalmers motor spoken of with real enthusiasm by its owners.

It is due the Chalmers motor that it should be praised. For it is truly a wonderful car.

Its Great Performance

It is wonderful in the efficiency it gets from to-day's poor gasoline. In the added miles it returns. In the way it performs and stands up.

These things are largely due to preheating the fuel by the hot-spot before it enters the cylinders.

As a direct result of this fine performance, upkeep and replacement costs on the Chalmers are surprisingly low.

Motor Not Only Feature

But Chalmers excellence is far from beginning and ending with its motor. It is a car that is finely built in every detail.

It affords consummate riding comfort, drives with a minimum of effort, and is beautiful in design and finish. We invite you to look into Chalmers records and Chalmers standing without delay.

KIDNAPPED.

Chapter 65.

The elevator stopped at last at our apartment.

I felt in my handbag for the door-key. I did not ring the bell, but pushed the key in the lock and let myself in quickly. I felt the key trembla in my hand.

As I stepped into the hall an ominous sort of dread rushed over me.

I listened, but I did not hear a sound. It was certainly too late for Nancy to have Kent out walking. I would have given anything that minute to have heard his dear voice.

I rushed into the living room. No one was in there. Then I ran back quickly towards the nursery and on to the kitchen. Each room was empty and inauspiciously silent.

"Nancy!" I called, my voice high pitched and nervous. I called again, louder.

The door to Nancy's room opened suddenly and she came running out toward me with her hat and coat on. Her face was deadly white.

"Oh, Mrs. Armour!" she cried, wringing her hands.

"Where is Kent?" I demanded.

"Oh, Mrs. Armour," was all she said, and she started to cry and shrank back from me as I caught her roughly by the shoulder.

I half pulled her into the kitchen and she sank down on a chair by the table. She was crying nervously, and kept turning her face away from me.

I was frantic. I yelled at her. I threatened, shaking her fiercely in my terrible agitation.

"Is he hurt? Where is he? Is he dead? Nancy, tell me!" I cried, frenzied with awful forebodings.

"I—I had him out—out for a—a walk" she sobbed.

I dug my fingers into her arm and shook her again.

"Go on—tell me?" I demanded.

"It was a—a man. I wasn't looking—I—I turned to see something—something else—and he took Kent—took him. I couldn't stop him—I couldn't," she cried out, and buried her face in her arms on the edge of the kitchen table.

My agitated thought quickly snatched up the little bits of information and tried to form some kind of action.

"You couldn't stop him? Why couldn't you?" I demanded, fiercely then added quickly, "Did you know him? Had you ever see him before?"

"No—no, Mrs. Armour,' she declared. "I tried—I tried— but he wouldn't let me have him."

"Which way did he go? Think think for God's sake and tell me what he looked like," I begged.

"He went down—down town—and I—I dont know what he looked like," she declared, again bursting into tears, and I could not get another word from her.

I rushed wildly to the telephone. My first thought was to tell Kent, butI realized he would hardly have had time to reach the office yet. I took the receiver off the hook and told central to give me the police station.

I got them and then I told my story as rapidly and as well as my fainting nerves and overwhelming fear would let me. I described Kent Jr. and told exactly how he was dressed.

Then I tried to get Kent on the phone, but he had not gotten in yet. I left word to have him call me at once when he reached the office.

I rushed back to Nancy. She was standing by the kitchen window. As she turned toward me I saw a look of desperate fear in her eyes.

"I couldn't help it;! It wasn't my fault!" she declared, cowering before me.

Strangely enough it never entered my head that Nancy herself might have had some part in Kent's disappearance. If I had thought of it then I shudder to think what might have happened, and what I might have done in my wild frenzy.

ARBUCKLE IS STILL HELD

CANNOT BE BAILED ON THE MURDER CHARGE—OPENING ROUNDS OF FIGHT.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17. — With the formal announcement here that Roscoe C. ("Fatty") Arbuckle, motion picture comedian, would be prosecuted on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Miss Virginia Rappe, actress, following a Labor Day party in the actor's hotel rooms here, both the prosecution and defence squared away last night to arrange for the trial, the first chapter of which will be written next Thursday when the prisoner will enter a plea.

When District Attorney Matthew Brady in the court of Police Judge Sylvain Lazarus, announced that "the people are ready to proceed on the murder charge," he blasted the hopes of the defence that Arbuckle would be at liberty on $5,000 bond set by the court when a Grand Jury indictment charging the defendant with manslaughter was returned. It was indicted yesterday that the prosecution's decision to go to trial on the murder charge was a surprise to the defence. From Los Angeles came reports that Arbuckle had already made train reservations for a trip from San Francisco to that city. Murder is not a bailable charge in California. The reservation, if made, cannot be used.

District Attorney Brady has the support of the Board of County Supervisors in his prosecution of Arbuckle, it was shown yesterday when the finance committee of that body appropriated $1,000 for immediate expenses of the trial and promised more when needed. Brady had asked the board for additional funds, declaring much wealth would be expended by the defence.

Mrs. Bambina Maude Delmont, who swore to the murder charge on which Arbuckle yesterday appeared in court, viewed Miss Rappe's body yesterday, and is reported to have suffered a partial collapse. The body was shipped to Los Angeles, on the Lark, a Southern Pacific express train.

Liquor Question.

Robert H. McCormack, assistant U. S. Attorney-General, in charge of liquor prohibition prosecutions, said that he expected to present to the Federal Grand Jury evidence that liquor was served and consumed at the party given by Arbuckle, in which Miss Rappe was alleged to have received her fatal injuries.

In addition to his other troubles, Arbuckle may suffer the loss of his custom-made automobile, said to have cost $25,000. Government officials say if it is shown that liquor was transported from Los Angeles to this city in the automobile it is liable to confiscation.

Subpoenas were issued yesterday summoning Lowell Sherman and Fred Fishback, declared to have been guests at the party, to appear before the United States Grand Jury here.

Sherman and Fishback were questioned concerning liquor alleged to have been consumed at the Arbuckle party. According to Robert Camarillo, assistant United States District Attorney Fishback said more than forty quarts of liquor were consumed in three days at the Arbuckle apartments.

OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES.

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrhal Deafness, head noises or ordinary catarrh cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. In England scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs which is equally as dangerous. The following formula which is used extensively in the damp English climate is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers here who live under more favorable climate conditions.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Parmint used in this way acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a tonic action that helps to obtain the desired results. The preparation is easy to make, costs little and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh or head noises or is hard of hearing should give this treatment a trial.

Women Like Japanese Lanterns

"Such women are like a row of Japanese lanterns — all blown out long ago and swinging about in the wind." Just so did H. G. Wells (we are quite sure it was he) describe a group of women sitting on a hotel plazza.

It was a long time ago that we read that, but we've never forgotten it. We think of women when we look at them as lighted or unlighted —some of them have had the flame blown out, and some have burned out, and some have never been lighted at all.

But after all, no matter how hard and deep we try to look, all we can seee is the seeming, all the life we know here is a seeming. We see beautiful things, but we can not see the beauty that lies behind beautiful things. We glimpse it now and then with our souls, but we never can see it with our eyes. We see only results.

That invisible, baffling thing called "beauty" that flows into this one when he is born, and passes by that one; that pours itself all over a sunrise; that says, "I will enter the eyes and the soul of this person, but the rest of him I shall not touch"; that folds itself into a little world like "tomorrow," and never enters at all that long-winded promise we call "politics," that, we never see. We see only results.

And what is it one requires, first of all, af a lamp? That it give light, or no matter how beautiful it is, how graceful its lines, how glorious lovely its shade; it's of no use, no good to anyone at all, unless it gives light. You may keep it around for a while because of its external beauty, but it becomes a tiresome thing even to look at after a time.

The point for us to get it firmly placed in our heads that while the most important thing is the flame, the flame will never get where it ought to nor do what it ought to, unless it's surrounded by a good lamp!

Think of lamps as you've seen them; bulgy, awful shapes and thick shades that let very little light through; ornate, all-dressed-up lamps so ornate that it's hard to find the right kind of room to put them in, and you can't really think about "light" in connection with them at all; all you can think of it, 'Dear me, what a dressy lamp!"

And then lamps that are just right, lovely, flowing lines, or strong, free bodies that make you think of the "Winged Victory," and soft colors and simplicity in the shades. They aren't lamps to you really, they are atmosphere; you think of soft light, and beauty, and romance; beauty of living, depth of feeling. That's what lamps are for, to make you feel all that. You see how much they're like women

If you see these lovely lamps in the daytime, they touch your imagination even then, all unlighted. You say to yourself: "That lamps must be enchanting when it's lighted!" Again like a woman. She gives pleasure by he external loveliness, she touches the imagination. "So beautiful a temple must house a rare soul," says the passer-by, or, "Gee, I'll bet she's a peach!" — depending, of course, on the type passing by.

The first thing about the lamp itself, leaving out the flame, is that it must be clean. Oh, women, that bath-a-day look! You can't get it any other way than by taking the bath! A sponge, or a lukewarm plunge, or a cold one, and two or three hot ones a week.

Nostrils cleansed with a spray every night and morning, eyes bathed every night with an eye-cup of boracic-acid water or mild salt water. Just think of the dust that gets in them, in these days of you-cant'-see-me-for-dust action! Ten minutes a day for the nails. Fifteen minutes a day to keep your skin in condition. There shouldn't be such a thing as a black-head in your whole expression. Blackheads are dirt! And at least three times a day the toothbrush!

Then suppose you are the bulgy kind of lamp. Well, you don't need to be. There are exercises; there is diet; there is scientific medical treatment that does reduce; there is electricity. Women do reduce; we see them doing it all around us. But there are dangerous ways of reducing. If you are going to do something radical, it is better to do it under a doctor's guidance.

If you're the kind of nice person who simply can't take exercise faithfully day after day—it's such a dull way to live—dance! Keep the player going wildly and dance mad orgies of arms and legs and swinging waist.

Good lines are possible to everybody. If you are too indifferent to make them really yours, then let your corsetiere do it.

Now for the shade. The shade is your face, in lamp language.

So must your face. The smooth, silken, fine texture of skin that belongs to a clean, healthy body with enough brain at the top of it to take care of that texture, to protect it against cold, wind, weariness, time; eves that are defended against a surrounding of wrinkles; hair that is encouraged by intelligent treatmnt; a mouth that is forbidden to droop or grow tight or too lax—that is the kind of shade that will let the light through softly, radiantly, in an ever-widening path.

Such a little intelligent care each day, and you'd have something worthy the light in you.

In peering into the beauty-shops with their masters and mistresses just back from Paris I found everywhere a stronger tendency toward sane building-up methods, toward the kind of beauty aids that defy any look of artificiality.

We have turned square about with our backs forever to things and our faces toward the spirit that lives behind things, the beauty that is back of beautiful things, the truth that is back of the sciences, the light that is back of all material, physical light—the spirit of things.—The Delineator.

Women's Work Department at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Was on a Par With Other Sections

Playgrounds Association Had an Interesting Exhibit--The Household Science Department--The Flower Show

The department of women's work at the Fair this year was on a par with the exhibits in the other sections, strictly first-class. There was a splendid art exhibit, and an enormous quantity of fancy work, dresser scarves and cushions, handkerchiefs and table linen, in all manner of lovely stitches, quilts crocheted and with numerous infinitesimal patches, one creation numbering some 13,000 tiny pieces in its painstaking construction; embroidery of all kinds; burnt wood trays and ornaments, raffia work, piano lamp stands and shades, and miniature aeroplanes.

The exhibit in charge of ladies of the Playground Association was extremely interesting. These things are the results of many hours of patient application on the part of boys and girls both, who learn the different sorts of fancywork from their Playgrounds supervisors. All the public schools of the city were represented. The Queen Mary had specialized in raffia pieces, the Central in art canvas designs, Queen Alexandra scholars inclined to knitting and other schools to a miscellaneous collection of weaving, knitting, reed work, trays, pincushions, teapot rings 'photo frames and wool work The art canvas designs were particularly pleasing. Bushes and flowers in Dresden colorings, the happy bluebird and the famous Mary with her little lamb in black and blue appeared in all their glory in fine even stitches.

HOUSEHOLD SCIENCE

The Household Science Department is another interesting corner. Here is more art canvas weaving, dainty collar and cuff sets, doll's aprons and underwear, the fine handiwork of school children throughout the city. There are water-colors, orthodox and impressionistic, monstrous raindrops pelting down on two luckless children in one attempt startling orange umbrellas and green bottles, Santa with a group of hilarious reindeer, pretty little scenes and animal pictures. There is a workmanlike exhibit also of the manual work conducted in the schools.

Down below a crowd surged about Mr. J. R. Brownlee's booth, where the blind man worked with his seeing fingers at pretty things. One tall piano lamp had taken thirty hours in the making, and the crowd watched the making of trays and sundry small articles from the pliant reed. The crowd and the unaccustomed noise made the worker's head ache, for the blind are used to solitude and silence.

Mr. H. C. Lord, a returned disabled veteran, had a fine exhibit of trays, lamps, baskets and ornamental bead work.

The Flower Show.

The flower show was lovely. One appealing little basket had asters mingled with baby's breath and a handle twined with snowdrops, another was filled with sweet scented stocks in delicate shades of pink. A particularly lovely funeral design was the "Gates Ajar", and the gladioli stood up on their straight stalks, "Wine King" a wonderful dark red, "Peace", mauve and white beauties and "Gretchen, Zang", a striped and flamboyant orange lady. Pansy faces fringed shallow bowls, and feathery cosmos nodded with tall and slender grace. Roses in pink and white, sweet peas, begonias, and scarlet geraniums added bright notes of color and over in a corner stood the cactus plants, the dry and spiny green things that look like miniature devilfish or the aftermath of an ugly desert dream. These short and puffy or long and elongated creatures that live without water are interesting but not at all ornmental.

There were all manner of oddly named preserves here, wonder berris, small wild strawberries, Scotch cap berries, mushroom pickles, wild plums and thimbleberries, figs cauliflower, corn and cabbage relish and high bush cranberries. Bloated loaves of bread occupied another corner, with golden butter prints and fat, round cheeses.

The booths where ladies from the different churches labored so hard in a good cause seemed to be well patronized throughout the three days, and nightly, a group of tired women gathered in the dining-tent to discuss the labors of the day, for it was no small matter to feed satisfactorily the crowds that attended the Fair this year.

Going home by way af the horse stalls, you come on the black and brown heads thrust forth into the night. The colts have an enquiring look. They do not understand the meaning of the bright lights and the crowds, and have not yet attained to the philosophic indifference of the material parents who accompanied them and stood back in the dark stalls. "Daisy" was a self-willed little colt that wandered outside and nosed around for a stray bit of hay. "Ruby", her mother, whinnied impatiently in the dark enclosure, and Daisy was adjured to return to safety by her guardian, who remarked to his companion that "she should have been in bed long ago."

By the way, we heard two young men arguing about the merits of their respective sweethearts at the Fair. The one who ended the conversation asserted triumphantly that his lady friend was the sort that just said "yes" and "no", and the other appeared to have nothing wherewith to cap this admirable characteristic.

WHEN BABY IS ILL

When the baby is ill; when he cries a great deal and no amount of attention or petting makes him happy, Baby's Own Tablets should be given him without delay. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach and thus drive out constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and make teething easy. Concerning them, Mrs. Desire Theberge, Trois Pistols, Que., writes: "I am well satisfied with my use of Baby's Own Tablets. I have found them of great benefit to my baby when he was suffering from constipation, and I can strongly recommend them to other mothers." The Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Playthings

A new toy for the baby is made from mother's darning egg. Plain wooden darning eggs with a handle may be bought at the notion section of any department store. When the egg has been painted with the face shown in the sketch it makes a very practical doll for the baby, while the handle is easily grasped and held by tiny hands.

To make the doll paint the darning egg all over with several coats of cream color enamel paint. When the paint is thoroughly dry transfer the outline of the face given here to one side of the egg with carbon paper. Now outline the face with waterproof India ink, filling in all the black spaces with the ink as shown in the sketch. Use a pen for the outlining and a small brush for the solid part. The hair may be continued down the back of the egg or allowed to stop as in the sketch at the top of the egg. One could paint the same face on the other side of the egg if desired. When the India ink is dry the features and hair must be touched up with oil paints. The oil paints must be mixed with a little white enamel paint and applied with a very small brush. The lips around the black part of the mouth are done in red. The cheeks are touched up with pale pink, and the nose is also pink. The little white space on the eyes between the black pupil and the curved line which outlines it is done in blue, while the white spaces in between the black parts of the hair are touched up with yellow. One can get the lighter shades of paint by using more of the white enamel with only a little of the oil paint to color it. To be sure that the paint will not rub off it is well to give the whole egg a thin coat of white shellac. If one knows a little bit about drawing it will be easier to copy the outline of the face on the egg with a pencil, as it is a little difficult to hold the pattern and carbon paper on the curved surface of the egg.

School Teachers

A New York Public School teacher, who has retired from active service, is conducting a very successful business venture known as the "Juvenile Book Club." Many parents, whose intentions are of the best, have neither time nor the information necessary for the proper direction of their children's reading habits. Yet, as parents are universally agreed, this is the most important phase of the education of the child. Children can be influenced to care for the profitable and the educational in books just as easily as for the trashy and worthless reading matter with which the market is flooded—all that is necessary is a little judicious steering and the placing of the books and other publications in their way in the light of a privilege, not a dreaded duty. Many a fine master-piece of English, otherwise fascinating and desirable has been transformed into an object of loathing in the estimation of youngsters because it was made subject matter for parsing or for analysis in a grammer school course in English.

This particular book club was organized, however, in the interests of very young children. Mothers may bring their children there and literally turn them loose or, if they cannot come themselves, they may send written directions something like this: "Our Ella is nine years old. We want her to become more interested in out of doors. Please send me a list of books to get for her on her birthday?" Naturally, the teacher will pick out the tales of the outdoor fairies, the woodsy stories and such things as Thornton Burgess has written in his five "West Wind Stories." These are in a gay box whereon all sorts of animals are trying to run faster than the wind.

In the rooms of the "Juvenile Book Club" will be found a varied collection of stories to suit childish imaginings—serious and gay, also games and puzzles, picture books and paint books. Every one of these the teacher has reviewed before they are allowed a place in her book shop. It is worth strolling in to hear about the question of how much children know of the simpler happenings of the day. There is a set of informing books called "What Every Child Should Know," telling about animals, trees, flowers and other out-door things. Other fascinating volumes which are given places of honor are "Who's Who in the Land of Nod?" by Sarah Sanderson—good for home reading aloud; also the "Cinder Pond," by Carol Watson Ranken; 'The Book of Myths," a likely collection of the old Greek fables written in fascinating style by Jean Lang and "Russian Fairy Tales" by R. Nisbet Bain. But these constitute but a small part of the equipment of the "Juvenile Book Club" where the teacher has saved anxious mothers any amount of trouble by weeding out the poor stuff for them.

Where does the teacher come in in this ideal arrangement? you will naturally enquire. She charges twenty-five cents an hour for all children who are left in her care, with an additional fee for all books that are taken from the book room. The quarters of the club being in her own home, there is little expense attached to the operation of the plan and the profits count up at a very satisfactory rate. Her patronage has been established largely through her acquaintance with teachers and with parents of children with whom her work has brought her in contact.

Shelter Wards Had An Outing

The boys and girls of the Children's Shelter, numbering about eleven in all, were taken by motor to the Peterboro Exhibition on Thursday afternoon last, and had a high time, visiting the different exhibits and scanning the midway. They patronized the wild horses on the merry-go-round, shrieked with laughter on "The Whip," and tested the products of the ice cream vendors. Mrs. Knox, Mrs. Kimberley and Mrs. Welsh, members of the board of directors of the society, assisted the matron, Mrs. Rogers, in looking after the children.

Autumn Rally

The annual fall rally of the Peterborough Young Women's Christian Association will be held on Friday next, September 23rd. The usual programme will not be carried out at this event. Something different has been planned, which should result in an interesting evening. From eight to nine o'clock an exhibit of the various activities of the Y. W. C. A. will be staged. The library will be turned into a campers' room, with a real camp bonfire, around which camp songs will be sung; the green room will hold refreshments; the club room will be used for an exhibition of the basketry work done during the previous season and for posters depicting the different educational activities of the institution; the gymnasium will provide a stage for aesthetic dancing or for a short basketball game; there will be a swimming meet at the pool, and down stairs in the domestic science room one of the junior clubs will give a cooking lesson. Guides will be present to show visitors and those interested through the entire "Y" building.

No woman should give way to grief. Let her bob her hair and wear them rolled and everything may come out all right.

NEW CARD GAME BOOMS MOVIES

A new puzzle game is played with picture cards which are meant to illustrate scenes in a movie drama. It is supposed to stimulate the faculty of imagination, the solution of the puzzle requiring the development of a plot or story. On each card is a scene, an object, or descriptive matter. To solve the puzzle the cards must be arranged in such a sequence as to constitute the logical order of the development of the picture play, interspersed with the appropriate substitles, letters, telephone and telegraph messages, etc., which are necessary to make clear the action portrayed on the cards.

The inventor, William D. McGuire, Jr., of New York, offers for example a pack of cards entitled "The Avalanche," accompanied by a printed sheet suggesting the theme of the play they are designed to illustrate. Helen Ferguson, the heroine, is the daughter of Mrs. Delano, who has married a second time. Mrs. Delano plans Helen's education and places her in a convent school. What happens afterward, resulting from her discontent at the school and the unhappy outcome of her mother's second marriage, is for the player to determine in working out the puzzle story. When the cards are laid in proper order, so that one scene follows another as it should, with the subtitles in the right places, the movie picture becomes a complete story.

SCHOOLMASTER ABROAD.

In this day and generation, to quote Lord Lytton, the schoolmaster is very much abroad—and the schoolmam, too—and education, once confined within the bounds of "class" exclusiveness, now ranks first as the "people's" privileged asset in race and individual competition for ascendancy to ever-increasing heights, intellectually and constructively. It is that great weapon which has eliminated an old-world feudalism, winning for all sorts and conditions of men and women a fostering national democracy, individually and collectively uplifting and broadening. Public education, enforced as a constitutional law, which also cheapens its acquisition nationally, has extended the might and power of our British Empire; materially and protectively. Under its stimulating impetus to practically reach after hitherto elusive ideals, people and peoples are emerging from class self-assertiveness and aggrandizement, their minds focused with increasing tensity on the Elysian planes of co-ordinated interests in the weal of a nation, commercially, industrially, mechanically, socially—and let us hope religiously, where bigotry and fanaticism shall ultimately give place to tolerance at all times and under all conditions.

Today, it is an encouraging sign for the future of this world of ours that a greater equality of culture pronouncedly exists than was evident in the last generation, and the proportion of the democracy of intelligence is thus increasing with appreciable force. And universal culture is the foster child of public education.

Education is the art of drawing out or developing human faculties—of training people for the functions for which they are destined; and to mould the mind of a human being the nature of that being must be known—physiologically, psychologically and religiously. It is for education to develop these three ethical constituents of a race, and that is just what the advanced science of education is doing today with growing scope; the curriculums available now cover moral training, business instruction, literature, languages, the preservation of life and health, mathematics, technical knowledge, (theoretically and practically); in fact, there seems nothing lacking for promoting the health, developing both mind and body, and fitting young folk to subsequently enter the arena of competitive struggle armed with an intelligence and learning which presage success both in private life and publicly.

It is to education we must look for promoting peace, sustaining the League of Nations and improving world-conditions generally, that education which teaches nations and communities to not only know themselves, but to know, respect and understand their neighbors also.

Canada may not lead the world in educational machinery—schools, colleges, universities—, but she ranks among the foremost nations in this respect, if not excelling in opportunity afford most people to acquire a knowledge of all the arts and sciences in measure full o quality and at a minimum cost to the individual. Not to speak of government appropriations, in the cause of education, which might perhaps be enlarged for meeting the growing needs of universities, Peterborough enjoys a rating in the educational world quite enviable, not only relative to the facilities offered, but also because of the results of their acceptance and application. And I venture to say, proportionately speaking in the way of population, it would be difficult to name any community from which there has emanated more successful men and women, not only recognized as such at home, but are also honored abroad for their mercantile and professional endeavor.

Of course, Peterborough has been peculiarly fortunate in that invariable calibre of its Boards of Education which appreciates that when developing children into the men and women of tomorrow, the best is none too good where schools and teaching staffs are concerned. Much money has been invested in building and equipment, while the efforts of capable instructors—men and women—have been commendably resultant. In fact, during the past sixteen years an irrepressible spirit of educational progress has eventuated in the acquisition here of a new Collegiate Institute and four new public schools, together with important enlargements and improvements here and there, while the scope of education has been broadened, taking in manual training, household science, and technical studies. Before leaving this subject one is impelled by appreciation to congratulate the present Board of Education, of which Dr. Neal is head, for the new Prince of Wales' school, recently opened. Both building and equipment present an outstanding model of modernism in adaptability to educational requirements, and its cost of $230,938.85 will prove money well spent. Credit for this work's consummation is also due the building committee: Dr. Neal, Messrs. A. A. Fowler, Roland Denne, and J. M. Greene, with Mr. E. G. Patterson as chairman. And it is owing to such public-spirited men as these, whose activities are only limited by a sense of duty accomplished, that Peterborough measures up potentially to the needs of education, as evidenced in a school property asset totalling $618,959.84 (including her Collegiate Institute), and approved service.

This is an era of aggressive educational advance, and governments and communities in rising to the occasion, monetarily and executively, with wholehearted public endorsation and acceptance of opportunities created for both juvenile and adolescent mental training, will develop a nation of Canadians second to none in intellectual and enterprising vigor.

I would like to suggest here that parents fully co-operate with teachers in the question of moral training and enforcement of discipline. Closer relations between the home and school should be fostered by all interested, and parents generally ought to realize that it is manifestly unfair to shoulder teachers with the responsibility for little ones acquiring that appreciation of truth, honor, respect for authority and other home virtues which should be inculcated at home by fathers and mothers themselves.

THE GRAHAM FAMILY.

Inspired no doubt by the recent story in this department of the O'Brien family, a subscriber sends along the following article on the Grahams, famous in history:

Tradition has it, that the Graham family is descended from Graeme, who in the time of Fergus II., in the fifth century, defended the old Roman wall in Britain, built by Severus.

This wall was between the Firths of Clyde and Forth. Graeme valiantly defended the wall and since that time it has been called Graeme's or Graham's wall or dyke.

It seems that he was called Graeme, on account of his valor—the word being Anglo - Saxon for fierce, brave, courageous.

In Holland the word is grim or grimm. In Wales, grem; in Gaelic, gruaim; grim in Gaelic was the word for battle. So the Grahams, undoubtedly come of warlike stock; "the gallant Grahams" is a well-known term in Scotland.

Gream is another spelling. There is an old Norse word gramr, or gremr, meaning fierce, also king, and Chrimes and Crimmin are the high German forms.

Other names derived from the same root, are Grimble, or the Frankish form Grimbald. Then we have Grimmond, Grimsby and Grimshaw.

Few families can boast of more historical renown than the Grahams.

Sir William de Grahme, of Scotland, the ancestors of the Dukes of Montrose, was living at the time of David I. He witnessed the foundation charter of that King to the monks of the Abbey of Holyrood in 1128. This is the first authentic appearance of the name Graham. He obtained the lands of Abercorn and Dalkeith, and his grandson, David, received from William the Lion, in 1214, certain lands near Montrose. His son was one of the witnesses of the treaty with Henry III., and his grandson, Sir John, was the "richt hand of Wallace, in whose arms he died, after the battle of Falkirk. His brother, Sir Patrick Graham, fell at Dunbar, and dying, gave his sword to his son, making him swear upon its blade, that while he lived he would fight for Scotland. The sword is now in possession of the Duke of Montrose.

Colonel John Grahame, of Claverhouse, in the royal army under the Duke of Monmouth, was created Viscount of Dundee. The names which occur in the history of the family are all illustrious ones.

Graham's Town, South Africa, is named for Colonel Graham, of a later day, who was commander of the British forces at the beginning of the nineteenth century.

The first Lord of the Admiralty, under Sir Robert Peel, was Sir James Graham, born in Cumberland, his pamphlet, "Corn and Currency," bringing him into prominence in the political world.

The "Cowper of Scotland," James Grahame, poet, was called a friend of humanity as well as a poet.

Pilgrim Fathers were James and Richard Graham, brothers. They were born in Argyleshire, Scotland, and were with William, Prince of Orange, in his famous battle of the Boyne in 1690, which permanently established the House of Orange upon the English throne. The two brothers settled in Pennsylvania.

It was a grandson of one—which one, tradition has not handed down—William by name, who with his mother, a widow, went to live in Charlotte, N.C., in 1766.

This William is renowned as a signer of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, May, 1775—a declaration which is reflected in that of '76, penned by Jefferson.

The arms produced were granted to "Master Robert Graham, citizen," of London, in 1680. They are emblazoned in Burke's Peerage as follows:

Sable, on a chevron azure, between three escallops, or, a rose gules, barbed vert.

Robert was doubtless "Knight of the Thistle," a Scottish order, as many of the names have been. The escallop shells speak of a Crusader ancestor.

The family can boast of its quarterings. The arms borne by one branch are quarterly, first and fourth, or on a chief sable, three escallops of the field for Graham; the second and third, three roses gules for Montrose.

Crest, an eagle, or, perched upon a heron. Motto, Ne Oubliez—do not forget.

If you buy only Hotpoint Appliances you can make a considerable saving by omitting some of the connecting cords, because they are interchangeable.

The above is a good example—

—by using one cord and plug for both the Iron and Percolator (regular price $24.00) you can get the two during this special sale for $19.00. There's a flat saving of $5.00.

—another example of Hotpoint combinations is the Boudoir Set and the Immersion Heater which sell regularly for $18.00. During this special sale you can get the two with one cord for $13.25.

$8.00 iron for only $5.00

Remember—until the Hotpoint stores close Monday night you can get either a 6 lb. Hotpoint Iron or a 3 lb. Hotpoint Iron for only $5.00.

These are the regular Irons, standard in every feature with all of the special Hotpoint advantages including the thumb rest on the 6 lb. model.

The Hotpoint dealers have made every preparation to take good care of their customers during this sale, but it may easily happen that their supply of some items will be exhausted. In that case the dealer will give you a Certificate of Purchase at the time of sale and deliver your Iron as soon as he receives it from the factory. So you get it at the special price, anyway.

We advise you not to wait until Monday—go Saturday.

Look for the sign—To get a Hotpoint Iron for $5.00 look for the store with Hotpoint signs in the window. If no dealer convenient send us $5.00 (except in the two western provinces) and we will have nearest dealer deliver prepaid.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—Harvey W. Church, confessed slayer of Bernard Dougherty and Carl Ausmus, automobile salesman, early yesterday, was seated face to face with his mother for the first time since his arrest, and in her presence in the state attorney's office he repeated the details of the two crimes.

He reverted largely to the first of his many confessions and indicated, officials declared, that he planned and executed the murders without assistance.

Neither Clarence Wilder nor Milton Walker, named by Church as accomplice, officials said they had been convinced, had any part whatever in the crimes, and they also expressed doubt whether Leon Parks assisted Church, despite his detailed confession.

Officials pointed out that Parks stoutly maintained his innocence until confronted by Church, who then supplied most of the answers to questions put to Parks by the investigators.

Mrs. Church sat apparently unmoved to-day throughout her son's recital of the details of the crime. At the close of his story she remarked:

"I can not understand why Harvey buried the man (Carl Ausmus) in the garage. There is a vacant lot next door wheer all the dead cats and dogs in the neighborhood are buried. Why didn't he bury him there? Then they never would have found him."

Church is said to have asserted he named Wilder because he "knew Wilder could easily prove his innocence," and said that the real "third man" was Walker. Walker, like Wilder, was able to establish an alibi.

THE FRIENDLY HAND.

When a man ain't got a cent
An' he's feelin' kind o' blue,
An' the clouds hang dark an' heavy
An' won't let the sunshine through
It's a great thing, O my brethren,
For a feller just to lay
His hand upon your shoulder
In a friendly sort o' way.
It makes a man feel curious;
It makes the tear drop start,
An' you sort o' feel a flutter
In the region of the heart.
You can't look up an' meet his eyes;
You don't know what to say,
When his hand is on your shoulder
In a friendly sort o' way.
O the world's a curious compound
With its honey and its gall,
With its cares and bitter crosses;
But a good world, after all.
And a good God must have made it—
Leastwise that's what I say
When a hand rests on my shoulder
In a friendly sort o' way.
—James Whitcomb Riley.

Travel by Express to Meet Prosperity

Many national businesses are coming into the daily newspapers for the first time. They have decided to leave hard times behind, and travel by express train towards prosperity.

In this connection it is significant to note that those firms which are already consistent users of daily newspaper space are now sending out contracts for fall and winter advertising.

Experience has taught them that the newspaper is a community's trusted adviser in times when thrift decrees that money be spent wisely.

PRESS COMMENT ON DEFECTION OF MICHAEL CLARK

MONTREAL STAR DECLARES THE DOCTOR AN ANTIDELUVIAN BACK NUMBER WHO HAS ALMOST FORGOTTEN "PRINCIPLE"

MONTREAL, Sept. 15.—The Montreal Gazette Says:—For some time it has been apparent that efforts to unite the Liberal party and the Farmer or Progressive in a combination to defeat the government in the coming elections were doomed to meet with small success Their prospects will be further darkened by this declaration of a leader whom both parties—Liberal and Progressive—seemed to claim.

MONTREAL, Sept. 16. — The Star says editorially: Michael Clark, of Red Deer is one of those antediluvian back-numbers who still value an almost forgotten thing called "principle". It is true that in our opinion the principles which govern Dr. Clark are usually based on error. But that is a mere side-issue which no more effects the fact of the doctor's devotion to principle that it does his serene confidence that he is right. The point we want to make, however, is that in this shifting age of superficial opinions and swift judgments —of the rule of whim and the reign of passing passion—there is one man in the far west who maintains certain standards or principles by which he measures any public questions that come up before him for judgment.

To-day though a radical, he finds his principles in sharp conflict with the gospel of hs fellow radicals of the prairies.

OPERATTA "GOLDENLOCKS" GIVEN IN CAMPBELLFORD

THE AFFAIR WAS A BIG SUCCESS —CAMPBELLFORD NEWS

CAMPBELLFORD, September 17 —The operetta, "Goldilocks and the Three Bears," given on Thursday and Friday evenings, under the direction of Mr .and Mrs. Cowell, was a grand success on both occasions, the hall being filled to its utmost capacity. A large number were unable to gain admission on both nights, and it has been decided to repeat the concert on Tuesday evening, 27th Septembre.

Litle Miss Cherrie Turner made a very charming and capable Goldilocks, and the part of the Father Bear was well rendered by Mr. R. R. Hutton, Mother Bear by James Benor, who took his part in his usual capable manner, and Sammy (Baby Bear) was well taken by Mr. Hutton. Miss Hazel Labrash as the Purple Empress of the Buterflies took her part well, as did also Isabel Bygott and Irene Runions.

Special mention must be made of the little rabbits, whose parts were taken by Master Harry (Billie) Richardson and Master George Smith. The costumes of the Butterflies, numbering about one hundred and forty, were most unique and charming, choruses were well received, and a dance by the larger girls won hearty applause. Special note, too, must be made of a Frog Drill by thirty boys in very appropriate froggy suits. This drill also was heartily aplauded.

Very special credit is due Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Cowell, who directed the children who rendered such an excellent evening's performance.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Cowell by the president of the Agricultural Society, under whose auspices the concert was given.

Teacher Dead.

The very sad news reached town early on Friday morning that Miss Anna O'Shaughnessy, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. O'Shaughnessy, had passed away.

The deceased, who was of a very bright and cheerful disposition, was beloved by all who knew her. She was a graduate of the High School and was a member of the Public School staff last year, but this term had accepted a position on the Rodney Public School staff, after having completed her summer course in Household Science in Toronto. Upon being informed of her illness, her sister, Miss Kathleen, left immediately for Rodney, and reached her sister's bedside before she passed away. Mis O'Shaughnessy is survived by her sorrowing parents, and three sisters, Mrs. F. D. Robertson and Miss Kathleen, of the High School staff, also Miss Gertrude, of the Separate School staff, Toronto. The remains were brought home on the afternoon train on Friday, and the funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock to St. Mary's R.C. Church, where requiem mass will be said by Rev. Father Phelan.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Shaughnessy and family have the sympathy of the entire community in their sudden bereavement.

RICHEST MAN IN GERMANY REACHING OUT FOR NEW WORLDS TO CONQUER

HUGO STINNES RATED AS MANY TIMES A BILLIONAIRE—MADE MONEY ON WAR.

BERLIN, Sept. 17.—(United Press).—Hugo Stinnes, Germany's richest man, is reaching out today as an internationalist, not merely a nationalist.

His wealth pours in from the four corners of the globe and he is reckoned as many times a billionaire, admitting in his tax returns that he is at least a billionaire. He was a rich man before the war. But his holdings today are like the proverbial tannery in comparison with an earlier shoestring. He is known as "ruecksichtlos" — ruthless — in his gold-grabbing.

The Stinnes concern has become all-inclusive. At least 1,500 undertakings and "daughter companies" belong thereto. These concerns engage in coal mining and shipping; he controls businesses that make everything from high current machines to incandescent lamps; from a screw to an ocean steamer; from a modest worker's home to hotels like the Atlantic of Hamburg and the Esplanade of Berlin; from big forests to newsprint and newspapers.

Stinnes' steamers travel not alone upon the Rhine and in the Ostsee, but also on the Atlantic and Pacific, and, since his ejection from the Hamburg-American line directorate, Stinnes is doing his utmost to extend his foreign holdings, especially in shipping. His boldest stroke recently was the purchase of the Alpinen Montangesellschaft, holding the largest closed ore supplies in Europe, but unable to operate b- it lacked coke following creation of Tschecho-Slovakei. With his vast coke and coal holdings, it was easy to rejuvenate the Austrian iron industry, and to absorb many men otherwise workless. But Stinnes is feeling the heavy hand of competition. The Hamburg-American line dropped him from its Boards of Directors because he sought to enter the South American shipping business independently. He is going to fight the "Hapag"; but he has still another dangerous competitor,, Herr Haniel, owner of the great "Good Hope" concern, which is seeking, with considerable success, to build up a concern to rival that of Stinnes and his 1,500 holdings.

Haniel, besides being a wonderfully strong business man, is a racing operator. In three or four years, he has built up the most famous racing stable in Germany, has won the Derby in Germany twice and a number of other big raceas. He spends freely on his race horses, and works also with a free hand in his concern, so that today he stands as Stinnes' most serious competitor. The business world regards him the pleasanter and kindlier personality.

And, while Haniel is crowding Stinnes, the latter still has the lead with a plant valued at eight milliards of marks; and one million employes.

Stinnes is painted swan-white or raven black, according to whether it be a nationalist or a radical who views him. His methods are held by many to have doubtful elements about them—perhaps as one judges the old days of millionaires and their methods in America.

When Stinnes started on his career of collecting gold, he was in the first instance a trader rather than a producer. He still has much of that character. He did not create his property, but received it as a legacy and developed it. His grandfather, Matthias Stinnes, started in with coal transport on ships and then developed into coal producer and buyer of mines.

What the elder Stinnes started in the Rhineland, Hugo Stinnes has stretched to a wider sphere, using the same methods as his grandfather. Hugo's sphere no longer merely Germany, but the whole world.

Authlessness is laid at his door; and his opponents claim the best proof of this is that he went into the war with a million and came out confessedly with a milliard, which they believe is only a part of his wealth. During the war he joined the German Luxembourg Company—a big steel and iron undertaking—and it is contended this connection did much to strengthen his pocketbook. Stinnes is credited with being chiefly responsible for the deportation of Belgian workers to Germany. He also wanted a peace with Italy in 1917—some say because it would have furthered his own business.

PROFITS FROM SISTER'S BLOOD.

Remarkable Recovery Due To Infusion.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17. — How the blood of a Berkeley girl transferred to the frail body of her sister, whose case had puzzled physicians, secured a remarkable recovery, has just been revealed by Mrs. Hugh Ellison, mother of the girls.

From a normal weight of 118 pounds, Evelyn Ellison, 20-year-old University of California student, dropped to 54 pounds in a little over a year. Following the blood infusion the girl lost her hair, which has been replaced by a new growth. During her convalescence she has acquired a new skin from head to toes.

Worry and overstudy while a sophomore caused a nervous trouble, which in turn seriously affected assimilation of food, began a year and a half ago. Physicians failed to secure improvement in the girl's condition and finally Mrs Ellison took her to Los Angeles. There, after a month of tests and examinations, 15 doctors agreed on a diagnosis of "blood discrasia," or destruction of certain elements of the blood.

A blood infusion was decided upon. Blood of the same cellular classification as Evelyn's was found in the body of her sister Mildred, who readily agreed to the operations. At intervals of twice a week for 10 weeks, about three teaspoonfuls of the sister's blood was injected into the pectoral muscle of Evelyn.

During the 10 weeks that Mildred Ellison provided blood for her stricken sister, a noticeable gain in her own health was made, and in spite of the loss of blood she weighs 10 pounds more than before.

AN 8-MONTHS-OLD U. S. BABY AMONG RUSS. REFUGEES.

So Far As Known Is the Only Child Born of American Parents Under Soviet Regime.

Has Arrived In Riga.

RIGA, Sept. 17. — Sven Ronald Carlson, a pale but lively eight-months'-old baby, so far as is known the only child born of American parents under the Soviet regime, was among the five American refugees arriving in Riga from Russia yesterday. He is the son of Harold Carlson, whose home is in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlson, Sven and a nine-year old sister, and Mrs. Bronisauva Dalberg, who also lives in Chicago, made up the party of Americans released by the Soviet government under the terms of the agreement with the American Relief administration who reached Riga yesterday.

Mr. Carlson was emaciated as a result of his experiences in Russia, but Mrs. Carlson and the little nine-year-old girl, who has spent most of her life in Russia, looked well.

Mrs. Carlson, according to her husband, was forced to work in a Bolsheviki public dining room and could not obtain permission to cease her work until a fortnight before little Sven was born. Then she had to return to her duties six weeks later. The joint salary of the Carlsons, he working as a clerk in the commissiariat of foreign trade, averaged during the past six month about 18,000 rubles, or about 40 cents—enough to buy six pounds of bread. They had no government rations, but as Carlson said, "Like everyone else in Russia, we managed in some way."

The four Carlsons had to live in two rooms in Moscow, while Mrs. Dalberg, together with her daughter and son-in-law, the latter a Russian professor, and two children had one living room and one office for the son-in-law.

Mr. Carlson was born in Wilmette, Ill., but has spent much of his life in Sweden. He went to Russia five years ago to work as a clerk for the International Harvester Co. He married a Russian woman, a widow, just at the time most of the Americans left Russia in 1918, and decided to stay with his wife in Russia. He was under arrest for two months.

Of the few Americans remaining in Moscow, according to Mrs. Carlson, a majority of them are so old and so accustomed to Russia that they probably will stay there, fearing to go home and take their chances in a new life. Carlson and his family are going from Riga to Sweden for a visit, after which they will proceed to America.

Vision of Profit of $30,000 Faded Away When Montreal Gang "Stepped on the Gas."

His Roll Vanished.

MONTREAL, September 17. —According to the Montreal detective department, Barnum was right when he said there is one born every minue. This expression came when Conrad Labelle of Champlain, New York, reported that he had been swindled out of the sum of $12,000 in a fake liquor deal.

Mr. Labelle told Detective Foucault, on duty at headquarters that two men came to Champlain on Tuesday night and called on him, they gave him the name of a friend of his in Montreal and told him they had a quantity of Scotch whiskey for sale cheap. They had three hundred cases ,and the price was $40 a case. They also represented, he alleges, that if he would finance the buying of the whiskey they could dispose of it for him for the sum of $30,000. The large profit on so small an investment appealed to Mr. Labelle, and he entered into the transaction. He withdrew $10,500 from his own bank and going to his father borrowed another $1500 to make up the balance of the purchase price of the liquor. The three then set out for Montreal to consummate the deal. The money ,it was stipulated, must be all in bills of small denomination. The stipulation was carried out and the money wraped in a large package, was brought to Montreal by Labelle.

On arrival here he was told in order to make no mistakes in the deal if he would let the two men carry the money they would complete the transaction. The liquor was supposed to be in Notre Dame de Grace. The two men with Labelle's money, set out in one car, while Labelle followed in his own car, with a friend. All went well until Decarie Boulevard as reached, when the car which was leading suddenly put on speed, and before Labelle could realize hat had happened the other car, the two men ,and his $12,000 had disappeared. He speeded up his own motor but was unable to overtake the men. He immediately came to detective headquarters and laid his complaint. The detectives are investigating.

This is not the first case of this kind that has happened in Montreal during the past summer and the detectives are of the opinion that the same gang of swindlers have conducted all the operations.

CEMETERY NO MORE GHOSTS' PLAYGROUND

Lawn Mower Gets Credit For Driving 'Em Out.

DETROIT, Sept. 17. — A lawn mower has killed more ghosts than the Society for Physical Research ever heard of.

This is merely one of the statements given out by members of the American Society of Cemetery Superintendents now in session in the Hotel Statler.

"You may remember the oldtime graveyard ghost," said Ebe A. Brown. "He wore winding sheets and was generally very thin and tall. He spent most of his time hiding behind a flat head stone and popping up at unexpected moments. When he wasn't doing this he was flitting among the trees. All graveyard ghosts flitted. They never ran or walked or flew.

"To-day the graveyard ghost has almost disappeared from the minds of man. A lawn mower did it—a lawn mower, assisted by some flowers and a few wagon loads of gravel. The moment graveyards became cemeteries and instead of damp, dreary spots were turned into parks of beauty, the ghost of the graveyard wrapped his winding sheet about his gaunt form and fled."

SHERIFF ARRESTED FOR HAVING JUG.

Marquette County Officers Nab Officer From Delta.

ESCANABA, Mich., Sept. 17. — Sheriff Frank Odess, of Delta County, was arrested at Gwinn, in Marquette County on Tuesday on a charge of possessing and transporting "moonshine" liquor. Three others were arrested with him on the same charge.

The Sheriff had been invited to take a trip from Escanaba in an automobile with friends. In Marquette County the car was searched by Marquette officers and a jug of moonshine found in a grip. Another passenger, Edward Beauchamp, declared the liquor belonged to him and that the Sheriff had no knowledge of it being in the car.

All were placed under bonds of $500 for appearance September 20 at Gwinn.

LITTLE COTTON IS FINDING ITS WAY TO BRITAIN

London Times Notes Lack of Cargoes From United States.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—The London Times says, that although considerable buying of cotton has lately been reported from the United States, there has been no corresponding activity in freights, as is usual at this time of the year, adding:

"Before the war the chartering of British steamers for whole cargoes of cotton would have proceeded daily at London during September. This year there appears as yet no signs of such business. The demand for tonnage to load cotton was one of the factors to which ship brokers were accustomed to look before the war for the usual autumn revival in freight markets."

The Times explains that to some extent this absence of chartering is undoubtedly accounted for by the loading at Gulf ports of many American steamers for Europe with general cargoes.

By Mme. Frances

The Famous Creator of Fashions

RED HAIR is always beautiful. Poets and painters always have raved about it, and so, too, has most everybody else. It is only when red hair is seen in combination with certain hats and dress shades of a coloring with which it is out of all harmony that red hair appears to disadvantage. There are, of course, many shades of red, from that known in school days as "carrots" to that which shines like burnished copper. It may be naturally wavy and a source of joy to its possessor. Or it may be the nightmare of her life. Now in the latter case very often its owner considers it a curse because she does not know how to dress it to advantage, nor does she give the consideration to her clothes that she should.

As a rule the red-haired girl is blessed with a complexion of rare beauty that is the envy of her sisters. Yet, perhaps, the red-haired girl more than any other detests the color of her hair. But if she will for a minute give some thought to the colors she is wearing she may be surprised to realize how much they have to do with her dissatisfaction.

"Sorrel Thatch" Popular in Paris

She must choose her clothes with discrimination and with a nice regard not only for the colors she wears, but also for the shades of the particular color she adopts. Red-haired women generally consider that brown, green and blue are colors that won't "clash" with their hair, and so they affect sickly greens, blues that are away off in tone, and drab browns that detract immeasurably from the pearly texture of their skin.

Now, if you have the good fortune to have red hair, which, by the way, is very much in vogue in Paris, you should devote a little time to discovering just what colors bring out the sheen of your hair and accentuate the transparency of your skin. As a rule, delicate pinks and pastel colors are not particularly good for the girl with red hair. Blue, which many consider a color they can easily wear, does not bring out their good points, except one shade of blue. This is a green blue, a little bit on the order of peacock. Choose this shade and you will be surprised to discover how becoming it is. Other blues have too much red in them, and when worn with red hair look somewhat dead.

Green is, of course, ideal. And you will find that olive is well-adapted to street wear. Chartreuse and emerald are wonderful for evening.

In the choice of browns the auburn-haired girl should bear in mind that this is absolutely the most becoming color that she can select. Bronze is undoubtedly the best shade, as the lighter browns do not accentuate the glowing color of the hair.

For the elaborate gown or dazzling evening wrap, cloth of gold or silver is exceedingly beautiful. Metallic embroidery may also be used with delightful effect on afternoon gowns, as the sparkle of these shining threads brings out the glossy tints of the hair.

Black is always tasteful, although care should be taken to see that the correct lines are affected in the fashioning of day or evening apparel. Gray is a neutralized color and there is really a gray for every one. In choosing it for the red-haired girl, you should take some folds of the fabric. Gather them together, then note what the shadow in the fold looks like. That is where you will find the tone achieved by the dominating dyes. There are blue grays, pinkish grays, lavender, violet and yellow grays. The tone you should choose must have violet or lavender predominating if you would enhance the beauty of your complexion and red hair.

Detail the Secret of Taste

The bodice shows a charming neckline, while the sleeves, long and tight-fitting, are severely plain. The hat that accompanies this frock is developed from brown tulle. Two other distinctive color notes are added to the costume in the jade earrings and scarf of red fox.

Covert cloth in a delightful shade of gray is chosen for the suit. This model is designed with wide-cuffed sleeves that hardly reach the wrists. The collar flares from the neck, thus accentuating the plainness of the fronts. The latter are cut away to permit the introduction of a white flannel vest. This fabric is greatly esteemed for trimming the smart suit, and it is shown in many delightful colors as well as white.

One large gray button forms the fastening. There are slip-in pockets indicated by flaps of the cloth. These are bound with brown braid, and this decoration appears on many other parts of the suit. The lining is of brown satin, which looks well with the gray covert cloth.

Brown boots in Russian style add to the effectiveness of this suit. The flat hat is originated in henna satin and floating from its crown is a gossamer veil of henna-colored lace.

As special care should always be given to the details of the dress, particularly when a girl with red hair is choosing her attire, it is interesting to note that the pull-on gloves are of fine gray suede that wrinkle prettily about the arm.

For evening I have created a gown that possesses most beautiful lines. It is originated in black charmeuse, which, placed upon the shoulders, is draped toward a low waistline, where it is finished with sash ends from which depends handsome black silk fringe.

Flesh chiffon is revealed in the front and under the arms. The fan of jade green makes a lovely dash of color against the black dress. On the bronze crow are green jewels. Innumerable bracelets bedeck the arms, while a flowing scarf of purple lends another brilliant and becoming dash of color to this exquisite gown.

The evening wrap is of black taffeta elaborated with embroidered tinsel motifs. Its very generous folds are lined with blue green satin. Pipings of emerald green are also introduced on this cape and this strong color does much to enliven the soft folds of the taffeta. The collar is unusually attractive, for it is made of monkey fur, which is a decidedly decorative trimming.

For certain of the occasions of evening the hair is dressed very high. No jewels are entwined among its ruddy masses, so that its beauty does not have to rival the scintillating effects of many precious or semi-precious gems. Again it may be coiffed low, but then the glowing tresses are drawn well over forehead and set about the cheeks, so that the appearance of the face is frequently changed.

It is well if you have red hair and are dissatisfied with your appearance to try what a new type of coiffure will do for you. This and discrimination in the selection of your clothes are worthy the earnest consideration of every woman who has the good fortune to possess red hair.

The Fashion Forecast

Skirts will be a trifle longer in the spring, for the new models are to be only nine inches from the ground.

LARAMIE HOLDS THE RANGE

By Frank H. SPEARMAN.

When they could talk of more serious things, Kate could not possibly see how she could marry him; but this, in the circumstances, seemed to cause Laramie no alarm. She admitted she had tried not to like him and confessed how she had failed. "Every time I met you," she murmured, "you seemed to understand me so well—you knew how a woman would like to be treated—that's what I kept thinking about."

"You used to talk and laugh with Van Horn," he complained, jealously. "When I came around I couldn't drag a smile out of you with a lariat."

"You're getting a smile now that he isn't getting, aren't you?"

"Somehow you never acted natural with me."

"Jim!" It was the word he most wanted to hear, even if the reproach implied the quintessence of stupidity. "Don't you understand, I wasn't afraid of him, and I was of you!"

"And I only tryng to get a chance to eat out of your hand!"

"How could I tell—after all I used to hear—but that you'd begin by eating out of my hand and finish by eating me?"

He had to be told every word of her troubles at home, but her uneasiness turned to the dangers threatening him. These, she protested, he belittled too much. Ever since he had come in wounded she had been the prey of fears for him. "It's a mystery how you escape." He had to tell every detail of his flight down the canyon. "By rights," he said in conclusion, "they ought to have got me. No man should have got out of that scrape as well as I did. Van Horn didn't get into action quick enough. And it seemed to me as if Stone himself was a little slow." The way he spoke the things strengthened her confidence. And his arm held her so close!

Half the distance of the mad flight, and the worst half, was covered when a rifle cracked from the top of the abutment. Laramie felt a violent blow on his shoulder. There was no possible answer; there could be no more speed—no possible defense; the race lay between the rifle sights covering him and the four slender hoofs of the horse under him. Ten yards more were covered and a second rifle shot cracked crisply down the canyon walls. Laramie thought it from a second rifle; the bullet spat the wall above his head into splinters. They were shooting high, he told himself, and only hoped they might keep trying so pick him off the horse and let the horse's legs alone. None knew better than he exactly what was taking place above; the quick alarm, the fast moving target in the gloomy canyon; the haste to get the feet set, the rifle to the shoulder, the sights lined, the moving target followed, the trigger pressed.

It was in reality a madman's flight. As one or other of the rifles cracked at him, Laramie threw himself back in the saddle. With his hat in his hand, his arm shot straight up, and, pointing toward the abutment, he yelled a defiant laugh at his enemies. In an instant the hat was knocked from his fingers by a bullet; but the springing legs under him were left untouched. The trick for the rider now was, even should he escape the bullets, to check the flight of the horse before both shot over the foot of the Ladder into the depths. Laramie threw his weight low on the horse's side next the canyon wall and spoke soothingly into his ear as his arm circled the heaving neck.

Late that afternoon a stable boy from Kitchen's barn appeared at Belle's, making inquiries for Dr. Carpy. Kate heard Belle at the door answering and asking questions, but the messenger was not able to answer any questions; his business was to ask only. When Kitchen himself came over a little later there was more talk at the door, this time in low tones that left Kate in ignorance of its purport. But the moment Kitchen went away, Belle, never equal to hiding an emotion, passed with compressed lips and set face through the room in which Kate sat sewing. Kate looked up as Belle walked toward the kitchen After some vigorous moments in the kitchen, evidenced by the sound of a creaking bread board, sharp blows at the stove lids, and an unabashed slamming of the stewpans, Belle passed again through the room carrying a plate covered with a napkin, and evidently going somewhere.

Kate felt compelled to take notice: "Where you bound for, Belle?" she asked.

"Not far. But if I don't get back, don't wait supper," was the only answer. The manner rather than the matter of it puzzled Kate as she bent over her work. But the next moment she was alone and thinking about her own troubles.

Half an hour passed rapidly on her sewing—for Kate's fingers were quick—and Belle returned more perturbed than when she left. She gave Kate hardly a chance to question her.

"Why didn't you eat your supper?" she demanded.

Kate answered unconcernedly: "I wasn't hungry—it isn't late, is it?"

Without answering the question Belle asked another. "Kate," she said, unpinning her hat as she spoke, "how long are you going to stay here?"

A less sensitive person than Kate could hardly have mistaken the import of the question. She flushed as she looked up. "Why, surely no longer than you want me, Belle," she answered, as evenly as she could; but her voice showed her surprise. Belle stood before her, a statue of implacability, and Kate, in growing astonishment, rose to her feet; "What is it? What has happened?" she asked then, as her wits worked fast: "Doesn't my father wish you to keep me?"

"I'm not thinking about what your father wants. Things are getting too thick here for me." Kate made no effort to interrupt. "I don't say I don't like you, Kate. I have always use I you right, or tried to," continued Belle, laboring under evident excitement. "But it's no use shutting our eyes any longer to facts. You're Barb Doubleday's daughter and Barb Doubleday is making war all the time on my friends and hiring men to assassinate them, and it doesn't seem right to me and it won't to other people, me sheltering Barb Doubleday's daughter with such things going on——"

"But, Belle——"

Belle raised her voice one key higher: 'You needn't tell me, I know. Now they're trying to murder Jim Laramie and they're close to done it, this day——"

Belle had received and accepted strict injunctions of secrecy on the next point she disclosed, but her feelings were not to be denied. And she was not prepared for the question that Kate, stung by the accusation, flung at her: "What do you mean?"

"I mean he's lying near here bleeding to death this minute and Dr. Carpy in Medicine Bend."

In tones broken with anger and excitement Belle told the disconnected story as it had come to her in jerks and nods and oaths from McAlpin at the barn, and in the little she had pulled out of Laramie himself when she took food to him. Then came in terribly heated words the brunt of her anger at Kate. "You knew," she said, pointing her finger at Kate, standing stupefied. "You knew where Jim Laramie hid Hawk. Nobody else did know—not even Lefever or Sawdy knew—I didn't know till you told me. Now, after they've burned his cabin, they set a death watch there at the bridge on Laramie. How did they know there was such a place if you didn't tell 'em?"

Stunned by the fire of Belle's wrath, Kate, breathless, tried to collect her senses. It was only her anger at the final implication that cleared them. But even as her words of indignant denial reached her lips, her utterance was paralyzed by the recollection that unwittingly she had told her father of the night she was thrown into Laramie's retreat. Yet even this did not check her resentment.

"Who accuses me of telling them?" she demanded. "Who says I conspired to murder any one—did Laramie say so?"

She shot the question at Belle in a furious tone. Her eyes flashed in a way that confounded her accuser.

"I'm asking you how they found out," retorted Belle, but in spite of herself on the defensive.

Kate's face was set and her eyes were on fire. All the anger that a woman could feel centered in her words and manner. "Answer my question before you say another word." She confronted Belle without yielding. "Did Jim Laramie accuse me in any way of anything?"

"Oh, you needn't be so high and mighty," flustered Belle. "I'll answer your question; no. Now you answer mine, will you?"

"How can I answer how they found out? I will not say another word until I see Mr. Laramie—where is he?"

"You can't see him—nobody knows he is here—he won't talk to you."

Kate paid no attentions to her words "He'll have to tell me that himself," she returned. "If he is near here—he must be at Kitchens."

Belle could say nothing to check or swerve her. Taking up her hat and ignoring all warnings, Kate walked straight over to the barn. She found McAlpin at the stable door. "I want you to take a message for me to Mr. Laramie," she said, speaking low and collected. "Ask him if he will see Kate Doubleday for just two minutes."

McAlpin, in all his devious career, had never passed through more or quicker stages of astonishment, confusion, poise, and evasion than he did in listening to those words. But at pulling his wits together McAlpin was a wonder. By the time Kate had finished, his innocent question was ready: "Where is he?"

"He is here. I must see him at once."

"But I ain't seen him myself for a week. He's not here. Who told you he's here?"

"Belle," persisted Kate calmly, "told me he is here. I must see him. Don't deceive me, McAlpin—do just as I ask you, no more, no less."

"No more, no less, sure," grumbled the Scotchman. "You gives me one kind of orders—the boss gives me another kind. I can't do no more, I can't do no less. I can't do nothin'—I've got a family to support and all this damned rowing going on, a man's job is no safer nowadays in this country than his head!"

But words were not to save him. Kate persisted. She would not be put off. McAlpin, swearing and protesting, could in the end only offer to go see whether he could by any chance find Laramie. After a long trip through the winding alleys of the big barn—for Kate watched the baseball cap and crazy visor as long as she could follow it—then complete disappearance for a time, McAlpin came back to Kate, immovable at the office door, his face wreathed with a surprised smile.

He spoke, but his eyes were opened wide and his words were delivered in a whisper; mystery hung upon his manner: "Come along," he nodded, indicating the interior. "Only say nothing to nobody. He's hit—there's all there is to it. Here's all I know, but I don't know all: About three hours ago Ben Simeral was riding up the Crazy Woman when he seen a man half dropping off his horse, hat gone, riding head down, slow, with his rifle slung on his arm. Simmie seen who it was—Jim Laramie He looked at horse 'n' man 'n' says: 'Where the hell you bin?' 'Where the hell 'a' you been," Laramie says, pretty short. 'Ridin' all over this'—excuse my rough language, Kate—'blamed country, lookin' f'r to tell you Van Horn and Stone's out o' jail!'

"Laramie seen then from the ol' man's horse how he'd been ridin' 'n' softened down a bit. 'So I heard, Simmie,' he says. 'Who'd you hear it from?' says Simmie. 'Direct, Simmie,' he says. 'Did they pot y', Jim?' 'Nicked my shoulder, I guess.' 'Where you goin'?' 'To town.' 'Man,' says Simmie, 'you've lost a lot of blood.' 'Got a little left, Simmie.'

"Then John Fryin' Pan c'm along. Simmie tried to ride to town with Laramie—f'r fear he'd fall off his horse. Laramie wouldn't let neither of 'em do a thing. This is my fight,' he says. But Simmie and John Fryin' Pan scouted along behind and Simmie rode in ahead near town to tell me Laramie was comin'. God! He was a sight whenhe rode into this barn. He tumbled off his horse right there"—McAlpin pointed to a spot where fresh straw had recently been sprinkled—"just like a dead man. I helped carry him upstairs," he whispered. "I'll take y' to him. But y' bet your life," the grizzled old man stopped and turned sharply on his companion: "Y' bet your life some o' them niggers bit the dust some'ers this morning. This way."

Kate, pacing McAlpin's rapid step breathlessly, hung on his half-muttered words: "He's bleedin' to death," continued McAlpin; "that's the short of it, and that blamed doctor down at Medicine Bend. I don't think much o' that man. Can't none of us stop it. Where's this goin' to end?"

He led her by roundabout passages up one alley and down another, and at last opened the door of an old harness room, waited for Kate to follow him inside and, closing the door behind her, spoke: "I didn't want you to have to climb up a barn ladder," he said, explaining. "There's the stairs." He pointed in the semi-darkness and led her toward the flight along the opposite wall. At the top of this flight light fell from a square opening in the haymow.

"Walk up them stairs—I lifted the trap-door f'r ye. He's right up there at the head of the steps. When y' come down, open this door at the foot, here. It's a blind door; don't show on the other side. See, it's bolted. It takes you right into the office. We keep it bolted from the inside, so no trouble can't come, see?" He unbolted and opened the door a crack to show her, closed and rebolted it. Then, starting her up the stairs, McAlpin jerked the crazy visor on his forehead into a fashion once more trimmitting childlike frankness and disappeared by the way he had come.

To be summarily left alone and in such a place was disconcerting. Kate, in the semi-darkness and silence, put her foot on the first tread of the steps and, placing her hand against the wall, looked upward. Not a sound; above her a partial light through a trapdoor and a wounded man. She stood completely unnerved. The thought of Laramie wounded, perhaps dying; the man that had rescued her, protected her, in truth saved her life on that fearful night—this man, now lying above her stricken, perhaps murdered, by her own father's friends! How could she face him? Only the thought that he should not lie wounded unto death without knowing at least that she was not ungrateful, that she had not wittingly betrayed him, gave her strength to start up the narrow steps.

When her head rose above the top opening the light in the large loft seemed less than it had promised from below. There were no windows, but through a gable door, partly ajar, shot a narrow slit of daylight from the afterglow of the Sunset. Kate caught glimpses of a maze of rafters, struts and beams and under them huge piles of loose hay. Reaching the top step, she paused, trying to look about in the dim light, when Laramie, close at hand, startled her:

"McAlpin told me you wanted to see me," he said.

"PURPLE SPRINGS"

(By Nellie L. McClung; Thos. Allen, Publisher.)

To those who read "The Second Chance" and "Sowing Seeds in Danny," Mrs. McClung needs no introduction, but it is quite safe to say that "Purple Springs" surpasses either one of those excellent novels of Canadian life. It is typically Canadian from start to finish, and dwellers of our great Dominion cannot fail to recognize in Pearl Watson, the heroine, the true type of the ideal Canadian girl. With brown eyes and pink cheeks, with a strong body and a quick brain, with hands that turn as easily to the planting of a potato patch as to the writing of an essay on woman suffrage, this little western teacher of eighteen years of age is lovable in the extreme. Her Irish ancestry gives her a ready tongue, and her bright eyes and warm heart make her a favorite both in the crowded western farmer's home where many little sisters and brothers call for constant attention and on the platform, where she rakes the defenses of the rival political faction. Pearl Watson is bright and cheerful and brainy, with enough good looks to make her an essentially human, instead of an idealistic, heroine. In fact, common sense and a great, big streak of humor form the atmosphere of the whole book, from the garrulous Bertie, who never has "an unspoken thought," to the friendly editor, whose motto is, "Sell your hammer and buy a horn."

Pearl, who has been asked to wait for three years by her doctor sweetheart, attains the age of eighteen and "the day" at exactly the same time. This is where the story opens. And then Fate steps in and marks the general, handsome young physician as another member of the great "white plague" victims. He resolves to give Pearl up, and leave her in ignorance of the reason. And Pearl refuses to be down-hearted. She doesn't know the meaning of his change of mind, but she goes ahead with a cheerful heart and puts political ambition in the place of love. Just how she succeeds through her power of mimicry in achieving her object, and how, on the way, she straightens up various complications by the light of her straight-from-the-shoulder speech and common sense, are told most entertainingly in this fresh and interesting story. Mrs. Crocks is an entertaining side character, a regular "pip lady." Prince is the red horse who gave his life for a helpless woman in the final mad ride of his wild career. "Purple Springs" is the happy valley where finally everything adjusts itself to the reader's utmost satisfaction. No one who cares for the progress of Canadian literature should fail to read a story that is interesting from the first word to the final paragraph.

PAINFUL DIARRHOEA
CRAMPS IN STOMACH

Mr. Fred Funston, Craig, Sask., writes "A year ago last harvest I was taken with a sudden attack of diarrhoea which completely laid me out and in a few hours I had to quit work. The cramps in my stomach were dreadful, the beads of perspiration would stand out on my face at times I was in such great distress. At last I got a chance to send to town for a couple of bottles of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I used it according to the way I felt and soon obtained a great change for the better, for which I was very grateful. I don't know what the cause of my sickness was, except the extremely hot weather and the active work of stooking the wheat.

Several of my neighbors were taken the same as myself and had the doctor attend to them, but they did not get any great relief until I advised them to use "Dr. Fowler's" when they soon experienced a great change."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for the past 76 years and many cheap imitations are being offered to the public.

SANITARY WASHBOWL FOR TRAVELERS

When a person travels it is sometimes desirable to have an individual washbowl and such is the idea of Charles H. Windsor, of Palmyra, N. J., who proposes that the prudent traveler shall carry with him a basin of his own, of rubberized fabric, which, being held in a light metal frame, can be set directly upon the washbasin provided by the hotel.

The steel frame consists of four rods, inside of which the basin hangs from a ring that is supported by hooks passing over the end rods. The side rods telescope in such a way as to be made shorter or longer as desired, and they may be secured to the end rods at suitable points by thumb-screws. Thus the frame can readily be made to fit upon any stationary washbasin. When it is desired to empty the basin, the hooks supporting it from the ring have only to be shifted, and it can be upset into the permanent washbasin beneath.

The frame can be taken to pieces at a moment's notice, being of knock-down construction, and packed, together with the ring (which is double, to grip the edges of the basin-fabric) and the basin, in very small compass. The inventor suggests that paper basins might be used to advantage in connection with his contrivance, inasmuch as they could be thrown away after use.

CLEANS KID GLOVES.

One method of cleaning kid gloves is to rub the soiled parts with cornmeal, moistened with enough gasoline to keep the meal from scratching the gloves, then dry thoroughly in the air. Washable gloves should always be washed on the hands to preserve their shape. It pays to mend small rips in gloves as soon as the rip appears.

C. P. R. BRANCH LINE WILL BE EXTENDED.

PENTICTON, B. C., September 17. — Pursuing his policy of making a personal inspection of newest developments in British Columbia, President Beatty of the C.P.R. and his party of directors and financiers, are to make an inspection of the Provincial Government Southern Okanagan reclamation area before embarking for Vancouver this evening on the last lap of their transcontinental tour.

Tenders were closed during the past week for the work of grading the proposed Kettle Valley extension from the south side of Dog Lake below Penticton, about three miles below the townsite of Oliver.

This will carry the steel past the present limit of the reclaimed lands, ultimately it is expected to continue the railroad through to the international boundary, thus linking the whole of the valley trade to the city of Vancouver.

It is understood that a Kelowna delegation is putting up strong case for the extension of the C. P. R. branch from Okanagan Landing south to Kelowna, thus giving direct rail connection between Ketlowna and the C. P. R. main line.

The motor trip from Penticton to Oliver is to follow the proposed route of the Kettle Valley extension, Mr. D. C. Coleman, President of the Kettle Valley Railway, in the C. P. R. party, had the awarding of contracts for the immediate progress of construction is expected to follow the inspection tour of the party.

BRONCHIAL ASTHMA

Choking and Gasping for Breath Relieved by "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

MRS. PENNINGTON
NEW ROCKLAND, P.Q.

"In 1919, I was taken with Bronchial Asthma and no one knows what I suffered with it during the winter. I began having Choking Spells—gasping for breath and could not speak. I would have one of these bad spells in the evening, one during the night, and one in the morning. The doctor said he could do nothing for me.

"In the spring of 1920, I started taking "Fruit-a-tives" and in a few days, the choking spells stopped, and I have had none since May 7th, 1920. I have so wanted to tell other sufferers who have the same trouble about "Fruit-a-tives" for I know how they must suffer.

Some thought the Asthma would come back on me as winter came on but it has not, thanks to "Fruit-a-tives" Mrs. J. M. PENNINGTON.

HINTS TO MARKETERS.

Corn on the cob will soon be only a memory, until another year brings forth the yellow and pearly white kernels. Peterborough consumers have enjoyed a lengthy and early season of this delicious vegetable. Unfortunately, good corn will not last as long this fall as had been anticipated. Already most ears are infested with small worms which eat the kernels and leave the ear very unattractive in appearance when husked. Most of the worms work close to the tip of the ear, however, making it possible to cut off the infested part and use the remainder.

A POPULAR TONIC

ONE THAT ENRICHES THE BLOOD AND STRENGTHENS THE NERVES.

Proper food, fresh air and a good tonic will keep most people in good health. Hurried meals, indoor confinement in badly ventilated rooms and lack of exercise causes anaemia. In this condition Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a popular tonic. They contain no habit forming drugs, and always have a beneficial effect through enriching the blood and strengthening the nerves. For growing girls, who become thin and pale, for pale, tired women and for old people who fail in strength, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are an ideal tonic. Their benefit in anaemic conditions is shown by the case of Miss Lucy A. Steeves, Hillsboro, N.B., who says: "Last spring I was in very health, and completely run down. I had severe headaches, the least exertion would cause my heart to palpitate violently, my appetite was poor, and at times I had fainting spells. Ths went on for some months, and although I was taking medicine, I seemed to be growing weaker, and the least exertion would leave me worn out. Then on the advice of a friend, I changed the treatment to Dr. Willimas' Pink Pills, and I have great cause to be thankful that I did, as they have made a wonderful improvement in my condition. I can now work without fatigue, go upstairs without becoming breathless, and have gained in weight. I think these pills are an ideal medicine in cases like mine."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GRIEVANCE OF G.T.R. TRAINMEN MAY BE ADJUSTED SHORTLY.

This Is the Hope of Hon. G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labour.

TORONTO, September 16 (Canadian Press). — The Hon. G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labour in the Federal Government, in passing through Toronto to-day, en route to Hamilton, said that there was reason to hope that the long outstanding grievance of the Grand Trunk Railway train service employees, because of pensions on retirement being denied, will soon be adjusted.

The Government held that the employees' claims should be regarded as a charge against the fund from which the pensions were paid, and arranged for representatives of the employees to submit their case to arbitration for consideration.

The investigation, however, developed the fact that the pension fund was exhausted in 1918, and no further provision being made for its continued maintenance, pensions from that time were paid out of the earnings.

The Arbitration Board expressed the views that the present Grand Trunk Railway Board of Directors should give the matter further attention, which suggestion is being acted upon.

NO INDICATION OF PREDICTED DEARTH OF SHOWS IN NEW YORK CITY

SEASON OPENS WITH THIRTEEN COMEDIES, TWELVE SERIOUS PLAYS AND NINE MUSICAL SHOWS—ALSO SIX SURVIVALS AND THREE REVIVALS.

By BEN DEACON,
(Canadian Press Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Last spring the New York producers were viewing the theatrical situation through dark blue spectacles. We were given the impression that everybody connected with the theatrical business was headed for the bread line. The prospects for the coming season were declared to be as poor as a country parson who is struggling to maintain a flivver and nine children on his regular stipend. The Actors' Equity became fussy and George M. Cohan threw up his hands. "I quit," he announced. "I will produce no more shows." And everybody immediately called him Foxy George. "Cohan sees the hard times ahead and merely intends to stay out of the game until things brighten up," it was declared. Other producers were said to be planning to follow George's lead, and it was seriously predicted that half of the Broadway houses would be dark this season.

No Dearth of Shows.

And now with the season of 1921 barely commenced there is not the slightest indication of the predicted dearth of shows. On the contrary. At the time of writing there are running thirteen comedies—well, more or less comedies—twelve serious plays, nine musical shows, three revivals and six survivals. In addition, half a dozen productions are practically ready to blossom forth, and a dozen or more are budding. Therefore, it is apparent that this season is not likely to differ essentially from any other New York season. A few good plays will be given to the public, also a few bad plays, and a great number of merely so-so plays. A few producers will make money and a good many will lose money, while the public will walk up and pay its money just about as usual.

Principal Productions.

Of the shows that are offered now there are but a few of outstanding interest, but few are entirely lacking in interest. The following tabloid reviews of some of the principal productions are based partly on hearsay, partly on the testimony of the critics of local papers and partly on observation:

"Tangerine," which was the season's first musical comedy, promises to be numbered among the season's successes. It contains an idea which is a distinct novelty in modern musical comedy, some sprightly tunes, some good comedy situations and a smaller percentage of ancient jokes than is customary. It deals with the adventures of three New York couples upon an island in the South Seas where custom decrees that wives must labor and the husbands rest. Julia Sanderson is the star.

"Honors Are Even" is a Roi Cooper Margue play, in which a villain pursues a beautiful heroine through three acts, pausing only long enough to steal a valuable necklace and attend to a few other minor villainies. Contains a certain percentage of amusing comedy and some hopelessly inane dialogue.

"Dulcy" is a cleverly wrought satirical comedy, presenting a dramatization of the dear, well-meaning, capable lady who loves to manage everything and everybody. The plot is flimsy and obviously is concocted merely for the purpose of presenting Dulcinea and her propensity for arranging things. Lynn Fontanne, a brilliant English actress who has won success in several previous New York productions, makes "Dulcy" a thing of joy.

"March Hares."

"March Hares" is a comedy of temperament. An odd young professor of elocution is subjected at all hours of the night, and in all costumes, to measures so mad and violent by the other March Hares of the cast that in the third act he actually reaches the point of planning marriage with the lady elocutionist to whom he has been negligently engaged for some time.

The raw material for "Sonya" came from Poland. It is an adaption by an American playwright of a romantic story written by a Polish author, telling the love of a prince for a trapeze performer who comes into his life disguised as a boy through a prank of fate. Unlike the lady who loved the prince (in "Just Suppose," this heroine is raised to royal rank and the final curtain finds her deserting the tan bark to ascend the throne. The staging and costuming are particularly elaborate and it is presented by a capable cast.

"The Night Cap."

"The Night Cap" is a melodrama of the mystery type. There is a house party and most of the guests are people of the mysterious sort, who seem to be clinging to secrets which the playwright will not allow them to divulge. The interest centres largely upon the question of which one of the guests inadvertently murdered the host.

The predicament of two magazine writers who had signed away their output to certain publishers and who wished to earn a little extra money under a nom de plume is the theme of "Nobody's Money," a farce by William Baron. The governor of the state is suing the nom de plume for libel, the tax collector is pursuing him for his incohe tax and it suddenly becomes necessary to embody him. To do this the perplexed authors engage a gentleman to impersonate their nobody. He proves to be a retired burglar who has retained certain burglarious habits. From this situation Mr. Baron has evolved a series of highly diverting farce complications. The ex-burglar has played three seasons in stock, and finding himself in high-class company attempts to pass himself off as a polished and fluent gentleman by the simple process of employing bits of speeches from the old stock plays which he happens to recall. This adroit use of time-worn stage speeches forms one of the most amusing features of the play.

Financial Troubles.

"Six-Cylinder Love" is a comedy based upon the financial troubles of a man who allows himself to be wheedled into buying a car by a smooth tongued automobile salesman. Late hours, roadhouses, the country club, gasoline and expensive prohibited beverages followed in the automobiles trail and put a serious crimp in the hero's finances and lead him into a peck of troubles. In the end he rebels, throws the car into the discard, and with it his expensive friends starts life anew with his humbled and chastened wife in a three-room flat. The piece is proving popular with everyone but automobile salesmen.

Will You Ever Be a Millionaire?

THAT DEPENDS UPON YOUR HEALTH.

Health, wealth and happiness go together, but you must have health to have wealth and happiness. You cannot think clear, you feel tired, all out of sorts, you may have indigestion, headaches, constipation, kidney trouble rheumatism, etc. These are all signs that your liver is out of order and is not excreting bile into the intestines, your bowels become filled with waste, and poison is carried to all parts of the body by the blood, causing all these aches and pains. You are only about 10 per cent. efficient, and you cannot expect to attain anything when you are in this condition. Doctors say take one Tanated Calomel Tablet before each meal or two at bedtime. Doctors recommend this because it is the only thing known that acts directly upon the liver. Tanated Calomel is sold by one druggist in each city—F. C. Weber is agent for Peterborough.

SOUTHERN NEGRO IS LYNCHED.

Mob in Columbia Takes Him From Sheriff After Attack on Italian Agent.

COLOMBIA, La., Sept. 17.—Gilman Holmes, a negro, was lynched here for an alleged attack on Sidney Manheim, station agent at this place. Manheim was reported to-day to be in a dying condition.

Holmes had been arrested by Sheriff J. E. McClanhan of Caldwell Parish, and was being conveyed to a place of safety when a mob of about 500 men overpowered the sheriff and took possession of the negro.

The negro was hanged to a telephone pole in front of the station where the attack on Manheim was made. After firing a number of bullets into the body, members of the mob cut it down and burned it.

While in his custody, Sheriff McClanahan stated, the negro confessed he and another negro attacked the station agent, robbery being the motive. Directed by the negro, the sheriff recovered a sack of silver money taken from the station. The other negro escaped.

AGED 72, HE CONTINUES TO ERECT BUILDINGS

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Although entering his 72nd year with enough money to retire and take up golf, Frank D. Johnson of Brooklyn continues to erect houses all by himself and sell them.

For the last 50 years he has worked 10 to 12 hours a day at this pursuit and now is putting up a one-man house on Gravesend Avenue. No hands but his own have touched the structure since he started it.

Last July while he was working on the house, it was struck by lightning. Digging himself out of the debris, Johnson rubbed some arnica onto his bruises and was back on the job the next day.

Born in Boston of Revolutionary War stock, Johnson expects to live to 100. He has all but two of his original teeth and scarcely a hair has fallen from his head.

"I could have knocked off and taken it easy, but if I had done so I would now be reposing in some graveyard," was the way Johnson put it.

Besides being a stonemason, brick layer, carpenter, plasterer, plumber, tinsmith painter paper hanger, decorator glazier, electrician, wood carver and cabinet maker, Johnson studied all the ins and outs of laws governing real estate, so as to save all title searching and allied feed.

CHRISTIAN OF DENMARK WILL NOT VISIT U. S.

Rumors That He Would Are Officially Denied.

COPENHAGEN, September 17. — Associated Press. — Rumours that King Christian of Denmark is shortly to pay an official visit to the United States are unfounded.

These rumours probably arose from the fact that many influential Danes and Americans living at present here were of the opinion that an official visit to America by the King and Queen would be likely to further strengthen the natural bonds of friendship between the two nations. They also thought that it was desirable the King should go as his own ambassador and express Denmark's gratitude toward America for her valuable aid in getting back Danish Slesvig from Germany.

The Girl in Green

Here Are Charming New Creations That Harmonize with Early Spring Days and Suggest a Thought for St. Patrick and the Ever-Popular Shamrock.

At Left—Many Varieties and Shades of Green Are Used from the Emerald Chenille Embroidery and Peacock Green Tulle Overskirt Bound in Emerald to the Chartreuse-Colored Belt and Green-Silver Cloth of the Foundation.

At Right—Very Pale Gray Green Charmeuse Is Belted Twice and Embroidered in Shamrocks of Silver, Gold and Bronze.

Olive Green Silk Serge with an Eccentric Collar Worn with a High Bronze-Colored Hat.

At Right—The Wrong Side of Emerald-Green Crepe Charmeuse Is Embroidered in Gold Beads in Sprays of Shamrocks and the Same Beads Form the Very Unusual Hat.

By Mme. Frances

The Famous Creator of Fashions

WHEN the pale green spears pierce the dull gray earth and the singing of birds is heard, we know spring is on the way. But of course there may be many a blustery day, especially in the month of March. When St. Patrick's day arrives you realize you are within hailing distance of spring, for if you plant your sweet pea seeds then they will surely blossom beautifully.

Now that is the day when emerald green comes forth in all its loveliness and forecasts the bursting of buds and the awakening of flowers. For those who delight in observing the days of the saints or who would fain attire themselves in springlike garb, I have designed the charming frocks depicted on this page.

Particularly suitable for the slender young girl is the dress of olive green silk serge. The square cut decolletage is outlined with binds of black. The lining is of black silk and this shows effectively on the cuffs of the short sleeves. The collar is quite unusual in style, and if desired the bow may be untied and the collar folded back across the shoulders.

A dainty vestee of cream lace partly fills in the decolletage. This is made from old Irish lace. Should you wish to copy this dress and not possess any lace that has yellowed with age, you might dip a piece of new lace in tea. This will give it the "old" look favored in the present modes.

Instead of using the green silk serge you might choose a midnight blue and line and bind it with some other color. One of the red shades would be effective or a paler blue would be equally interesting. The narrow belt on this dress developed in the serge, might be made of ribbon in one of the heavy weaves that are admirable for girdles and handsome sashes.

Very chic is the bronze green hat that accompanies this frock. It is originated in bronze green satin with a small upturned braided brim. A little bow at one side adds to its charm.

A Charming Tea Gown

The dress that I think particularly suitable for wearing at afternoon teas and similar affairs is evolved from another charming shade of green. Gray green and very light in tone, the fabric is a fetching charmeuse which falls beautifully about the figure. The neckline of this frock is decidedly interesting, as it extends for a short distance under the arms. A small panel of embroidery wrought in silver, gold and bronze threads reveals the shamrock as its motif.

This is partly concealed by the narrow belts that are draped around the figure and finished with a long end that extends almost to the hem of the frock. The embroidery is also used with picturesque effect on the shoulders. A very flat tricorne of black satin modelled on rather flaring lines completes this costume that is ideal for early spring days.

Very striking is the turban of clear silver, which is tied at the sides with long, flyaway ends.

Emerald green is the shade I have chosen for the creation that completes this group. It is cut from a very lovely piece of charmeuse, but instead of using the shiny side of this material I have selected the crepe side, as this makes a more pleasing background for the embroidery. Beads are used for this decoration. Both bright and dull gold are combined to form the shamrock patterns that elaborate this gown. A brooch of tuscan gold with a lovely pearl pendant makes a charming ornament for this afternoon gown, which by unfastening the front so that a long V-shaped opening appears in the back is quite suitable for evening.

Among the clothes for outdoor wear are many interesting sweaters. One of the shades that is good not only for such attire but is also favored in the other realms of dress, is tangerine. A decidedly attractive model made in silk is developed in Tuxedo manner. The collar shows strands of brown combined with the tangerine. A criss-cross band of the two colors appears in the body of the sweater. This model is finished with a fringe made from strands of the darker silk.

Golf red and pistachio are two other colors that are approved for the new season. Another very interesting model shows a vest effect. This is of white wool. The coat-like sweater striped in white and green has notched revers just like a tailored coat. It is fastened down the front with three buttons. About three inches from the fastening a sash of the striped alpaca wool is attached. It is drawn toward the back and tied with large bows.

Slip-ons have collars that may be worn buttoned or unbuttoned, of they may be originated with high, wide necklines. One in the latter style in pistachio green silk has an elaborate design at the bottom of the sweater. A narrower band of the same is set just below the collar. Many have handsome braided girdles, and not infrequently metallic threads are combined with the silk, so that very rich effects are achieved in such sweaters.

Concerning Parasols

The knitted dress for sports wear may show a delectable line of color by the use of some bright-hued silk that seems to pattern the simply knitted skirt. Often pleasing effects are attained by the diverse stitches that are combined in such creations.

Some beautiful parasols are originated for those who even now may revel in the delights of the outdoor world beneath blue skies. Those in pastel shades of taffeta recall the modes of long ago, for they are elaborated with printed motifs in rich, dark tones. One bright green taffeta shows a border with slashed eyelets. Picoted taffeta in the same shade is drawn through these and tied into bows at odd intervals. The shape is that of a huge mushroom which promises to be in vogue this season.

Colored hosiery will be worn with the new frocks, although black is very good at this time. Polo gray is one of the shades that look well with the new slippers. Dark gray is especially attractive when seen with a black slipper. Beige and castor are also liked. Among the light shades is an iridescent green which is the color of the sea. It is quite a pretty shade and will doubtless be accepted by women who delight in novelties.

The sport suit calls for a stocking of silk and wool. Those in heather mixtures are unusually good, particularly those with silk stripes going up and down, about half an inch of the wool being shown between these stripes. Interesting, too, are the hand-loomed silk stockings for sport wear. They are made of heavy silk in such shades as green, brown, blue and very dark gray.

Some delightful neckwear novelties are designed to be worn with the little box coats which fasten tightly at the neck. One collar is mounted on a wide neckband so that it stands high at the back of the neck and meets close in the front. This is somewhat like the Peter Pan, but the effect is quite different.

Many lovely net guimpes are fashioned with the fronts tucked in horizontal or vertical style. Sometimes these are bordered with frills at either side. Many have insets of embroidered cut work which are very dainty. Some show the high neckline with pleated ruffles down the front, while others have the round collarless neckline, or the square front and Tuxedo collar.

The Fashion Forecast

The combination of very heavy fabrics such as serge and gabardine, with very thin materials like lace and net, will be featured in the new frocks.

TENNIS FINALS THIS AFTERNOON

TWO PHILADELPHIANS FIGHT FOR SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP

By HENRY L. FARRELL, (United Press.)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 17.—Two Philadelphians were to fight for the singles lawn tennis championship of the United States at Germantown Cricket Club here this afternoon.

William T. Tilden II elongated national and international title holder will meet Wallace F. Johnson in the final round.

Tilden goes on the courts this afternoon wth the record of having played six matches with but one set taken from him. That by William Johnston.

Johnson has played good tennis throughout the tournament, with the exception of his match with James Anderson yesterday when he had a hard time and when there wasn't much sparkle to the brand of the tennis played.

Tilden is the favorite to win the championship by a slight margin. But it was believed Johnson will give him a mighty good battle.

A drizzle of rain was falling this morning, with no prospects of a let-up.

President Myrick of the American Lawn Tennis Association said the final match will be played this afternoon if it is at all possible.

BALL BALL POSTPONED

The baseball game arranged for the benefit of Roy Cherrett which was to take place this afternoon, has been postponed on account of the rain.

The door of the oven should be left open, so that the water vapor driven off may pass out, and the fire should be so regulated that the material may not be scorched.

AT THE THEATRES

"THE FOOLISH MATRONS" AT THE ALLEN.

A good play written about an interesting theme, provided the structure and detail are good, is always sure to draw the crowd, but a super-drama, such as will be seen at the Allen Theatre for the first three days of the week, igves a kaleidoscopic view of life in its most interesting phases. The question of marriage is a vital one—it interests young and old, rich and poor. Fashions may change, modes of living are different today from those in vogue a decade ago, but the attraction of wooing and mating remains as alluring as it was in the days we read of when knights were bold and fought for their ladies fair.

Three women figure very prominently in "The Foolish Matrons," and as the tale of each unfolds strange insights into life's little ironies appear. There are really three distinct stories, each one with its peculiar ending. The young newspaper woman who determined to succeed in her chosen line of work, allows her selfishness to entirely absorb her. Ambition in itself is fine, but why let it cast out all thought for others? Why let it exclude the love and well-being of the husband whose gifts might have blossomed and borne fruit in the small town where he belonged instead of keeping him entirely out of his element in the big centre? The result is, as in life, disillusion, disappointment and a life barren of all love and blessings. Then there is the moth type of woman. Youth allied with beauty suggest to her the stage, but the burlesque manager tells her she cannot get across to the audience. She marries a devoted, good young man and together they go to New York, where the young bride serves as a lure to the wealthy philanderer who knows so well how to shower gifts and dangle temptations before her. As usual, discovery follows upon her surrender and the old, old story is enacted when the "other" woman goes to poor Georgia's husband and he closes the door upon the woman he promised to love and cherish. After all, Annis Grand had tasted the sweet fruit of success, she knew the bitter pangs of threatened loss of beauty, but her whole fine, womanly nature responds instantly to the affection of the overworked physician who appreciates her great qualities and finds in her the ideal complement to his own ability.

"AT THE END OF THE WORLD" AT THE CAPITOL.

For Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the programme will be—Overture by the six-piece orchestra, "The Yellow Arm," Pathe News, Screen Magazine, Larry Semon in "The Bakery" and two big vaudeville acts, besides the feature picture, "At the End of the World." Betty Compson jumped into prominence in "The Miracle Man." Since then her starward flight has been most rapid until now she is seen in this Paramount picture to the very best advantage. Her director in this photoplay is the artist PenrhynStaularos. It is written by Edfrid A. Bingham, based on the adaptation by Adelaide Heilbron of Erust Klein's famous play. The cast includes the popular leading man, Milton Sills, and Mitchell Lewis, Casson Ferguson and Joseph Kilgour. Betty Compson is young, attractive and possesses a winning personality, so she is a fitting heroine for this drama of strong emotion and thrilling situations. The story is fascinating and carries us from the gambling den of Shanghai, China, to a lighthouse standing lone and solitary in the southern seas. Love, jealousy, hatred, revenge—the emotions are all touched—and one is thrilled to the highest pitch by the passionate interest aroused for the fate of Cherry, the lovely daughter of Terence O'Day. Besides being a Paramount picture, "At the End of the World" is a notable one in many ways. From the moment the first picture is shown a view is given of one of the notorious crossroads of the world. Here are gathered Orientals, merchants, travellers and the scum and driftwood of the world. It is a picture which never fails to intrigue us and to promise much for the rest of the play. To give a further description would be to remove "the punch" from the show in taking away much of the mystery.

AT THE REGENT.

A Century comedy featuring lions and their tamers; Ruth Roland in the serial, "Ruth of the Rockies," and Gladys Walton in "All Dolled Up" is the feature attraction at the Regent next week.

"All Dolled Up," concerns a pretty little shop girl and a rich spinster whose love affairs become strangely involved. As the story opens the shop girl is seen selling a very frisky trousseau to the spinster who whispers to her that she is to marry Rodolpho, the famous tenor. Poor little Maggie, the shop girl, smiles enviously, for the only approach to love which she had experienced was the suggestive advances of the sleek floor walker.

As she left the store that night Maggie was annoyed by the floor walker, who tried to force his attentions upon her. To escape she stepped into an automobile driven by an aristocratic young man who seemed to guarantee her safety by his appearance. Here at last she thought was her fairy prince.

How the spinster was lured into a compromising position and blackmailed and how Maggie had to fight like a wildcat for her honor are dramatic kicks over and above the sparkling theme which, in itself, is mighty, high proof drama.

Gladys Walton is said to be at her best in the stellar role of Maggie while her principal support is Florence Turner, who plays the part of the spinster with the fire and humour for which she is loved by millions of fans.

Ed. Hearn, Richard Norton, Helen Bruneau, Fred Malatesta, Ruth Royce, John Goff, Frank Norcross, and Lydia Yeamans Titus, are other favorites in the cast.

AT THE GRAND.

Mr. George F. Driscoll, vice-president of Trans-Canada Theatres, Ltd., in Peterborough for two days.

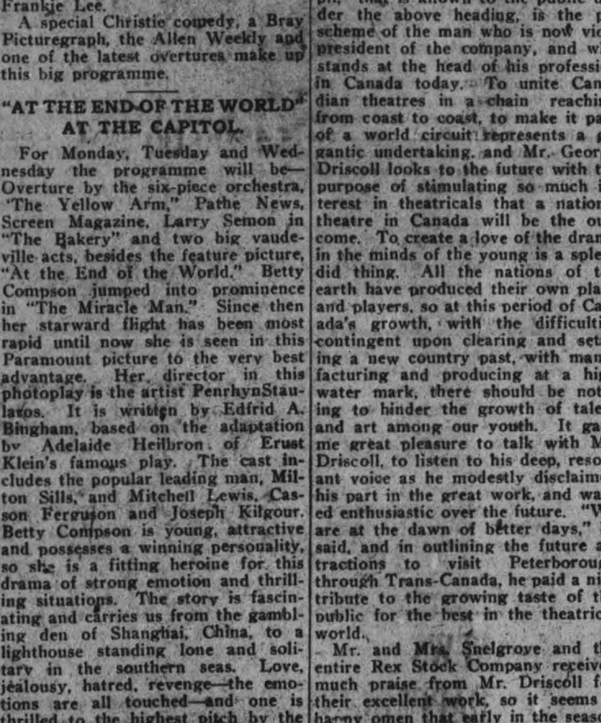
A unique organization in many ways, Trans-Canada Theatres is one of the most important corporations in Canada today. The 'pait accompli," that is known to the public under the above heading, is the pet scheme of the man who is now vice-president of the company, and who stands at the head of his profession in Canada today. To unite Canadian theatres in a chain reaching from coast to coast, to make it part of a world circuit represents a gigantic undertaking, and Mr. George Driscoll looks to the future with the purpose of stimulating so much interest in theatricals that a national theatre in Canada will be the outcome. To create a love of the drama in the minds of the young is a splendid thing. All the nations of the earth have produced their own plays and players, so at this period of Canada's growth, with the difficulties contingent upon clearing and settling a new country past, with manufacturing and producing at a high water mark, there should be nothing to hinder the growth of talent and art among our youth. It gave me great pleasure to talk with Mr. Driscoll, to listen to his deep, resonant voice as he modestly disclaimed his part in the great work, and waxed enthusiastic over the future. "We are at the dawn of better days," he said, and in outlining the future attractions to visit Peterborough through Trans-Canada, he paid a nice tribute to the growing taste of the public for the best in the theatrical world.

Mr. and Mrs. Snelgrove and the entire Rex Stock Company received much praise from Mr. Driscoll for their excellent work, so it seems a happy omen that early in the season the company has made a phenomenal success and earned the unstinted praise of the highest Canadian dramatic authority.

On Monday and Tuesday of next week, with daily matinee, a splendid picture called "The Fighting Lover," starring Frank Mayo, will be seen at the Grand, supplemented by Mr. Howarth's fine orchestra, a comedy and screen news. On Wednesday night an Al. Wood's production, called "Ladies' Night," will be the attraction. Kingston claims "our Rex," his charming leading woman and the company all next week, which will be fair week. Realizing how much a whole week has meant to us, we cannot begrudge the Military City our favorites, but we certainly hate to see them go. Au revoir, Rex! LAURA.

When he found the automobile had knocked her unconscious, he realised he didn't even know her name. He found a card in her pocket and took her to that address.

....Whew! He certainly made a mistae in doing that. The surprising events which followed are shown in "All Dolled Up" — coming to the Regent Theatre on Monday.



ELLEN BEST and RALPH BUN KER, in A. H. Woods' Farce Hit of the Year, "LADIES NIGHT" in a Turkish Bath. At the Grand Wednesday, September 21.

Voice of the People

BOOST PETERBOROUGH.

Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I read in your paper of August 29th an account about the Central Ontario Oil Fields Limited by Dr. A. H. Allen, dentist. If it is correct, as claimed by Mr. E. J. Cowain, M.E., and others, as to the oil being in the district from Belleville to the proximity of Peterborough, and that a company is already formed and a charter granted with power to start a well at an early date, and that shares in this company can be bought as low as $1.00 each, I fail to see why the people of this city do not take the matter up seriously, get into this and boost something which they have in their midst. Surely some can see just the same chance at home as they can in the Peace River oil or in the Mexico wells, some of which I have no doubt people of Peterborough have invested in.

My contention is boost home industry. If there is anything to boost Peterborough, let the Peterborough people do it, and thus gain whatever profit there is in it. I would hate like anything to see someone from the outside come in and take the spice out of our pudding so all I can say is that I wish the promoters of the Peterborough Oil Company all the best of luck.

With the help of our good citizens I feel sure they will put our good city on the map as one live people intending to go ahead.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the help of your valuable paper.

Yours truly,
A CITIZEN.

REVIEW OF FINE BUSINESS DISPLAYS AT THE FAIR

The directors of Peterboro's Big Fair for 1921, have every reason to rejoice over the success which has again attended their efforts. The good fortune which has followed them in both record-breaking attendances each day ,and favorable weather, is something they have to be thankful for. The results this year disclose again that latent spirit of local pride that seeks only an adequate object for its expression. Once thoroughly awakened and aroused it gives a new impetus and strength to an enterprise in which a community's interests become centred.

The enterprise of local exhibitors and and the pride that they have shown in displaying their splendidly comprehensive exhibits, is greatly to their credit.

Below will be found inttresting details of additional special exhibits.

LIVING ROOM SUITE FROM CRESSMAN'S.

A review of the attractive exhibits at the Fair would be incomplete without a pointed reference to the artistic display fitted up by the Cressman Co. of this city. As on previous occasions, the decoration and publicity staff of this firm again distinguished themselves by a splendid interpretation of a complete model of a living room in light grey wicker work effects. The artistic expedients and resourceful dressing of the exhibit evoked high praise from throngs of visitors. Young couples who seemed charmed with this beautiful dream of a living room, were frequently observed in a colloquial attitude admiring this exhibit.

It is agreed that is not the easiest thing to choose furniture, but with the assistance of such helpful service as that shown, the task becomes interesting rather than tiresome.

The popularity of this reed or wicker furniture has increased greatly during late years and the airy and cool appearance given makes an ideal room for the summer.

The Cressman Co. make a specialty of outfitting homes completely and in a manner to secure harmony in every room. They have a special department devoted to the furnishing of the home complete. If one desires to know what an interior decorator would advise for your home, Cressman's will furnish the information without putting you under any obligation.

FINE EXHIBIT FROM THE GILLESPIE GARAGE

There could not have been a better testimony to the increasing interest of farmers as well as townspeople in motor cars and trucks. The attendance around this display of interesting machines was marked .

There was shown fine models of Maxwell and Chalmers cars, consisting of a "Good" Maxwell Sedan, a Maxwell touring car, and a powerful "Hot Spot," 6 passenger Chalmers, etc.

The new goodness of the good Maxwell touring car, makes itself more apparent and is valued more highly, with every additional day's use. In this car there is an ease and smoothness of operation which has never before been equalled in a four-cylinder car of the same price and class. The new and powerful organization has made it popular by proving its daily, economy profitable.

The Maxwell car continues to enjoy a steady demand. Regardless of the fact that to-day the car is larger, roomier and more powerful, and that it is equipped with every convenience in use on the highest priced cars, the weight has been held down as well as the price, and both have shown that great efficiency and economy of operation has been maintained.

The Chalmers is best known for its smooth, silent, power, and its instant pick-up. It combines splendid performance, sound comfort and economy. "Quality First" expresses the ideals which lie behind the Chalmers. How Hot Spot and Ram's Horn have made Chalmers the most widely imitated car in America, is well known. Three years ago when a Hot-Spot Chalmers at Sheepshead Bay set a new 24-hour record of 1898 miles—the distance from New York to Omaha—motor car engineers proceeded to investigate the cause of an achievement which no other car has yet equalled.

Mr. Jack Gillespie, the "Big Push" of this service garage, looked sharply after the business interests of this exhibit. He was assisted by other salesmen of the Gillespie Garage.

PETERBOROUGH LUMBER CO. AND BUY AT HOME.

With the commendable object of demonstrating to visitors at the Exhibition that the slogan 'Buy in Canada" is not an illusive idea difficult of accomplishment, so far as timber products are concerned, the Peterborough Lumber Company, Ltd., have been exhibiting in the Manufacturers' Building the past three days samples of Canadian produced and finished building material ranking second to none for quality and adaptability. These exhibits are strikingly displayed in a manner to court inquiry by the observer, who thereupon learns the far-reaching possibilities of his own country's lumber in responding efficiently to the varied construction operations into which milled wood enters, leaving no reasonabe excuse for that existing importation from abroad which puts to blush the patriotic and consistent call for patronising home industry.

Here, in this skilfully created section is seen British Columbia shingles, Vulcanite roofing, Canadian quarter-cut oak (No. 1), clear beech, cedar, birch, No. 1 maple, cottage brand—all finished in an excelling degree. There is also displayed in bold relief arrestingly beautiful samples of Beaver hardwood flooring, British Columbia fir and cedar panelling, together with a splendid quality of cedar siding and ceiling from the same Canadian Coast Province, which stand unsurpassed by similar products in any other country in the whole world. Getting nearer to home, this section is not found wanting in excellent brands of matched lumber, pine, spruce, and hemlock—all products of the Peterborough Lumber Company, and none of which will be denied attention. But the question which these commendable exhibits forcefully bring home to the reflecting visitor is, with Canada producing such desirable building essentials, why go to the States for Georgian pine, say, when British Columbia pine is at least its equal in every respect?

THE ROY STUDIO.

One of the most ornamental corners of the Peterborough Exhibition is that in which is displayed the product of the Roy Studio. Here crowds congregate at all hours to admire the pictured faces done in all the soft tintings and artistic poses of this well-known photo gallery. Featured very strongly is the new soft focus Verito work, the hand-colored oil portraits and the new Roycraft series of landscape studies. The latter have all been made in and around Peterborough and reproduce the very prettiest spots in our pretty city. A remarkable presentation of the new Hunter street bridge is shown, on which the most minute details, even those of the faience work, are easily traceable.

Little baby faces, always a strong point in the Roy Studio work, look out from graceful frames, and another noticeable element in the exhibit is the large number of beautiful bridal photographs.

TAPLIN NATURAL TREAD SHOES.

Each day of the Exhibition interested crowds have flocked to this section in the annex to the Merchants' Building, where Mr. V. E. Taplin, specialist and originator of the Natural Tread Shoes of his name, has had a busy time demonstrating that his new broad, low heeled, broad toed boots and shoes are nature's footwear for men, women and children. He here scientifically explained that deformed feet, wobbly ankles, and unnatural poise of the spine, are due to wearing high heeled and narrow toed shoes, which deformities — conducive of poor health— are corrected by wearing Taplin's new idea in footwear. And he stands behind his contention that the "Taplin Natural Tread Shoe" brings into service every muscle of foot and ankle, and that the low, broad heel flexible shank, straight inside line and room for one's toes influences the wearer to walk straight and throw the weight on the outside of the foot where nature intended.

These shoes are now the regulation wear for nurses in the General Hospital, Toronto, where Taplin Natural Tread Shoes Limited have a retail store engaging five clerks, and of which Mrs. Serrurier is the capable manager. There is also a large retail store in Belleville, where the fatcory is situated, together with agencies in Orillia and Vancouver, B.C., and Mr. Taplin is now planning more stores and agencies throughout Canada. Here incidentally it might be mentioned that he has had flattering encouragement to locate stores in the States, and especially in New York, where the "common sense" in his build of shoe is appreciated as health conserving. For, as Mrs. Serrurier so aptly puts it, high heels give backache, headache and bad temper ,and no man is really content with narrow toed shoes.

The Taplin fatcory at Belleville has been established three years and has met with ever-growing patronage; and Mr. Taplin is so enthralled with Peterborough that he promises to open up here, in six weeks if possible to secure a suitable location ,a business operating under the name "Taplin Shoes of Peterborough," with Mr. W. A. Greenslade, of this city, in xharge. The Taplin Shoes are moderate in price, and their wear is commended as a health measure.

THE ANGLO OIL CO.

In a tastefully dressed section in the Annex to the Manufacturers' Building—where an attractive color scheme is dominated by our national colors, the irrepressible red, white and blue—one finds an illuminating display of motor and lubricating oil for every kind of machinery, together with greases — all standing in the front ranks of super-excellence, as testified to by a steadily growing business connection for this dependable firm.

This exhibit is really "worth while" to all users of lubricating oils and greases, of which there is shown in varied array lines always dependable for assuring the maximum of efficient service. Your inspection this afternoon and evening is invited.

EXHIBITION NOTES

The Board of Directors of the Children's Aid Society wish to thank the President and committee of the Peterborough Industrial Fair for favors received. Tickets of admission were given for all children at the shelter, for the ladies in charge at the shelter and those who accompanied the children. In addition, admissions to the grand-stand, where the little ones saw the performance, much to their delight. It was for the kids a glorious afternoon of sight-seeing.

In addition, they had further bewilderments. The proprietors of the merry-go-round and the whip both were so good as to take on board all the children and give them the time of their lives. Then provision had been made for sundry ice-cream cones, hot dogs and other confections, for a hungry child is less than competent in seeing sights.

The board also appreciates the kindness of Mrs. Morris, Mrs. Fred. Hall and Mrs. Achilles Turner in bringing case and transporting the entire population of the shelter to the grounds and home again. The trip to the grounds and back was a real treat. Mrs. Knox, Mrs. Kimberley and Mrs. Rogers, the latter of the shelter, conveyed the flock and gave up the afternoon to seeing that all had a good time. And it was a bright day in the lives of the children who participated and something to remember and chatter about in the future.

SHAWL AND FAN

Spain has lent her graceful influence to the autumn fashions in many attractive touches. Here a shoulder cape of richly embroidered black crepe de chine has borrowed the long silken fringe that is so distinctive of the Spanish shawl. The lining of this cape shawl is gray. A pretty new idea is the fan upon which one may have oneself or one's fancy silhouetted for decoration. The fan is of silk and ebony.

WEDDING BELLS

CONDON—MOHER.
On Tuesday morning at St. Joseph's church, Douro, was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when Mary T. Condon was united in marriage to James Maurice Moher, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Moher.
Rev. Father MacGuire performed the ceremony. The charming bride, who was given away by her father, wore a pretty tailored suit of navy blue tricotine and hat to match, and the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Kathleen Condon, who also wore a navy blue suit and hat to match. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Mastine Moher. The wedding march was played by Miss Mable Allen and the solo, Ave Maria, was rendered by Miss Myrtle McNulty of Norwood.
After the ceremony the happy couple motored to the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous dinner was served to about sixty guests. The table was beautifully decorated with rosebuds, astors and ferns and the drawing room was decorated with blue and white streamers and wedding bells.
In the evening one hundred and fifty of the young couples friends gathered and spent a good time in playing cards, music and dancing. Mr. and Mrs. Moher were the recipients of many beautiful and costly presents and they will reside in Douro.

COL. NAZIM BEY'S FINE EXAMPLE OF HEROISM.

HEADQUARTERS, TURKISH NATIONALIST ARMY, Aug. 25.—(Associated Press, by mail.)—Col. Nazim Bey, with his Fourth Division lost his life and saved the main body of General Ismet Pashas forces from being taken in the rear and possibly routed during the frontal attack made with superior forces and equipment by the Greeks in the Kutahia zone.

In recognition of his services General Ismet Pasha published a note to the army stating that in his entire military career, including also his knowledge of military history, he knew of no finer example of heroism and intelligent valour. He also paid a high tribute to the remnants of Colonel Nazims division remaining after standing for two days against three Greek divisions, any any of which was stated to be superior in numbers to that of Nazim.

The Greeks had planned, in addition to the frontal attack on Kutahia, a surprise raid on the Turk rear with three flying divisions, and the surprise appears to have been complete.

So soon as their presence in force was discovered Nazim Bey was detached from the main army to stop them, or halt their progress until the retreat from Kutahia could be effected. He did so, and during the 48 hours of constant fighting and retreating, he was wounded by a rifle bullet but kept on his horse until he was struck by a second bullet towards the end of the fight. He did but with the knowledge that he had saved the main body of the army. "Kismet" (it's fate) were his last words.

Colonel Nazim Bey was a short thin man of 45 years, quiet and gentlemanly in his deportment, and speaking but rarely, with a large head and thoughtful, melancholy grey eyes. A soldier by profession, he served during the general war on several of the fronts, but mostly on the Russian. He would have borne the title of general as a division commander under the old imperial army but the Nationalists have suppressed that title except for officers commanding more than one army corps.

RE-UNION OF EX-MEMBERS OF 21ST BATTALION LAST EVENING

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY MEMBERS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE DISTRICT PRESENT —THE TOAST LIST.

The re-union of the ex-members of the 21st Battalion from Eastern Ontario, held at the G.W.V.A. Hall last evening, was a thorough success in every way. About 150 members from all parts of the eastern district were present. Some 40 men arrived from Kingston, bearing with them the King's colors. The Regimental Pipe Band paraded to the Empress Hotel last evening, from there to the G.T.R. Station to meet Brig.-General St. Pierre Hughes, of Ottawa, bearing with them the King's colors and the colors of the 21st Battalion.

The banquet, held in the G. W. V. A. Hall at 8.30 last evening was a jolly affair. The officers of the Peterborough Branch—Comrades W. J. Harris, A. Stanley, and O. White—looked after the arrangements. Mr. S. Whatley helped with the work of the banquet, ably assisted by the ladies of the Auxiliary.

Musical selections by the Salvation Army orchestra, with solos by Mrs. Mendell Braund, were much enjoyed.

The first toast, "The King," was proposed by Comrade W. J. Harris, who then resigned the chair for the evening to Col. H. E. Pense, of Kingston, president of the association. The toast to the British Empire was proposed by Mr. G. N. Gordon, M.P., who made an eloquent speech, reviewing the difficulties encountered by the Empire during the war. General Hughes replied, giving further statistics. The toast to the City of Peterborough was proposed by Comrade A. Johnston, of Belleville, in a few well-chosen words, and replied to by His Worship Mayor A. A. McIntyre, who extended a cordial welcome to the assemblage, and spoke in feeling terms of the debt owed by Canada to the boys who fought the good fight.

Mr. Thos. Tooms, M.L.A., followed with a brief speech, outlining the advantages offered by Peterborough as a residential centre and the facilities enjoyed by manufacturers here.

A resolution of regret was endorsed here to Col. A. P. Miller, D. S.O., M.C., who is now undergoing an operation in Toronto hospital as a result of wounds received during the war. The toast to the 21st Battaloin Association was proposed in fitting terms by Comrade Harvey Staunton, president of the local G. W.V.A. and replied to by the chairman, Col. H. E. Pense, of Kingston, who spoke of the services rendered by the Battalion, whose members number 830 on the honor roll, followed by a touching speech from Comrade (Padre) Kidd, of Kingston, on "Our Fallen Comrades.

A silence of a full minute reigned in the hall in honor of the comrades lying in France and Flanders. The toast to the ladies was propsed by Comrade R. J. Davidson of Ottawa.

The appreciation of the Association was extended to the Salvation Army, the G.W.V.A. and the Ladies of the Auxiliary who helped so much with the arrangements, for the banquet.

It was decided to hold the next re-union in Belleville in 1922.

Elections of officers of the Association took place, resulting as follows: Honorary President; Comrade W. S. Hughes of Ottawa, President Col. H. E. Pense of Kingston. Secretary-Treasurer, A. Johnston of Belleville.

Miss Kate O'Keefe, of Norwood, is visiting friends in the city.

Chiropractic and Chronic Cases

Repeated attacks of certain disorders results in a continuous condition of Abnormality, or, in other words, a Chronic Disease.

Nature has partially adapted herself to an abnormal condition in the system, thus making the clearing up of such conditions one requiring time and patience.

Elimination of the chronic condition must be brought about through restoration of nerve energy, stimulating the diseased part to normal action.

Chiropractic Spinal Adjustment provides the necessary stimulation to this end by relieving pressure on nerves, and health follows as a matter of course.

Conditions such as Chronic Constipation, Chronic Diarrhoea, Chronic Bronchitis, Chronic Tonsilities, Chronic Nephrites, Chronic Catarrh, Chronic Gastritis, Chronic Rheumatism, etc., readily yield to proper Chiropractic adjustment where all other methods have failed.

Stop, Look and Live!

The successful and far-seeing manufacturer is very careful to see that the machines in his factory are always kept in perfect running order.

He employs a corps of experts whose sole duty it is to see that these machines are in running order and who, when necessary, adjust same.

It is vastly more important for you to take care of that most precious of all machines, THE HUMAN MACHINE, yet how few do it. The average man takes little or no interest in matters concerning Health until he has lost that Health in a perfectly foolish and inexcusable manner.

So long as he can keep a high pressure in his chase for the almighty dollar he does so regardless of the damage of his health. If he were a manufacturer he would not dream of subjecting one of his machines (which, by the way, could be easily replaced) to such a strain without having it periodically overhauled and, if necessary, adjusted.

You may now enjoy Health. Make up your mind to KEEP Healthy.

Remember that when damaged beyond repair your Human Machine cannot be replaced. Make sure that it can stand the strain to which you subject it.

CHIROPRACTIC VERTEBRAL ADJUSTMENTS will relieve the nerve pressure which is caused by subluxated (displaced) vertebrae (small bones of the spine) and the result will be that the vital force will flow uninterruptedly from the brain through the nerves to the various organs, allowing them to function normally.

Take care of your Human Machine. Be sure that your spine is in normal condition
You will then be HAPPY, HEALTHY and SUCCESSFUL.

"HIGHERUPS" IN SCANDAL

INVESTIGATION WILL FOLLOW CAPTURE OF RUM-RUNNING STEAMER.

LIQUOR SEIZED

HALIFAX, N.S., Sept. 19.—(Special to The Examiner.)—Illicit rum-running operations with widespread ramifications carried on here on a large scale, suspected for months, are now believed certain since the sensational seizure at Dartmouth, across Halifax harbor of 155 ten gallon barrels of liquor valued at $50,000 supposed to have come from Walkerville, Ont.

The rum is believed to have reached Halifax from some unknown shipping points by the samll 100-ton steamer, Mary Smith, which was recently converted from a drifter used by the government during the war, into a small freighter. The Mary Smith has been seized by the government and is now lying at Mayers' wharf where the seizure was made. At that time a ship alleged to be the Mary Smith, was seen to quietly slip out into the harbor, but the next day her captain, without resistance, took her in when requested to do so by a revenue cutter. The police and customs officials state that they are in possession of certain papers which will involve many 'higher-ups' in the whole illegal business. Some of the papers tend to show that the liquor came from Walkerville, Ont., to Sydney, N.S., and from there to here by steamer. There have been many stories of rum-running in Cape Breton, and it is now believed that the shipment seized here is only a small portion of larger shipments which have come from the upper provinces and elsewhere, including the French island of St. Pierre.

CROP IS BETTER THAN EXPECTED

HAVE REACHED BEDROCK AND CONDITIONS ARE IMPROVING

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 19. — (Special to The Examiner.)—There is no occasion for pessimism in business circles at present time. We have about reached bed rock and conditiosn are improving gradually," F. W. Ross, manager Bank of Nova Scotia declared to-day.

Crop is better than expected and no trouble is being experienced in financing harvest, Mr. Ross said. The entire yield of all grains should set more than half a billion in circulation he thought.

"A year ago financial situation was acute; to-day it is much easier," he said. "I don't look for a rapid jump to normal basis, but we gradually are returning to normal times. Summer of next year should see a big improvement in affairs."

ARBUCKLE'S WIFE ARRIVES ON JOB

SAYS HUSBAND IS INNOCENT—BEEN SEPARATED FOR YEARS

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19. — (Canadian Press).—Mrs. Roscoe Arbuckle arrived here to-day from New York to assist in the defence of her husband against murder charges preferred against him. Milton Cohen and Charles Brennan, counsel for Arbuckle, met here and denied her to all interviewers. She gave out a statement, however, in which she said she knew that his friends held him innocent, and asked the people of San Francisco to give him a square deal. When the full story is known, she added, "my husband will be completely exonerated." Robert H. McCormack has asked for a delay in Federal indictments under the prohibition laws in connection with the party staged at Hotel St. Francis, because he expected startling new developments. He is conducting an exhaustive inquiry into the sourse of supply alleged to have been consumed at the Arbuckle party.

Mrs. Arbuckle has been separated from her husband for several years.

24,674 ADMISSIONS PAID TO EXHIBITION

SATURDAY'S ATTENDANCE OF 3,505 MADE A RECORD OF 1626 IN EXCESS OF LAST YEAR'S AGGREGATE CROWD.

The total attendance for the four days of the Exhibition went well over last year's high record. The total count reported by Mr. J. E. Sullivan was 24,674 as against 23,048 a year ago. The increase was 1,626. Saturday's paid admissions were 3,505, for which the directors were deeply grateful. In the morning the leaden sky and intermittent showers threatened to wind up the Fair in a wet blanket gate receipts less than 1921, but at noon the weather cleared and the citizens came through handsomely. The Board is advertising for a prompt rendering of accounts in order that they may be paid at once.

Getting Ready For Action Against Tribesmen.

MELILLA, Morocco, Sept. 19.—(Canadian Press).—The Spanish troops concentrated in the Melilla region for operations against rebellious Moroccan tribesmen, numbering approximately 60,000. All branches of the service are rapidly becoming acclimatized and settled to the hardships of campaigning. They also are becoming accustomed to the shells and bullets constantly falling within and without the city.

A number of Moroccans in the hills around Gourougou apparently have been reduced, and they now are estimated to number only 500 determined fighters.

TO ABANDON CONFERENCE

UNLESS DEVALERA WITHDRAWS HIS DEMAND REGARDING SOVEREIGN STATE.

IRISH SITUATION

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

DUBLIN, Sept. 19. — Faced with the choice between withdrawing from their insistence upon recognition as a sovereign state or abandoning the conference upon which the hope of peace in Ireland rests, the Sinn Fein Cabinet met with President De Valera to-day.

Ireland, hoping for peace, and favoring a conference, despite the technical difficulties, anxiously awaited the decision.

It was recognized here that the Dail Cabinet must go to a conference on Lloyd George's terms or risk civil war. The press urges the acceptance of the Premier's invitation.

DUBLIN, Sept. 19. — (Canadian Press). — It is suggested in some quarters that De Valera may be content to leave the situation as it stands and discontinue correspondence. It seems to be the general opinion here that the paragraph in the Septemebr 12 note to which Mr. Lloyd George objects, could not be withdrawn without the consent of the Dail Eireann, which approved it.

DUBLIN, Sept. 19.—Dail Cabinet held full meeting this afternoon, lasting an hour. Michael Collins, Minister of Finance and Charles Burgess, Minister of Defence, left the meeting early. A communication to the Press was expected to-night.

PROMOTION FOR SERGEANT REID

BECOMES INSPECTOR OF PETERBOROUGH POLICE DEPARTMENT

The creation of an office of inspector on the local police force and the appointment of Sergt. James Reid to that position, was made at a meeting of the Police Commissioners on Saturday evening.

Chief Constable S. Newhall recommended that the position of inspector by established, the inspector to have full charge of the police department under the Chief Constable. Chief Newhall explained fully the need for such an office, with the increased activities of the force, to maintain efficiency of the force at high standard. The inspector, he said, would have charge of the correspondence of the department and all reports would come to his attention. For some time he said, Sergt. Reid had been attending to these routine affairs although the office was not created, and he recommended strongly its creation, and Sergt Reid's appointment.

On motion of Magistrate D. W. Dumble and Mayor A. A. McIntyre, the Chief Constable's recommendation was adopted and Sergt. Reid appointed to the position.

Sergt. James Reid has been a police officer for 15 years. He served five years with the Fifeshire police in Scotland and has been a member of the Peterborough police force since 1912. Previously to coming to Peterborough he was for nine months a police officer in Brantford. He has been a sergeant for five years.

The police commissioners granted the application of Walter Harran for a license for a second-hand store at 85 Hunter street east.

No action was taken in regard to O.T.A. prosecutions. Chief Newhall submitted a letter received by him from the City Council asking that City Solicitor Widdifield prosecute upon information laid by the police under the O.T.A. and a letter he had reecived from the Crown Attorney enclosing a circular from the Attorney-General.

Early This Morning Three Men Tried To Kidnap Evelyn N. Thaw

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, September 19. — What may have been an attempt to kidnap Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, former wife of Harry K. Thaw, was frustrated early to-day by the police.

The former Mrs. Thaw, who is now known as Miss Nesbit, was in her apartments on the third story of a building where she runs a tea room. About 3.30 a.m., when she heard men talking in the hall outside, according to the police, she opened the door, and three men attempted to seize her. Miss Nesbitt yelled "Fire." kept on screaming so loudly that the three men ran away.

Parolman Michael McMahon heard the cries and ran up to the building just as the three men jumped into a taxi that was standing at the curb with its motor running, and drove rapidly away.

Miss Nesbit, according to the police, then came down stairs, wearing an overcoat over her night clothes and told the policeman what had happened.

He decided to remain on guard. Some time later, the three men, evidently thinking that the coast was clear, returned in the taxicab McMahon accosted them, and they attacked him. McMahon blew his whistle for help, and other patrolmen arrived.

After a fight the three men were arrested. They gave their names as Jos. Daly, John Wardmer and James Dunn.

Miss Nesbitt came down and had a look at the prisoners. Police said that she pointed out Daly as the man who first attempted to seize her. Miss Nesbit said she would prosecute the men on a charge of disorderly conduct, and would appear against them in the court to-day.

A patrolman was left on guard at her apartment for the re-remainder of the night. It is believed that the attempt to seize Miss Nesbit was made by persons who had kept close watch on her, as she was alone in her apartment, her son Russel, aged 10, being away on a visit.

IGNORED INCOME FORM---FINED $50

FIVE OTHER FARMERS CHARGED WITH FAILING TO MAKE RETURN OF THEIR INCOMES FOR 1918, WERE REMANDED UNTIL MONDAY NEXT.

Charged with having unlawfully failed to make return of their incomes for the year 1918, six farmers appeared before Magistrate Langley in the County Police Court this morning. They were Vincent Sullivan, P. C. Sullivan, F. C. Sullivan, F. G. Sullivan and Garret Sullivan, of Ennismore township.

G. N. Gordon defended five of the accused and V. J. McElderry appeared for the Income Tax Department.

Vincent Sullivan pleaded not guilty but admitted that he had received an income tax form from the department. In his defence he testified as follows: "I manage my father's business. I filled out his papers and returned them. I thought that was sufficient as I had nothing to send."

Mr McElderry—You acknowledge getting a notice from the department for yourself?

Mr. Sullivan—Yes.

For the prosecution Mr. McElderry presented affidavits showing that a tax notice had been mailed to Mr. Sullivan on October 11th, 1920, and Provincial Constable Stratton told of having delivered a summons to the accused at his address, Rural Route No. 1, Ennismore. Mr. McElderry asked the court to pass the sentence according to the statute. Originally the penalty was $100 a day for the full period of default. This has been amended to $25.00 a day. The period was from one one month after the delivery of the letter until the present, nearly two years.

In these cases, however, the Department was prosecuting for only two days' default.

Magistrate's Comment.

"The prosecution asks for a conviction and I can't see that I have any option," said Magistrate Langley. "You failed to make your own income return. You have heard other cases here this morning, and you might think the court was hard on you. They are asking for a remand to secure further evidence, and if it appears that there is anything like bluffing I have the authority to increase the penalty if I see fit. However, you neglected to comply with the statute requiring every person to make out their report and return it to the department."

Mr. Sullivan stated that he worked for his father. The form he had filled out showed their joint income, although it was in the parent's name. "I thought that I was doing all required of me when I made out that statement, and that the Government might have made a mistake when they sent a form to me also personally."

Magistrate—I believe there are many bona fide cases and possibly yours is one. But every person must make out the income return.

"If I had been working for myself I would have made out my own form," said Mr. Sullivan. "Two years ago I sent in a form to the effect that I was working for my father and had no separate income."

Magistrate Langley—That was all you had to do in this case. I have no alternative but to fine you $50 and costs.

Mr. Sullivan—I don't think that is fair—I did what I thought was fair.

Magistrate Langley—I do not wish to argue with you, but I can't see that you were fair to the department. Certainly you have been fair to this court. You admitted getting the letter and gave us all the particulars, but the fact remains that you didn't make out your income form as required.

Mr. Sullivan—I thought that unless I had an income of my own I didn't have to.

Other Cases Adjourned.

UNSUITABLE FOR BRITISH MARKET

COMMENT ON REMOVAL OF THE CATTLE EMBARGO

LONDON, Sept. 19.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—The view is expressed in certain quarters in Glasgow in connection with the removal of the cattle embargo, that there is not at present in Canada, cattle suitable for the British market and that it will probably take three years to get the animals into shipping condition. Even if the embargo were removed, there is nothing to hinder United States withdrawing its tariff, thereby allowing Canadian cattle to continue to go to their natural market.

CARTER GOES AFTER INSPECTOR DUNLOP

VISITED LONDON JAIL ONLY ONCE IN SIX YEARS

Owing to overcrowded conditions at St. Mary's Convent School, His Lordship Bishop O'Brien announced yesterday that arrangements were being made to convert the stone house directly opposite the Conservatory of Music into a school.

This property, on the corner of Hunter and Rubidge Streets, was formerly the property of Mr. Hazen Ritchie, and was purchased some months ago by the Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation.

THE MAMMOTH HAM WEIGHED 52 LBS. 8 OZ.

MRS. HUGGINS, THIS CITY, ESTIMATES CORRECT WEIGHT IN CANADIAN PACKING CO'S CONTEST AND GETS PRIZE.

A feature of the last day at the Peterborough Exhibition was the Canadian Packing Company's estimating contest, in which competitors calculated the weight of a huge ham which tipped the scales exactly at 52 lbs. 8 oz., as weighed by F. W. Hicks of the Campbell Flour Mills Co., Limited.

Mrs. Higgins, 275 Lake street, estimated the ham's corect weight to an ounce, and was awarded a prize ham fit for a king.

These estimating contests —one each day of the Exhibition— have been drawing features for the Fair, as the well-known, excellent flavor, curing and purity of Rose Brand hams inspired the keenest of competion for securing without price one of these choice samples of epicurean delight.

MAMMOTH STEEL BEAM

The large steel beam that has just been placed in the new Grafton store front, is the largest and heaviest beam of the kind that has been put in any building in Peterboro. It has a span of 47 feet and weighs nearly 10 tons. This mammoth beam will carry the entire front wall of the big double store without centre supports. Several plans were submitted including some with central post and lighter beams but the heaviest of all which promised to be absolutely secure was finally accepted, and has now been successfully raised and placed in position.

OBJECTS TO THE SCHEME

UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM IN GREAT BRITAIN—LABOUR EXCHANGES OBSOLETE.

PREMIER SITTING UP

LONDON, Sept. 19. — (Canadian Press). — The scheme presented by the Lloyd George Government for alleviating unemployment has aroused criticism, not because it is wrong in principle but on account of its inadequacy. J. H. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, says that a general strike as a panacea for unemployment, as advocated in some quarters, would be merely ludicrous, and other kinds of social upheaval would be equally fallacious. He declares that the problem requires international solution. The opinion is growing that the Government Labor Exchanges must go. They cost two and quarter million pounds yearly.

GAIRLOCH, Scotland, Sept. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Lloyd George today was able to sit in the garden of the house where he is staying. He sent word to the Laborite Mayors of various London boroughs that under orders from his doctor, he was unable to receive them.

The Mayors went to Scotland to discuss the unemployment situation with the Premier.

PETERBORO' BREAD PRICES LOWERED

PRICES NOW RANGE BETWEEN TWENTY AND TWENTY-TWO CENTS A LOAF.

Bread is on the down grade. Peterborough bakers this morning cut two cents off the large loaf. Messrs. Stock & Son, the Peterborough Bread Company, and the Veterans' Bread Company are retailing a large loaf at 22 cents, with 19 cents as the wholesale price, and Messrs. Dawson Brothers' bakery has cut the price to 20 cents a large loaf.

MEN DOMESTIC SERVANTS

An Innovation in Ottawa—Men are Making Good.

OTTAWA, Sept. 19.—(Canadian Press) Men domestic servants is the latest thing in Ottawa and moreover they are making good in department that women hitherto has regarded as exclusively their own. C. S. Ford, superintendent of Ottawa zone of Ontario free labor bureau stated this morning that there were very considerable number of men applying for household work. Probable explanation of this is that about only form of labor in which there are applications that cannot be filled is domestic labor.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS ORGANIZE A STAFF.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—(Canadian Press).—The Staff Committee of the League of Nations has adopted the proposal of Sir George Perley that the Staff should be recruited with fair proportions from all countries that are members of the League. Hon. Chas. Doherty will sail for home at the end of next week. The Geneva correspondent of the Westminster Gazette says that the British delegates to the League of Nations Council regret that none of the Dominions or India were represented at the International Court of Judges.

THE KU KLUX KLAN

Today in the Southern United States an organization known as the Ku Klux Klan is, by its activities in meting out punishment and dispensing justice to those who fail to measure up to certain standards, attracting the attention of the civilized world. The Ku Klux Klan is nothing new to the Southern United States, and the present organization patterned along the same lines as the "invisible empire" which came into being following the war between the Northern and Southern States and had for its object the repression of the negro and the unscrupulous Northern carpet bag politician, differs from the older Klan in that the white man, and not the negro, of the South is the most frequent victim of its outrages.

The why and wherefore of such an organization as the Ku Klux Klan must, if possible be deduced. It is often the case that in what are usually considered the by-paths of history are to be found the reasons for events which have bulked largely in the news of the world. If the outsider could realize how greatly politics and caste dominate the Southern United States, the explanation of the revival of the Ku Klux Klan would be a relatively simple matter. Despite four years internecine strife (1861-65), the feudalism of the South managed to survive, and today rears its head in an organization which arrogates to itself the word "Americanism" as the reason for its existence, and has for its mottoes a wealth of moralizing epigrams and the usual cant like phrases of the narrow reformer. The organization while national in scope has thus far made little headway in the Northern and Eastern States. Its every action is characterized by a secrecy which would put the average Camorra or Nihilist organization to shame. The fiery cross so well depicted in the great cinematograph, The Birth of a Nation, is part of its ritualism and is symbolic of the purity which is supposed to characterize its membership. The head of the organization is Colonel William J. Simmons, of Atlanta, Georgia, who is known as the Imperial Wizard. Colonel Simmons is a man of wealth and affluence, and spends a great deal of his time travelling from place to place organizing subordinate lodges or klans.

The Klan of Civil War days was disbanded in 1869, by order of its wizard, General Nathan Bedford Forest, famed Confederate chieftain, when he realized that criminals and unprincipled politicians were using the name, prestige, and customs of the Klan as a cloak for acts of lawlessness, violence, and personal revenge.

In many sections of the United States south of the Mason and Dixon's line courts have ceased to function—and from the eyes of law the blind has been torn, and the balance in the scales of justice so manipulated that law and order is but a memory. Throughout the South masked bands—clad in weird long flowing white gowns decorated with the Crusader's cross—go stalking about at all hours of the night spreading terror amongst innocent law abiding people. The law breaking element is, however, scattering to the four winds.

The automobile figures prominently in the workings of the Klansmen. The individual who falls under the displeasure of the order is seized either at his place of residence or business and conveyed to the scene of trial in an automobile. He is really kidnapped. Arriving at a secluded spot the individual is made acquainted with his moral laches, after which he is stripped naked, and upon his bare skin the assembled Klansmen ply their whips of wet rope or rawhide. After the lashing a coat of tar is applied to the victim, and then he is rolled in feathers. The ceremony is now complete. The tarred and feathered victim is thrown back into the automobile and conveyed to the most prominent corner of the town where he is released. In some cases the hair of the victim is clipped short and the hot tar applied directly to the scalp.

The Klan has been most active in the State of Texas, and every grade of society has been arraigned before its illegal tribunal. Prominent lawyers, physicians, and even veterans of the World War have felt the wrath of the organization; in several instances white women have received the same brutal treatment as the male subjects. After the victim has received his coat of tar and feathers he is usually ordered to leave the community and never return. Up to the present time but few negroes have been harmed, but the black man of the South lives, nevertheless, in abject fear of the Ku Klux Klan. Negro mothers frighten rebellious pickaninnies by mere mention of the Ku Klux. Recently a negro bell boy in one of the leading hostelries of Texas, in Dallas, accused of intimacy with a white woman, a guest in the hotel, was kidnapped and then returned to the lobby of the hotel with "K.K.K." branded on his forehead.

The operations of the Klan are usually carried on under the cover of night. In some cases the tar and feathers are omitted and the victim given a severe beating and a caution as to future behavior. Then again certain citizens are escorted to the edge of the town and ordered to keep going, and not even look back.

It is freely predicted that if the operations of the Ku Klux Klan are not curbed wholesale strife will be the result. The attempt to surpass the order on account of anarchy and lawlessness in the State of Texas through legislative enactment failed recently by a vote of 53 to 49. The outraged citizen who voices a protest usually becomes the next victim of a tar and feather party.

The mottoes of the organization for the various klans are as follows:

"Here Yesterday, White Supremacy, Here Forever," "100 Per Cent Americanism," "Pure Womanhood," "Dallas Must Be Clean," "All Pure White," "For Our Mothers," "For Our Sisters," "For Our Daughters," "Parasites Must Go," "Gamblers Must Go," "Grafters Go," "Our Little Girls Must Be Protected," "Degenerates Must Go," "The Guilty Must Pay" and "The Right Will Prevail."

U. S. SENATE TO LOSE ITS CLOCK.

WASHINGTON, Sept., 17. — (United Press).—Senators have become uneasy over the prospect of losing their "clock," Senator Carroll Smalley Page of Vermont.

The Patriarch of the Upper House has announced that he will quit public life when his term expires in March, 1923. He will then be 80 years of age. The duty of keeping the Senate on time will fall to some younger Senators.

Since his election in 1908, Page has been the "official" timepiece of the Senate. If he failed to appear in the Senate as the hands of the clock over the Vice-President's chair pointed to exactly one minute of noon, Senators thought the "official" clock was wrong.

Senator Page at 78 is sturdy and vigorous, rated as a millionaire, and wise enough to have most satisfactorily administered one of the highest offices within the gift of the people of Vermont. His genius for punctuality is, solely responsible, he says.

Great, great grandsire Page surveyed and appropriately named Hyde Park, the little Vermont village that "Calf Skin" Page, as he is known to hide users the world over, was to put on the map as the home of the largest raw skin factory in the world. On his twelfth birthday, Page went to work in the tanning factory as an apprentice. Punctually on this twenty-first anniversary, he bought out the establishment and has continued to run it on schedule time ever since.

He did not procrastinate about getting into public life. He was elected to the Vermont Legislature as soon as he attained the eligible age and elevated to the State Senate upon reaching the minimum constitution age limit. Election as Governor, State Bank Examiner and Senator followed with the Page promptness.

WOMEN MAKE LONG SWIM ON SCUGOG

Port Hope Star: Mrs. Marie Wilson, Mrs. Claire Semple and Mrs. Essie Garrow, members of the Toronto Women's Swimming Club, undertook and accomplished an eight-mile swim in Lake Scugog early last week. On Friday Mrs. Semple won the ten hours' endurance swim at Chicago. Earlier in the week, all three swam eight miles in Lake Scugog in less than six hours. The course was from Port Perry to Seven Mile Island and a choppy sea and thick weeds obstructed the swimmers. Mrs. Garrow and Mrs. Wilson finished in five hours and fifty minutes; Mrs. Semple in six hours and forty minutes. The feat had never been attempted before in the history of Lake Scugog and was predicted as impossible by the residents of Port Perry.

REPLY TO PROTEST.

LONDON, September 19. — Canadian Press Cable. — A Reuter cable from Pretoria says: "Replying to a protest from the Railwaymen's unions against the administration's proposed modifications of the 8 hour day on the ground that cancellation of the 8 hour day is not in accord with the peace treaty, Premier General Smuts points out that the treaty simply lays down an eight-hour day as a standard to be aimed at and adds that the government of the South African Union has not ratified the eight hour day convention agreed to at the Washington conference, and has explained to the Labor Office of the League of Nations its unsuitability to South African conditions.

CRIPPLED CAMPBELLFORD TEAM LOST SEMI-FINAL TO OSHAWA

SCORE AT HALF TIME WAS 3-2 AND FINAL 10-3—DISORGANIZED BY LOSS OF PAT KELLY IN SECOND HALF AND TOM THOMAS—KELLY AFFECTED BY NERVOUS TENSION AND RESULTS OF SHELL SHOCK HE SUFFERED DUNING THE WAR

TRENT TEAM NEVER QUIT

An unexpected and distressing circumstance led to the swift defeat of Campbellford in Oshawa on Saturday by the score of 10 goals to 3 in the return intermediate lacrosse semi-final after battling on virtually even terms until half time. The winners of the Trent group of the O.A.L.A. were ahead at the first quarter by 2 to 1, and it was anybody's game at the half way rest, although Oshawa had the odd goal in the score of 3 to 2. When the players went off the field for the intermission Pat Kelly, Campbellford's goalkeeper, suffered a nervous breakdown that not only prevented him from continuing, but which undoubtedly marked the end of his long and brilliant lacrosse career.

Kelly is a war veteran and carries a silver plate in his head where he was dangerously wounded. He was also severely shell-shocked, evidently with permanent impairment of his nervous system when submitted to such a strain and tension of excitment as was developed in Saturday's game. His collapse at half time gave his friends serious concern, and it was learned after the game that he had not fully recovered. Campbellford had no substitute goaler, and Kelly's loss hit the team and their supporters at the height of their hopes, and in their most vital spot. The most sanguine of them realized then that they could not win. That feeling was deepened by the absence of Thoms, their big coverpoint, from the defense line. Before the game had been ten minutes gone Frank Beacham, Oshawa's point player, felled Thomas with a blow on the angle that put him out of the game for keeps. His absence left a big hole in the regular defence that had played together all season, and then with Kelly off, the team started the second half demoralized and doubtless sensing approaching defeat.

Were Evenly Matched.

An impartial observer of Saturday's game must have conceded to Campbellford honors equal to Oshawa if not slightly better for the first half. Even under the handicap of the absence of Thomas the Trent town team finished the first period with one goal to the good. True, they had a temporary advantage while several of Oshawa's beauties were decorating the penalty bench, but that was more or less nullified by the fact that Campbellford did not make the most of it. With both teams evenly numbered the visitors had all the best of the earlier play and with any luck should have counted at least two more goals. They never were in better form all summer, and were plainly stronger than in the game at home. There wasn't a sign of nervousness, their team looked as smooth as in practice and they han-

POLICE HAD EASY CATCH

FARMER WAS MEANS OF CAPTURING MEN WHO STOLE $30,000 FROM SELLS-FLOTO CIRCUS.

VANCOUVER, Wash'n. Sept.19.—(Canadian Press) Deputy Sherrifs yesterday shot and captured two men believed to be robbers, who stole $30,000 from a ticket truck of the Sells Floto Circus here Friday night. Practically all the money was recovered from the robbers' cache, which was found by a farmer while hunting in nearby woods.

When the farmer stumbled upon the money he notified the deputy sheriffs who remained at the cache until two men appeared. When ordered to surrender the two started to run and were shot, one in the hip and the other in the body.

The wounded men refused to give their names. Physicians said both would recover. A third man, said to be implicated in the robbery has not been found.

HARVESTERS ARE WORKING IN WEST

WEATHER IMPROVES AFTER A WEEK'S RAIN AND COLD

WINNIPEG, Sept. 19.—(Canadian Press).—With a return to fine and moderately warmer weather after more than a week of unsettled conditions, havesting is expected to again be in full swing early this week in most sections of three prairie provinces. Heavy rains fell in Manitoba and Southern Saskatchewan Friday night and Saturday morning but prospects now are good for drying weather.

In Manitobo, the Brandon district received the heaviest precipitaton 1.10 nches falling Friday and Saturday. Harvesting operations through out Manitoba are stated to be as far advanced as usual at this time of the year.

In Southern Saskatchewan, Moosejaw reports one of the heaviest rains of the year during Friday and early Saturday, but here also the weather has improved and harvesting will likely be resumed by Tuesday in earnest. Some concern is felt that should the weather turn very warm ,much of the grain in stook will heat before it dries. Between Moosejaw and Regina considerable grain cut still remains, to be stooked.

In Northern Saskatchewan weather conditions are mentioned as being "ideal", the crops havrng dried out after recent heavy rans, enabling cutting to be resumed, and where the crop has already been cut threshing operations are going ahead.

In Northern Alberta harvesting operations are being continued under favorable conditions, but considerable acreage of wheat and oats remain to be cut. In Southern Alberta, Lethbrdge reports threshing more than 35 per cent completed, while in some few districts to the east all threshing has been finished and with a continuance of present weather conditions the greatest activity will obtain next week in all sections, as 90 per cent of the cutting had been done before the weather broke.

There is no marked scarcity of labor in any district throughout the west.

LLOYD GEORGE REPEATS TERMS OF CONFERENCE WITH IRISH LEADERS

WILL NOT MEET REPRESENTATIVES AS THE HEAD OF AN INDEPENDENT STATE—DEVALERA'S REPLY

LONDON, September 19. Canadian Press. — David Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister, in a telegram sent yesterday to Eamonn de Valera, declared that unless the Irish leader's claim to the right to meet the British representatives, as the head of independent, sovereign state, is withdrawn, a conference with the Sinn Fein delegates, is impossible.

"I have received your telegram of last night and observe it does not modify the claim that your delegates should meet us as representatives of an independent and sovereign state.

"You made no such condition in advance when you came to see me in July. I invited you then to meet me, in the words of my letter, as the chosen leader of the great majority in Southern Ireland, and you accepted that invitation.

"From the very outtset of our conversations I told you that we looked to Ireland to own allegiance to the Throne, and to make her future as a member of the British Commonwealth. That was the basis of our proposals and we cannot alter it.

"The status you now claim in advance for your delegates is in effect a repudiation of that basis. I am prepared to meet your delegates, as I met you in July, in the capacity ot the chosen spokesman for your people, to discuss the association of Ireland with the British Commonwealth.

"My colleagues and I cannot meet them as representatives of a sovereign and independent state without disloyalty on our part to the Throne and the Empire. I must therefore repeat that unless the second paragraph of your letter of the 12th is withdrawn a conference between us is impossible."

DE VALERA'S REPLY.

DUBLIN, September 19. — Eamonn De Valera, replying yesterday to Mr. Lloyd George, declared the Sinn Fein had already accepted the Prime Minister's invitation in its own exact terms. They had not asked the Prime Minister to abandon any principle and had only one object in seeking a conference on the basis of truth, he declared.

Mr. De Valera's reply to the Prime Minister's telegram was given out by the Sinn Fein publicity department. It was drafted by him at Black Rock and brought to the Mansion House where it was made public by Arthur Griffith and Eamonn J. Duggan, and was distributed to the press by Desmond Fitzgerald, propaganda minister.

"In reply to your last telegram just received, I have only to say that we have already accepted your invitation in the exact words that you re-quote from your letter of the 7th inst. We have not asked you to abandon any principle, even informally, but surely you must understand that we can only recognize ourselves for what we are.

"If this self-recognition be made a reason for cancellation of the conference, we regret it, but it seems inconsistent.

"I have already had conferences with you and in these conferences and in my written communications I have never ceased to recognize myself for what I was and am. If this involves recognition on your part, then you have altready recognized us.

"Had it been our desire to add to the solid substance of Ierland's right the veneer of the technicalities of international usage, which you now introduce, we might have claimed already the advantage of all these consequences which you fear would flow from the reception of our delegates.

"Now, believe me, we have but one object at heart—the setting up of the conference on such a basis of truth and reality as would make it possible to secure through it the result which the peoples of these two islands so ardently desire.

"I am, sir, faithfully yours,

"Eamon De Valera."

CABINET MEETING

DUBLIN, September 19. — When Mr. Lloyd George's telegram arrived to-night it was too late to summon a cabinet meeting, and according to the publicity department, would be issued that night.

Mr. Lloyd George's request for the withdrawal of the offending paragraph of Mr. De Valera's letter is believed to involve the re-summoning of a full meeting of the Dail Eireann, for when Mr. Lloyd George originally afforded an opportunity for private withdrawal by Mr. De Valera, the Cabinet preferred to submit the matter to the Dail Eireann. The paragraph was then discussed and unanimously approved.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

In the last contest in West Peterborough for the Dominion House—the by-election last February—there were five candidates, Government, Liberal, Labour, Farmer and an Independent Conservative. That the coming campaign will be quite a different affair seems to be a foregone conclusion. In the first place, with a general election in full swing, this riding will not have the influx of the leaders of the various parties that characterized last winter's contest, which brought to Peterborough more of the heavy political artillery than had ever been heard in action in Peterborough before or is likely to be heard again. And instead of five candidates the probabilities are that the fight will be a straight duel between Government and Liberal standard bearers. The United Farmers, it is stated, have practically decided not to enter the contest while the fate of the Labour candidate in the by-election has convinced Labour that another attempt to capture West Peterborough would be a waste of time and energy. Mr. Burnham has announced that he is willing to abide by the result of the coming government convention, which means that the Liberal and Government nominees will have the field to themselves on this occasion.

PATERNAL MR. RANEY.

Hon. W. E. Raney, Attorney-General of Ontario, seems to be afflicted with the hallucination that the people of the province are not only in a grievous state morally, but are utterly incapable of deciding anything for themselves. He believes that the Government of which he is a member should assume all the responsibility of looking after the morals of these poor weak mortals who are not to be trusted to keep on the straight and narrow path without laws and regulations administered by Mr. Raney, apostle of paternalism. It is a quiet day when the Attorney-General does not see a chance to further clip the wings of the people. Just now racing forms are attracting Mr. Raney's attention, and it is announced that he intends to abolish them if he can find a legal way to do it. This seems to be carrying paternalism out to an unnecessary length. Betting on horse racing, under certain conditions, is legal in the Dominion of Canada. Why then should the Provincial Government seek to prevent the publication of entries at the different tracks? Does Mr. Raney think that racing forms are so fraught with menace to the public safety that it becomes necessary to abolish them forthwith? If so, he has a very poor opinion of the intelligence of the people of his native province. The Attorney-General should moderate his efforts to make himself the guardian of the public or the government may find that the continued attempt to legislate good into the public has only succeeded in arousing the antagonism of that very large section of the community who prefer to settle for themselves at least some of the moral questions which they are called upon to face.

BLUE SKY LAWS.

In Detroit the other day a man was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction for selling stock in a company before the latter had been approved by the Michigan Securities Commission. The unlucky promoter made an unfortunate selection of his field of operations. He would have been much safer with his doubtful stock in the province of Ontario, where the regulations are not so strict and where the people are not so effectively protected against wild cat investment schemes. Ontario seems to be regared as fair hunting ground for the army of financial pirates who have get-rich-quick propositions to unload upon the ignorant and the credulous. Wild cat mines, oil schemes that promise fortunes over night, a thousand and one dubious enterprises are daily dangled before the eyes of Ontario, with on official interference and no effort to protect the public from being victimied by oily-tongued promoters. A commission such as is functioning in Michigan to which all stock-selling schemes must be reported before they are offered to the public is undoubtedly needed in this province and it is surprsing that legislation along the lines adopted by many of the neighboring States has not long since been adopted by Ontario. Propositions that could never have a chance to succeed or reach the pinnacles so glibly pictured by the crooks who have the stock to unload are being given too much latitude. No stock should be allowed to be sold until the scheme has been officially investigated and approved. It is high time that the gates were closed.

A WEEK'S EXHIBITION.

A week's fair for Peterborough, once only a dream of a few optimistic members of the Exhibition Board, has been brought appreciably nearer by the success of this year's Exhibition. In fact it may be said to be only just around the corner, for the attendance mark reached last week, in spite of Saturday morning's rain, which materially cut down the patronage of the last day, shows that the people of the district are solidly behind the Peterborough Industrial and that their support can be counted upon. The addition of two more days to the Exhibition would mean increased expenses, of course, but would also mean augmented revenue and would make it possible to secure for Peterborough many more attractions that cannot possibly be arranged under present conditions. A week's Exhibition would make this city the Mecca for a superior line of midway attractions, bring more and better horses here for the trotting events, attract the biggest live stock exhibitors and bring hundreds of visitors daily from all sections of Eastern Ontario. It would be the biggest event of the year in Peterborough, a carnival week in which the entire community would co-operate, and the record established by this year's Exhibition shows that the time has almost come for boldly launching out into still bigger and more ambitious plans for the Exhibition. The enthusiasm, driving power and business ability of the directors are guarantees that the enlarging of Peterborough's already big fair can be effectively and successfully carved out and it would occasion no surprise if the announcement were to be made within the near future that a six days' exhibition for Peterborough was no longer a vision but a cerainty.

A REPLY TO MR. SHERIDAN.

A few days ago the Examiner referred to the fantastic article of Mr. John B. Sheridan, American sports writer, who in defending professional baseball intimated that because of what they learned from that practice, the "Americans "won the war." The Toronto Star quotes Mr. Sheridan's paragraph and adds:

On behalf of the world at large we wish to thank Mr. McCormick of Chicago for having drawn from Mr. Sheridan of St. Louis this priceless contribution to American literature. It is priceless, because it shows that if Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton the Great War was won on the baseball bleachers of the United States.

It is all simple enough now that it has been explained to us. You sit in the bleachers, you see a professional baseball player go after a fly ball, and you see him catch it and bring it back—although he should in fact, have thrown it in to the man on second. Then you sit on the bleachers for three or four years watching a war, and when it's nearly over—when its' in the second half of the ninth innings—rush on the field, participate in the finish, and claim you played the whole game yourself.

The idea that the war was won in two weeks at some point known as "on the Argonne" is one which the people of the United States are having pumped into them every day in their newspapers. It is not at all curious that there should be persons who would write such stuff as Sheridan has written—the curious and peculiarly American feature of it is that there should be newspapers to print it, and a hundred million people to read it, with scarce a protest against it.

"I can't see," says Mr. Sheridan, "where the British excel us in any athletic way." He would'nt' see it. He does not perceive that the boast of always getting what you go after leads sometimes to the claim of having got what you didn't get, and of having won games—and wars—that you didn't win. A man in the bleachers may think he won a baseball match because he yelled louder than anybody else. The British idea in sport is to win honorably, or honorably lose. Let us give Mr. Sheridan an instance of what is meant. In one of the recent cricket matches between England and Australia an appeal was made to the umpire for a catch-out at the wickets. The umpire did not believe the ball had touched the bat, and said "not out." The Englishman who was batting knew that he should have beben declared out; his respect for the authority of the umpire restrained him from saying so; but the next ball that was bowled him he played on the wicket, and was out. It was a tight match in which all England was interested, there was a tremendous desire to see England win, but you would probably search the British Isles in vain for anyone who would say that the action of that batsman was not the right one.

Mr. Sheridan of St. Louis, will not understand this sort of thing at all. It is inevitable that people should have different standards, however, and it is natural, perhaps, that a people should prefer their own.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A Hay Fever Association has been formed in the Middle West. There's an organization that is not to be sneezed at.

Congratulations to President Denne and the Peterborough Exhibition Board upon the record breaking success of the best fair in Peterborough's history.

In the midst of a Drink More Milk Campaign in Hamilton, an advance in the price of milk is announced. That's poor team work.

It is interesting, if not useful information to know that the prices in railway dining cars are dropping a little.

The latest campaign is an Eat More Beef drive. A deep slash in the prices would be of great assistance in the campaign.

THE AGONY OF HOPELESS WAITING

Chapter 66

After calling up the police station and then trying in vain to get Kent on the telephone I rushed back to Nancy. She was standing by the window in the kitchen. She cowered before me and kept declaring again and again that it was not her fault. I hardly listened to her. I thought only of the baby and of how I could possibly find him.

"Nancy! Look at me! Would you know the man if you saw him?" I questioned widly.

"I—I guess I would—Idon't know she sparred without looking at me. I was frantic. I was hardly sane or I would not have done such a foolish thing. Afterward I realized my mistake.

"Nancy I want you to find that man. Hurry! You saw which way he went. You have got to find him—and my boy," I cried.

"Yes, Mrs. Armour," she answered, quickly drying away the tears with the back of her hand.

I followed her out into the hall, and fairly pushed her on the elevator. I never noticed how frantically anxious she was to go.

Then I rushed back into the apartment. I did not know what to do. I was desperately helpless. I wanted to rush out into the street after Kent Jr, myself, but I realized, even in my crazed state, that that would not help me.

Then the telephone bell rang. It was Kent.

I told him what had happened. As I talked I started to cry and I could hardly make him understand me. I begged him to hurry home.

He asked a couple of questions in a strange, hollow sort of voice and then rang of suddenly. I wondered if he had fainted. I stood staring into space and pressing my hands to my temples. I felt as if I were being suffocated.

I sank down for a second on the little chair by the telephone. Then I quickly grabbed it in my hands, and gave central another number.

It was Tom Barney's office Someone answered.

"No—Mr. Barney had left the office over a half hour ago,' they told me.

I went into the front room and stood staring out of the window. I thought of a dozen more questions that I might have asked Nancy. I wondered at what time it had happened—and why didn't Nancy run after the man or call out to some one to help her. She had acted so helpless and stupid. I watched the people passing by on the street. A little burst of wildest hope made me almost expect to see my baby there among them. Then suddenly all was black again. "If Kent would only come," I cried. He had not even said he was coming when I told him over the phone. I needed him so.

I rushed back and forth watching and listening—I could not think of anything else to do. Every hope and possibility seemed to collapse about me.

I went to the telephone and called up the police again and asked questions. I told them to do everything in their power.

They were splendid. They asked me if I kept a maid, and said they would send a detective around at once to get any information. I wondered at that, but at the time I did not realize what an important thing it might prove.

At last the door bell rang furiously and Kent rushed in. His face was ghostly white and drawn. I tried take hold of him, but he stumbled past me and threw himself into a chair. He looked ten years older and the agony on his face was indescribable. I thought he would talk, ask questions. I longed for his support and comfort, but he did not even look at me or appear to know that I was in the room.

YOUNG GIRL FINDS RELIEF

Wants to Tell Other Girls All About It

Evansville, Ind.—"I am eighteen years old and have been bothered for several months with irregular periods. Every month my back would ache and I always had a cold and felt drowsy and sleepy. I work in a millinery shop and I went to work everyday, but felt stupid and would have such cramps. I had seen Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and had heard several women talk of it, so mother got me some. This Vegetable Compound is wonderful and it helped me very much, so that during my periods I am not now sick or drowsy. I have told many girls about it and would be glad to help anyone who is troubled with similar ailments." — STELLA LINXWILER, 6 Second St., Evansville, Ind.

Some girls lead lives of luxury, while others toil for their livelihood, but all are subject to the same physical laws and suffer in proportion to their violation. When such symptoms develop as irregularities, headaches, backaches, bearing-down sensations and "the blues," girls should profit by Miss Linxwiler's experience and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers You.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or the kidneys are not acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder troubles.

Jad Salts cannot injure anybody, makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and the urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

CRIPPLED CAMPBELLFORD TEAM LOST SEMI-FINAL

dled the ball with few misses, in marked contrast with Oshawa, whose passing was often sloppy and ragged. Furthermore, Campbellford earned both their goals in the first half, and should have had more, apart from the brilliant blocking by Joe Jacques, while the two first Oshawa goals scored by Lovegrove looked mighty easy. They were not fluky but they were cheap in comparison with Campbellford's. The third goal by Alex. Graham was well earned.

The whole team from Kelly out to "Pete" Johnston played their best game this year. This was particularly true of the home field, who showed the effects of their training and practice under "Dot" Phelan's tuition. It was a complete reversal of form over the game in Campbellford, which Oshawa were lucky to hold to a four-four tie. Jimmy Kerr and Lloyd Harte combined in great shape, and Jack Nesbitt also had a good day. Pete Johnston was closely watched by Beacham ,but turned in a fine game in spite of the gruelling he got. The Campbellford team showed up collectively rather than individually, and might have been ahead at half time if both Alexander and Montgomery had not drawn penalties, leaving only Gannon on the defense. Kelly, in his anxiety to relieve his goal during this stormy session made several long runs, and it is likely that they contributed largely to his collapse.

Oshawa Are Good.

Undoubtedly Oshawa have a formidable team, but its impression upon neutrals, who regard lacrosse as the premier Canadian game, was marred by the slugging Beacham and his equally proficient teammate, "Buck" Oliver at inside home. Oliver clouted little Harte over the head in an unprovoked attack that should have warranted his expulsion from the game for the rest of the season, nothing less. "Inside" rough stuff is reprehensible, but the deliberate maiming of good players has an additional crudeness about it that requires no ability at lacrosse to get away with.

Lovegrove, Ganton and McKinnon in midfield played a great game for the Motor town. Old "Bill" Clapper was also often in the limelight, and Cook and Sarles showed up well. Graham has to be pampered with perfect passes before he will condescend to try for them. Apparently he and Oliver are regarded as the snipers of the Oshawa home, but on Saturday's performance they had nothing on Lovegrove and Ganton. The team as a whole was good and and bad in spots. The last quarter was pie to them, and the crowd relished it.

Was Well Handled.

W. R. Harcourt and Chas. Parkinson, of Toronto, handled the game impartially. During the first half the spectators, most of those who occupied the seats on the field reserved for officials, grilled the referee and judge of play continuously ffor the penalties handed out to the home players. Oshawa's relief in the second period was expressed by a club official who remarked, "This is the first time I have breathed easily." They admitted that Campbellford were better than other teams that had visited Oshawa this season, including several senior teams.

Campbellford Loyal.

Campbellford's people were loyal to the last. Dick Cole had a following of upwards of 150 or more who had motored all the way, including Mayor Meyers, Reeve Davidson, C. E. Wragg of the Light and Water Commission, Councillor J. R. Wilkinson and a lot of business men. There were also quite a number of ladies who made the trip. Naturally they were down-hearted at the blasting of their championship hopes, but the circumstances mitigated their disappointment.

The Teams.

The First Quarter.

Both teams started fast from the drop of the hat. Only a few minutes of jockeying to locate each other and they were away. Bill Clapper got the ball from Lovegrove's draw and passed to Graham. Alexander relieved. Ganton missed a pass going in. Montgomery recovered for Campbellford and passed out to Jacobs. Nesbitt's throw was a trifle high for Harte. Oliver's shot was stopped by Kelly and Clapper's went wild. Thomas, Jacobs and Johnston showed a nice combination, but Oshawa held them out. Lovegrove drew the first penalty. Thomas stopped Ganton's rush and at the other end Kerr took a swift pass from Johnston and was clear through the defense. His shot missed by inches, Ganton ran nearly the length of the field but Nesbitt ended his flight. Pete Johnston shot dead on the net from inside, but Jacques turned it aside. Beacham cracked Thomas over the ankle. "Big Tom" went down in a heap and out fro the rest of the game, just as it was warming up. Beacham's deliberate blow disrupted Campbellford's defense quite noticeably. It was raw work right in front of Harcourt, who penalized Beacham, but even under the rules the offense and its effectis were altogethes disproportionate to the penalty. Play hadn't stopped, and Kerr scored a pretty goal from inside. As he was shooting, some one gashed him over the right eye. The game was delayed until his head was bandaged. Sarles lent off with Thomas for the rest of the period. Oliver was benched next and the Oshawa crowd were howling imprecations at the officials.

Lovegrove went on again, found a wide open lane through the right defense to Campbellford's goal, took Graham's pass from the left and dumped the ball behind Kelly. It was easy. The defense in covering up, left Lovegrove unchecked and he went through fast. Ganton came right back, but Kelly blocked. The next play was characteristic of Campbellford's style, the whole forward line handling the ball. Harte took a bullet pass from Kerr and shot. Jarques cleared splendidly. With Oliver and Beacham off, Campbellford did not pres stheir advantage as they should have done. McKinnon and Lovegrove carried the ball in, but Lovegrove's shot missed. Jacques again showed his best wares when he blocked a shot from Nesbitt's stick at close quarters. The bench was empty again. Kelly stopped a shot from Graham, McKinnon broke up a Campbellford attack, passed to Graham to Oliver. Kelly saved. Cook intercepted a pass from Harte, and Nesbitt stopped Ganton. Kerr scored Campbellford's second goal on a pass from Harte. The ball was handled sharply and fast. Campbellford had decidedly the better of this period. Both goalers were repeatedly under fire, but Jacques drew the most of it and only his brilliant stops kept the visitors' score down to two goals. The crowd crabed in chorus throughout the session. Campbellford's play in this quarter had the whole Oshawa outfit scared from water boy up.

Second Quater.

Sarles was back in the game with Sanders substituting for Thomas. From the face-off Oshawa went straight in end Lovegrove scored on a pass from Graham, tieing the score at two all. Twenty seconds sufficed for that goal. Lovegrove's shot was a low, underhand sweep. Harte and Johnston broke through Oshawa's defense but Jacques blocked cleverly. Ganton, Graham and McKinnon carried the ball through Campbellford's defense, but Ganton's shot mised. Jacques stopped one from Jacobs. Beacham and Jacobs drew ten minutes for mixing it. Kelly cleared a fast one from Sarles and a moment later stopped Ganton's, both looked dangerous shots. Oshawa were pressing hard at this stage and Kelly was kept busy. "Buck" Oliver rolled over in front of the press bench, but from no cause visible from the side line nor to Referee Harcourtfi who was on top of eree Harcourt, who was on top of the panning the crowd gave him. Art Warwick's protestations and a "close up" of the alleged injury. A few minutes later Oliver's shot on a pass from Graham went over the net.

Montgomery was benched for hitting an Oshawa man on the head. It was a trivial tap, but contrary to the new rule. Oshawa camped around Kelly's net with most of their team up on the line. Alexander went off for hitting Oliver, leaving in action only Barney Gannon of Campbellford's regular defence. Alex Graham finally put Oshawa in the lead for the first time with a pretty shot. Lovegrove and Ganton were in again, but Ganton's shot went over.

"Now we've got 'em," yelled Oshawa's crowd, but Campbellford managed to finish the period without further loss. Kelly stopped one from Beacham. Ganton, Graham and Lovegrove carried it in. Lovegrove unloosed another grass-cutter, but Kelly brushed it out. He ran out of his goal relieving and before he had returned Harte made a fine save, picking out a bounding shot dead on. Campbellford rallied and Kerr had a chance well inside, but missed.

Third Period.

With both Kelly and Thomas off Campbellford's supporters despaired of winning. The game ended for them at half time. Cliff Weston, who took up lacrosse for the first time this year, was "Dot" Phelan's choice for Kelly's place, a position in which he had no experience whatever. At that he did well. But the visitors were disorganized and were fighting against fate. From the face-off, Clapper carried the ball in and passed to Graham who returned it, and from a scrimmage in front of the net, Clapper rolled a slow one into the net. Weston hadn't a chance. Graham replacing Nesbitt, tried to rush the Oshawa fence ,but was smothered. He went in again with Kerr and Johnston but missed. Graham's try was wide. Clapper shot a fast one to Oliver who whiffed it past Weston, making the score 5 to 2. While Graham was off Johnston, Kerr and Harte breezed through Oshawa's defense. Harte took a fast one from Kerr and beat Jacques with a lob from outside the crease. Beacham broke up another Campbellford attack. Weston blocked three shots and Jacques ran out of his goal to intercept a pass Kerr meant for Harte. Weston stopped one from Graham as the bell rang.

Final Quarter.

Facing a situation in which scarcely a gleam of hope remained, Campbellford put Graham in goal and Nesbitt back in the line. It was an ineffective shift. Oshawa had practically the whole of the play and were continuously on the offensive. The spirit of the crowd, with a gratuitous advantage in their favor, improved by Mr. Beacham's early "go-getting," showed itself in their clamor for a big score. A team of cripples out there would have stirred them to ecstasies. Lovegrove made the prettiest play of the day on a swift pass from Oliver, who shot it out from behind Campbellford's goal. With one motion Lovegrove made the catch and shot a low one ankle high into the net. Ganton bored in for Oshawa's seventh. Graham got the next, and Alexander went off for hitting him. Campbellford hung on to the end.. Oliver trying to bump his way through was checked strenuously, apparently by Gannon. At any rate Harcourt penalized Gannon. When Oliver delivered the ball he swung his stick twice on the head of the nearest man, who happened to be Lloyd Harte. Throwing down his stick he made a pass at Harte, who is not half Oliver's size. Harte invariably plays the ball and not the man. Words passed between them and Oliver held out his hand as a peace offering, but Harte flung it aside. The officials evidently missed this incident in attending to Gannon. It was worse than beacham's ham-stringing Thomas. Ganton and Sarles scored Oshawa's last two goals. Beacham ended the game on the penalty bench for a deliberate trip, and called it a day.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—(Canadian Press) Several women who heretofore have not appeared in connection with the charge of murder on file here against Roscoe C. (Fatty) Arbuckle, screen comedian, were questioned today by District Atorney Matthew Brady and his assistants.

Until Brady announces the results of yesterdays conference with the women, it will not be known whether they will appear as witnesses against Arbuckle. Their names were not made public.

Arbuckle spent a quiet Sunday in the jail cell which has been his residence since a week ago last night when he was arrested on a charge of murdering Miss Virginia Rappe, motion picture actress, who died, according to accusers of Arbuckle, after a drinking party in his hotel suite here and as a result of mistreatment by her host.

Arbuckle will remain in his cell until Thursday when his preliminary examination begins on a murder complaint which was sworn to by Mrs. Bambina Maude Delmont, a member of the party in the actor's rooms.

The Age of Electricity

Thirty years ago the uses of electricity were few and obscure.

To-day electricity is the force which quickens the energy and lightens the burdens of industrial and domestic life. With 5,000 practical uses, electricity is replacing steam as a motive force in industry and transportation. It joins communities and continents by the telephone and wireless. It performs marvels in science. It lightens household tasks.

And we have just begun. The future will show us a world largely electrified.

Technical skill, research and many years of experience in the electrical manufacturing industry have made this progress possible. The manufacture and installation of electrical machinery and equipment has become one of the world's most important industries.

Electrical development within the British Empire is inseparably associated with the English Electric Company Limited, of Great Britain. In America the products of the Canadian Crocker-Wheeler Company, Limited, have been in use for over a decade.

The English Electric Company of Canada, Limited, combines in one organization the broad experience and resources of these two pioneers. It will take a prominent part in supplying electrical demands.

Investors are now being offered an opportunity to share in the development of this industry. Write for full particulars

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(Canadian Press). — Heavy buying of United States Steel dominated early trading on the Stock Exchange to-day. A block of 4,600 shares changed hands at a gain of 1¼ points. Crucible Steel, Mexican Petroleum, General Asphalt, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western and Virginia Carolina Chemical were among other strong stocks.

Baldwin more than recovered its loss in the first hour. Lackawanna, Republic, Vanadium and Sloss-Sheffield were added to the list of Steels. Tire shares were active and higher, but Motors and kindred issues made little headway. Food products, however, re-acted to a new low record after its early rally of 1½ points. There was little demand for rails. Call money opened at five per cent., but fell to 4½ on the very light demand.

Studebaker, Endicott-Johnson, International Paper and Allied Chemical, Common and Preferred, were higher by 1¼ to 2 points during the mid-session. Among prominent Steels, Equipments and Oils, however, profit-taking resulted in reactions of one to 1½ points.

With these two excentions, no leaders were traded in during the early part of this morning's session.

HOW WALL STREET, FINANCIAL CENTER, GOT ITS NAME.

If there had not been war between Holland and England there is no telling what would have been the name of Wall Street. The financial center of America might have borne any other name and have been just as powerful as it is.

The wall that gave to it its name was put up by Peter Stuyvesant. The old peg-legged autocrat had his own intelligence service and he became convinced that the New England and Connecticut colonies were going to attack him. His town north of the fort was unprotected, and he threw a wooden wall from the East to the North Rivers. It was built of logs that were used as palisades with the upper end spiked.

Stuyvesant's information was correct, because Connecticut was very anxious to go to war and had become satisfied Indian outrages were being instigated by the Dutch. There was a meeting at Fairfield, near Bridgeport, where men were pledged for the attack on the Dutch. Massachusetts held off, and the next year Holland and England made peace.

But the old wooden wall stood for a half century and cramped the growth of the town. There was a ditch alongside it, and at night the gate was closed and bolted and guarded.

PRIMARY CLASS ANNUAL TREAT

Children Held a Party on the Grounds of All Saints' Church.

The annual treat for the primary Sunday school classes of All Saints' church took place on Saturday afternoon. This usually takes the form of a ride on the street cars and picnic at Jackson Park, but the Peterborough Fair and the weather interfered with this programme last week, so the children had a jolly afternoon at the grounds adjoining All Saints' church. Here about 50 of them romped and ran races during the afternoon, followed by the serving of sumptuous refreshments of ice cream, cake and candy, provided by members of the congregation. Miss Clara Cairns, assisted by Isabel Connolley and Betty Arthurs, superintended activities, and a great deal of the success of the afternoon was due to the efforts of Messrs. George, Chandler and Will Barry.

CHURCH SERVICES AT MARK STREET

The anniversary services held at Mark Street on Sunday were very successful. Mr. Boorman and the choir are to be congratulated on the music of the day, which was much enjoyed.

Rev. Ernest Harston, of Camborne, was the preacher of the day, and delivered two able discourses. In the morning Mr. Harston preached on "Esau's Sale of His Birthright." The sermon was carefully and thoughtfully prepared, full of the richness of Divine truth, and delivered with an earnestness quite foreign to much of the academic style of present-day preaching. With his own soul on fire, the preacher sought to warm and cheer and bless others, and he did not fail. In the evening the subject was "Service," and was a masterly deliverance. Mr. Harston was quite at home with his subject. It was quite evident that the preacher's basket was filled with the "Bread of God," fresh from the hand of Christ. What a pity that the hungry and famishing crowd cannot, or will not, find their way to where such men "feed the flock of God." Mark Street pastor and congregation will welcome Mr. Harston again at any time.

TONE IN A PIANO

Various elements enter into the manufacture of a high-grade piano such as that bearing the name of Heintzman & Co., Limited, George and Hunter Streets, Peterborough. The architectural design carries its influence with any purchaser, but after all it is the tone of the piano that is the great deciding quality with anyone who knows what tone means to a piano. The world's great artists have spoken in highest commendation of the tone of the Heintzman & Co. piano. Jan Cherniavsky, who used a Heintzman & Co. piano in his Canadian tours, as also in other parts of the world, has said of the Heintzman & Co. piano: "I attribute a great deal of my success to the facility with which the emotions are expressed by the perfect response and brilliant tone of your piano." It was a Heintzman & Co. piano that was used by the Cherniavsky Brothers, not only in Toronto, but also in South Africa and Australia.

PEACE LEAGUE HAS COMPLETED GENERAL DEBATE

DISCUSSION LASTED TWO WEEKS —SIX ACCEPTANCES FROM JUDGES.

GENEVA, Sept. 17th.—(Canadian Press.)—General debate on the work of the League was completed by the Assembly of the League of Nations yesterday. The delegates applauded vigorously the announcement, that the discussions which had filled two weeks, were ended. The Assembly will take a recess until it is called together to hear the report of the various committees, some of which will be ready early next week.

Organization of the International Court of Justice is now the centre of interest in League circles. Confirmation of Judge F. V. N. Beichmann of Norway as the fourth deputy judge of the court and receipt of acceptances from six of the eleven judges selected Wednesday were the outstanding features of the day in this connection. The selection of Judge Beichmann by a joint conference committee, after the Assembly and Council of the League has failed to agree, was made and approved by the Assembly on the fourth ballot. The Council voted unanimously in favor of his selection.

Judges Accept.

The six judges who have notified the secretariat of the League that will serve are John Bassett Moore of the United States; Dr. Antonio S. Debustamente, of Cuba; Viscount Robert Finlay, of Great Britain; Dr. B. T. C. Loder, of Holland; Dr. Andre Weiss, of France, and Dr. Max Huber, of Switzerland.

Judge Moore's message of acceptance read:

"Telegram received. I accept with due sense of the honor and responsibility."

Viscount Finlay responded simply: "I accept."

Dr. Debustamente said: "I accept with gratitude and ask you to transmit to the Council and the Assembly my sincerest thanks."

Dr. Loder wired: "I accept with pleasure," and Dr. Weiss sent a similar message. The Swiss representative, Dr. Huber, accepted by letter.

John Bassett Moore, Elihu Root, Justice George Gray and Oscar S. Straus, American members of the Permanent International High Tribunal of Arbitration at The Hague have wired the League secretariat, explaining why their organization had refrained from nominating any candidate for the International Court of Justice.

"Considering that our appointments by the President of the Tribunal of Arbitration was under The Hague Convention of 1907, to perform functions contemplated in the Convention," said the message, "and that your invitations for judges under the new Permanent Court of International Justice is under another treaty, to which the United States is not a party, and in respect of which no authority has been conferred on us, we reluctantly have reached the conclusion that we are not entitled to make official nominations for the new court. We exceedingly regret that announcement of this conclusion has been unavoidably delayed."

GENERAL BUSINESS ON THE UP-GRADE

WEEKLY TRADE REPORT REVEALS IMPROVED CONDITIONS IN CANADA.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press.)—While the general trend of business throughout the Dominion is upward manufacturers and wholesalers in the east more particularly, are on the quiet side, having completed their sorting orders and sufficient placing orders having failed to materialize, states the weekly trade report of the Canadian Creditmen's Trust Association issued today.

Toronto advices state that business is mostly of a sorting up character in all lines, hardware and allied lines being fairly good. In the manufacturing trade a number of firms are shut down or partially operating only—this with regard to engineering and machine shops. Ladies' and men's wear manufacturers are not doing much business in staple lines, specialties fairly good though. "Sorting up" appears to be the main character of the business. Retail trade is fair to quiet and collections unsatisfactory.

Montreal and Quebec province reports say that manufacturers in clothing report improvement, likewise boot and shoe manufacturers of high grade lines. In general the wholesale trade in this province report gradual improvement and while orders are not large, they are plentiful. Retail trade fair. Collections fair to slow. Twelve district failures this week.

Winnipeg and Manitoba advices show orders on the increase from country points and wholesalers consequently more busy. This applies to dry goods, boots and shoes and underwear. Hardware business mostly confined to small goods. Retailers report business improved. A big "shoppers' exposition," organized by the retail trade, with the object of comparing present prices with these of 1920 is about to take place. Collections slow.

Regina and Saskatoon reports state that there is an increased demand by retailers, especially in groceries. Wholesalers holding up until harvest reports come in after recent wet weather. Retail trade is, however, spotty, picking up rapidly in some places and slow in others. Collections slow.

Alberta business is keeping up well, considering poor crops in South which, however, seem compensated by big crops up north. Dry goods, fruit and groceries busy but other lines very quiet.

600TH ANNIVERSARY.

MONTREAL, Sept. 19.— (Canadian Press.) —Commemoration of the 600th anniversary of the death of Dante, the great Italian poet, was celebrated here yesterday under the auspices of various Italian societies and under the patronage of the Italian consul general.

An Autumn Suit or Coat

We believe the time has come when women must look to their wardrobe and ascertain just what cool weather apparel is required.

We look in the wardrobes of our store with pride and satisfaction, for they are filled with garments of one sort or another that are rich in color, correct in style and perfect in workmanship.

We know every store makes the same claim, BUT THIS STORE CAN PRODUCE THE MERCHANDISE, and it does not stop there, It Stands Behind Every Garment After It Is Sold.

The Label of The Cressman Co., Ltd., on a garment is a guarantee of good style, long service and perfect satisfaction.

The New and Beautiful in Suits

For the woman who can wear blue and particularly the new Ensign shade we present a suit of broadcloth. The flare cuffs are of grey squirrel and so is the novelty chocker collar. The back is trimmed with darts of heavy rope embroidery, touched with a silver thread and this trimming is repeated beneath the pockets. A narrow strap belt gathers in the slight looseness of the coat, and the lining is a grey pussy willow. Priced at $98.50.

To many the semi-tailored suit of navy serge makes a strong appeal. The coat is 3/4 length, with three welted folds on each side of the back and each is patterned with silk stitching and finished with crowtacks. A notched collar completes the tailored effect and the string belt contributes to the semi-tailored appearance. The lining is a fancy pussy willow. Priced at $72.

Coats! Different—Quite Different

But Beautiful Beyond a Doubt

This coat embodies much to admire because of its style, and promises to keep one warm. It is of a superb fabric—Nubian brown Normandy. The back blouses and is embroidered with sand and taupe, colored silk threads and a narrow belt restricts its fulness. Its crowning glory is the large collar of genuine plucked beaver, and the deep flare cuffs are finished with the same. Both lined and interlined throughout. Priced at $135.

A voluminous model with a decided flare is of Ensign blue velour. All around it is patterned with scrolls of a gold thread that are partly obscured by the deep rich pile of the fabric. Blue grey squirrel forms the collar and cuffs, and in no small way contributes to its luxurious appearance. Priced at $132.

Right Here, in the Midst of All the Talk About These Garments, Is a Good Place

To Mention Corsets

Do you look for well-known names like WARNER'S or NEMO—which stand for attractiveness, long wear, comfort and fit—or do you allow your fancy to be caught by a pretty shade of materials?

The outside of a corset—like the outside of a jacket—tells nothing of the wearability. It is the Inside—the quality of the goods you don't see, and the fashioning of each individual part—which adds to or detracts from the wear.

Warner's Rust-proof Corsets are just as good after several months' wear, because they are made of rust-proof steel and fabrics of tested and proven worth.

No matter what strain you put on a Warner's Rust-proof—and every bend and twist and turn of your body is a strain on a corset—it will hold its shape, giving you smart, clean-cut lines, ease and comfort.

Warner's Rust-proof Corsets are designed and fashioned by America's foremost experts. They are built for wear and service; they give both, month after month, without developing breaks, rips or tears; because every part is of equal strength, consistent with the strain put upon it.

A Warner's Rust-proof wears evenly. When you are ready to discard it, after months of comfortable, perfect-fitting service, it has worn out evenly.

Afternoon Frocks in Stately Array

The lovers of Canton crepe are many, and seldom is a finer example of its beauty to be seen. It is modelled on the straight, long-waisted order, and the back is relieved by triangles of white crystal beads that are not quite waist high and go all round, and from which fall a wide twelve-inch black fringe. The sleeves are 3/4 length and flare out smartly because of the deep pleating that forms the cuff, and above which is a pattern of the white beads. The neck is round and collarless. Moderately priced at $59.

All shimmery and rich looking is one of black charmeuse, with the skirt draped with a black silk filet net, and the short sleeves are formed of the same. You will find the bodice pleasingly arranged in semi-basque fashion, and finished with black nail head trimming and cire ribbon looped at the left side. Priced at $59.

A triumph of georgette is accomplished by a beige under-dress veiled with brown georgette patterned with inset scrolls of beige and outlined with heavy brown rope-like stitching which appears mid-way between the waist and hem, and the same treatment is used to finish the short sleeves. A girdle of beige and gold ribbon loops and bows at the side. It is priced at $75.

Other Afternoon Frocks commencing at $27.75.

Autumn Blouses

Some Spirited in Style and Vivid in Color

To the devotee of the separate skirt and blouse the new mode brings much that is interesting and pleasing. Without the dimming of a single detail of their loveliness, the new blouses seem to have become more wearable and serviceable than in other seasons. Mandarin effects in style give opportunity for rich oriental embroideries, solid color Georgette blouses have gilets of contrasting tone, plaited overblouses, some very long, are two-toned and infinitely graceful.

Striking is this overblouse of georgette with its upper portion of beige and lower of Nubian brown. Connecting the two is a diamond-shaped pattern of rust and henna outlined with brown silk stitching. Priced at $16.50.

With Paris one immediately associates such a blouse because of its frilly appearance. It is of orchid georgette, with an accordion pleated fischu that is edged with Pekin blue with picot edged points. A similar finish appears on the tuxedo collar and cuffs. Priced at $13.75.

Splendid Clothing Display By Merrell and Meredith

The glad hand was extended to many old friends and customers of the well known Clothing firm of Merrel and Meredith who made a smart fashion display of new fall garments for men. The exhibit was cosily located in the south-west section of the Main building under the courteous attention of one of the expert salestaff of the firm.

This exhibit was a striking expression of smart dependable men's Fall clothing. No tailor could but admire the clever designs, workmanship and material. It was an miniature reflex of the quality and grade of clothing from the main store at No. 369 Gearge street so long and favorably established in Peterboro. Very swagger models were shown of form fitting and box back suits, designed especially for young men in two button effects from pure wool materials. A fashionable top coat was shown for fall and light wear, made of fine covered cloth, silk lined splendidly adapted for its wearing and weather staying qualities. The authorative Full Dress outfit was featured with a style and faultlesness that appeal to the fashionable dresser Designs of Ulsters, Ulsterettes and Overcoats made a good impression in this exhibit consisting of exquisite patterns of latest fall and winter designs. The styles of Ulsterettes to be worn this fall were abundantly depicted for smart dress. Tailored in various neat shades of warm wool blanket cloth silk lined with tweed. Ulsters and Fall Overcoats of All-Wool-Cloth, expertly tailored that count for good service were shown, all lined in handsome linings and modern ideas. In the back ground of this exhibit was shown samples of fine wool suitings for Fall outfits including high quality serges and other material in the new patterns for this season. These are what we used to be made up to order in the custom tailored department of the firm in latest fashionable effects.

The exhibit was enchanced by a massive plate glass mirror in the centre, decorated with rich hangings and floral effects, also a handsome lighted dome in colored effect surmounting another large mirror which filled one end of the display.

There were also shown samples of the new style fall hats, gloves hosiery and other haberdashery for business travel, sport and society wear.

It was learned that prices are entirely revised and lower for Fall to meet the present market.

ALFRED McDONALD LUMBER COMPANY.

In this section one saw an exceedingly creditable exhibit of woodcraft from plain and ornate doors and windows sash up to the higher grades of wood turning for ornamental posts and elaborate light floor stands, together with exquisite scroll creation. There were also splendid samples of hardwood flooring, siding, ceiling, panneling and shingles, stands and tables—in fact, of most product in the manufacture of which lumber enters, the whole commendable showing, from log to finish emanating from the Alfred McDonald Lumber Co., Limited, of Peterborough. Including Brantford roofing, this tastefully displayed section offered the fullest measure of interest to lovers of good homes, builders and other users of lumber utilities, besides demonstrating the growing importance to Peterborough of this long-established and expanding industry. "Service"—in material, in planning and delivery—is this firm's business slogan.

THE CAMPBELL FLOUR MILLS COMPANY.

A touch of commendable benevolence enveloped this company's section in its generous exhibit of cakes and bread made from the Campbell Flour Mills' products by bakers Potvin, Coleman Bros., Boorman, Grady, Gilgour, the Veterans' Bakery and Dawson Bros., all of which inviting samples of skilful baking creation from purity flour were donated to the Children's Shelter and St. Vincent's Orphanage, where for some little time orphaned and home-neglected little ones will exclaim "Yum, yum!" as they indulge in the gastronomical delights of wheat cookery.

This section presented a veritable display picture of interest-holding qualty, where commendable taste had been demonstrated in its catchy arrangement and design of pyramided bags of Monarch and Cream of the Wheat flour, in company with Monarch hog, dairy and chicken feed—all for a back setting to appetizing bread and dainty cakes galore, surrounded by our national colors and summit-crowned with a galaxy of colorful flour trade mark labels. In this scenic effect contrived with staple edibles there were just four dozen tempting layer cakes, rich in their top-dressing of tasty icing in varied colors and decorative patterns. Those baked by Potvin bore the mottoes, "Peterborough Exposition," "Our Banner Year," "Monarch Flour" and "Strength and Purity," while the cakes made by the Colemans carried for a top lettering "Campbell Flour Mills Company" Above these foreground ornately display cakes there hung with arresting force a huge oblong loaf, in dimension 4½ feet, one foot at its widest point.

Then there were also in abundant evidence bread in all shapes and weights, including 10 and 12-lb. choice specimens of loaves, baked by Grady, Gilgour, Boorman, Dawson Bros. and the Veterans' Bakery, all from Cream of the West flour. In this connection John Grady's quota to the collection consisted of cream and ordinary loaves in cottage, twists and other moulds, which offered a whiteness of interior and crispness of crust, always characterizing the finest bread. In fact, our local bakers had excelled themselves for this showing.

Manager Hicks and Superintendent Fair for the Campbell Flour Mills Co. together with the bakers named, are to be congratulated on the unqualified success of their efforts in demonstrating here bread products of "Cream of the West" flour and cake delicacies from "Monarch" flour, both of which offer a combination of purpity, flavor, strength and fineness for producing satisfying culinary results.

HENSLEY'S HEATING AND PLUMBING DISPLAY.

This was a striking and practical exhibit, and one which attracted very general attention. It was conspicuously located in the crowded thoroughfare of the annex, off the Main building, and was represented daily by Mr. E. Hensley personally.

The enameled plumbing fixtures shown were splendid types of what can be produced in Canada in this line, being made at the home factories of the Port Hope Sanitary Manufacturing Co., Limited.

There was shown a very superior type of porcelain bath, called the "Pembroke" bath, five foot in size, with quick acting compression valves, new fittings and indexed china handles. Also a porcelain sink, with fittings, a one-piece lavatory with square pedestal, a porcelain enameled sink, and a "Pussy-foot' closet. Each fixture is made from a complete casting properly finished with enamel, snowy white in appearance, brilliant in its lustre, and of a lasting and permanent quality. All fixtures are guaranteed. A visit to Mr. Hensley's showrooms at No. 444 George street, will secure every information necessary for the equipment for an entire building.

The Pease "Economy" Furnace was also shown by Mr. Hensley, who holds the Peterborough agency, and who will be glad to describe thoroughly the many leading features embodied in these furnaces. The Pease has a Dominion reputation for warm air, combination hot water or steam heating, and possesses many special features new to the public. The Pease furnace is not only a necessity but a permanent investment.

A unique novelty was also shown in this exhibit of a simple water system, to be used without a tank. It is known as the "Western Pump," a direct automatic pumping system, which gives to rural and farm homes, country estates, etc., all the comforts of a good city water supply at reasonable cost. Farmers were much interested in this display.

CANADIAN WOOLLENS EXHIBIT.

It is safe to say that few visitors to the Peterborough Exhibition passed through the Manufacturers' Building without finding their attention riveted for awhile on the section of the Canadian Woollens Limited, where Made-in-Peterborough woollen yarns and finished fabrics for men's and women's wear, both in super-quality of texture and refinement of pattern, invited inquiry with impelling force. And here it is worthy of notice that coincident with our exhibition's progress, the Canadian Woollens' enterprise is also progressively marked, not only in building expansion, but also from acknowledgment by many leading Canadian clothing manufacturers that their products are in the same class as similar goods heretofore exclusive to English manufacture, which cannot be excelled.

The exhibit was attractively designed, and displayed with commendable effect generous weaves of cloths, with a charming color-brightening here and there of altogether lovely woollen scarves, rich in texture and liberal in proportion;; also varied shades of warm sweater coats—the whole combining in an exquisite galaxy of made-at-home cloths and clothing, not forgetting handsome Brussels rugs with which this section's floor was covered, and with the manufacture of which Canadian Woollen's yarn had appreciably entered.

Not to be prolix, this instructive exhibit carried its visitor through the manufacture of wear for both sexes in respect to material, from woollen yarn to finished products ready for the making, including velours, heavy cloakings, suitings in cotton warp, pin-stripe effect, pin-stripe patterns in velours, samples of men's spring wear made from highest grade woollen yarns, homespuns, ladies' skirtings in fancy stripe and plaid design, and lovely hena velour for ladies' suits or overcoats.

Two outstanding features which held the ladies' eyes in rapt attention were a handsome, comfy, grey brush wool scarf with softly blending purple and fawn bordering, the whole terminating in deeply tasselled ends of own color and material; and a fascinating silk and wool skirt in hena shade, a garment reflecting refined elegance both in texture and creation. The scarf was manufactured by the Cornell Knitting Co., the skirt by the Albion Knitting Co., both of this city, and from the Canadian Woollen's material product.

Incidentally, it is noteworthy that all dyeing and finishing of Peterborough Canadian Woollens' products is done at their Auburn mills, where they make a specialty of that velvet finish in quality par excellence and in demand commendingly popular.

WESTCLOX—EXHIBIT.

How many of the hundreds of visitosr to the Manufacturers' Building, whose interest was keenly aroused by the striking exhibit of Western Clock Co., Limited, Peterboro, understand the scope and the magnitude of this enterprising firm's operations and connection. And undoubtedly few, when admiring the beauty of finish and mechanical utility of the small army of clocks and watches there so forcefully displayed, paused to think that that before them they saw samples of Peterborough products, made by the biggest manufacturers of alarm clocks in the whole world. The globe-trotter comes across these clocks in all quarters of civilization, and semi-civilization—in Great Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South America, South African, Europe, China, Japan and the South Sea Isles, while among the clocks featured the company make a special "Big Ben Alarm" for Korea, bearing a Korean dial, luminous, and otherwise.

While located here in Peterborough but two years, the Western Clock Co., is no new concern, its parent headquarters at La Salle, Illinois, having been long-established, with substantial business connections on this continent and across the seas, both eastward and westward. And to-day the local Canadian factory on George street south, is in size quite inadequate for taking care of the ever-increasind demand upon its output, so much so that the company have already secured an option on a five acre site in East City, where they are optimistic of building new premises next year. While no definite plans to this end have matured, still this exapnsion will be made, if possible, before the ending of 1922.

The Peterboro factory has a growing market, in the West especially; and five large individually motor-driven presses are working continuously. Here all assembling is done, the metal exteriors of the cheaper watches and clocks are drawn, as also is all nickel-plating and lacquering; but the brass casings for the higher grade clocks have to be imported from the parent factory, there being no room here in the Peterboro building for installing the powerful machine needed for drawing heavy brass clock exteriors.

In the last six months the Peterborough factory has added four new departments — for casting, nickel-plating, buffing, and for a power press; sixty people are steadily employed, and it is gratifying to note that despite the present universal depression, no reduction in staff has been found necessary, and Superintendent J. H. Vernor is exceedingly hopeful from present indications of running full time the coming winter.

The exhibit at the Exhibition comprised a varied assortment of Westclox timepieces, Big Bens, Baby Bens, Bingos, Bunkies, Jack o' Lanterns, Sleep-Meters, the handsome ironclad Heavy Weight, and Pocket Bens—all resplendent in perfectly polished nickel plate, some with luminous dials that glow in the dark, with alarms which cannot be denied, and works generally built for giving a maximum of service and accuracy. This section offered a showing of made in Canada goods really worth while to visitors, and representing the products of an industry also worth while to the community as a whole.

QUICK-LITE.

J. J. Turner & Sons offered an illuminating exhibit composed of samples of Coleman Quick-Lite lanterns and table and floor stand lamps in varied design, of substantial build, and impressively displayed. The specialty featured here were other accused asked for an adjournment until Monday next. In the case of F. G. Sullivan it was contended that he had not received the letter containing the income tax notice. Constable Stratton stated that he had found Mr. Sullivan at home on Rural Route No. 1, Ennismore, but Mr. Gordon argued that the officer's knowledge as to the R. R. No. was only what some one had told him. Furthermore there was no letter box in front of Mr. Sullivan's home without which there could be no agreement with the government for the delivery of mail to that seen no mail box there.

Constable Stratton said he had seen no mail box there.

Mr. Gordon contended that there was no evidence that the letter had been mailed except an affidavit which he argued, was not conclusive.

"That affidavit does not swear the letter was mailed," he stated. "It says that according to the record the letter was sent out. It has been in a slipshod way and no man can be charged under a penal statute on an affidavit of hearsay. There is no mail delivery at this farm which indicates that Mr. Sullivan is not on a rural mail route and that the letter was sent to a wrong address."

Mr. McElderry said that the affidavit was as clear and succinct as it could be. "As appears from the records under my charge," he read, stating that this was the only form under which the affidavit could have been made. He pointed out that Constable Stratton had been directed to R. R. No. 1 when delivering the summons to Mr. Sullivan.

Adjournment was granted for a week to enable the presentation of further evidence, if it were obtainable, showing whether or not the letter in question had been delivered. Mr. Gordon pointed out that it was an easy matter for mistakes to be made in postal delivery, and that in its case it was possible that the letter was given to a boy who went to a ball game and forgot all about his message.

Was in Manitoba.

Richard Darling, aged 82 years, stated that he was in Manitoba in 1920 and did not receive a notice from the Income Tax Department. According to the affidavit submitted by Mr. McElderry the letter was dated October 1, 1920.

This case with that of Joseph Harrison of Lakehurts and also of P. C. Sullivan and Garret Sullivan, was also adjourned until Monday next.

A SEPTEMBER OPENING

THE WHITEHOUSE & SONS' CHARMING PIANO SHOWROOMS TRANSFORMATION.

With a characteristic vision of the beautiful and true in harmony Mr. Whitehouse & Sons have demonstrated some of the potentialties lying behind an attractive music showroom. The formal opening of their newly re-modelled premises at 118 1-2 Hunter street, a splendid testimony to their artiste decorative taste.

Saturday last visitors were emphatic in their expressions of this pretty and refined apartment. Ladies discussed the chic attractiveness and new features of interior, and the picturesque setting of instruments displayed for the occasion. The outcome of the radical change made from the former cramped quarters, won the admiration of all. It is delightfully becoming, charmingly adaptable, and effective for the occasions for which it is designed. Nothing could be suggested to improve its softly decorative coloring and finish. The designs are graceful and artistic and conform to the best thought bestowed upon it.

The new addition extends back fourteen feet, giving a greater area for display, as well as affording room for a well furnished business office, vault and a well designed concealed lavatory. The color scheme is a light cream for ceiling and walls and stucco finish combined. The light is efficient and subdued and the wall decorations selected are gems of appropriate merit. The wood work is done in enamelled white and the interior glass is prettily designed and frosted.

In the show rooms, interest is centered on the beautiful and Nordheimer Grand, which has been admired by many city professional musicians. It bore a sales card with intimation that it had been sold to one of our well known lady musicians, Miss Palmer of this city. There were also shown several splendid types of Nordheimer and Haines pianos, together with several beautiful Aeolian-vocalion instruments in handsome cabinet effects, including a new art design with exclusive Aeolian features.

A very choice selection of new military brand records of English manufacture, just imported by Nordheimer and Co., were sent in by hat firm in honor of the occasion.

TELEGRAPHED TO LLOYD GEORGE

LONDON, Sept. 19. —(Canadian Press.) — Eamon De Valera telegraphed to Lloyd George to-day in response to the Premier's last message, asking whether Lloyd George's letter of Sept. 7th was intended as a demand for surrender on our part or an invitation to conference free on both sides and without prejudice should an agreement not be reached.

De Valera says that if the latter is meant Sinn Fein confirms its acceptance of invitation to conference.

BELFAST, Sept. 19.— (Canadian Press.)—The Vere street district was to-day placed under special curfew regulations as a result of the recent disturbances there. Persons found on the streets of the district between the hours of 5.30 p.m. and 5.30 a.m. will be arrested.

the Coleman Arc Lanterns, which make their own gas from gasoline and are safe in any position. They give 300 candle power wanite illumiantion and wind can't blow them out. Made of brass they last a lifetime, light without matches, have nicked plated reflectors, mica chimneys and cannot spill or explode even if tipped over. They are also an economic light in that the cost per hour for burning is only three-quarters of a cent. And above all things, the principle of "Safety First" dominates their use.

PETERBOROUGH CANOES.

Lovers of aquatic sport and recreation found exceeding interest in a splendid exhibit of the far-famed Peterborough canoes and skiffs — suitable for motor-drive — manufactured by The Peterborough Canoe Company, Limited, this city. This showing of high-grade water craft demonstrated that strength, buoyancy, dependability and graceful lines are the outstanding qualities in all boats and canoes built by this enterprising local firm. They enjoy an enviable reputation both at home and abroad for prompt service in the manufacture of first-grade canoes, wood or canvas-covered, rowing and outboard motor skiffs, dinghys and motor craft. The name "Peterborough" stands for quality, and this local firm of boat-builders live up to it in every respect.

THE EXAMINER'S EXHIBIT.

An exhibit in the Manufacturers' Building which held interest measure full and overflowing was that by The Peterborough Examiner's Job Department. In part, this was a real practical demonstration of the art of printing, in which one saw actively operating the Vulcan power platen press, a veritable little wonder for printing envelopes automatically — that is to say, the last word in this line of machinery feeds itself and delivers the completed product without the aid of human agency. Such a labor-saving machine of super-speed, exclusive to the Examiner in this district, naturally cheapens to patrons the cost of envelope printing, and assures an accuracy not otherwise obtainable.

Other notable features of this exhibit were lovely specimens of the bookbinders' art — both in leather, cloth and exquisite finish—loose leaf work and binders of par excellence, quality and adaptability to business needs, ruling of every conceivable description, and general printing supplies ranking among the highest for all-round efficiency and beauty in design and correctness in execution.

DYING, KUHNS ADMITS MURDER OF MAN IN '98.

Haunted By Memory of Crime Ever Since, He Kept Secret Till Death Came to His Bed.

Story of the Slaying.

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich., Sept. 17.—Haunted by his guilt, D. S. Kuhns, of Boyne City, wandered about the country for 23 years, seeking in vain for relief from the memory of the shooting of Judge Roscoe Corbett, of this city, whose death came at Kuhns' hands, Nov. 7, 1898, through a misdirected rifle shot.

The haunting secret was kept by Kuhns until death came to his bedside a few days ago, when he told friends of the accident and thus cleared the mystery that surrounded the killing of the jurist in the woods near Ozark in the Upper Peninsula.

Judge Corbett and his son Charles were with a deer-hunting party near Ozark and Kuhns was one of the party. The day before the season opened the judge and his son were tracing roads when a shot rang through the woods and Judge Corbett fell, fatally wounded. His son ran for help and the judge was carried to the camp, where he died that night.

Became a Wanderer.

Investigations were carried on by members of the local bar association. Every member of the party was questioned, but no solution of the mysterious shot was found. Criminals who had been sentenced by the judge were traced, but those at liberty all had alibis. After a few months the mater was dropped.

Kuhns was never susected, but the remorse and regret over the accident made him a "Wandering Jew," who like the original in the myth kept on and on year after year from town to town seeking rest.

After he told of the shooting a statement was taken down by his friends and copies were sent to the widow of the judge and to Charles Corbett his son, both of this city.

"Worse Than Hell.

An excerpt from the letter to the son follows:

"He (Kuhns) was hunting to the right of you and did not know he was closed to the road. He said he saw a deer jump up and he fired at it while it was running. He heard someone call, but did not know it was for help, or that he had shot anyone. He followed the deer until late that night because he had wounded it. He was surprised when he arrived at camp and learned that your father was fatally wounded and where the accident had occurred.

"He said he well knew it was his bullet that had struck your father, but had tried to convince himself for all these years that it was not so, which was the mistake of his life and has made the worst of hell for him since that day. He said that this had never left his mind for an hour from that time, while he was awake, and if he had only told what he knew at that time it would have been so much easier for all."

EARLY THEORY OF PRODUCTION OF PEARLS

The earliest theory of the production of pearls was that they were congealed dew-drops. Another notion was that pearls were the eggs of oysters. The Chinese solved the problem and found that pearls are due to the irritation produced by the introduction of a foreign matter, such as a grain of sand, into the shell of the oyster. This bit of matter is coated by the oyster with nacre like that with which the shell is lined, and the result is a pearl.

The Chinese and Japanese carry on the artificial production of pearls to a considerable extent. The shells of the bivalve are separated gently and a small bit of mud or a tiny piece of lead is inserted under the flesh to serve as a nucleus for the pearl. The shell then closes and the oyster is placed carefully in a stream of water and fed on manure. After an interval of four years the shells are opened and the pearl, coated with nacre, are removed.

Pearls produced in this way are genuine and wholly natural. The process is started artificially, but is carried on by the oyster in a strictly normal and natural manner.

HOPEFUL IN AUSTRALIA

Financial and Industrial Outlook is Cause of Optimism

OTTAWA, Sept. 19.—(Canadian Press) Optimism in regard to Australia's financial and industrial outlook is signalled from Melbourne by Canadian Trade Commissioner D. H. Ross in Current and Commerce bulletin.

In matter of North American products, says Commissioner, Australian importers readily recognize advantage of securing supplies from Canada rather than the United States, as long as existing disparity in exchange continues, but on same ground obvious desire at present is to place orders where possible in United Kingdom.

INDIAN CHIEF FAMOUS AS GREAT RUNNER.

The father of Rain-in-the-Face decided, when the future Sioux chief was only a few years old, to make him a great runner. Of course he was to be a hunter and warrior as well; but in times of war, especially, it was necessary to send messages from one chief to another, and so, as with the ancient Greeks, young men were trained to run great distances.

Thus it happened that Rain-in-the-Face made a run that, in every particular except historical importance, makes that famous original Marathon seem like a rather tame affair. The runner who went from Marathon to Athens carried news of a great Greek victory, and fell dead. Rain-in-the-Face ran 300 miles in three days, on snow-shoes, to save his own skin, and lived to tell the tale. So at least declares Col. G. O. Shields, author of a number of books and lectures on our Indian tribes, in his volume on "Blanket Indian of the Northewst." The colonel knew the Indian chief in the days before Rain-in-the-Face led one part of that great Indian army which destroyed Custer and his troopers.

HAWAIIANS WERE "AVIATORS" CENTURIES AGO.

Thrills of flying were enjoyed by Hawaiians centuries before aviation was invented, according to stories told by natives of today. Their ancestors got their aerial excitement by jumping off cliffs into the ocean in home-made "planes." They made a regular game of it, known as "lele pali" or "jumping from the cliff." It was played up to a hundred years, or so ago by natives who lived near groves of loulu palms near high cliffs overlooking the ocean.

The game was played with huge contrivances built of light but stout sticks and overwoven with loulo palm leaves. Several of these affairs were made ready, the Hawaiian "aviators" took their seats, and were pushed over towering cliffs at the same time. The adventurer who remained longest in the air was the winner.

Old Hawaiians say that their flying men were exceptionally skillful. The only means they had of guiding their crude appliances was to shift their weight to maintain balance as they zigzagged down toward the sea.

Exceptionally daring Hawaiians often hopped off thousand-foot cliffs on the mainland, it is said.

TORONTO WOMAN IS OVER TROUBLE

MRS. BROWN SAYS AFTER YEARS OF SUFFERING SHE'S NOW IN VERY BEST OF HEALTH.

"Tanlac has done me more good than all the other medicine I ever took," said Mrs. Robert Brown, 495 Ossington Ave., Toronto, Ont., "and I think I have tried every conceivable kind.

"I was in poor health for years and would have to spend days at a time in bed. Three or four years ago my kidneys began to trouble me. Then year before last I had influenza and another spell last year. All of this left me in a terrible condition. I had rheumatism so bad that I could hardly climb the stairs and the muscles of my legs just seemed to be tied in knots. My arms and shoulders felt sore and achy; in fact, every part of my body ached. I would be completely exhausted when night came and the misery I was in kept me from getting much rest. I got so weak and run down I couldn't do my housework and could hardly get around at all.

"Finally my daughter persuaded me to try Tanlac, and this medicine did me good right from the start. My strength soon increased and I got to feeling better in every way. I do all my housework now, get around as well as I ever could and never feel a touch of rheumatism or a pain of any kind. All my troubles are gone and I am feeling just fine. Tanlac is just wonderful."

Teeth You Love to Show

Find out how millions get them

This offer is to women who desire to look their best. To men who find that tobacco stains, etc., make their teeth look dingy. To young folks who know what beauty lies in glistening teeth.

It is to all who have learned that old methods are wrong. And that, despite the tooth brush, teeth discolor and decay.

Clouded by a film

Teeth are clouded by a dingy film. At first it is viscous—you can feel it. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays.

Old ways of brushing do not effectively combat it. Much of the film remains. Then night and day it may do ceaseless damage. Most tooth troubles are now traced to film, and those troubles have been constantly increasing.

It is the film-coats that discolor, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Also of other serious troubles, local and internal.

Science combats it

Dental science, after long research, has found ways to combat film. Able authorities have amply proved them. Now leading dentists, here and abroad, advise their daily use.

These effective methods are embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. Thus one may twice a day apply them in a most delightful way. Millions already do this, and to them it has brought a new era in teeth cleaning.

Three other effects

Modern authorities find that a tooth paste should also bring other effects. This to cope with the average diet, rich in starch and low in fruit acids.

So Pepsodent stimulates the salivary flow —Nature's great tooth-protecting agent. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva —put there by Nature to digest starch deposits that cling. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva — Nature's neutralizer of the acids which cause decay.

These are natural results, but modern diet often fails to bring them. This tooth paste brings them, at least twice a day.

Note the white teeth

Note the glistening teeth you see. Ask how people get them. You will find, we think, that most of them are due to Pepsodent.

But this is more than a question of beauty. Those whiter teeth mean cleaner, safer teeth. To young and old they mean better tooth protection.

It means more to children than adults. Young teeth are most easily attacked. Very few children escape. So dentists advise that Pepsodent be used from the time the first tooth appears.

Let one person try it in your home. Then show the results to all.

You'll quickly see

The Pepsodent results are very quickly apparent. Some are almost instant. A ten-day test is usually convincing.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Watch the other good effects.

The test will be a revelation. The book we send will explain each new effect. Then judge by results, and their scientific basis, what is best for you and yours. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

CLEAR SKIES FOR THE TENNIS FINAL

TILDEN AND JOHNSON WILL MEET IN THE FINISH ROUND

By HENRY L. FARRELL, (United Press.)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19. — William T. Tilden andw Wallace F. Johnson, Philadelphia's great court ions, will decide the championship of America at the Germantown Cricket Club this afternoon.

Clear skies and bright sun promised ideal weather for the completion of the final round of the national singles championship, which was stopped during the first set on Saturday by rain.

Johnson, once a finalist in the championships and twice a semi-finalist, was out-playing and out-scoring the champion Saturday when the match had to be stopped with the score ball in the first set.

Johnson, who had the title almost within his grasp was favored by the soft condition of the courts, which followed a hard early morning rain. The soft turf favored the slow, choppy strike of Johnson, while it threw the speedy, smashing game of Tilden out of gear.

Opinion was rather agreed here to-day that a firmer court would help Tilden and that the lay-off would be more beneficial to the champion. The final round will be played over entirely, both players starting from "scratch," it was agreed to throw out the incompleted set of Saturday as it ended in a tie score, and play it over under more favorable weather conditions.

SATURDAY'S RACE AT THE EXHIBITION

SUNNY JIM WON THE 2.25 CLASS IN STRAIGHT HEATS — DAN BINGENS CLASSIFIED RACE.

Saturday's programme of racing at the Peterborough Industrial was well handled by Starter Brownlee of Barrie, and although each event was won in straight heats and portions of the track were ve- heavy as a result of the morning's rain, the two races on the card provided much interest.

The 2.25 class brought out a field of four and Dr. Johnston of Port Hope introduced the winner in his black gelding Sunny Jim, which took three heats in succession, with Dear Todd, owned by Dick Elmhirst of Keene, furnishing the contention in each heat.

The other race on the card was a classified race for horses who had not been winners in any of the other events during the intermission. Dan Bengen won in straight heats. The summary:

EDDIE GLAD WIFE UNDERSTANDS; MUCH KISSED ACTOR THESE DAYS

Eddie Barry, featured player in "Nobody's Wife," latest of the two reel Christie Comedies which comes to the "Allen" theatre today, is a recent benedict who is congratulating himself that he selected as a wife a young woman who knows the film business. Otherwise Eddie feels that there might be cause for jealousy in his family as the result of the roles he is having to play lately.

For instance, in "Mr. Fatima" he had to pose as an Egyptian dancer and he was the recipient of all sorts of attention from females and then in "Dining Room, Kitchen and Sink" he was much kissed by Fay Tincher who believed him her rich uncle. And now in "Nobody's Wife" he poses as a "mother" to befriend a couple of his chums and is constantly in the embrace of the two young women he is undertaking to chaperone.

"Nobody's Wife" is declared to be one of the finest examples of screen farce with action every minute and fun developed to the highest degree. There is an exceptional cast, including Helen Darling, Earl Rodney, Ray Gallagher, William Sloane, Eugenie Forde and Dorothy Orth.

What makes a successful wife? This is the question that Maurice Tourneur will answer in his newest photoplay to be presented through the Associated Producers at the "Allen" theatre, starting Monday. The photoplay is an elaborate picturization of Donn Byrne's novel, "The Foolish Matrons," which has been made into a screen play under the direction of Maurice Tourneur and Clarence L. Brown.

After winning a decided triumph with "The Last of the Mohicans," which showed the lurking dangers of the early pioneers of this country, Mr. Tourneur is now about to show us that although the dangers of today are vastly different from those of some years ago, they are just as tragic, and far more reaching in their scope. The story finds its answer to the burning question in terms of human experience.

There is no single heroine appearing in every scene to give purpose to a company of puppets; it is a cross section from life—a story of three women who constitute a molecule of social New York, of three separate households, of how each works out her own destiny, and how each reacts on the others.

In more than one way is the story remarkable. It reflects in an original and intensive fashion the hidden struggles of a great city, the interplay of lives, and the everyday problems that men and women face and cringe to mention, and it set forth in telling manner the glories of God's creation against the sordid background of man's handicraft.

The story will be enacted by an all-star cast of players including Doris May, Mildred Manning, Hobart Bosworth, Kathleen Kirkham, Charles Meredith, Betty Schade, Wallace McDonald, Margaret McWade, Michael Dark and little Frankie Lee.

SCHOOL GIRL STAR PLAYS "SQUAB" ROLES

Gladys Walton, Universal Newcomer Has Unique Place in Screendom—To Be Shown Here in "All Dolled Up."

Although Gladys Walton is the youngest star in the Universal firmament, her "fan" mail is already assuming considerable proportions and she has been compelled to engage a secretary to reply to her numerous correspondents.

Gladys Walton was attending high school in Portland, Oregon, a year and a half ago; but the stack of letters she receives at Universal City is beginning more and more to look like the daily harvest of a Chicago mail order house.

Almost all of Miss Walton's correspondents are school boys and girls. Gladys had attended school in Boston, Denver and Portland, and the young star figures that every boy and girl of school age in these three cities has written to her, many of them being well remembered by her.

There is a certain type of part for which Miss Walton is fitted better than most players on the screen. There is no star young enough to portray faithfully the "flapper," "squab" and "chicken" types like Gladys Walton. Of precisely that age herself, and being gifted with a dramatic talent quite out of the ordinary, Gladys is unique among the stars of the screen. There are parts which are practically her own—roles that have not often been exploited in scenarios because they are too immature for the adult player and too grown-up for the juvenile actress. It is in roles of this sort that Miss Walton's success lies, and she has already scored several decided hits in photodramas of this kind.

Gladys Walton's latest feature is called "All Dolled Up." Here she plays the role of a poor little shop girl in a big department store. She has never experienced love, but has indulged in fairy dreams of romance. It is a role that will delight the patrons of the "Regent" theatre tonight, when "All Dolled Up" is to be shown.

AT THE CAPITOL.

BIG VAUDEVILLE AND PICTURE PROGRAM TODAY

Betty Compson, in "The End of the World."—Larry Semon, in "The Bakery," and Two Big Double Vaudeville Acts.

The Capitol for the first three days of this week offers a splendid vaudeville and picture program. Betty Compson will be seen in the big new seven reel Paramount production, "The End of the World." Larry Semon, the king of all the slap-stick comedians, will be seen in his very newest two reel comedy riot, "The Bakery," and many other first class short reel subjects.

Beautiful Chinese costumes, especially designed and made of the most costly and luxurious silks and other rich materials, are one of the beauty features of "At the End of the World," Betty Compson's first Paramount starring vehicle which will be presented at the Capitol twice daily.

The entire production is rich in oriental atmosphere. The story opens in a Chinese cafe and gambling establishment in Shanghai, China, where Cherry, the motherless daughter of an English proprietor, reigns as a queen. In this setting, Miss Compson as Cherry, wears several gorgeous Chinese gowns, and so attired, is charming and fascinating.

There are several other Chinese settings, all of which are rich in Oriental investiture, and the other principal locale of the story is a lonely island lighthouse station, where the girl and several men, whose destinies are interwoven with her own, are finally drawn.

Milton Sills, Mitchell Lewis, Casson Ferguson, Spottiswoode Aitken and other famous screen celebrities are in the supporting cast and the picture is the first directorial effort of Penrhyn Stanlaws.

AT THE GRAND.

Frank Mayo never had a speedier comedy-drama than "The Fighting Lover," his most recent Universal photodrama, which is to be shown for the first time locally at the Grand theatre on Monday and Tuesday next.

The story was written by Ben Ames Williams and produced at Universal City under the direction of Fred LeRoy Granville and it required four of the prettiest girls of the screen to keep up with him in the fast five reels. The girls are Jacqueline Logan, former Ziegfeld Follies beauty, who plays opposite Mayo; Jean Calhoun, the southern beauty who has played opposite the foremost screen stars; Ruth Ashby, the California beauty recently chosen by Erich von Stroheim for an important Parisian role, and Gertrude Olmsted, the Elks' prize beauty.

In addition to the winsome trio of leading ladies, the star is supported by Elinor Hancock, Jackson Read, Colin Kenny, Joe Singleton, Gordon Sackville, Fred G. Becker and Robert Bolder.

Settings of unusual beauty that radiate wealth and splendor of the story's locals, beautiful women, well-groomed men and all of them clever players give "The Fighting Lover" a splendid start toward the punchy finish in which the popular star does his best work.

"The Fighting Lover" shows Mayo not only as a young, well-dressed cosmopolitan, in which he is admired by so many fans, but gives him an opportunity for that virile, vigorous type of acting that distinguishes him as one of the two-fisted he-men of the screen.

"LADIES' NIGHT."

A riot of fun and frolic is announced for Wednesday, September 21, at the Grand, when A. H. Woods' sensationally successful farce, "Ladies' Night," will be the attraction, beginning Monday evening. "Ladies' Night" is the joint work of Avery Hopwood, author of "Fair and Warmer" and "The Gold Diggers," and Charlton Andrews. No farce of the present generation has been more brilliantly humorous or colorful. It concerns the adventures of three young men who find themselves in a Turkish bath on "ladies' night." For three acts the fun runs fast and furious, and some idea of the infectious quality of the fun may be found in the fact that the piece remained at the Eltinge theatre in New York for an entire season, playing the largest business ever known in farce production. It holds the honor of having the longest run of any New York production for the season of 1920-1921. A beautiful stage setting has been devised for the presentation of "Ladies' Night" and the company measures up to the highest Broadway standard, including Ralph Bunker, Muriel Hudson, Josephine Saxe, Ebba Andrus, Dave Jones, Stanley DeWolfe, Ellen Best, Antoinette Crawford, Mary Nixon, Helen Courtney, Marjorie Chester, Alma Wall, Bobbie Lee, Doll Farlardeau, Lillian Smalley, and Wm. H. Dorbin.

The police entered the scene as a result of a telephone call from the Oval and although forced to remove the men to the station both were to go on a satisfactary explanation being made and an apology having been tendered the referee by Rorrison. WILD CATTLE ROAM FOOTHILLS OF PENINSULA
To hunt down a herd of wild cattle seen on the Ozette Indian Reservation in the Olympic Peninsula, an expedition headed by C. J. Albrecht, taxidermist of the Washington state museum, is soon to leave for the mountain wilds.
The herd are the descendants of a tame herd abandoned by a settler 20 years ago and are said to be more dangerous than bear, cougar or wildcat. The Ozette Indians report many long-haired, wild-eyed cattle living in the foothills and venturing down the river courses in midsummer. In these grazing lands the cattle can never be exterminated, as the country is too rough for the average hunter and can be entered on horseback. It is 50 miles from a white settlement and in winter is snowbound.
The natives declare that on sight of human beings the bulls become enraged, often treeing hunters and trappers. When questioned as to why they did not shoot the cows or calves for meat the Indians replied that it was tough and tasted like cedar oil.

MOTOR CAR NOT TO SUPERSEDE RAILS.

Will the motorcar and the airplane ever take the place of the railroad as they have taken the place of the old stage coach? Evidently this question is an important one for holders of railroad securities. Elisha Lee, vice-president of the Pennsylvania railroad, thinks that there is no danger. In an address printed in The Railway Age, he says:
"Many railroad bonds have long periods to run. Some have been drawn to mature in a century. Have their holders any reason to fear that the railroads are in danger of being superseded by other forms of transportation and their security value thus impaired? My judgment is that we have no cause to prepare against such a contingency either for ourselves or our dependents. The motor-car and the airplane are more likely to develop new transportation fields of their own, rather than extensively to invade those of the railroads. The telephone did not wipe out the telegraph; typewriters have not eliminated pens and pencils. Think of the great development of rail transportation; and yet we are greater roadbuilders than were even the Romans of antiquity. Indeed, the permanence of human institutions, once well established, is one of the most interesting phenomena of history. It seems to be a sort of general law of progress that new developments in any useful art or field of endeavor, instead of crowding out the old, often tend rather to create entirely new fields of usefulness for themselves. To the extent to which motor cars are likely to take over the short haul freight traffic, the railroads will probably be immediately benefited financially, because short-haul business is becoming increasingly unremunerative on account of the high proportion of terminal costs which it must sustain. Altogether, I am not afraid of motor cars and airplanes making railroads obsolete."

MINERAL OIL
FOR CHRONIC CONSTIPATION
By buying this produce from us, you can get the Highest in Quality that can be procured at an ESPECIALLY LOW PRICE.
There are many thin Oils on the market that are not suitable for internal use; other Oils have irritating qualities which render them also unsuitable. The one we are selling is Guaranteed thick and entirely pure.
It is recognized that a good grade of Mineral Oil is one of the best remedies for CHRONIC CONSTIPATION that is being used. It acts mechanically and does not irritate the intestinal tract, nor does the dose have to be constantly increased as is the case with ordinary purgatives.
It is much better and cheaper than Castor Oil as a laxative for Children, since Castor Oil has two effects, the first of which is purgative and the second or after-effect, which is Constipating.

JOBLESS ARMY ON THE MOVE

POLICE PREVENT THE DISTRIBUTION OF BUNS TO NEW YORK'S UNEMPLOYED.

THE AUCTION FARCE

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Blocked by police in his plans to feed and later sell members of New York's jobless army at slave auction last night, Urbain Ledoux remained in retirement today. Ledoux called off his proposed auction yesterday afternoon after the police had convinced him by their vigorous methods in preventing him from distributing buns to jobless they meant business. Police reserves struggled with the crowd for more than an hour, wielding night sticks on recalitrant heads before they were able to restore anything resembling order. Ledoux announced to-day that he would open in a few days a community centre at St. Mark's in the Bowery, operating a barber shop, cobbler shop and clothing repair departments to help jobless make themselves more presentable in their quest for work. An employment bureau also will be opened, he said.

MINERS HOLD A CONVENTION

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 20.—(Canadian Press).—No wage reduction of coal miners must be permitted and all resources of miners union must be made available to back up policy in opposition to wage cuts, John L. Lewis, President of United Mine Workers of America, declared at Biennial Convention of Organization here to-day.

He asked that rebuke be administered to Robert H. Harlin, Seattle and Frank Farrington, President of Illinois Miners, who he charged had circulated false reports about union. He also recommended that convention favor nationalization of mines.

OF INTEREST TO MOTORISTS

The Automobile Association has received advice from the solicitor of the Ontario Motor League, drawing attention of those who use motor vehicles on the highway, to the amendment of the Statute Law which affects their rights.

At the last session of the Legislature the Municipal Act was amended to provide that no action should be taken in the case of an accident resulting from non repair of the highway, unless notice in writing of the claim or injury complained of is sent by registered post to the clerk of the municipality within ten days after the happening of the injury.

Where the accident happens within the city, town or village, a similar notice must be given within seven days. In this respect there has been no change in the law.

Local motorists would do well to make note of this amendment so that in case of necessity action may be taken accordingly.

BALLOONISTS FAIL TO RETURN

ANXIETY FELT FOR THE SAFETY OF THE FIVE PILOTS

8 LANDED SAFELY

LONDON, Sept. 20.—(Special to The Examiner.) — Five balloons, which started in the Gordon Bennett international race from Brussels on Sunday were still reported missing early to-day.

Anxiety was felt for the safety of the pilots, and warning messages have been flashed to all ships at sea off the west coast of Ireland.

Several entries were last observed drifting rapidly westerward over the St. George's Channel. The American balloons were among those reported missing, the "Aero Club of America," piloted by A. R. Christened, Belgian balloon loaned to Ralph Upson, and "City of St. Louis," piloted by Bernard Von Hoffman.

Of the eight balloons which landed safely, the English entry, "Banshee," which landed in Wales, leads. Of the three balloons missing today, besides the two American entries, two were French and one was Swiss.

The American entry, "City of Akron," piloted by Wade T. Van Ormond, landed in England, six miles from Exeter. This was a good showing in the race, which was to be won by the balloon travelling the farthest distance from Brussels, but was outdone by the English entry.

Two Italian balloons, the "Valle" and the "Barbanty" both reached points in Wales.

A BANQUET FOR MR. CHARLES SISSON

Member of Utilities Commission Has Been Transferred to Toronto.

Charles E. Sisson, Utilities Commissioner, and a prominent member of the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, who, as head of the transformer department of the Canadian General Electric Co., has been transferred to Toronto, will be with several associates, the guests of the engineers at a complimentary dinner in the Empress Hotel Thursday evening.

Mr. Sisson has been actively identified with the Peterborough branch and the engineering fraternity are taking this means of saying farewell to Mr. Sisson and his associates in the department, who are also transferred to Toronto. Mr. Sisson was last year a member of the executive, but would not accept the presidency, which was offered to him this year, knowing he would be moved to Toronto.

A CLEARING HOUSE IN CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

To Supply Information Affecting Success of Important Meetings.

A facility that all citizens of Peterborough should not fail to take advantage of is that afforded by the Chamber of Commerce, which acts free of charge as a clearing house for information regarding meetings of all sorts. During the fall and winter seasons it happens regularly that important meetings of more than one society fall on the same evening, and often a man or woman who belongs to more than one of these organizations is at a loss to know which to attend. Another unfortunate circumstance often arises when a society has booked some prominent speaker to address a meeting and the prominent man or woman arrives to find an inadequately small audience. Those who might have enjoyed his talk or lecture are unavoidably absent at a meeting of some society in which they hold office. The committee is disappointed, the crowd is disappointed and the speaker leaves with an unfortunate impression of the city he has visited for one night only. Such things might easily be avoided if a society intending to hold a meeting of this sort would notify the Chamber of Commerce. Information could then be received as to other events occurring on the same evening, in the business, fraternal, social or theatrical worlds. A convenience of this sort would, if patronized, prevent unfortunate overlapping, which leads in so many cases to disappointing evenings and small attendances. Announcements of any sort, from church socials to political speeches, will be welcomed at the Secretary's office and information will be cheerfully given at any time.

Rooms at the Chamber of Commerce will also be at the service of any organization desiring to hold meetings in them, providing that arrangements be made in advance with the Secretary, Mr. L. Fraser.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN THE ARBUCKLE CASE—WITNESSES HEARD.

(By M. D. Tracy.)
(United Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. Sept. 20.—Reports that efforts were made to buy the testimony of important witnesses in the Arbuckle case were investigated for the San Francisco Grand Jury to-day.

Miss Zey Prevon, show girl, and one of the guests at Fatty Arbuckle's booze party, where Miss Virginia Rappe was fatally injured was called to testify as to whether she had been "approached". Miss Joyce Clark, another show girl room mate of Miss Prevon was summoned to explain her alleged statements to Dr. Gabor Kingstone, man-about-town, and Reggie Morley, ex-movie actor, that there was money in the case and she intended to get it.

Dr. M. E. Burwll, who attended Miss Rappe during her fatal illness following the alleged assault on her by Arbuckle, was called before the Grand Jury to explain his alleged autopsy on the body. Federal prohibition agents to-day, were ready to drop their investigation of a report that Miss Rappe's death was really caused by her drinking poison from synthetic gin, as the city chemist, reported he found no traces of poison in her stomach.

CITY TO OPPOSE AMENDING ORDER

WILL INSIST ON STREET CARS BEING FLAGGED ACROSS RAILWAY TRACKS.

The city, represented by City Solicitor C. R. Widdifield, will oppose the application of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission for an amending order of the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada to relieve the Peterborough Radial Railway from flagging the cars across the tracks of the C.P.R. and G.T.R. serving the Canadian General Electric Co. on Park street.

Notice of the application was received by Council's Railway committee last night. One or two aldermen did not recall the flagging at this point on the line at all, but were assured by City Clerk Armstrong that such took place. Ald. J. J. Turner started the opposition, saying that if the restriction was lifted loss of life might follow and the city be in some measure responsible. Ald. H. Gainey assented to this view. Ald. J. Crowe said Mr. G. W. Ferguson, the manager, had shown him one track that was rarely used, but across which tht cars had to be flagged. He believed there might be some leniency to the company at this point. Ald. Turner moved a resolution instructing the City Solicitor to oppose the application and it was adopted.

IMPROVEMENTS TO THE LOCAL PARKS

PARKS COMMITTEE HEARD LIST OF RECOMMENDATIONS LAST NIGHT.

If recommendations for the improvement of Victoria and Central Parks made by Frank Wise, parks caretaker, are carried out by the Council, these parks will next year present a much better appearance.

At a meeting of the Railways and Parks Committee last night, Ald. H. Gainey, chairman, read a report from Frank Wise, in which numerous recommendations for improvements are made. Several of these recommendations were passed upon last night, and the others, which entail some little expenditure, will be discussed when the appropriations are made for next year.

In Victoria Park, Caretaker Wise recommended that several trees in the north-west corner be taken out and all the trees be trimmed of dead wood and surplus branches. The committee, so far as their interest in the park went, assented to this, and the chairman was given authorization to see the trees whose removal was recommended, and consult with the County Council about their removal and the disposal of the wood.

The recommendation that the six beds surrounding the central bed be planted with pansies instead of bulbs was passed. "They are just as showy, last longer and are more interesting," said Mr. Wise, referring to the pansies in his report. It was pointed out that the present contract calls for planting bulbs.

Re-cinder the Walks.

Another recommendation that some of the walks be re-cindered was passed upon. Some of the walks are quite muddy after a rain, and particular attention will be given these. Last spring the Council found difficulty in getting cinders, as the Hunter Street Bridge fill was swallowing up untold carloads, and so last night it was thought best to repair the walks this fall.

Ald. J. J. Turner moved, and it was adopted, that the chairman ascertain how many loads of cinders are required for both parks, and procure them if the cost does not exceed $25.

With regard to Victoria Park three other recommendations for increasing the attractiveness of the park, which will entail expenditures beyond the committee's appropriations were laid over, to be brought up again next spring. As the trees on the higher ground impoverish the soil, Mr. Wise recommended that the four beds be taken out and replaced with rustic stone vases made on the ground of cement and stone. He further proposed that smaller vases of the same material could be placed on the steps leading up to the Court-House.

A Wading Place.

To keep the present fountain from washing away the walks and to provide a wading place for kiddies in the summer time, it was in the recommendations that a larger basin be made for the fountain to play into. While a place for composite is essential, it may at the same time be beautiful. Mr. Wise pointed out and recommended that the soil and rubbish heap at the north side of the park be superceded by a compound built of lattice work and covered with ornamental or flowering vines.

"As Central Park is on your main street, and used considerably for rest and recreation, and is seen by more visitors to the city than any other public place, I would suggest," said the Caretaker, "that it be given

ACCEPTANCE INVITATION

THIS IS EXPECTED TO RESULT FROM DEVALERA'S LATEST NOTE.

STILL CORRESPONDING

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The pendulum of interest in the tense Irish situation has swung back to Gairloch, Scotland, whence a short but propitiatory reply from Lloyd George to Eamonn De Valera was momentarily expected to-day. Yesterday's note from the Sinn Fein leader, saying that he would confirm the Irish acceptance of the Premier's invitation to a conference if "surrender" of the Irish principles were not demanded, was considered to have finally pointed the way for a meeting. Lloyd George, it was believed, had only to reiterate that the conference would be free on both sides and without prejudice to make the proposed conference immediately possible.

The Daily Chronicle, however, said: "We fear De Valera's last letter comes as near a plain 'no' as any that has been received."

The Times said: "The points of agreement far outweigh the apparent points of difference, all the more so as there is no question of any recognition, formal or informal, of the Irish Republic on the part of the British Government."

The Daily News said: "The last message from De Valera provides the Prime Minister, if he wishes to use it with the guarantee which he seems to require."

London, instead of Scotland, would probably be the scene of the conference if one were held, it was believed to-day, following reports that Lloyd George's health was considerably improved, and that he would come to London this week-end.

NEW PARLIAMENT BUILDING.

BELFAST, Sept. 20.—(Canadian Press).—The Parliament of Northern Ireland, opened its session here to-day with a full attendance of unionist members. Neither Nationalists nor Sinn Feiners who hold a total of twelve seats were in attendance. The session was held in the building which was formerly the Belfast College of the Presbyterian Church. The main business of the day was a motion to approve the purchase of Stormant Castle as a site of the new Parliament Buildings.

DECIDED DIVERSITY.

LONDON, Sept. 20. — (Canadian Press).—Decided diversity in view is prevalent here to-day regarding the effect of the latest telegram of Eamon De Valera to Prime Minister Lloyd George, whether it means rupture or a forward step towards a conference looking to an Irish settlement. This division of opinion is notably apparent in newspaper comment, although the majority of journals are still optimistic.

A SINN FEIN CAMP.

BELFAST, Sept. 20.—(Canadian Press).—A telegraph says to-day that a Sinn Fein camp of 500 men has been established at Drumaness, County Down. The Sinn Fein flag flies over the camp, and drilling is carried on actively.

GOOD CLEAN FAIR.

Peterborough Fair Free From Pickpockets and "Hanger-on."

City and Provincial police told the Examiner to-day that the Peterborough Fair was not marked by an arrest of any kind in connection with its amusements, or were they troubled by any of the hangers-on of fall fairs of the species pickpocket as they have been in some Septembers. "We never had a complaint," said the police. "There was no trouble of any kind and not an arrest made," Inspector Reid of the local department added.

COURT SCANDAL IN GERMANY IS RECALLED

(BERLIN, Sept. 20.— (Canadian Press.)— Germany's greatest court scandal of modern times was recalled to-day by the death of Prince Philip Eulenburg, a close friend of the former German Emperor, William Hohenzollern, at the age of 75.

A series of sensational prosecutions brought about by Maximillian Harden in 1917, laid bare alleged discreditable practices in the German court. Prince Eulenburg was a leader of the Camarilla, which was alleged to be secretly and adversely influencing the Emperor.

SKILLED IMMIGRANTS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—(Canadian Press.)—Skilled workers among immigrants in the United States during the fiscal year ending last June numbered 131,774, as against 69,967 during the previous fiscal year, according to figures made public to-day by the Department of Labor.

INTOXICATED IN CAR.

LINDSAY, Sept. 20.—On information supplied by Inspector Thornbury, $34.60 was the fine imposed by Magistrate Moore, in the County Court, on a Fenelon Falls man for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

THE BIG MOGULS WILL BE ABSENT FROM CONFERENCE TO BE HELD IN WASHINGTON

DOMESTIC DIFFICULTIES WILL KEEP PREMIERS IN THEIR HOME PORTS — MORE PRESSING PROBLEMS THAN DISARMAMENT.

(BY ED. L. KEEN.)
(United Press).

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The road to Washington today was paved with obstacles for every European Government.

Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy.—Each was faced with domestic difficulties in making plans to send delgeates to the disarmament conference called by President Harding for November 11.

Of these four countries, it was doubtful if a single Premier could attend the full session at Washington, will almost certainly be kept at home by the Irish situation and unemployment problems in England.

Carton D. Waart of Belgium, will have the reconstruction of his government to consider, for the Belgian parliamentary elections at the time of the Washington Conference.

Signor Bonomi of Italy, will probably be required to remain in Rome as the Italian parliament opens in November, Artistide G. Briand of France has reiterated his determination to head the French delegation to Washington but increased opposition to his departure led by his enemies will make it extremely difficult.

The same domestic problems which require the presence at home of Europe's Prime Minister's will probably prevent the presence in Washington of their ablest "right-hand men" Lord Curzon British Minister for Foreign Affairs, will be detained in England for the same reasons as those which interview the premier. Marquis Della Torretta of Italy, probably will be unable to leave.

Unemployment in Europe is a more immediate problem even than disarmament and one more unsettling to government, and any European statesmen, whose position depends upon popular support cannot afford to be long away from his constituents this winter.

ELECTION NEWS

TORONTO, Sept. 20. — (Canadian Press.)—Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal Opposition in the House of Commons, and Hon. W. S. Fielding, former Minister of Finance, with other Liberal stalwarts, arrived here to-day to officially open at West Toronto tonight's party's campaign for general elections. Mr. King apeared to be in excellent mettle and intimated that it was the intention of the party to open the campaign, not with a preliminary skirmish, but with a heavy bombardment and general action. Mr. King will spend the day quietly in the city. It is expected that there will be some conferences with local party leaders with a view to securing the strongest possible Liberal candidates to contest seats in "Tory Toronto." Programme for the reception to-night calls for a big parade previous to the meeting.

THREE CORNERED FIGHT.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Sept. 20. — (Canadian Press.) — Prospects are that there will be a three-cornered fight in the riding of East Algoma in the coming Federal election. John E. Wright, of Deer Lake, who was an unsuccessful candidate on the U.F.O. ticket in the Provincial election of 1919, has been nominated as a Farmers' candidate, while the Liberals have called a convention at Espanola for October 11 and it is expected that the present member, G. B. Nicholson, will be Conservative standard bearer.

DISCUSS POWER SITUATION HERE

MEETING TO BE HELD IN PORT HOPE IN NEAR FUTURE

With the object of uniting the Midland counties of Ontario in an association to exercise some control over the power in Central Ontario a meeting will likely be held in Port Hope in the near fuutre, with representatives of the municipalities and the Hydro-Electric Power Commission in attendance.

At the Manufacturers' committee meeting last night a letter was read from Mr. T. H. Stinson of Lindsay, urging an organization meeting, and requesting Pete borough's co-operation and view. The object met with favorable comment and it was decided to recommend holding a meeting in Port Hope, as this is a central point for the interested municipalities and gives satisfactory train service. On motion of Ald. H. Gainey and J. J. Turner, a meeting at 1.30 in the afternoon in Port Hope was recommended to Mr. Stinson and it was recommended that the Hydro-Electric Power Commission be asked to send a representaitve.

Business in cheese was quiet.

Will You Ever Be a Millionaire?

THAT DEPENDS UPON YOUR HEALTH.

Health, wealth and happiness go together, but you must have health to have wealth and happiness. You cannot think clear, you feel tired, all out of sorts, you may have indigestion, headaches, constipation, kidney trouble rheumatism, etc. These are all signs that your liver is out of order and is not excreting bile into the intestines, your bowels become filled with waste, and poison is carried to all parts of the body by the blood, causing all these aches and pains. You are only about 10 per cent. efficient, and you cannot expect to attain anything when you are in this condition. Doctors say take one Tanated Calomel Tablet before each meal or two at bedtime. Doctors recommend this because it is the only thing known that acts directly upon the liver. Tanated Calomel is sold by one druggist in each city—F. C. Weber is agent for Peterborough.

Will Have Test Case

DEFEATED CANDIDATES SEEK A RETURN OF THEIR ELECTION DEPOSIT.

EDMONTON, Alta., Sept. 20. — (Canadian Press.)—Twenty defeated candidates in the recent Provincial elections in the cities of Edmonton and Calgary are seeking the return of their hundred dollars deposit fees. Action is to be taken against the Provincial Government, permission having been obtained from the Attorney-General to have a test case argued before a Supreme Court Judge, it was announced today. It appears that the Election Act provides that a candidate forfeits his deposit unless he gets half as many votes as "the candidate elected." It was pointed out that this section contemplated contests where there was only one candidate elected, and that the late Government increased the number of elective candidates to five in Edmonton and Calgary, but omitted to amend the statute to provide for forfeiture in these constituencies, as "the candidate elected" might mean any one of the five and it is impossible to determine how many of the defeated candidates would be subject to forfeiture.

In the absence of clear and definite provision it is suggested that there can be no forfeiture and that all deposits should be returned.

BIG CONTINGENT WENT TO OSHAWA—PERSONAL MENTION

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 20.—Mrs. Parker of Peterboro is visiting at the home of Mrs. J. T. Vosper.

A large number of townspeople (eighty motors) went to Oshawa on Saturday to witness the Lacrosse match between Campbellford and Oshawa. Some of those attending were:—Messrs. J. A. Humphries, Jas. P. Archer, C. H. Nadoo, C. W. Hankinson, Fred Lang, E. M. Abernethy, John Hendricks, N. B. Dickson, Mayor Myers, Messrs. Chas. Davidson, A. E. Wragg, Robt. Dunk, E. E. Plummer, J. R. Wilkinson.

Miss Jennie Johnston and Mr. Percy Johnston attended the Peterboro Fair last week.

Misses Ada and Ona Arnold spent Monday in Peterboro.

Married:—On Wednesday September 14th by Rev. Mr. Seymour of Havelock, Miss Myrtle Grace Wood "The Oaks" Trent River daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Wood, was married to James G. Milne of Campbellford son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Milne.

Mrs. Alfred Tripp is spending the week-end in Oshawa.

Mrs. Hodge who has been visiting at the home of her daughter Mrs. Jason Bayes, New Toronto has returned home.

Rev. Mr. McGillvaray of Toronto occupied the pulpit of St. Andrews Church on Sunday evening and preached a very inspiring sermon. The music was enjoyed by all especially the quartette by Miss Marion Burleigh, Miss Alice Martin and Messrs. Walter and Edwin Henson.

The funeral of the late Miss Anna O'Shaughnessy was held on Sunday afternoon to St. Mary's church and was very largely attended. A short address was given by Rev. Father Phelan, who spoke of the certainty of death and the necessity of preparation for death. He spoke most fittingly of the life of the deceased, who always devoted her talented young life to a good and worthy cause. The remains were afterwards laid in St. Mary's R. C. cemetery. Mass was said for the deceased on Monday morning.

The Mission Circle of the Methodist church will hold their rally meeting on Thursday evening at the home of the president, Mrs. Alvin Malcolm, Sebastapol street. All the young ladies of the church are urged to attend and make this a banner year.

Lacrosse.

While the local boys were not successful in the lacrosse match at Oshawa on Saturday, they put up a good play, but the treatment they received at the hands of their competitors was anything but fair play. Everyone enjoys a good, clean game of lacrosse, but the rough treatment accorded our boys was quite uncalled for. Various threats were made by the Oshawa fellows as to how they were going to knock our boys out, which they endeavored to do, breaking one of our player's ankle and injuring a couple others. Campbellford boys have the satisfaction of having played the game squarely and fairly and would no doubt have carried off the laurels had they been met with fair play from their opponents.

The officers and executive of the Epworth League met last evening to arrange the programme for the year's work.

Miss Laura McKeown went to Peterborough last week to attend the Normal school.

ANOTHER TELEGRAM SENT TO THE PRIME MINISTER

TELEGRAPHIC BARRAGE CONTINUES WITH THE IRISH QUESTION THE SUBJECT OF DISCUSSION—"OPEN DIPLOMACY" REGARDED AS A DANGER.

LONDON, September 20. — Canadian Press. — Eamonn de-Valera, the Irish Republican leader, after a meeting of his cabinet yesterday, sent another telegram to Mr. Lloyd George in which, declaring that the Sinn Fein had no thought at any time of asking for the acceptance of any conditions precedent to a conferece, he requests the Prime Minister to say whether his letter of September 7 was intended to be a demand for surrender or an invitation to a conference "free on both sides and without prejudice should an agreement not be reached."

In he latter case, Mr. De Valera states that he would confirm the Sinn Fein acceptance of the invitation, and the Irish delegates would meet the representatives of the government.

Mr. De Valera also suggests the conclusion of "a treaty of accommodation and association," expressing the belief that this would "end the dispute forever and enable the two nations to settle down in peace."

The nature of the message from Mr. De Valera necessitates a further exchange of telegrams, unless some sort of ultimatum is forthcoming.

Many of the London papers have commented on the danger of the "open diplomacy" involved in this public exchange of messages, which, they point out, makes it exceedingly difficult for either side to recede from the position adopted.

DE VALERA'S TELEGRAM.

The text of Mr. De Valera's telegram follows

"Sir: We have not thought at any time of asking you to accept any conditions precedent to a conference. We would have thought it as unreasonable to expect you, as a preliminary to recognize the Irish Republic formally or informally, as that you would expect us, formally or informally, to surrender our national position. It is precisely because neither side accepts the position of the other that there is a dispute at all, and that a conference is necessary to search for and discuss such adjustments as might compose it.

"A treaty of accommodation and association, properly concluded between the people of these two islands, and between Ireland and the group of states in the British Commonwealth, would, we believe, end the dispute forever and enable the two nations to settle down in peace, each pursuing its own individual development, and contributing its own quota to civilization, but working together in free and friendly co-operation in affairs of agreed common concern.

"To negotiate such a treaty the respective representatives of the two nations must meet, but if you seek to impose preliminary conditions, which we must regard as involving the surrender of our whole position, they cannot meet.

The communication is signed: "I am, Sir, yours faithfully, "De Valera."

A DEFINITE REPLY.

Prime Minister Lloyd George's letter of September 7th, was the one in which he asked Mr. De Valera for a definite reply as to whether he was "prepared to enter a conference to ascertain how the association of Ireland with the community of nations known as the British Empire can best be reconciled with Irish national aspirations."

To this Mr. De Valera replied in the affirmative, but added to his reply the paragraph now in dispute, saying:

"In this final note we deem it our duty to reaffirm that our position is, and can only be, as we have defined it throughout this correspondence. Our nation has formally declared its independence and recognizes itself as a sovereign state. 'It is only as representatives of that state, and its chosen guardians, that we have authority or powers to act on behalf of our people.'"

Beware of Tender Gums

Unhealthy soil kills the best of wheat. Unhealthy gums kill the best of teeth. To keep the teeth sound, keep the gums well. Watch for tender and bleeding gums. This is a symptom of Pyorrhea, which afflicts four out of five people over forty.

Pyorrhea menaces the body as well as the teeth. Not only do the gums recede and cause the teeth to decay, loosen and fall out, but the infecting Pyorrhea germs lower the body's vitality and cause many serious ills.

To avoid Pyorrhea, visit your dentist frequently for tooth and gum inspection. And use Forhan's For the Gums.

Forhan's For the Gums will prevent Pyorrhea—or check its progress, if used in time and used consistently. Ordinary dentifrices cannot do this. Forhan's will keep the gums firm and healthy, the teeth white and clean. Start using it today. If gum-shrinkage has set in, use Forhan's according to directions, and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

THE EMBARGO QUESTION.

Beyond clearing the reputation of Canadian cattle of the slander of many years, the finding of the British Royal Commission appointed to investigate the importation of cattle into England may not have much effect. Canadian veterinary experts and cattle men generally have for many years protested against the British embargo and have maintained that restrictions against the importation of Canadian cattle nominally enacted as a protection against disease were really designed to protect the British farmers against the competition that the unrestricted entry of Canadian cattle would provide. These opinions have been, to all intents and purposes, justified by the report of the Royal Commissioners who, referring to the importation of cattle, declare "there is no substantial reason for apprehension that such admission would increase disease among cattle here." Having admitted that Canadan cattle have a clean bill of health the old cry of disease can no longer be raised. But the British cattle men want the embargo to remain effective, and it probably will, in spite of the Commission's finding.

THE POPPY MOVEMENT.

The Great War Veterans' Association is planning to have the people of Canada wear red poppies on Armistice Day in commemoration of the Canadian soldiers who died during the great war. The movement, inaugurated by the G.W.V.A., seems one that is worthy of general support, for not only does it permit of an impressive observance of Armistice Day and a tribute to the memory of the unreturning brave, but it also serves two other commendable purposes. The poppies which, it should be understood, are artificial ones, are to be laced on sale at nominal prices in the various centres of the Dominion and the proceeds thus derived will be used for relief work among veterans and their friends. And as they are to be purchased from the widows and orphans of France, thousands of whom are engaged in the manufacture of these flowers, the sale of them on a large scale in Canada will be of invaluable assistance to the brave French women whose husbands were killed in the world war. Peterborough people will doubtless appreciate the worthiness of the cause and will be glad to do their part in making the splendid movement a success.

A DOUBTFUL PROPOSAL.

According to reports from Winnipeg, negotiations are under way between the Labour unions of the city and the Citizens' League, by which it is hoped to make a municipal election this autumn unnecessary. It is proposed that each faction shall be allowed to keep the same proportional representation in the Council and Board of Education as was established at the polling for this year, and the required number of Labour men and Citizens' League nominees are to be returned without a contest. The arrangement may be satisfatcory to the two organizations concerned, but to an outsider a compromise of this kind represents a rather dubious standard of popular government. The general body of the ratepayers, by a scheme along the lines mentioned, would be deprived of any voice in the selection of members for the civic bodies. surely a condition that is by no means in the best interests of the community. The two organizations who propose to enter into a compromise that concerns itself only with their own objects and has no regard for the general welfare, by no means represent the whole electorate, and if they attempt to put their plan into operation, the nomination of a field of independent candidates should be the answer of the remainder of the voters. Civic government should be decided at the poles and not in the committee rooms of a couple of organizations whose chief aim is to fight each other.

THOSE JAIL DELIVERIES.

In tendering his resignation, Jailer Carter, of London jail, from which the Murrell brothers, accused of murder, recently escaped, has issued a statement that hotly criticizes W. W. Dunlop, the Provincial Inspector of Prisons. "Mr. Dunlop has for many years," declares the letter, "been paid by the Government to check up laxity or irregularities in county jails, including the London jail, but to my knowledge he has personally performed this duty but once in six years." Many people will agree with the London jailer that the Provincial Inspector cannot hope to be freed of all blame in connection with the rather numerous escapes from Ontario jails that have taken place in the past few months. He is responsible for the administration of the jails of the Province, and the ease with which a number of criminals have escaped from different jails in the Province would seem to indicate a rather widespread laxity, so widespread indeed that it is a matter for surprise that the Provincial Inspector, whose duty it is to check up such matters, has not insisted upon greater vigilance and improved conditions. Holding inquiries after the birds have flown suggests the famous old proverb about the stable door and the horse.

HOME INVESTMENTS.

Of late years municipalities have been turning increasingly to their own citizens to absorb bond issues, issued for the purpose of providing funds for necessary public purposes. They have been encouraged in this tendency by the readiness with which local securities have been accepted, and, after all, this is only as it should be. Residents whose interests are identified with those of the city, and who naturally are well acquainted with its affairs and the character of its administration, are in the best possible position to judge the value of its debentures and to keep in close touch with its happenings and progress. Similar willingness to support city finances has also been found in British municialities. Many of them have been long in the habit of inviting and accepting deposits, payable on demand or after notice, as well as disposing of securities over the counter of the treasurer's office. Birmingham, the great industrial centre, conspicuous for the efficient management of its public business, since the time when the late Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain was its active and progressive mayor, has gone still further in that direction by establishing a municipal bank, and receiving deposits, whether large or small, at four per cent. interest, to be used as needed for city requirements. The response of the people proved swift and generous, and the project has achieved a success exceeding the most sanguine hopes of its originators.

Citizens who thus show their faith in their home town ought not to be less ready and willing to support the local industries. Here again they are in the most favorable position possible to exercise their judgment regarding stock and bond offerings made by companies that carry on business in their midst, and that are thus advancing the city's progress and prosperity. By investing their surplus money in these local enterprises, provided, of course, they are on a sound and stable basis, lenders on bond or purchasers of stock are not only increasing their own interest in city affairs, but are giving pledges for its future. More especially is this the case when local companies are drawing their raw material, wholly or partially, from the immediate neighborhood. This means the development of a valuable market for producers who, in turn, have their buying power increased to the advantage of the city as a distributing centre. The extension of local industries, again, means the attraction of more workers, the consequent growth of the community, and a general increase in its trading activities. Too many investors ignore local outlets for their money. They are too prone to wander far afield, even although, in that case, they have necessarily to depend on outside authority for the materials to form their judgment and have small opportunity to follow it up by personal observation. Millions of money have been sunk, and lost in purely speculative securities, while all the time chances of safe and profitable local investment have been allowed to pass. Those are wise and prudent citizens who judiciously set themselves to aid their own home community. — St. Thomas Times-Journal.

GLORIOUS YOUTH.

Human beings are like plants. It is not always the tree which grows and fruits the quickest that gives the best crop in the end. The brilliant boy does not always fulfil the expectations of his friends, while the boy who was supposed to be dull occasionally surprises everybody in after life because his mind was of the sort which takes a long time to mature.

No hard-and-fast rule can be laid down. But, as Dr. Chalmers Mitchell has pointed out, it is a general rule in nature that the longer the period of youth the greater is the intelligence of the adult.

KENT BLAMES HIMSELF.

Chapter 67.

I longed to turn to Kent for some support and comfort, but I almost forgot my own grief when I witnessed his overpowering anguish. It was as though every bit of hope energy, blood and spirit had been drawn from his body.

I went over to him and tried to touch him, to take his hand, but I realized he was as a person without physical feeling. He did not seem to be conscious that anyone was near him. He just sat staring into space with lifeless, deep set eyes that seemed to have lost the power of comprehending. He seemed so dazed and sat there so long without even moving that I wanted to scream. My heart was about broken and my nerves unbearable.

I paced back and forth across the room. I wondered why I did not cry. It all seemed like a fiendish dream that was beyond reality. Each minute I expected to hear Kent Jr.'s young voice calling to me lustily from the next room.

Kent moved in his chair and turned toward me slowly as if he had only just become aware of my presence. Even now he looked up at me without seeming to see me. His eyes had a dead, haunted look in them.

When he finally spoke his voice was not agitated, but slow and broken, and lifeless like his dark eyes.

"It's—my—fault, my fault, Barbara."

I stopped and looked at him and wondered at the uncanny quality of is voice. I felt like some actress who was rehearsing her part and waiting for one of the other actors to give me my cue.

"My fault, Babs," he said again, his voice breaking a little.

I waited a minute. At first I did not comprehend his meaning.

"It's a curse—a visitation brougt upon me. It's because of that diamond. Oh, God! Why did I ever do it?" he cried with heart-rending anguish.

It was too much for me. I could not stand the suffocating agony of my heart a second longer. I threw myself down on the floor in front of Kent and clung to him, crying bitterly.

He leaned over and put his arms around me. The tension of his feelings overflowed with mine and we poured out our hearts together in deep, soul-tearing sobs.

After a while I tried to control myself a little. Kents grief was so terrible, so desperate and crushing that I suddenly felt stronger and longed to be able to comfort him if it were only possible.

I realized now that he was taking the whole responsibility of our boy's disappearance upon himself. He believed it was all his fault. He felt that this was the consequence of the stolen diamond.

But what could I say to help him—to make him feel any differently? Then, too, I knew that life was unforgiving.

I could only press my arms around him and stroke his black hair ever so gently. I wanted him to feel my love. I wanted him to understand that I did not blame him.

Suddenly the telephone bell rang loudly, and I struggled to my feet to answer it. I felt so weak and my nerves were broken and yet the sudden wild ringing of that bell imbued me with a passionate hope. It gave me strength to answer it, strength to force my exhausted body into action again. I rushed blindly down the hall toward the telephone. The distance never seemed so long and I thought I would faint before I reached it.

REDUCED FREIGHT RATES PREDICTED BY C.P.R. PRESIDENT

Go in Force as Soon as Labor Situation Adjusted and Company's Earnings Warrant.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept. 17.—Bringing a message of optimism and confidence in the ability of Canada to continue her era of progress, President E. W. Beatty, K. C., of the Canadian Pacific Railway, reached Vancouver recently. "At every place I have stopped at in British Columbia I have found remarkable confidence. The Okanagan is experiencing the best year in its history and I am confident that next spring will see all over Canada a revival of trade on a substantial basis," he stated.

Mr. Beatty indicated that with a readjustment of the wage question by the Board of Enquiry there is a prospect of reduction of railway rates to match the general reduction which is coming with deflation from war time valuations.

New Marks in View.

"Announcements will be made later through Vice-President Coleman of new works contemplated as a result of the directors' trip. The moment of decision has been arrived at," stated President Beatty. The recent refusal of the Railway Board to reduce rates pending the decision of the Board of Arbitrators who are, looking into the question of the proposed reduction of railway mens' wages, was among the matters on which the President's views were invited.

"I have not seen anything but extracts from the majority and minority judgments of the commission", stated Mr. Beatty. "It is, however, clear that the majority decision is justified on the ground of the present labor situation. It is not yet certain as to the result of the attempt of the companies to reduce wages, the legality of which is now to be determined by an independent tribunal. Freight rates should be reduced just as soon as this situation is adjusted and the earnings of the companies warrant It should not be forgotten, however, that the economies effected during the spring of this year in many cases represented expenses deferred only, and will have to be incurred later if the properties are to be maintained in a proper state of efficiency."

THE LOCAL WINNERS IN SAFETY LEAGUE CONTEST.

Prizes For School Children's Composition on "How They May Help Avoid Accidents.

Early in May last the Ontario Safety League announced a series of cash prizes for compositions from school children in Ontario on the subject of "How Children May Help To Avoid Motor Accidents." The prizes, totalling two hundred dollars, were donated by the Ontario Motor League to assist in the Safety League's campaign against preventable accidents.

The prizes were divided into two classes—(a) pupils of twelve years and under and (b) pupils of thirteen years and over.

The committee of judges, consisting of twenty-five members of the Executive Committee, have devoted much time in selecting the prize winners out of the hundreds of essays received.

Lila Deyell, a pupil of the South Central School, winner of the 54th prize, $1.00.

Marion Rumming, King George School, 25th prize, $1.00.

Grace Flindall, Central School, 26th prize, $1.00.

Claré Murduff, South Central School, 30th prize, $1.00.

Clifford Colmer, South Central School, 41st prize, $1.00.

Walter Cowling, South Central School, 43rd prize, $1.00.

Amy Fairbrother, South Central School, 49th prize, $1.00.

Margery Gray, South Central School, 60th prize, $1.00.

TRADE OPTIMISM IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Fruit Crop Excellent and People Everywhere in Cheerful Spirit.

PENTICTON, Sept. 19.— President Beatty spoke very optimistically regarding conditions in Canada, in an interview here. He remarked that while it was quiet in the east, business was rapidly picking up in the west, due to the impetus of a good crop. The President on reaching Penticton, left immediately for a trip through the soldier lands of Southern Okanagan.

Railway Changes?

With regard to Lord Shaughnessey's suggestion that the C.P.R. operate all Canadian lines as representatives of the government, President Beatty said that the suggestion had been made to the Prime Minister, but not acted upon. Whether anything would develop from the suggestion would depend on Canada's coming election and the formation of a new government.

Coming to things more local, the President stated that the construction here would be commenced shortly on extension south of K. V. R. to soldier lands. His company had no intention, he said, of linking the K.V.R. with the east by a line around Kootenay lake, nor was there any truth in the statement that the President would take over the Great Northern system between Marcus and Princeton.

Fruit Crop Good.

The fruit crop in British Columbia, he remarked, was excellent, and everywhere he found the people in a very cheerful spirit.

The party accompanying the President included D. C. Coleman, vice-president of the C.P.R. and President of K.V.R., Senator Hon. F. L. Beique, Sir Arthur Augustus N. Nanton, General Nanton, Directors, Sir Herbert S. Holt, Director and member of Executive committee C.P.R., F. W. Peters, Supt. B.C. Division, Vancouver, Dr. D. MacCallum, Montreal. They were joined at Midway by General Supt. K.V.R. A. McCollough, Traffic Manager K.V.R., O. E. Fisher and C. B. Gordon, secretary K.V.R., who accompanied them to Penticton.

THE QUEST SAILS IN SEARCH OF SOUTHERN FROZEN MYSTERIES

SNUG LITTLE SHIP OF BUT 200 TONS LEAVES LONDON FOR ANTARTIC REGIONS—EXPLORE PETRIFIED FOREST AND SEEK "LOST" ISLAND.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—(Associated Press).—"The Quest," the small ship on which Sir Ernest Shackleton will explore unchartered sections of the South Atlantic, Pacific and Antarctic seas, has left the Thames on the start of her voyage.

A Quaint Vessel.

The voyage of "The Quest," the quaint little 200-ton ship which is carrying Sir Ernest Shackleton and his party to frozen mysteries in the South Polar seas, has for its objectives not only oceanographic research, but the exploration of a petrified forest and the location of a "lost" island—Tuanaki—the adjacent waters of which have not been sailed for more than 90 years. In addition, soundings will be taken of the ocean plateau surrounding Gough's Island in an effort to determine the truth regarding a supposed underwater continental connection between Africa and America.

Nineteen persons, representing each of the British self-governing Dominions, are expected to be aboard when the tiny but staunch craft, "built for tight corners," leaves Capetown, South Africa, for two years of buffeting its way through the Antarctic ice.

"The Quest" uses both sail and steam, and which may cover more than 30,000 miles before its return home, was constructed according to the personal ideas of Shackleton, who has made several voyages to the Antarctic. He commanded the British expedition of 1907-09, which reached within 97 miles of the South Pole and also the expedition of 1914-15 to Weddell Sea. His present ship is 111 feet long, 25-foot beam and 12 feet in depth. She was built in Norway in 1917 of oak, pine and spruce and has been tested in heavy sea. Her sides are two feet thick and her bows are of solid oak sheathed with steel. Her steaming radium is 9,000 miles and, under sail, in a stiff breeze "The Quest" can make eight knots. She carries wireless equipment and an airplane with a 25-foot wing spread. She has a glass-enclosed bridge and a lookout that resembles a flour barrel.

Soldier of Fortune.

Major C. R. Carr, an English soldier of fortune, the aviator of the expedition, plans to fly above the Antarctic fogs to scout out passages between the floes through which "The Quest" may pass. He is also the photographer and naturalist of the expedition. The biplane he will use is one of only three that were ever built. The other two were flown, respectively, by Colonel Borten, V.C., the pioneer flyer, from England to Mesopotamia, and by Sir Ross Smith, the first man to fly from England to Australia.

Other members of the Shackleton party, besides those already mentioned, include Frank Etild, second in command; Frank Worsley, commander; Major A. H. Macklin, biologist; R. Stenhouse, lieutenant commander; Captain L. Hussey, meteorologist; J. S. W. Marr and N. E. Mooney, cabin boys.

Petrified Forest.

The petrified forest that will be explored was found by Shackleton on the island of Trinidad at a certain point where he landed from Captain Robert F. Scott's ship, "The Discovery," more than 12 years ago. Gough's Island is eight miles long and 4,000 feet high, and in 1904, when visited for the first time on record by members of the Bruce expedition, was found to have at least four hitherto unclassified species of birds. Tuanaki, the "lost" island, has been mentioned in old nautical records, but apparently has disappeared. A spot in the Pacific where it is supposed to be will be dredged for evidence to show that it is recently submerged land.

There is already in the South Polar regions another British expedition. It is led by Commander John L. Cope, who left Norfolk, Va., on Oct. 27, 1920, for a six years' sojourn in the ice fields. The party is aboard a 7,000-ton whaler, "The Thor I.," and three auxiliary ships and numbers more than 100 men. One of its purposes is the commercial development of the mineral wealth of Antaractica.

MR. JOS. J. DUFFUS TALKS ON ADVANCE IN AUTO BUSINESS.

Addresses Distinguished Gathering of Good Road Enthusiasts at Luncheon in Ottawa.

At a luncheon in Ottawa last Wednesday Mr. Jos. J. Duffus of the Duffus Garage, this city, in a very informative speech reviewed the tremendous strides which had been made during the past few years in the automobile business in Canada. He produced statistics showing an investment of $56,943,018 in the automobile business in Canada in 1920. A total of 89,929 motor cars of a value of $69,656,416 were manufactured last year.

The luncheon was under the joint chairmanship of Mr. John Bingham, President of Ottawa Suburban Road Commission, and Mr. George Pink, Chairman of the Exhibition Automobile Committee. The speakers were Senator G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labor; Mr. J. J. Duffus, former Mayor of Peterborough, President of the Chamber of Commerce, and President of the Ontario Automotive section of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, and Mr. Fred. C. Cook, former Mayor of Ottawa, and past President of the Parliamentary Press Gallery. The luncheon was attended by an exceptionally large number of good road enthusiasts, automobile men and newspaper men.

PEACHES STILL ON LOCAL MARKET.

Colorado Peaches Take Place of Canadian Crop.

On the tail of the departing Canadian peach crop has come the Colorado peaches, and these are being freely offered in the stores and will continue to be for some time. Six-quart baskets of Colorados are selling at $1.75. While admittedly expensive, they are fine quality peaches, and although they will not enjoy much basket sale they will go readily by the dozen.

Grapes Scarce.

Grapes are scarce and high in price compared with the prices of other seasons. Niagaras and blues are 60 cents a basket and Red Rogers are being sold at 65. There are the dregs of the plum crop still in the fruit shops. One dealer had only six-quart baskets of blues and he was getting $1.25 a basket. If housewives want something a little different to preserve or stew Italian prunes (from British Columbia) are on sale on Charlotte St. In appearance they are like elongated blues and packed like salted hering and are sold in 8-quart boxes at $2.00 a box. Single quarts may be had for a quarter.

The Pear Crop.

The fruit shops contain many good things. Anjou pears are $1.00 a peck or $3.50 a bushel. They are a nice quality. Pickling pears are selling at 75 cents an 11-quart basket. St. Lawrence apples are always good, and especially as autumn is coming on are they in greater demand. One dealer had them at $7.50 a barrel or 80 cents a peck. Tokay grapes are a little lower—30 cents a pound. Grapes remind one of autumn, and the thought arises that chestnuts should be in soon to complete the requirements for happy fireside parties.

You Need More Than A Laxative

To correct constipation, all organs of digestion and elimination should be helped. Try NR and see how much better you feel.

NR Today—Keeps the Doctor Away

To live and be healthy, your body mechanism must properly digest your food, extract all the nourishment from it and promptly throw off the waste that is left. This is accomplished by the processes of digestion, assimilation and elimination—the work of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

The failure of any of the vital organs to do its work properly affects all the action of all the others. A forced bowel movement does not help constipation; it only relieves for a few hours the condition that constipation brings about.

Now if you are used to taking so-called laxative pills, oil, purges and the like, you know mighty well you've got to be taking them all the time. Moreover, if you stick to any one laxative, you've got to be increasing the dose all the time. That can do you a lot of harm.

Stop dosing yourself with such things just long enough to give Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) a trial, and let the results show the difference. NR Tablets are not mere bowel movers, their purpose is to correct the condition that induces constipation and give you real, genuine, lasting benefit; to improve your digestion and assimilation, give you a good hearty appetite, regulate your liver and bowels, tone up kidney action and give your poison-clogged body a good cleaning out.

Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is not harsh; it is mild, easy, pleasant in action; no griping or pain ever follows its use; but it is thorough and sure.

By its action on the digestive organs it promotes assimilation, which means extraction of full nourishment from your food, and thereby gives you new strength, energy, better blood, better appetite. By toning, not stirring your lazy liver, NR sends bile into the intestines, improving intestinal digestion. Lastly, by gently encouraging more vigorous bowel and kidney action, NR drives poisonous impurities out of and cleans up your body.

Try Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) and just see how much better you feel in every way. Get a 25c box today and take one each night for a week. You'll say you never felt better in your life. NR is sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

MOTHERS!

WATCH YOUR TEETHING BABIES

THOUSANDS OF THEM DIE EVERY SUMMER

When the baby stars to cut its teeth, then is the time the poor mother is under the stress of great anxiety. The child's bowels become loose, and diarrhoea, dysentry, colic, cramps and many other bowel complaints manifest themselves; the gums become swollen, cankers form in the mouth, and in many cases the child wastes to a shadow, and very often the termination is fatal.

On the first indication of any looseness of the bowels, give a few doses of and thus, perhaps, save your baby's life.

DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY

For the past 76 years "Dr. Fowler's" has been used by mothers for teething babies so you do not experiment with a new and untried remedy which might be dangerous to your darling's health.

BELOVED PHYSICIAN OF NORWOOD VILLAGE

LEADING FIGURE IN THE BAY CONFERENCE FOR FIFTY YEARS

Dr. Samuel Payne Ford of Norwood, is one who enshrines the choicest legacies of the olden time in happy comradeship with the brightest anticipations of coming days, says the Christian Guardian. He is a lifelong resident of Peterboro county, and has for fifty years been a leading lay figure in the Bay Conference. In boyhood he revered the great preachers of George Street and in him they are still alive. After graduating in medicine, he served in United States hospitals during the civil war. He is a busy practitioner, doing such a country practice as many young men would deem impossible, and has held thhe honored name of "the poor man's doctor." He is certainly the beloved physician The tenderness of his death-bed ministrations will linger long in many memories. Somewhere he has discovered the elixir of life. Possibly it may be found in his exuberant faith in God, man, the Church and the future. A hymn writer of no mean order, the new hymnal would have been enriched by some of his many beautiful measures. His verses should add fragrance to his memory.

An only son, Harry E. is professor of French at Victoria, and has just received his degree of doctor of philosophy from Columbia University.

MANY REPAIRS TO PUBLIC SCHOOLS

OPENED WITH A CLEAN BILL THIS SEASON—20 CLASS ROOMS IN PRINCE OF WALES BUILDING

The public schools of the city opened this season with a clean bill in regard to their condition, which was first class in every respect. During the summer months, a great deal of necessary repairs were made to the different buildings, under the capable direction of Mr. J. W. Worth ,the energetic chairman of the property committee, who spared neither time nor pains in his efforts to ascertain that everything possible should be done to put the schools in first-class condition. The entire work was carried out under the supervision of Mr. John Taylor, who is giving splendid satisfaction in seeing that all repair work is done properly and at a great saving to the Board.

General Repairs

At the Collegiate Institute, numerous plumbing repairs were attended to, and, to relieve overcrowding, four rooms were opened up at the South Central School, to take care of the commercial classes.

At the Queen Mary School, 250 square feet of cement walks were laid, all outside doors were cleaned and varnished and a new underground coal pit excavated at the west side.

At the Central School and the old Collegiate Institute building, both were painted on the outside and the plumbing in both was placed in first-class condition. The Central School had its roof re-tarred and extensive work done in the lavatory to make it more sanitary, the old Collegiate building was shingled, and a new cement floor laid in the basement.

At the Queen Alexandra school, the building was shingled, and some plumbing repair work attended to.

The King George School has its outside doors cleaned and varnished, considerable grading done to the grounds, 250 square feet of cement walks laid, and a new underground coal pit installed on the north side.

As considerable repair work was done at the King Edward school both last year and the previous year nothing was required to be done there this year.

The New School.

The new Prince of Wales school, just opened, is a most modern and up-to-date building. From the electric button in the basement which sets a clanging bell in motion in the upper corridors, in case of fire, to the room set aside for the use of prospective dentist, it is just about the last word in modern school construction.

The woodwork throughout is of cheerful Georgia pine, with marble wall bases, the walls themselves done in cool colors of grey and white, with tarrazzo floors and stair doors and stairways of fireproof steel. The halls are wide and airy, all ceilings throughout the building are high, and a perfect ventilating system has ben installed, with a fan on top of the roof, and an electric fan in the basement, which is capable of changing the air in every room in the school within five minutes' time. Three monster boilers in the basement, with an estimated consumption of some 200 tons of coal per winter, provide the heating apparatus, and each room is in touch with the engineer in charge by means of an electric indicator system. Here also, in the large, cheerful basement, is the manual training room ,play-rooms for boys and girls with an outside netrance for the latter, and an exercise room for the girls which partakes of the nature of a gymnasium.

The school, which has a capacity of between 700 and 800 pupils, has 20 class-rooms, including the house hold science and manual training rooms, and is in charge of a staff of 14 regular teachers, under the principal, Mr. R. S. Wightman, B.A. The rooms are bright and cheerful with plenty of windows and comfortable desks, each room equipped with cloak-rooms at the rear, with sliding doors and ventilating areas beneath. There is a room for the future dentist, for the examining physician, for the principal, a rest-room for the lady teachers, where they have facilities for preparing lunch in the cold weather, and a large well-equipped household science room, with electric stove and all other necessary paraphernalia.

Three of the regular class-rooms are furnished with small desks for the use of smaller children, and the kindergarten, which may be used as an assembly hall, with a seating capacity of over 500, has piano, outside entrances to the playgrounds, and sliding doors which shut it off from the rest of the building. A gramophone has been presented to the school by Mr. J. M. Greene, one of the members of the Board of Education.

WILL DISCUSS THE MOTOR 'BUS LINE

CITY COUNCIL WILL MEET REPRESENTATIVE OF THE COMPANY

A meeting possibly of the whole Council on Thursday night is of unusual interest to East City residents in as much as it concerns the problem of transportation to this part of Peterboro being overcome by the use of motor buses. E. A. Barnwell representative of the Tilling-Stevens Motor Bus Co. of London England, will meet the Council and explain the utility of the motor bus with particular reference as to how it would serve the part of Peterboro which lies east of the Otonabee River.

Mr. Barnswell has been endeavouring to secure an interview with the Council. Ald. J. J. Turner is particulary open-minded regarding bus operation in Peterboro. The Hydro he said at last nights meeting had stated that they could not give an East City service without running the line at a deficit and so the Council must look to another means of solving the transportation problem for East City and no harm at any rate can come he declared from an investigation of a bus line. "It occurred to me when I saw the bus it might solve the problem. I'm not prepared to say it will or it will not because of climatic conditions. I thought if the bus proposition would solve the problem one might run to Roger street and another to Nicholls Oval and so give the two services."

"The cost of the bus was $13,000, Ald. Crowe remarked, 'I forget what he said it cost to run it. It holds 24 above and 26 below. I sized it up in my own way and thought it foolish to consider it." Ald. Crowe went on to minimize the requirements for a bus to East City. He did not think there would be enough passengers and it would not pay to run it.

Ald. Turner mentioned that while the transportation problem is serious now it will be more acute if a factory with which negotiations are now under way locates here.

When Ald. Crowe went on to say that it wasn't far to walk over to East City, Ald. Turner gave explicit distances. "It is a mile from Madill's corner to Armour road, or a mile to St. Luke's Church," he stated.

Ald. J. Hamilton did not regard the bus plan favourably and was of the view that the money invested in two buses ($26,000) would be better used in helping the Hydro meet the cost of a radial line.

"It won't do any harm to have him come down and talk." Ald. Crowe put in philosophically after his opposition. "There's this about it. If you find the traffic is light you can divert the bus or buses to either places." got in Ald. Turner as a last shot for the motor bus.

The final motion passed framing the invitation to Mr. Barnwell was that the representative of the company be asked to come to Peterborough and the Chairman confer with Mayor A. A. McIntyre on the advisability of calling a meeting of the whole Council.

IMPROVEMENTS TO THE LOCAL PARKS

more attention than formerly in the way of decoration. A mistake was made when this park was planted with trees, in keeping them in straight rows. To preserve their symmetry and beauty it will be necessary to remove or take out nearly half of them, otherwise in a few years you would have nothing but unsightly trunks and branches of no shape or beauty, if let grow as they are. This would be a great pity, as there are some very fine shapely trees there at present. I would also ask that the Dominion Government be approached regarding the keeping in condition of their parade ground, as it forms a very unsightly background to the park."

"I thing that last clause is worth considering," declared Ald. J. Crowe.

"So do I," remarked Ald. N. Phelan.

Ald. Crowe was for instant action in improving the drill ground, but Ald. Turner counselled waiting till spring, pointing out that there will likely be a skating rink there this winter, nullifying any work done.

"Well, it should be kept in mind," contended Ald. Crowe when a motion was passed leaving this recommendation in abeyance till the winter's snows have gone.

Finishing up its parks business, the committee passed a motion asking Mr. Wise to mark the trees to be removed to enabled the committee and City Engineer to consult on them.

FORESHADOWS LONG, COLD, HARD WINTER

FOREST ANIMALS ARE BUSY PREPARING THEIR WINTER COATS

QUEBEC, September 20. — The forest inhabitants are preparing for a long and hard winter, according to Cyramis Bastion, a veteran trapper, here laying in supplies.

Most of the animals are now busy manufacturing their winter coats, and the squirrels are laying in an unusual supply of nuts, he said. Only the brown bear being fat and lazy, were wearing tattered furs.

The trapper admitted that it was possible that the animals might have been deceived by the early spring, and that we might have a protracted Indian summer, instead of jumping headlong into an early winter. "But, like the animals, I am not taking any chances," he added.

DR. CLINTON AND LADIES HURT IN MOTOR CAR ACCIDENT

INJURED MOTORIST IS MEDICAL HEALTH OFFICER FOR THIS DISTRICT AND WELL KNOWN IN PETERBOROUGH.

Dr. G. Clinton, medical officer of health for this district, and well-known in Peterborough, Mrs. Clinton and their daughter, Miss Jean, met serious injury near Belleville while motoring across a culvert on the road between Corbyville and Fairfield's Bridge after dark Sunday night. Dr. Clinton was driving the car, and turned aside to allow another automobile to pass, when his car overturned into the ditch. He was proceeding quite slowly at the time of the accident.

Dr. Clinton had his right arm fractured at the wrist and was shaken up. Mrs. Clinton suffered a number of bruises and cuts and Miss Clinton, besides bruises to her arm, sustained a bad wrenching of the shoulder. It was not thought that there were any fractures.

The car that had met the motor passed on, and shortly after Mr. G. H. Gillespie, of Madoc, drove along. He took the party into his motor and conveyed them to their home, where they were attended by a number of the physicians of Belleville.

Dr. Clinton is again able to be about, none the worse for his mishap, ecepting a fractured arm.

CANADIAN WOOLLENS' SHAREHOLDERS MEET

DIRECTORATE UNCHANGED FROM THAT OF LAST YEAR—OUTLOOK FOR FUTURE BRIGHT.

The second annual meeting of the Canadian Woollens' shareholders, was held to-day with a fairly large number present. The directorate was unchanged from last year, and is as follows:

President—A. O. Dawson of Montreal.

First Vice-President — W. K. George of Toronto.

Second Vice-President—F. B. Hayes of Toronto.

Directors—J. D. Perry, Toronto, F. R. Sweeney, Toronto, I. Bonner, Paris, Ont., William Hanson, Montreal.

A preferred dividend for the coming quarter of 1 3-4 per cent was authorized, and the president in his remarks said he hoped next year to show a balance sheet that would allow of a higher dividend. Considering the conditions in other countries the president, in reviewing the past year, considered the company had done well in passing so satisfactorily through a period of great business depression. He looked hopefully into the future, and felt the outlook in the woollen trade was encouraging. He also remarked upon their successfully reducing prices, and he thought the worst of the depression was now past and a brighter business period ahead.

From his trip to Europe, the general manager, Mr. Edgar Worth, in his address remarked upon the hopeful outlook in Canada. The situation in Europe he described as bad and he believed on this side of the Atlantic conditions were very fortunate in comparison with the business plight of Europe generally.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Professional selling pressure was again in evidence at the opening of to-day's Stock Market. United States Steel made a fractional advance and Baldwin, Vanadium, American Smelting, Studebaker, General Asphalt, Royal Dutch and Ajax Rubber also were moderately higher. On the other hand, Sloss Sheffield and Bethlehem Steels, Sears Raebuck, Central Leather, Retail Stores, Food Products, American Sugar and American International eased fractionally to one point.

The market hardened at mid-day with Baldwin and United States Steel as the firmest features. Gains of 1 to 1½ points were made by other active issues, notably American Woollen, Corn Products, Food Products, International Paper and Vanadium.

Baldwin was the only active stock to show a fair degree of steadiness during the morning. United States Steel moved within fractional limits, and Rails were bull and irregular. The feature of the Bond Market was the strength of Mexican Government fours and fives, those issues adding 1 to 2 points respectively to gains.

Lowest prices were recorded in active final hour. Mexican Oils, Steels, Equipments, Sugars and Rubbers showed least resistance. The closing was heavy. Stock market continued its downward course to-day. Sales approximated 550,000 shares.

STERLING EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange steady; demand 3.71; cables 3.71⅛; Canadian dollars 10¼ per cent. discount.

Oats, after opening 1-8 to ¼ to ½ up, Decemebr 38 3-8 to 38½ A 58, continued to harden.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Sept. 20—(Canadian Press).—The local Stock Exchange during the first half-hour this morning was dull and uninteresting. Few issues that did appear displayed some tendency towards weakness. Abitibi opened a half lower at 30¼, as did also Brompton at 19½, and Laurentide at 68.

TORONTO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Sept. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Buying of Hollinger in the unlisted department furnished most interest in trade on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. On sales of nearly 18,000 shares, it rose, 7.44 to 7.50, closing at high. Toronto Rails soldu n to 70½, and Winnipeg Rails at 35½.

GRANDFATHER OF A LOCAL MAN

The following despatch appeared in the Examiner of September 15th, and caught the attention of Mr. John H. Vernor, manager of the Westclox Company, who was casually looking over the paper at the Fair Exhibit:

LANSING, Mich., Sept. 14. — (United Press.)—The tour of the Dewitt Clinton (N. Y. C.) train through Michigan brought to light that this State can claim first honors in the matter of having among its residents first passengers of the old pioneer of the Twentieth Century Limited.

Mrs. Mary Anne Mann, 90, Grand Rapids, claims to be the only living woman who rode on the train during its period of operation. She was enthusiastic in describing her experiences when the train visited her locality, claiming it was "unsafe" for children.

Despite her assertion, John T. Berner, 96, Marshall, claimed to be the only living person who made the initial trip with the train, says he found riding comfortable at the age of 6, when his father, the conductor of the train took him on the first journey. Berner was wheeled to the station at Marshall to view the old Dewitt Clinton on her exhibition trip through the State.

HARVEST HOME DINNER AN ENJOYABLE EVENT

The dinner served on the spacious and beautiful lawn at 38 Hunter street last evening, was a decided success from every viewpoint. Every denomination in East City was represented, and the social concord among the people was most gratifying. Five large tables, covering the whole centre of the lawn, weighted by a menu fit for a king, and adorned by most artistic bouquets of flowers, formed the centre of attraction; while the band of the Salvation Army delighted the people with well chosen and appropriate music. From every quarter, roses of congratulation were handed to the ladies of Mark street congregation, on the rare style and quality of the dinner.

Excellent Programme.

From 5.30 until 8.00 o'clock this social enjoyment continued on the lawn; then a large number of the people repaired to the church where an excellent programme was rendered. Owing to other pressing engagements Rev. Bousfield of St. Lukes, Rev. Young of George street, and Rev. Chapman of St. James were unable to attend, but two masterly addresses were delivered by Rev. Robt. Pogue of St. Paul's Presbyterian church and Rev. F. E. Malott of Trinity.

After the audience had sung two verses of "All hail the power of Jesus' name," and Rev. Mr. Pogue had led in prayer, Mr. Ross, the pastor, opened the programme by a brief address on the "Attitude of Jesus toward the social gathering," and showed very clearly that while the House of God is too sacred for worship alone, there is a time and place where Jesus will meet with his people and join even in their feasts. Such an occasion was the feeding of the "five thousand." We do not read that Jesus ever attended a feast in the temple.

Helpful Address.

Mr. Pogue's address was very helpful. He spoke very hopefully of a possible marriage between certain religious bodies of East City. He thought the courting was going on now. The Methodist church has the site for a comfortable dwelling, and a nucleus of a building fund safe in the bank. However, he was not sure how the young lady might consider the proposition. But there is one thing quite evident and that is, the young folks love each other, and the Methodist church is ready with open arms to receive a Presbyterian bride.

Logical and Forceful.

The address by Mr. Malott was clear, logical and forceful. He thought union was in the air. He felt that a well equipped church was absolutely necessary in East City. We spent $250,000 in West City for a public school for the intellectual development of the child, and that was right. How much more important that Mark street should have proper equipment for the moral and spiritual development of its childhood. Who shall measure the responsibility resting upon us if we longer allow these startling conditions to continue? Now is the time for the Kingdom of God to advance in East City. There is now an unparalleled opportunity; let us seize it e'er it steals away.

Both speakers said that they were in perfect accord and sympathy with Mr. Ross, the pastor, in his burning ambition to have a well equipped church, union or otherwise, where the moral and spiritual needs of the people could be met adequately.

Musical Numbers.

The solos by Mrs. Braund and Mr. Bowerman, the cornet solo by Mr. F. Robinson, bandmaster, and the saxaphone quartette delighted the audience. Mrs. Richardson ably accompanied Mrs. Braund in her solo work.

On behalf of the board and congregation, the pastor, Rev. G. E. Ross, assured the Salvation Army band, who gave such splendid help freely and heartily, and the others who freely gave their services, of the deepest gratitude and appreciation of Mark street people.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem, and the benediction by Rev. Mr. Pogue.

The pastor would take this opportunity of thanking the ladies of the congregation for their unwavering faith in God for good weather and their heroic efforts to help the Lord to answer their own prayers. The splendid response by the men, when called upon, is also gratefully remembered.

Young Men Interested In Road Racing Are Invited To Meeting in Y.M.C.A. Thursday

The Examiner is willing and ready to revive the former annual road race from Lakefield to Peterboro on Thanksgiving day provided the number of prospective entrants warrants it. In years before the war this event aroused more than local interest, and produced a string of runners who won honours in some of the important athletic meets and marathon races in the country. There is no reason why this fine sport should not be rekindled. Peterboro and its immediate district must have many young men who have the urge to take up the road or cross country running. They will be given the advantage of the experience and training of Charlie Thorpe and Douglas Loomis, physical director of the Y.M.C.A. both of whom are keen to bring out a flock of novices.

In order that some indication may be obtained of theh possible interest in distance running a meeting will be held in the Y.M.C.A. on Thursday night at 8 o'clock to which every young man in the city who has the inclination to prepare for the Examiner road race is invited. If a sufficient number responds training will be held in groups, the companionship helping to remove the monotony of a road grind. Charlie Thorpe has promised to turn out with a squad and Doug Loomis will do all he can to promote the game, but there must be an encouraging muster of beginners if this work is to be proceeded with.

By turning out contestants would have plenty of time for training. Every inducement will be offered to those who will respond but their own interest and appreciation of the personal benefits of keeping in condition will be the chief signs as to whether or not the revival should be undertaken.

COLLEGIATE RUGBY SQUAD SHOWS LOT OF PROMISING MATERIAL

According to reports from the Collegiate the school shows every promise of turning out a strong rugby team this year. At recent practices a squad of from 25 to 30 has been turning out at the Oval after 4 o'clock, showing a lot of good material. The extensive change in the rules, including the return to the snap back system, imposes the necessity of learning them quickly and thoroughly if time is not to be wasted. If the Collegiate could secure the services of some Toronto man for even a day or two, or could send a man up to get a line on the new regulations in operation they would be materially benefitted. Queen's sent one of thier men to Toronto for a week to familiarize himself with the rules so as to be able to communicate them to the rest of the team. Collegiate cannot undertake anything of this kind, perhaps, but at any rate it is encouraging to know that they are going to keep rugby alive in Peterborough. Games with other schools in the district should afford an interesting schedule once the students get into their stride.

TILDEN WON THE TENNIS TROPHY

DEFEATED WALLACE JOHNSON OF PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20. — (Canadian Press). — William T. Tilden, II., of this city, is again national tennis champion. He won the 1921 title by defeating Wallace C. Johnson, also of this city, 6-1, 6-3, 6-1, in the final round of the 40th annual championship singles tournament of the United States Tennis Association, in what is said to be the record time of 43 minutes.

Tilden rose to super-heights in his play yesterday afternoon. The speed and accuracy of both his service and return strokes so dazzled and smothered Johnson that the latter was placed in such a defensive position that he never for a moment appeared to have even a fighting chance.

As a result of his victory, Tilden's name will again be inscribed upon the championship trophy, which he won for the first time last season. He now has two legs upon the cup, placing him on a level with Maurice E. McLaughlin, who won in 1912 and 1913; R. Norris Williams, winner in 1914 and 1916, and William M. Johnston, holder in 1915 and 1919. William A. Larned and R. Lindley Murray have also won this particular cup once, the play dating back to 1911 when it was placed in competition.

Tilden lost but five games during the contest, and did not even remove his sweater while playing.

FOOTBALL RESULTS.

LONDON, Sept. 20. — (Canadian Press).—Results of association football games played yesterday were:

English League—First Division.

Blackburn Rovers 3, Bradford City 1.

Third Division—Northern Section.

Stockport County 2, Barrow 0.

Scottish League—First Division.

Airdrieonians 0, Raith Rovers 2.
Hearts 1, Rangers 2.
Hibernians 2, Celtic 1.

BOWLERS WILL PUT THE SHOT

CONTEST ARRANGED FOR FRIDAY NIGHT WITH THIRTEEN ENTRIES

The Bowling Club has broadened out in athletics and will hold a twelve-pound shot putting competition on Friday evening from 7 until 9 o'clock with thirteen entries. The handicapping committee have made the following allowances: Dick 1 foot, McCrathur scratch, Gillman 1 ft. 6 in., Elliot 4 ft., Ross 4 ft., King 1 ft., Oke 5 ft., Mayneord 5 ft., Copping 2 ft., Freeman 6 in., Hammond 1 ft., Sturgeon scratch.

The Bowlers are going in for this event with the same keenness that has marked their lawn play. They have plenty of ground space on the east half of their park and may go in for other sports to wind up the season. The shot put is bringing out all the talent including Alex. Dick and T. McArthur of the Caledonians. Dr. Hammond, Bob Sturgeon and others. Friday night's contest will likely attract a big gallery.

FOOTBALL NOTES

Executive of the P. and D.F.A. met last night in G.W.V.A. Hall. A busy session was held and considerable business done.

The Caledonian Club dropped out of the league for this fall schedule owing to so many players being injured and others had to leave the city seeking employment.

This is to be regretted and we hope the remaining players who are still fit will join the other clubs and strengthen the other teams.

The Concert commitee met and a splendid programme is being prepared, and the artists who have already agreed to take part assure a great success.

Watch for further particulars for the concert ,which takes place on Monday next, Sept. 26, in the G.W.V.A. Hall. Admission 25 cents.

GRAY-DORT MOTORS SECURE W. T. BUSH

Come to Canadian Field Well Equipped to Fill His New Position as Director of Sales.

Gray-Dort Motors, Limited, of Chatham, Ontario, announce the appointment of W. T. Bush as Director of Sales to succeed W. G. Bell, who has taken up other work in the organization.

Mr. Bush has come to his new position unusually fitted to fill such an important appointment. His experience has not been limited to the manufacturing end of the business,

W. T. BUSH,
Director of Sales, Gray-Dort Motors, Limited, Chatham, Ontario.

but he has spent many years in retail selling both in Canada and the United States.

The first position held by Mr. Bush in Canada was as General Sales Manager of the Studebaker Corporation of Walkerville. Later he was transferred to the head office at South Bend, Indiana, as Assistant General Sales Manager, still retaining his connection in the Canadian organization.

Prior to his appointment with the Gray-Dort Company, Mr. Bush held an important executive position with the Packard Motor Car Company of Detroit.

In an interview with newspaper reporters Mr. Bush said that he has returned to the Canadian field because he believes that Canada offers a greater market for the sale of automobiles than any other country in the world.

JUDGE HUYCKE GAVE ADDRESS

At the re-union of ex-members of the 21st Battalion, which took place here on Friday evening last, His Honor Judge Huycke gave the toast to "Our Fallen Comrades," at the banquet which took place in the evening at the G.W.V.A. Hall. His Honor gave a very eloquent and touching address, reviewing the noble effort of those brave boys of the Battalion who breathed their last in far-away France and Flanders.

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring Back Its Color and Lustre With Grandma's Sage Tea Recipe.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While grey, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

ANNIVERSARY EVENTS BENSFORT A SUCCESS

Special Services Sunday, Harvest Home Dinner Monday.

BENSFORT, Sept. 20.—Anniversary services were conducted at the Hill Church on Sunday by the Rev J. H. McBain of Oshawa. Mr. McBain was raised in South Monaghan, his father having farmed and taught school at Bensfort over forty years ago. Consequently the son had a warm welcome on this visit.

The attendances on Sunday were very good and the preacher gave of his best. The choir, too, rendered very effective service. Even the weather was on its most genial behavior and the church, overlooking the lake, is beautiful for situation.

Dinner at Night.

On Monday night a Harvest Home Dinner was served in the old Church and again the weather favoured and dinner and entertainment proved one great success. The Rev. R. M. Patterson, the new minister, presided, and the church was crowded.

Addresses were delivered by the chairman, by Mr. McBain, and A. H. McConachie, Centreville. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pipher and Company of Port Hope displayed their undoubt talent in providing a varied and enjoyable programme. Altogether the city set on a hill had a high time, socially and religiously.

IRRIGATION IN SOUTH ALBERTA WORTH WHILE

EDMONTON, Alta., September 20. —Canadian Press. — Three hundred miles of motor driving through some of the dry country of Southern Alberta has convinced Premier Greenfield more than ever that irrigation in the south is worth while and that it is the one and only solution of the drought problem.

In company with Hon. R. G. Reid, and Hon. G. H. Hoadley, the Premier spent two days in Edmonton.

OMEMEE MAN THREW HIMSELF DOWN A WELL

OMEMEE, Sept. 20.— Mr. Edmund Rody, a farmer living about five miles from here, committed suicide this morning by throwing himself down a well. Mr. Rody, who was in his 43rd year, had been in a failing mental condition for some time, and constant watch was kept on his actions. However, his sister, who was with him, fell asleep and about five o'clock this morning, he committed the rash act which resulted in his death. Life was extinct when the body was discovered. Mr. Rody, who worried considerably over financial difficulties, was unmarried. He leaves two sisters and a brother.

PICTON HERE SATURDAY FOR O.B.A.A: CONTEST

The Picton team, winners of the Bay of Quinte League, and last year's intermediate Ontario champions, will be here on Saturday afternoon to clash with the C.G.E. team in the first of a two game series in the intermediate O.B.A.A. The return game will be played at Picton next week.

Saturday's game should be a great exhibition. The C.G.E. team have not been idle since their victories over the local Mercantile League winners and over the East Peterborough champions, but have been practising faithfully and should be right on edge, while the Picton team, fresh from their two victories over Madoc, the Trent Valley title holders, will be in the best of shape. Croft, the twirling ace for the Easterners, is said to have a world of stuff and his team mates play clever ball. The C.G.E. pitching selection is not yet decided, but it is expected that either Bun Frost or Chris. McCarney will be assigned the task of stopping the invaders. Tickets for the game are selling fast and the fans are showing great interest in the clash.

SPORT COMMENT

HORNSBY AND HEILMAN.

Hornsby, the cardinal premier, has outclassed his league so far at bat that no one else is in sight. He has opened one of the greatest gaps in all batting history, a record-breaking lead.

Heilman, of Detroit, who has kept even pace with Hornsby, has come upon rougher competition. He has had Cobb on his heels for over six weeks with Ruth and Sisler close enough to take quick advantage of any slump.

Hornsby can drop ten stories and meet no one coming up. Heilman can afford no such luxurious descent. He was passed by Cobb in the last fortnight and needed five hits in a single game to regain part of his old margin.

RUN MAKERS.

As a runmaker there will be only one name on the chart. Ruth is after another record here.

Hornsby and Heilman have made approximately thirty more hits than Ruth has made. Yet the "Babe" is forty runs beyond either, more than forty runs ahead of Heilman.

To crack "Ty" Cobb's long standing record two successive years is one of the top achievements in the slugger's career.

THINGS THAT HAPPEN.

On in two and down in three
Seldom happens unto me.
But on in four and down in eight,
That sir, is my normal fate.

A drive, a brassie, an approach,
A lie that's dead against the cup,
These are shots I always get—
Just before they wake me up.

W. H. P.

ALL-TIME STUFF.

"What's the matter with this line-up for an All-Time All-Star team," writes a fan. "Here goes—Cobb, rightfield; Speaker, centrefield; Ruth, leftfield; Sisler, first base; Collins, second base; Bancroft, shortstop; Hornsby, third base; Schalk, catcher. Can you beat it?"

Only in one or two spots. Hans Wagner could never be dropped from any All-Star cluster. In the main the present era has offered greater talent than anything in the past has known—for Cobb, Speaker, Ruth, Sisler, Collins and Hornsby have never been topped by any individual stars.

THE ASSAULT.

Peering over the top of his throne to-day "Chick" Evans, amateur golf champion of the United States, can see Bobby Jones, Francis Ouimet, Bob Gardner, Willie Hunter and about thirty others of note attempting to encircle his defenses. No wonder "Chick" is collecting every stroke he has to offer.

Defending a golf title is one of the mightiest of all tests. The records show how few have succeeded. And as the game gets faster and faster, with so many new stars coming on, the assignment develops greater and greater trouble. One off day—some youngster on his game—and the old scepter changes hands.

Autumn leaves its visiting card in two ways. One is the drifting brown leaf. The other is a request for so many world series tickets. And there are more of the latter than the former.

The Belleville High School football team has become affiliated with the Belleville Amateur Athletic Association, which will handle the finances of the students who play in the interscholastic series with Peterborough and Kingston.

Kilties' defeat at the hands of the Tigers yesterday sent Cleveland a game ahead in the Johnson loop. "Babe" Adams helped the Pirates with a 2 to 1 win over the Giants.

The P.A.A.A. will give the Collegiates a helping hand with their Rugby team, and Dr. A. W. McPherson is already at work with the Central Park players. There is much material, and the students are turning out well at the practices.

Our old friend Bert ("Skid") Jones, a former Peterborough hockey goal-tender, has forsaken Cavan and has gone to Port Hope, where he is manager of a veneer factory. "Skid" recently joined the Benedicts, and friends in Millbrook and Cavan presented him with a set of easy chairs. But the Port Hope Hockey Club will likely see to it that the new arrival spends his leisure moments in the nets.

The P.A.A.A. will not meet on Wednesday night. The next meeting will be held next Monday night, when the hockey committee will report.

Given fine weather, the Picton-C.G.E. O.B.A.A. game here next Saturday afternoon should attract a bumper crowd. Picton disposed of Madoc without much trouble, and will come here confident of putting the Generals away.

Secretary Nott of the C.O.B.L. is making elaborate preparations for a big day in Oshawa next Saturday. A pennant has been made which is about six feet in length and in the color of the Oshawa uniforms, red and grey, having the letters C. O. A. B. L. stamped on it. The ceremonies of hoisting the pennant will take place immediately before the game between the All Stars and the Champions, and it is expected that the Oshawa and visiting players will take part. A banquet will be held after the game.

President Kimmell's All-Star team to play the Champion Oshawas is as follows: Catchers, Tyson, Cobourg, or Mills, Belleville; pitchers, Oulette, Lindsay, or Goyer, Belleville; 1st base, Harrison, Peterborough, or Coombs, Lindsay; 2nd base, Skitch, Cobourg; 3rd base, Murray, Peterborough; short, Weir, Belleville; outfielders, Carew, Lindsay, Fair, Port Hope, L. Rose, Peterborough. The spares are: R. Chalk, Port Hope, Mills, Belleville, Butler, Cobourg, and Lowe, Peterborough.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

A picture that opens in a gambling establishment on the "Bubbling Well Road" in Shanghai, where Cherry O'Day and her father Terence, an expatriated Englishman, reign over their half-caste world and that ends in a lonely lighthouse in the Southern Seas affords much opportunity for romantic episode. "The End of the World" is filled with interesting situations. The heroine Cherry, who has been taught by her father to regard all men as beasts and fair prey for any sort of feminine designing, has her own way with most of them until she falls in love with Gordon Deane, a cruising American. Then things begin to happen. He goes away, and living true to her cynic's creed of "save yourself" when her father dies she marries a wealthy banker infatuated with her beauty and charm. Now three men become embroiled over her and how all three come together in the lonely lighthouse with the dramatic end to the triangle, is pictured in one of the most interesting pictures seen here in some time, with costumes through out appropriate and fascinating.

The comedy, with Larry Semon in "The Bakery" is one of the biggest screams of the screen world. Before Larry is finished with this bakery, although his intentions throughout are of the very best, he has accomplished more mischief than one would think possible. Everywhere he appears, with his mopey visage and long legs, trouble just naturally follows him, and gales of hilarious mirth echoed through the house as he wended his adventrous way through the pies and cakes and flour-bags of his employer's establishment.

The "Yellow Arm" explains in this chapter the story of the mysterious lady in shadowy white, and ends with another thrilling question mark as usual.

The vaudeville for the first three days of this week at the Capitol is exceptionally good. Frank Shannon, one of those magnetic performers who captivate the interest of their audience immediately, has a line of fresh Irish jokes and some Irish songs in a sonorous deep baritone that bring with them all the charm and attraction of the Green Isle. As an encore, he sang "Just Make Believe" and an imitation if an old bass viol.

Mack and Betty are high-class vocal and instrumental artists. The lady, in a couple of wonderful and scintillating gowns, gives several vocal selections. She has a voice like a violin, with pure sweet high notes and a deep, strong timbre to the lower registers. The masterly performance of Mack on the 'cello were also loudly encored, the audience applauding an obdurately darkened stage right up to the moment when the screen lighted for the feature picture.

"THE FOOLISH MATRONS" CAST WITH FAVORITES

If there is any significance to names, then surely devotees of the photoplay will look forward with anticipation to Maurice Tourneur's production of "The Foolish Matrons" which will be seen at the Allen Theatre to-day and Wednesday.

The production which was made under the direction of Maurice Tourneur and Clarence L. Brown will be presented with one of the most brilliant casts that the celebrated producer has yet presented to the photoplay fans. Hobart Bosworth whose popularity has placed him in the front rank of screen stars will appear in the leading masculine role while Doris May will be one of the three leading women. The story does not center around a single heroine however and Mildred Manning together with Kathleen Kirkham will share equal honors with Miss May. Betty Schade one of the best known "heavy" women of the screen and Margaret McWade will also appear prominent in the play while Charles Meredith Wallace MacDonald, Michael Dark and little Frank Lee fill out the remainder of a cast that can not only be rightfully termed 'All-Star," but one of the greatest ensembles of popular players that have yet appeared in a single production.

AT THE REGENT.

Gladys Walton Attractive in "All Dolled Up"—Florence Turner Cast.

The premier of "All Dolled Up" last night at the Regent Theatre was particularly significant to playgoers for two reasons. It gave Gladys Walton, the star, her best screen role, and gave the audience its first screen glimpse of Florence Turner in several years.

Miss Turner, the first big star of the silent drama, has not been seen lately and her important role in support of Gladys Walton indicated to those who saw "All dolled Up" that she is to resume her work before the camera.

"All Dolled Up" was written especially for Miss Walton and is well suited to her sparkling artistry. As the story opens she is seen as a woe begone little shop girl whose only romance is in her dreams. In contrast to her poverty is Eva Bundy, a wealthy spinster who has never known love. The two women find romance unexpectedly. Maggie the shop girl falls in love with chauffeur when he saves her from advances of a floor walker. The spinster falls in love with Rodolpho, a singer, who wants to share her money.

How the plot shifts to a notorious road house and how Maggie battles for her good name while the spinster discovers that the love which Rodolpho professed for her is a sham, brings the theme to a cleverly conceived climax.

Rollin Sturgeon directed "All Dolled Up" and he achieved a distinct success. He had the co-operation of an excellent cast including Edward Hearn, Richard Norton, Helen Bruneau, Fred Malatesta and others.

AT THE GRAND.

"LADIES' NIGHT."

New York laughed for a year at "Ladies' Night,' the attraction announced for Wednesday night of this week.

This frolicsome entertainment comes to this city direct from its sensational run of a year at the Eltinge theatre, where laughter and lingerie combined to make it the most sensationally successful of last season's dramatic offerings. Avery Hopwood, author of "Fair and Warmer" and "The Gold Diggers," collaborated with Charlton Andrews in writing "Ladies' Night" and they succeeded in bringing many interesting people together in situations that hit you squarely on the funny bone. Three young men unexpectedly find themselves adrift in a Turkish bath on "ladies' night." Their efforts to escape detection and avoid their wives, brings about a dramatic frolic that has not been equalled in any farce of the last ten years. A. H. Woods, the manager of "Ladies' Night,' has provided a beautiful production. The second act shows the interior of a Turkish bath and gives a rare opportunity for colorful situations. The company presenting "Ladies' Night" is made up of Broadway players of established reputation, including Ralph Bunker, Muriel Hudson, Josephine Saxe, Ebba Andrus, Dave Jones, Stanley DeWolfe, Ellen Best, Antoinette Crawford, Mary Mixon, Helen Courtney, Marjorie Chester, Alma Wall, Bobbie Lee, Doll Farlardeau, Lillian Smalley and Wm. H. Dorbin.

THE ROYAL PIERROTS.

"Why of course it's great to be here—after having played all over the world," said little alma Gray, the soubrette with "The Royal Pierrots" who commence their local engagement at the Grand on Saturday next.

"These past five years have been very strenuous and we all notice it so much after playing long seasons in one city. You see we made London our headquarters for quite some time and our engagements lasted five or six months at a time. At the Savoy theatre we played an entire season and then we went to the Palace and Coliseum theatres and also gave special performances at Queen's Hall."

"Work! I should say so!—Ours is a curious entertainment. We are all busy from the rise of the curtain to the fall. We help each other in nearly all of the musical numbers and I am pleased to tell you that we do not suffer from theatrical jealousy: We have been together so long that we know each other's idiosyncrasies and any little disturbance or misunderstanding that might occur is quickly righted.

"Yes, I am British—I was born in Australia—I have been dancing ever since I could remember. I have pictures here of myself at four years of age in dancing costume—so you see dancing is second nature to me."

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, after which Mr. and Mrs. Lowe left for a short honeymoon in Toronto and western points. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

A pretty wedding took place at 8 o'clock this mornin gat St. Peter's Cathedral, when Georgina Eldean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Percival of Toronto, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to John James Gelineau, of Montreal. The ceremony was performed by Rt. Rev. M. J. O'Brien, Bishop of Peterborough, assisted by Rev. Father Gillogly. The bride, who entered the church on the arm of Mr. J. A. Sharpe, 537 Homewood avenue, was charmingly attired in a suit of blue tricotine with large black panne velvet hat trimmed with espreys. She wore white fox furs, and a corsage bouquet of butterfly and sweetheart roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Marguerite Lafferty, was gowned in navy tricotine with black velvet hat and corsage bouquet of ophelia roses.

Mr. Peter Gelineau, of Montreal, a brother of the groom, acted as best man. The wedding march was played by Miss Margaret Doherty, and during the ceremony an "Ave Maria" was rendered very sweetly by Mrs. Jno. Currin.

Mr. and Mrs. Gelineau left on the 12.04 G.T.R. train for Toronto, where a reception will be tendered them at the home of the brides parents. From there they will proceed to Montreal, where they will reside. Many useful and bautiful gifts testified to the popularity of the bride, who has many friends in Peterborough, and has been a member of the nursing staff of St. Joseph's Hospital here for the past four years.

VOL. XLIX., No. 68 — PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1921 — PRICE THREE CENTS

One Thousand Lives Reported Lost in Terrible Explosion in Factory

INTEREST IN CONTROVERSY HAS LULLED

LLOYD GEORGE MAY PRECIPITATE A POLITICAL CRISIS IN ENGLAND.

ACCEPTS PROPOSAL

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

LONDON, Sept. 21. — Premier Lloyd George may postpone the Irish issue and go to the country in a general election, the Daily Mail declared to-day.

Belief that the British Prime Minister feels his position with regard to Ireland to be at the strongest possible point, together with his determination not to go to Washington, has given rise to suspicion that Lloyd George contemplates precipitating a political crisis in England.

The British Cabinet Committee were gathering at Gairloch to-day for investigation of the Irish situation and unemployment. Winston Churchill and Lord Birkenhead arrived early to-day, and Sir Hammar Greenwood, Sir Robert Horne, Sir Alfred Mond and Thomas MacNamara were expected. The last-named three compose the committee which will discuss unemployment, while Sir Hammar Greenwood was to consult with Lloyd George on the latest note from De Valera, preliminary to the more formal meeting tomorrow.

The British reply to De Valera was expected to be delayed until after the Cabinet meeting.

Feeling that De Valera in his last note, has definitely accepted the British invitation to a conference, on its terms, continued to grow here. Reports from Dublin were that the Sinn Fein President was willing to make that point even more clear, if necessary, heightened British hopes of peace.

Interest Lulls.

De Valera has definitely accepted the Daily Mail said to-day, and warns Lloyd George to resist the "temptation to precipitate a general election instead of going ahead with the conference."

Interest in the Irish situation, which was at fever heat two days ago, has lulled. The popular feeling was that the controversy has degenerated into a mere bandying of words. The refusal of De Valera to specifically waive the sovereignty claim now that the only hitch in the negotiations preliminary to a formal peace conference has angered one faction in England, while another insists the Sinn Fein leader has sufficiently done so already, the Conservative press protests against De Valera's continued evasion. Lloyd George's reply, when it is made, was expected by many to end the correspondence.

CHEESE SOLD AT 16¼ CENTS TO-DAY

SMALL SALE ON THE PETERBORO' CHEESE BOARD

James Cook, of Belleville, and G. A. Gillespie split the offering at the sale of the Peterborough Cheese Board to-day, each getting 320 boxes at 16 1-4 cents.

To-day's board of 640 boxes was extremely low; two weeks ago 811 boxes were sold. The price paid slumped to-day greatly to the salesmen's dismay and was 2 1/16 cents below that of the previous sale. T. Thompson, of Madoc, buyer for A. A. Aires, of Montreal, attended the sale, but did not put in a single bid.

The board was as follows:

Warminster	60
Selwyn	85
Villiers	50
Warsaw	175
Young's Point	100
Lang	40
North Dummer	55
Killarney	75
Total boxes	640

James Cook opened the bidding at 14 1-2 cents, and by slow progress he and G. A. Gillespie advanced the price to 16 1-4. The Belleville buyer took Warminster, Selwyn and Warsaw, and Mr. Gillespie got Villiers, Young's Point, Lang, North Dummer and Killarney.

The board adjourned for two weeks.

President R. Denne Asks For Suggestions For 1922 Exhibition

BOARD MEETING OF SEPTEMBER 30TH WILL CONSIDER ALL RECCOMMENDATIONS SENT IN BY CITIZENS TO THE SECRETARY ON THE SUBJECT—FAIR IS GROWING RAPIDLY

In the course of a week or ten days the Directors of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition, are to meet for an exchange and presentation of ideas to the meeting, as to what they think will be of advantage for the Exhibition in 1922. What will be brought before the meeting is information gleaned from exhibitors spectators and those who have the interest of the Fair at heart.

There are hundreds of people in the city who have suggestions to make, and would make them so long as they felt they would be kindly received. This need not both en any citizen in the city or county of Peterboro, whether an exhibitor, spectator or a concessionaire, as President Denne is inviting every one who will take the trouble to do so, to write out suggestions and recommendations, and forward them to the Secretary, Mr. F. J. A. Hall, when they will all be considered at a meeting of the Board which is to be held on Friday, September 30th.

The Peterboro Fair is now a fixture. It is developing so rapidly that the directors feel that every available bit of information and knowledge on the subject of making the Peterboro fair still a bigger and better one, should, come before the Board.

If the citizens of the city and county of Peterboro will only realize that the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition in time, can mean as much to Peterboro City as the Toronto Exhibition means to Toronto, they will give every assistance in their power to bring about this result.

THE ENGLISH ELECTRIC CO. ESTABLISH IN CANADA

TAKE OVER THE CANADIAN-CROCKER WHEELER CO. AT ST. CATHARINES.

The Canadian Crocker-Wheeler Company which has been bought out by the English Electric Company of Canada, was capitalized at $500,000 of preferred stock, $280,000 of common, and $149,000 of outstanding bonds. In the consolidated balance sheet of the Electric company its capital assets are valued at $1,-864,084, which represents, it is understood, approximately the cash purchase price paid to the Crocker-Wheeler shareholders by the new concern. The payment is being met out of the proceeds of the new preferred stock issue. It is apparent that shareholders of the Canadian Crocker-Wheeler Company will realize considerably more than par on their stock as a result of the deal.

The new concern does not need to undertake any important plant extensions or alterations, inasmuch as the existing plant is adapted for a much larger and wider range of production than it is at present being utilized for. It is merely a matter of bringing out designs and patents for new electrical equipment from England, where upon production of same on a large scale can be undertaken at the St. Catharines factory at once. A portion of the $500,000 order placed by the Toronto transportation commission with the English company in England will be filled presently by the Canadian company.

The underwriting of an industrial issue of this type marks a new departure for the Canadian Debentures Corporation, which expects in future to play a more active part in bringing well-established English companies into the Canadian field of operations in the manner now being tried.

ODDFELLOWS IN THE BIG PARADE

TORONTO, Sept. 21.—(Canadian Press).— Under lowering skies which threaten to break into showers at any moment, parade of from thirty thousand to fifty thousand members of Independent Order of Oddfellows, with their militant encampments and sister lodges took place here this afternoon in connection with ninety-eighth meeting of Sovereign Grand Lodge which is now in session here.

Long line of lodges, cantons and auxiliaries was reviewed by Joseph Oliver, former mayor of Toronto, and Grand Sire of Order. Leading civic and provincial dignitaries were also on the revewing stand.

SAY MONEY STOLEN FROM MILK BOTTLES

POSTIES FEAR BEING BLAMED FOR THIS PETTY THIEVERY

Another hazard has been added to the lives of the postmen of the city of Peterborough. They probably think they have quite enough to make life interesting, what with long routes in all sort of weather, with doors that refuse to open and tenants who refuse to install letter boxes, with barking dogs, and with letters that persist in coming to the wrong addresses. And now they are inclined to be nervous about something else. All sort of complaints are being made just now about money being removed from milk bottles. From the west end, the north and from East City milk bottles have been robbed of the cash left in them for the busy milkman. And the postmen say they stand in danger of getting the blame for these depredations, as they often see as much as $2.00 at a time left at the door in the bottles. Besides being a temptation to petty thievery, owners of this money should remember that coins and bills are supposed to be one of the most prolific carriers of disease germs in existence, and milk is one of the commodities of life which afford a warm resting place for germs at any hour of the day or night. Of course, the very hot water with which the bottles are washed would remove all traces of these busy little things.

THREE FAIRS ARE ON TO-DAY

LINDSAY, CAMPBELLFORD AND LAKEFIELD ALL OPERATING TO-DAY.

Three fall exhibitions are on to-day, Lindsay which opens a two-day fair, and Lakefield and Campbellford with the concluding and most important day. No matter how good an exhibition and program any fair board gets together, the weather has everything to do with its being a success. Peterborough was fortunate in as much as three out of four of its dates were blessed with fine weather but Saturday's wet day lost to the Fair anywhere from three to five thousand in attendance.

The Peterboro Fair Board wishes Lindsay directors the balance of the week a clear sky and real Fall Fair weather and regrets that Lakefield and Campbellford have been unfortunate in their selection of a pleasant day.

This has been a vexed question ever since Kingston hitched up with the Hydro power line to the Trent.

Kingston's Agreement.

Several years ago the Kingston Commission entered into an agreement with Sir Adam Beck's Commission at Toronto for the supply of power to this city, and it made an agreement considered the best of any existing in Ontario. Kingston agreed to buy and the Hydro-Electric Commission agreed to sell power at $23 a horsepower for 1,200 horsepower, with gradual reductions as the block of power purchased was increased. This is a different agreement from any other in force in Ontario, for Kingston does not own or have an interest in the power line from the Trent. It also has the acknowledged right to purchase power from J. M. Campbell, at Kingston Mills, and also to operate its steam plant when it sees fit in order to keep down the peak load. The Hydro people wanted the Kingston Commission to scrap its steam plant when it started to take Trent power, but this it refused to do.

The Point in Dispute.

Under the Hydro Power Act, the Provincial Commission claims full power with regard to the adjusting of electrical rates in all places where it supplies power. This has been disputed in Kingston owing to the nature of the local agreement, but the local Commission, to be agreeable, referred to the Hydro Commission any changes in rates it decided upon. Now, however, there may be wigs upon the green. Some time ago the local Commission, at the instance of Mayor Nickle, decided that the finances of the electrical departments were such that there should be another reduction in rates, preferably power rates. The matter was referred to the Hydro-Electric Commission, which desires more information before it gives sanction.

They Challenge Beck.

At a meeting of the local Commission, Mayor Nickle took the stand that according to the Kingston agreement the Hydro Commission had no say whatever in fixing Kingston's rates, and intimated that when all the data the Hydro engineers desire is secured later in the year, he will move that the street lighting rates be reduced without asking Hydro for permission. "We will accept Sir Adam Beck's challenge and see what he will do," declared Mayor Nickle.

Mayor's Defiance.

It had been intimated that if the local Commission acted against the wishes of the Provincial Commission, Sir Adam Beck would seek the dismissal of the present commissioners and ask the City Council to appoint others in their stead who would do as the Hydro said. "I will guarantee," said Mayor Nickle, "that if Sir Adam fires you four men the City Council will appoint four other men whom Sir Adam cannot run. I take issue with him and his solicitor, Mr. Pope, that Kingston must fix its electrical rates in accordance with the decision of the Hydro Commission. Our agreement with Hydro will show that the Provincial Commission has nothing to do with the fixing of our rates and that we are in no different position entirely from all other municipalities taking Hydro [illegible]

A suprise party took place last evening at the home of Mrs. W. H. Bolton, Bethune street, in honor of Miss Elsie Hamlin, whose marriage takes place on Saturday. About 75 of Miss Hamlin's friends presented her with micellaneous shower of useful and beautiful gifts. A presentation of a chair was also made on behalf of The Examiner Printing Company's staff by Miss Edna Holmes and an address was read by Mr. Gordon Butcher. The evening was pleasantly spent in dancing, games, music and the enjoyment of dainty refreshments.

The Reconstructed Meighen Cabinet Is Representative

CEREMONY TOOK PLACE IN THE EARLY HOURS OF A COLD GRAY MORNING—AMONG THE SURPRISES

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

OTTAWA, Sept. 21.—At the early hour of 8.30 on a grey color morning, the new members of the reconstructed Meighen Cabinet filed into the Governor-General's office and were duly sworn in by His Excellency Baron Byng of Vimy. With them went the Premier, guiding his new flock, together with those of his former colleagues who have elected to remain.

Apart from a few surprises in the state, probably the most notable feature of the ceremony was the presence for the first time in several swearings-in of seven French-Canadian Ministers.

No less than three portfolios have been captured by the Province, without including the portfolio of Marine and Fisheries still retained by Hon. C. Ballantyne, an English-speaking Minister, the position of Solicitor-General has not yet been filled, but the Premier intimated to-day that it also would go to Quebec.

The three new French-Canadian Ministers are all of the old "Bleu type." They are: L. P. Normand, Mayor of Three Rivers, who becomes President of the Privy Council in place of Hon. J. A. Calder, retired; Rodolphee Monty, barrister, of Montreal, who becomes Secretary of State; and L. De G. Belle, Conservative member for Chicoutimy from 1892-96, and since a practising barrister, who succeeds Hon. P. E. Blondin as Postmaster-General. Dr. Normand will oppose Hon. Jacques Bureau in Three Rivers. Mr. Monty will run in Hochelaga, but it is not decided yet where Mr. Belley will stand for election.

Among the surprises in the new Cabinet shake-up is the retirement of Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice since 1911, and the succession to the position of R. B. Bennett, former M.P. for Calgary. It has been taken for granted that when Mr. Doherty declined nomination for the International Court of Justice, he had decided to run again as Minister. The Premier stated this morning that he would receive a position of some sort later.

Changed His Mind.

When Hon. R. B. Bennett left Ottawa over a week ago he left the distinct impression that he was not entering the Cabinet. Later negotiations, however, have served to change his mind. Another eleventh hour choice is that of Dr. R. J. Manion, M.P. for Fort William, on whose behalf the hitherto almost extinct and unfilled portfolio of soldiers' civil re-establishments has been revived. Dr. Manion actually succeeds Mr. Doherty as Irish Catholic representative in the Cabinet, and his consent to enter the Cabinet was only secured last evening, when it was known that Mr. Doherty would retire. Dr. Manion has a good military record, and is a fluent speaker. The Department of Immigration and Colonization and Health have been merged under the administration of Dr. J. W. Edwards, M.P. for Frontenac, who will be the outstanding Orange representative in the Cabinet. Dr. Edwards declined flatly to enter without portfolio.

John Stewart, of Lanark, becomes Minister of Railways in the place of Hon. Dr. Reid, retiring to the Senate, while to H. H. Stevens of Centre Vancouver falls the portfolio of Trade and Commerce. Sir George Foster, a veteran of five Governments, also goes to the Red Chamber upon vacating the latter Department.

J. B. U. Baxter, leader of the New Brunswick Opposition, succeeds Hon. R. W. Wigmore, who also goes to the position of Minister of Customs. Out of a total of 22 Ministers, no less than 12 are from Quebec and Ontario.

By provinces the Ministers are divided as follows:

Ontario 6, Quebec 4, Nova Scotia 2, New Brunswick 1, British Columbia 2, Alberta 2, Saskatchewan and Manitoba 1 each. Of the 18 portfolios, no less than 6 go to Ontario, 4 to Quebec, one to Nova Scotia, one to New Brunswick, two to British Columbia, two to Alberta, one to Manitoba, and none at all to Saskatchewan, that province's representative, James Wilson, of Saskatoon, being without portfolio.

The Original Cabinet.

In the original Borden Cabinet of 1911, Ontario had eight Ministers—Quebec 4, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Alberta and British Columbia one each, Manitoba two and Saskatchewan none. Of the members of the original Borden Cabinet, only two remain in the new line up of Mr. Meighen. They are Sir Edward Kemp, now senior member of Council, who stays in without portfolio, and Sir James Lougheed, who retains the Interior. Of the Cabinet formed by Mr. Meighen a little over a year ago, seven retain their portfolios. They are: Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance; Hon. C. J. Ballantyne, Minister of Marine and Fisheries; Hon. Senator Robertson, Minister of Labor; Hon. S. F. Tolmie, Minister of Agriculture; Sir James Lougheed, Minister of the Interior; Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Militia, and Hon. F. B. McCurdy, Minister of Public Works.

Six of the original colleagues go out, namely: Sir George Foster, Hon. Dr. J. D. Reid, Hon. J. Calder, Hon. P. E. Blondin, Hon. C. J. Doherty, and Hon. W. R. Wigmore. In consistency in the formation of the new Cabinet may be found in the fact that while no British Columbia fall the important portfolios of Trade and Commerce and Agriculture, Manitoba and Saskatchewan divide between them the non-active department of External Affairs held by Premier Meighen.

OTTAWA, Sept. 21. — (Canadian Press).—Of the old Ministers who are retired, Hon. James A. Calder, Hon. J. D. Reid, and Sir George Foster are understood to be slated for the Senate and Hon. W. R. Wigmore for another appointment outside. Hon. P. E. Blondin, Postmaster-General, is already in the Senate. The new Cabinet met this morning in the Privy Council Chamber immediately after the Ministers had been sworn in. Announcement as to dissolution is expected tomorrow.

THE WEATHER

The summer is now a thing of the past. This is the first day of the fall season, and the date of the proverbial equinoctial storms. But, like many other old beliefs which we have been prone to cherish, men of science step in, and say we have been under a delusion—that storms are no more common at this date than at any other time. But old beliefs die hard. They have told us that the moon has no effect on the weather, yet thousands of our farmers think otherwise, and back their faith by only sowing certain crops at what they consider favorable phases of the moon. And to show that their faith was justified they point to [illegible]s that were sown [illegible]d to others that [illegible] of the moon's [illegible] the moon has [illegible] on the weather, is an open and undetermined question, but the fact remains that some of the worst storms that have ever occurred have been around this date. —W. PRIOR TO LEAVING LAKEFIELD FOR NEW HOME IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 21. — Miss Jean Smith, who is leaving Lakefield on Wednesday for her future residence in British Columbia, gave a delightful luncheon at her home Monday night. The entire sports programme, managed by Alfred Russel, was carried through with a verve that did not permit of one dull moment.

After the soprts, Miss Jean Smith welcomed the guests in her artistic bungalow, while in the cosy living and dining room, amidst the soft, harmonious blending of flowers and pretty china, recherche refreshments weer served.

A few of the guests present were Misses Kathleen Dwyer and Mary Worbrington of Peterborough, Miss Jean Warrobe, Misses Helen Peters, Florence St. Thomas, Helen Hall, Ruth Hickey, Ruth Tornbeck, Marjory Lolles, Mary Green, Helen Young. Also Messrs. George Green, Jack Lane, Harry Perry, Jack Wilson, Harry Tobin, Bobbie O'Brien, Harry Torton, Jack Hickey, Joe Coleman.

THE LIBERAL POLICY ON THE TARIFF

MACKENZIE KING ADDRESSED A BIG MEETING IN TORONTO LAST EVENING.

FIELDING PRESENT

TORONTO, Sept. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Discussing the railway question in Toronto last night, Hon. Mr. King declared that Government ownership should be given a chance without hindrance from interlocking directorates. He also stated the policy of the Liberal party on the tariff. Hon. Mr. Fielding put forward the solution of the railway problem:

Speaking on the two vital questions, tariff and railways, Hon. Mr. King said in part:

"It is for the principle of tariff for revenue that the Liberal party has stood in bygone years, it is for that principle the Liberal party stands to-day, and it is for the principle of tariff for revenue that the Liberal party will continue to stand if returned to power in the present contest.

"Let me tell Mr. Meighen that, while it is impossible to have an issue between tariff based on the principle of protection and a tariff based on the principle of free trade, it is possible to have an issue on tariff primarily for revenue as against tariff primarily for protection, and that upon this issue we are prepared to fight, as Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Fielding fought in 1896, and with expectations of a like return to prosperity and stability in matters industrial and commercial, should our policy be vindicated at the polls.

It is because we believe that in no other way can the battle be won throughout this Dominion, from ocean to ocean, we propose to place Liberal candidates in the field, not as expressing an antagonism toward any class or group who may share Liberal or Progressive ideas, but solely to make sure triumph of Liberal principles and policies at the polls.

"We ought to give Government ownership of railways a fair chance and a fair show before we condemn it, but we cannot give it a fair chance if we have the interlocking of directors."

Speaking on railways, Mr. Fielding said: "I am a little anxious as to know what will happen public ownership with 22,000 miles of railroad. I notice some speakers say, 'Get rid of railroads.' I don't agree at all. We have the railways now, and I believe our true policy at the present is to try honestly to administer them and see if we cannot make public ownership a success."

CAN BE FREED BY OBEYING THE ORDERS

POPLAR BOROUGH COUNCILLORS STILL IN JAIL FOR REFUSING TO LEVY TAXES.

LONDON, September 21. Canadian Press.—The Home Office, replying to the protest by the Stepney Borough Council against the imprisonment of their neighbors, the councillors of Poplar Borough, state that the government possesses no power to release the prisoners, who, it is added, were imprisoned, not for any criminal offence, but for disregarding an order of the High Court. The court had ordered Poplar to levy rates as fixed by the London County Council.

The Home Secretarys' statement adds:

"They could secure their own release at any time by obeying the court's order. If the Home Secretary releases them he would act contrary to the law and such action would constitute a grave interference by executive government with judicial procedure and the authority of the courts. If the government should propose legislation conferring such power on themselves the Home Office cannot think that Parliament would agree."

The Home Secretary adds he can only suggest that the Poplar councillors be urged to obtain release by undertaking to obey the court's order.

ADMITS RECEIVING LARGE SUM OF MONEY AND AUTOMOBILE

GOVERNMENT SENDS NOTE TO MOSCOW

THE DIPLOMATIC EPISTLE DETAILS A NUMBER OF CHARGES AGAINST SOVIETS

LONDON, Sept. 24.— (Canadian Press.) — The British government has despatched a strongly worded note to Moscow as to serious breaches in faith involved throughout Central Asia and and Afghanistan of campaign intrigues hostile towards Britain.

The note, which was written by the Foreign Minister, Earl Curzon, was delivered to the Moscow Government, two days ago. It details a number of "flagrant violations" of Russia's undertaking under the trade agreement with Great Britain, to cease anti-British propaganda and enumerates the activities of the Third Internationale of Moscow in India and Afghanistan, quoting in substantiation thereof a statement by M. Stalin, president of the eastern section of the Third-Internationale, urging the eastern secretariat to devote itself to undermining the external power of England and France.

It is declared in the note that the British Government has evidence of continued intrigue with Indian revolutionaries in India, some of whom were invited to Moscow last June to discuss the best means of bringing about a revolution in India, and also refers to the activities of Rothsetin, the Russian representative at Teheran, who is declared to be importing large sums and known to be subsidizing Persian newspapers to carry on an anti-British campaign. It complains that the Soviets are supporting the Turkish Nationalists.

The Gravest Charge.

The gravest charge pertains to the Russo-Afghan Treaty, and M. Tchitcherin insistence on a clause in this treaty providing for the opening of consulated in eastern Afghanistan.

Lord Curzon says the Government possesses indisputable evidence that these consulates are regarded by the Soviet Government as prospective centres of propaganda and has evidence also of the activities of Jamal Pasha, sent to Afghanistan by the Soviet to provide the hostile tribesmen with funds, arms and ammunition.

The British Foreign Secretary asks for definite assurance that these activities, constituting breaches of the trade agreement, shall cease.

The note accuses the Soviet of trying to induce the Indian anarchist Hafaiz, who has been studying the manufacture of bombs in Vienna, to proceed to Afghanistan and supervise a bomb depot on the borders of India in order to facilitate the importation of bombs into India.

It declares that the Soviet used every persuasion to prevent the Angora Government from arriving at a peaceful solution with the Entente powers and assembled considerable forces on the borders of Anatolia, suggesting that they should be sent into Anatolia for the support of the Kemalists.

LUCKY OSHAWA

A few days ago we had occasion to congratulate Oshawa upon the success of her baseball club. Now it seems that the people of Oshawa are to be felicitated upon another matter that is of more importance in its effects than half a dozen baseball championships. The announcement that General Motors proposes to make Oshawa the base of their export operations means a lot to the people of that town. Oshawa has had its experiences with schemes that did not get very far, and has also tasted the depressing effect that a wide measure of unemployment can produce. The General Motors plant in Oshawa, as large as it is, may have to be increased, but at all events the announcement will undoubtedly act as a tonic upon the people of the motor town. It should mean steady employment at good wages for a very large force of employees, and the decision of the firm to make Oshawa the export centre will give the people of that town a chance to grow enthusiastic over the biggest industrial prize of the decade.

A TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM.

The City Council are to hear the advantages of a motor bus system for East City described by the representative of an English firm, who is edeavoring to interest Canadian municipalities in that method of transportation. Frankly the plan at a casual glance does not seem feasible in a city the size of Peterborough, but no harm will be done in hearing the details of the proposition. The people of East City are entitled to transportation facilities. For years they have pressed their claim for street railway accommodation, but always the bridge problem stood in the way. The building of the new Huner street bridge was expected to remove all difficulties and to ensure for the ward across the river an extension of the street railway. The bridge is practically completed and Ashburnham is as far away from a realization of her hopes as ever. The Hydro-Electric Commission, which operates the Peterborough Radial Raiway, refuses to make any extensions to the present system, so that the Hunter street bridge has brought no change in the situation so far as accommodation for the people of East City is concerned. The motor bus plan may be the way out of the difficulty, but it is a faint hope.

THE WON'T WORKS.

The difficulty of handling the unemployment situation is intensified by the fact that among the thousands of men who are without employment there is a large proportion who want to work at some one particular trade and to name their own scale of wages, and there is another class who are not in the mood to work at all. Western newspapers report that in some districts where farmers boarded trains in search of help and offered $5.50 per day, many of the labourers approached declared that before they would "lower themselves" to accept such a sum they would prefer to depend upon the soup kitchens in Calgary and other cities. Unfortunately, this is not an isolated incident. In all parts of Canada there are men who are refusing to accept work because the wages offered are below the high level reached during the war. Later on the municipalities will be asked to take care of these men, and the feeling is steadily growing that to do so by handing them meal tickets or doles in cash or groceries, is only to encourage them in their refusal to work when employment is offered them. These parasites injure the men who are genuinely out of work and whose families are, as a result, suffering. Instead of this dole system the municipalities should endeavour to provide employment of some kind or other so that the indolent will be unable to secure assistance without paying for it by the sweat of their brow.

No matter what you happen to believe, your deeds are going to attract a good deal more attention than your creeds.

THE CITY'S PARKS.

In Mr. Frank Wise, the City Council have evidently been lucky enough to secure an official who endeavors to do more than merely carry out the routine of his duties. His report as caretaker of Victoria and Central Parks indicates that Mr. Wise is not satisfied to perfunctorily look after the city's breathing places, but that his love of the beautiful impels him to point the way to better things. There are many suggestions made by him that would undoubtedly improve the appearance of these two parks, and more especially there is need of attetinon for Central Park, which occupies such a prominent site and is naturally seen by nearly every visitor to Peterborough. Mr. Wise has indicated some improvements that might be made there, and his recommendatiogs should not be pigeon-holed and forgotten, as have been many other reports of the same nature. Certainly Central Park does not approach that standard of immaculate neatness and beauty that a park situated on the city's leading thoroughfare and only a block away from the business section should possess. It is inclined to have a ragged appearance before the summer is out and as Mr. Wise points out, the parade ground in front of the armouries provides a background that could not by any stretch of imagination be described as beautiful. The putting into force of some of the suggestions made in the caretaker's report and a conference with the military authorities in regard to their property would effect a surprising transformation in the appearance of Central Park. The park appropriation might have to be increased, but there is no doubt but that the citizens after seeing the changes that could be made would be unanimous in declaring that the additional cost was warranted.

LABOR COSTS MUST BE ADJUSTED

The process of wage and salary adjustment is one of the most important movements in industry at the present time. With labor the biggest single item in production costs, a state of normalcy in business cannot be reached until wages have been thoroughly adjusted upon a basis to conform to the lower cost of living, thereby rendering production possible at a figure which shall enable the dealer to quote attractive prices for his offerings to the public. There can be no price stability, and consquently no business stability, until this adjustment is made and employers who through false sentimentality are unduly bolstering up wages in the face of altered conditions are but prolonging the period of business stagnation, increasing the volume of unemployment, and stirring up unrest.

Wage deflation has gone far in many industries in the United States—much farther than in similiar industries in Canada. The opinion prevails on the side that in many cases a state of stability has been reached, and coincident with the belief comes the announcement from many parts of the country that industrial plants are beginning to resume brisk operation. The moral is obvious to the Canadian employer—war time scales of wages are no longer justified and the deflation must be thorough and complete if the state of industrial depression is to end.

Significant of the attitude on the "other side" to the problem of wage adjustment is the decision of Judge Landis in the Chicago building trades dispute, which authorized reductions in wages varying from 10 to 33 per cent., affecting some 44 trades. It is further insisted that the able bodied and competent workman keep his production up to standard if he is to receive the current scale of pay.

Judge Landis has stressed a point of the utmost importance. He has enunicated an economic principle which was sadly disregarded during the era of rush orders and high scale wages. The lower productivity of workers, which, of course, tended to increase the cost of production, served to intensify the depression that developed in trade when orders fell off. Certain labor unions were in a large measure to blame for this situation by enforcing principles which tend to destroy economic efficiency, and in a period of depression such as we have experienced, to bring misfortune to their members and fellow workmen.

It is true that the growth of unemployment tended to alleviate the situation, but the workers recognized their responsibility when it was too late. "A fair day's work for a fair day's pay" will be the maxim which will guide both the worker and the employer from now on.

DON'T insist on "bulling" the boss—he is as intelligent as you are and can see through your "line."

Resists the Canadian Climate!

A Canadian Battery should be more than merely made in Canada. It should be so constructed as to render satisfactory service under the severe driving conditions encountered in this country. The extreme temperature, the long months of idleness and, sometimes, lack of proper attention all tend to destroy the insulation.

When the insulation is weakened, the plates are likely to be ruined. Between the plates of the Willard Threaded Rubber Battery is used the strongest known insulating material—RUBBER. Each Willard Threaded Rubber Insulator is pierced by 196,000 threads or "wicks," making the rubber uniformly porous for the free circulation of the battery solution. As a result, owners of the Canadian Willard Threaded Rubber Batteries secure unusually long mileage and low cost per mile.

A VOICE ON THE WIRE
CHAPTER 68

The loud ringing of the telephone bell brought me struggling to my feet. I rushed to the telephone and jerked the receiver to my ear.

"Hello," I answered. Every nerve in my body was pounding.

'Hello," came a voice over the wire. "That you, Barbara? This is Tom Barney. I have the boy. I have Kent, Jr. He is right here in my arms this minute. We'll take a taxi and be up there in a jiffy."

I suddenly felt the sickening sensation of overpowering joy. I tried to say something, but I couldn't seem to put any sense or coherence into my words. I could not believe that it was true. I was only a dream.

"He is all right—don't worry," Tom's voice assured me over the wire. Then I heard him hang up the receiver and I just collapsed in a heap on the floor. The strain had been too great and this sudden joy overcame my emotions.

The next thing I knew Kent was bending over me.

"Babs, what is it? Who telephoned?" he asked, looking at me wildly.

"He is all right—our boy—Tom Barney has him," I tried to explain. But if Kent understood or grasped the significance of my words he did not show it. He looked at me blankly and then walked back slowly into the living room. He told me afterward that he did not even realize that I had fainted or might need him to help me. He said his senses were like stone.

I finally staggered to my feet and had presence of mind enough to get to the bath room and take a strong dose of aromatic spirits of ammonia I dashed some cold water over my face and wrists.

I kept trying all the while to remember just what Tom had said over the telephone. I thought there must be some mistake about it. My feelings were too deadened to grasp the truth of this sudden good news.

I went back into the living room and found Kent standing in front of a large photograph of Kent, Jr. He did not move or turn away, but kept staring at it with great, long lines of pain pulling down the corners of his mouth. I noticed that he held something grasped firmly in his hand. It looked like Kent's little brown Teddy bear but my eyes were too full of tears to be sure.

Presently the front door bell rang wildly. The sound of it come to me as from way off in the distance. I came back to reality with a jump and rushed to the door. Agan that wonderful strength giving hope rushed over me.

In another minute I was on my knees and Kent, Jr.'s little, sturdy arms were hugging me tightly around the neck, and his warm red lips were pressing against mine.

Then the pent-up, burning tears rushed down my cheeks and against his soft, pink skin. I did not try to stop them for they were tears of exquisite joy.

"Don't cry, Muvver," Kent plead ed, and he tried to wipe away the tears with his chubby fingers. His loving baby touch alleviated the last trace of pain from aching heart.

I held him off at arm's length and examined him long and lovingly to be sure he had not been harmed. He was safe and sound, thank God, and I drew him close to my heart again.

"Kent boy, go in there to Daddy," I said, motioning him toward the living room.

"Daddy?" 'he echoed, with keen expectancy in his young voice. He withdrew his little arms from around my neck and turned eagerly toward the living room. I followed him to the door. He hesitated for just a minute, started to run, then tip-toed toward his father who was seated in a chair at the far end of the room.

To-morrow—Kent, Jr. is Brought Back.

CONSOLIDATED SCHOOLS FOR DUMMER NOW

WILL DRAW UP AGREEMENT AND SUBMIT TO VOTE OF THE PEOPLE AT AN EARLY DATE—SCHOOL FAIR ON FRIDAY.

WARSAW NEWS NUGGEST

WARSAW, Sept. 21.—A joint meeting of the committees from the 4th Line and Warsaw Schools was held in the Warsaw School house Saturday evening, all the members but one being present. Mr. Lees was in attendance also. Mr. Joseph Tedford was appointed permanent Chairman and Mr. Harold Darling Secretary.

The cost of a two-room Consolidated School, one teacher to take the work up to the entrance class and another with two years of high school work, was found to be as follows:

1.—A fixed grant of $3,000 to be given each Consolidated School section having such a school actually in operation by Dec. 22, 1921.

2.—A grant of 7" per cent. of cost of site and building. The equalized assessment of the two sections is $150,000. A school approved by the Minister of Education would cost $15,000 to $17,000. At $17,000 the two sections would have to raise but $6,350.

It was the unanimous vote of those present that they draw up an agreement, have it approved by the department and submit it to the people for a vote.

In view of the fact that both sections require new schools it was felt it would be wiser to join forces and have the one better school at less cost to each section than a good, up-to-date, single-room school would cost.

School Fair.

The trustees and others interested are hoping for a good day on Friday for the School Fair. There are no fees in any way connected with this Fair. The profits from the booths is all to be for the Fair fund, so that all expenses may be paid and have a little over for next year. It is very hard every year to trust to getting every cent that is paid in prizes, used for entertainment, etc.

The aim of the Fair is not that every one obtain a prize—that is impossible—but that every one be stimulated to do his or her best, and those who do not win prizes may see the cause of failure and do better again and thus raise the whole standard.

Rally Day Sunday.

Next Sunday the different Sunday Schools will hold their Rally Day service.

Union Meetings.

On Friday evening at the union meeting Miss Barrie gave a talk on popular amusements. This week there will be no union meeting. Last Tuesday evening Rev. Mr. Orchard gave a most interesting illustrated talk on "India."

Two evangelists are holding services in the church at Cotessloe.

County W.M.S.

The Peterborough County W. M. S. of the Methodist Church will be held in Warsaw Methodist Church on Wednesday, Oct. 5th. Morning session at 9.30 o'clock and afternoon at 2 o'clock. A good program of missionary interest is being prepared and speakers from a distance will be present. Everybody is welcome at these meetings. To make it more convenient for those attending a lunch will be served in the basement.

Personal Mention.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Choate have returned from the lake.

Mr. Lees, Inspector of Public Schools, and his son were in the village Saturday evening.

Mr. Bert Reid, Gananoque, is visiting his father, Mr. G. W. Reid.

Mr. and Mrs. Rose, Peterborough, came out on Saturday to visit Mrs. Rose's father, Mr. George Tucker.

Mrs. Wallace Anderson was called to her father, Mr. Hugh Dodds, Smith, as he was very ill. She came home on Friday, leaving him apparently some better, but on Sunday was called back again, and reached her father's bedside shortly before he died.

CONTI A MARVEL WITH THE CUE.

French Billiard Champion Coming to America.

PARIS, Sept. 21. — (Canadian Press). — The meteoric rise in the billiard world of Roger Conti, French cue marvel, has attracted as much attention in Europe as Willie Hoppe's spectatcular performance in America some 12 years ago. Conti is coming to the United States this month to represent France in the world's billiard championship tournament, to be held in Chicago in November.

Born in Toulouse in 1901, young Conti began to wield a cue in his father's billiard parlors when the top of his head was hardly visible above the tables. He used a stool to make some of the more difficult shots. In his early teens, he defeated many of the ablest players in Europe at balkline. Recently he gave Doruet, one of the 10 best French players, 150 points, and beat him in a 500-point game, running out in five innings. He is weakest on masse shots, but this fault is overcome by marvellous position play and nursing.

LONG BEACH ALL YEAR COMMUNITY.

LONG BEACH, N. Y., Sept. 21.—(Canadian Press). — Long Beach, that seashore resort selected by writers of musical comedies whenever an American Ostend is desired for a scene, now has become an all-around-the-year community.

The bathing girls will not be playing on the sands, but safely tucked away from the breakers will be many summer residents who have put up substantial houses. The largest hotel has announced it will remain open all winter, and if the majority of the summer residents remain, the village will have enough population to become a third-class city.

Pennsylvania leads the country in the number of colleges and universities, having 43 such institutions. New York stands second with 38.

THE THREE PIECE FROCK

It looks quite like a redingote frock, but in reality it is a combination of trotteur and dinner gown. To the left is a view of it for street wear and on the right, parted from the coat-like top garment, it has become a dinner gown of unusual charm. Black duvetyn de lain is the material of redingote and lower skirt. Heavy gray crepe meteor makes the sleeveless bodice. Trimming is of metal banding, gold and green.

LLOYD GEORGE IS NOT COMING TO CONFERENCE

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT TO THIS EFFECT MADE—BRITISH PROBLEMS WILL KEEP PREMIER AT HOME—LORD CURZON ILL.

LIKELY SUBSTITUTES

LONDON, Sept. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Neither Mr. Lloyd George, the Prime Minister, nor Lord Curzon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, will attend the Washington conference on the limitation of armaments. This official announcement was made to-day and their decision is attributed to pending developments in domestic politics.

This has caused no surprise here, as the development of British affairs for some time past has made it evident that the Prime Minister could not leave the country, although it is understood that he was anxious to participate in the conference. Whether the Cabinet meets the Sinn Fein representatives or not, Irish affairs for the next few months will demand the Prime Minister's closest attention, while the problem of unemployment promises to become more pressing.

Curzon's Health Bad

It had been assumed that Lord Curzon would go to Washington. His health, however, is one of the drawbacks; he was unable to make the journey to Inverness for the urgent Cabinet meeting recently to decide the Government's policy toward the Sinn Fein.

No appointments have yet been made for the conference. The choice of Arthur J. Balfour, however, is believed to be a certainty, as he is the most experienced of the Cabinet members in the diplomatic negotiations. Andrew Bonar Law, the former Government leader in the House of Commons, is mentioned as the next probability. He has completely recovered his health since his resignation from the Cabinet a few months ago and si now living in London.

A Logcal Appointment

The First Lord of the Admiralty, Baron Lee of Fareham, is considered a logical appointment because of the proposed discussion of naval disarmament. Lord Lee is recovering from a serious operation and probably will be well enough to travel in another month. The Secretary for War, Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, and the Attorney-General, Sir Gordon Hewart, are considered among the possibilities. The Atorney-General, however, has had only a brief career in politics and no experience in international affairs.

Interest here in the conference has been entirely submerged recently by absorbing home affairs.

LOOKS LIKE A RICH MINE IN GALWAY TP.

MR. GEORGE J. M'KEE BLASTS SILVER, COPPER AND ZINC-BEARING QUARTZ.

That the mineral property owned by Geo. J. McKee of Smith in Galway looks good is attested by samples of silver, zinc and copper-bearing ore he has brought back with him after experimental blasting. This Galway land is situated at Swamp Lake, lot 32, Concession 13, and the quartz shown thhe Examiner by Mr. McKee looked promising in the valuable metal named, of which quartz he says there is a large vein running across his lot, lying 51 miles from Peterborough and 11 miles Kinmount.

Mr. McKee was the first post master at Ewain, in the neighborhood referred to, where summer cottages are now springing into being, a resort growing in favor with Americans and Canadians for its excellent bass and trout fishing.

TESTED MENTAL CAPACITY OF SCHOOL PUPILS.

Experiment Adopted in United States at Opening Fall Term.

NEW PORK, Sept. 21.—(Associated Press) Intelligence tests, adapted from the army, were tried as an expirement when New York's army of 900,000 school children registered for the opening of school this fall. The department of Education decided it would be unwise at present, to accept the results obtained as a substitute for the teacher's judgment.

The principal aim of the tests was to devise a better classification of pupils. The theary was advanced that by keeping the brighter pupils together they would be able to progress more rapidly, while the average pupil also would be able to make normal progress. The dull students, under the theory, would be given instructions suited to their abilities.

The verbal tests were devised to test arithmetical reasoning sentence completion, logical selection of words in sentences, general information, vocabulary, analogies and comparisons.

While a complete report has not yet been made of the results, the tests in some schools showed a considerable number of high school students whose mental age was below that of the normal pupil. Many of the low score students showed that they had been advanced through the grades too rapidly.

TRAFFIC PROBLEM NEW YORK WORSE.

Number of Automobiles Increasing Daily—Planning Relief.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(Associated Press.)— Again they're tinkering with New York's traffic.

Now that plan has been abandonunable to dodge the law of physics that two objects can't occupy the same space at the same minute. And with the number of automobiles increasing daily and the crowd of pedestrians holding its own, the traffic problem is becoming worse.

In the old days, traffic went up and down Broadway much the same way it does in any Main Street the country over—though with the same hectic confusion that reigns in the subways beneath the world-famous thoroughfare.

But a little while ago it was decided that at night, at hours when most theatre-goers were bound up Manhattan to their homes, Broadway between 38th and 57th streets should become a one-way street.

Now that plan has eben abandoned. Merchants have complained that the north-bound nightly traffic was diverting to other thoroughfares business which should come to them.

So Special Deputy Police Commissioner Harris has ruled that for a 30-day trial period two-way traffic shall be restored—to be regulated by signal towers such as have been operating for many months on Fifth Avenue. Signal lamps atop these towers command traffic all along Fifth Avenue to halt or proceed at the same moment. If a couple of experimental towers work out all right on Broadway, the city will be asked to instal more.

DELAY REVISION OF U. S. TARIFF.

Rumored Postponement Until Next Winter and After Disarmament Conference.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—(Canadian Press). — The past few days have been marked by increasing talk to the effect that revision of the tariff is likely to be delayed until next winter and until after the disarmament conference. Numerous stories are in circulation to the effect that passage of the tariff bill will be postponed and that the Harding administration would like to see its postponement.

Undoubtedly, there is a certain foundation for this talk of postponement but there is as yet no real indication that passage of the tariff bill will be deliberately deferred for some months, as some reports indicate. It is true, there is a growing sentiment in this country and in Congress that the passage of a new tariff measure at this time, especially one imposing high rates of duty, is an economic mistake. But the political leaders now in power have given so many promises on the stump of early tariff revision that they cannot with safety to themselves defer revision for any considerable period.

Foreign Values.

Chairman Penrose, of the Senate Finance Committee, has given it out this week that the committee will resume hearings on the tariff bill as soon as possible after the treasury experts have collected the information they want on United States and foreign values of goods. This probably means resumption of hearings early in October. The Finance Committee plans to report the new tax bill to the Senate when the Senate reconvenes September 21. The committee will renew hearings on the tariff after it has reported the tax bill whenever the Treasury experts have their data ready.

If the plans of the Finance Committee do not go awry, the tariff bill will be reported to the Senate about November 1. A report as late as that will probably make it impossible to pass the bill finally before December. But any delay of a new tariff law bevond December will bring a tremendous outcry from many of the protected industries of the country.

Against High Rates.

Appearance of Premier Squires of Newfoundland before the Finance Committee to argue against the high rates of the House tariff on cod, herring and cod oil, which are aimed at Newfoundland fisheries, was an unusual procedure in tariff annals. The Premier made a good impression and put up a strong argument. He held House rates would be prohibitive and he was able to show that the value of the exports of the United States to Newfoundland is about ten times the value of the imports into the United States from Newfoundland. To put prohibitive rates into effect, he pointed out, would by no means be to the interest of American trade with that island. The committee has not indicated what action it will take but among Republicans who favor moderate tariffs there is support for the Premier's position.

Behind Canada's Water Falls

Twenty million horse power of undeveloped electrical energy still lies at our command in the rivers and water falls of Canada.

Over 2,417,000 h.p. is now in use. Plants now operating or under construction will require ultimately 3,000,000 h.p.

Think of what this means! Power stations with their huge turbines and generators, measuring, protecting and control apparatus; great towers with miles of high voltage cables; transformers; a maze of wires; switch boards and switch gear; machinery and apparatus to utilize the power in factory and home.

Large scale organization, careful research and supreme technical skill are required to produce such electrical equipment.

To this task, the English Electric Company of Canada, Limited brings the decade of manufacturing experience of the Canadian Crocker-Wheeler Company, Limited, and the years of accumulated skill of the English Electric Company, Limited, of Great Britain.

An opportunity to share in the development of this industry is now being offered to investors. Write for full information.

MAY APPEAL TO COUNTRY

NO CHANGE IN THE IRISH SITUATION—ULSTER STATES POSITION.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—(Canadian Press.)—Mr. Lloyd George's reply to Eamon De Valera will likely be delayed until after a conference with the ministers at Gairloch Thursday, and it seems certain that there will be no Irish conference at Inverness, for, according to the latest reports, the Prime Minister has decided to return to London at the end of the week if his health is sufficiently restored, in which case the next formal cabinet council will be held in London.

Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, left yesterday for Gairloch, indictaing that Ireland will be the subject of the conference on Thursday.

None of Mr. De Valera's previous communications with the Prime Minister has provoked such divergent opinions as his latest telegram. All considered, it is not unlikely that the Prime Minister will even delay his reply until the whole cabinet has met here. The parliament of North Ireland met yesterday, the date originally proposed for the Inverness conference, and the speech of Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, showed that Ulster is no better disposed toward the peace conference than before.

The decision of Mr. Lloyd George not to go to Washington has revived gossip of a coming general election, the idea being that there are now only two alternatives—a peace conference or an appeal to the country, either of which, since the conference has been so greatly delayed, would necessitate the Prime Minister's presence in England in November. The Government is likely to find itself surrounded with difficulties, not only in the shape of unemployment, the anti-waste campaign and similar matters at home, but also abroad.

The reparations question with Germany, involving possible friction with France, combined with the continued depreciation of the mark, may necessitate further meetings of the Supreme Council. New difficulties with Russia seem to be brewing, all of which may require the Prime Minister's personal attention and incline him to secure a new mandate from the country on a question on which he might hope to secure a certain majority.

Latest reports from Gairloch tonight say that a ministerial conference may be held there to-day, and there are also rumors that Mr. De Valera has expressed willingness to withdraw his claim that the Irish delegates must go into the conference as representatives of an independent and sovereign state.

BASEBALL

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.(National.)—Chicago cut New York's lead in the pennant race over Pittsburgh to three games, when a timely single by O'Farrell scored Grimes, who had reached second through Frisch's error and a wild pitch in the tenth inning, and gave the locals a 7 to 6 victory. The Giants ook a three-run lead by bunching hits off Alexander, but Chicago overcame this by bunching hits off Barnes and driving him off the mound. The visitors tied the score when Kelly cracked out his twenty-third homer of the season. After that the game reverted into a pitcher's duel between Cheeves and Nehf. Score:

CROP REPORT

The following is a summery of reports made by the Agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Waterloo puts the increase in that county as not less than one-third more than that of last year, while Kent, our greatest fall wheat county estimates the increase at ten per cent.

Temiskaming reports that some farmers are plowing up turnips and are sowing fall wheat.

Essex reports that by Saturday about 90 per cent. of the tobacco in the Warren district had been harvested, and that about half of the Burley had been taken off. The crop has been ripening very quickly during the last week or two.

Brant says that fruit in unsprayed orchards is more or less unsaleable as much of it is wormy and spotted. The sprayed orchards are running from 50 to 60 per cent. with domestics.

Haldimand states that the marketing of grain has been curtailed recently, local farmers being of the opinion that prices will go higher; and that this also applies to the selling of hay, of which there is a considerable quantity on hand, present prices running from $18 to $21 a ton f.o.b. cars.

Grey says that while some are going out of sheep raising, many are still standing by it, knowing that they will gain eventually. There is considerable local enquiry for pure-bred rams.

Halton states that a number of farmers are rushing their live stock to market in an unfinished condition due to the scarcity of feed.

Bruce reports that a number of heavy steers were shipped from several points in that county lately, and that there are some enquiries for good stockers.

Leeds states that much inferior live stock that would make unprofitable feeders are being disposed of. The representative also says: "Last week I saw a herd of 9 milking pure-bred Jerseys. The milk tests high, and the price received has been 15 cents a quart, retail. During the war the owner agreed not to raise the price over 7½ cents a quart, and he kept his word, thereby losing money; but he now has no difficulty getting a market for all his surplus by catering to summer visitors at the Thousand Islands."

Silo filling is still progressing, both the quality and the quantity of corn being all that could be desired. Prescott and Russell says that yields of twenty acres of fodder corn to the acre are common.

Peterborough says: "There have been some cases reported of the corn ear-worm doing damage to sweet corn. It was mistaken for the borer, and some farmers were greatly worried until they were assured that it was not that pest."

The Lennox and Addington representative says: "A marked increase in the attendance of farmers has been noticed at all the local agricultural fairs. This, no doubt, has been due to the fact that farmers are well advanced with their fall work. I notice that farmers are taking a keen interest in the educational exhibits at fall fairs, especially intended for farmers."

SPORT BRIEFS

OTTAWA, September 21. — Canadian Press.) — Yesterday was the last day of racing at the fall meet held under the auspices of the Connaught Park Jockey Club. The attendance was good but not up to the standard. Many of the favorites went down to defeat, and some very good prices were paid. Oaklawn Belle upset the dope in the sixth race for three year olds over the one mile circuit with Jockey Borganowski up, when she came across and paid $42.10 for a two dollar ticket.

STILL IN A FIGHTING MOOD.

PARIS, September 21. — United Press. — "I am going to the United States the first of next year to fight anyone who may be chosen," Georges Carpentier told the United Press today.

"Before that I have a fight in London on December 2nd, probably with Cook."

SIXTEEN SURVIVORS.

ST. LOUIS, September 21. — Canadian Press. — The sixteen survivors of the first round yesterday in the national amateur golf championship at the St. Louis Country Club, included three former title holders: Chick Evans, of Chicago, the present champion; Bob Gardner and Francis Ouimet, Willie Hunter, the British champion, and T. D. Armour of Scotland.

COLUMBUS, O., September 21.—Canadian Press. — One of the biggest cards of the present Grand Circuit meet, in which $20.000 was to have been distributed among winners, came to grief here yesterday, after two heats were contested. A heavy shower then fell, making the track a slippery mass of mud.

STILL IN THE RING.

MONTREAL, September 21. Canadian Press.—D. S. O'Meara, who manages J. K. L. Ross's racing affairs, stated here that there was no truth in the reports emanating from Maryland that Mr. Ross would retire from active participation in thoroughbred racing and breeding.

GOING OUT OF BUSINESS.

Oshawa Telegram: The Canada Flax and Seed Company, which has stipulated flax growing in this district, is having its last year of operations here and the company is going out of business. It is not on account of the crops, which have been good, but the demand for the products of the company has fallen off. The falling off took place in 1920, the output being still on hand. The company gave considerable employment in the busy season.

"Fruit-a-tives" Cleared Her Skin

POINTE ST. PIERRE, P.Q.

"I suffered for three years with terrible Eczema. I consulted several doctors and they did not do me any good.

Then, I used one box of "Sootha-Salva" and two boxes of "Fruit-a-tives" and my hands are now clear. The pain is gone and there has been no return.

I think it is marvellous because no other medicine did me any good until I used "Sootha-Salva" and "Fruit-a-tives", the wonderful medicine made from fruit".

WOMEN TAKE SPAT TO COURT.

Belligerents Must Not Now Speak on Meeting.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Louis Auerbach, of 240 Riverside Drive, wife of an importer and exporter and mother of Warren A. Auerbach of 42 Broadway, a member of the New York Stock Exchange, appeared in the West Side Court, in response to a summons charging disorderly conduct obtained by Mrs. J. Bradlee Smith, wife of a paper manufacturer, living in the same apartment house.

When the case was reached by Magistrate Jesse I. Siberman the leading figures walked up to the bar surrounded by an array of counsel, friends and relatives. Outside the court automobiles were parked in rows. It appeared that the internal war of 240 Riverside Drive was to be disclosed, and everybody wanted to be on hand.

Thomas H. Watson Jr., attorney for Mrs. Smith, charged that Mrs. Auerbach had used threatening language against his client. Then Mrs. Smith told the Court that some time ago, by mistake, she had opened a letter addressed to Mrs. Auerbach and that ever since that incident Mrs. Auerbach had abused her in various ways.

Mrs. Smith further said that during the recent illness of her husband someone, who she thought was Mrs. Auerbach, had notified the Board of Health that there was typoid fever in the Smith apartment. Mrs. Smith said that inspectors had hurried there and found that Mr. Smith's illness was not contagious.

Joseph Rosenbach, one of the lawyers in support of Mrs. Auerbach, told the Magistrate that he would not permit his client to speak in reply, saying that neither Mrs. Smith nor her attorney had shown any specific act that was a breach of the peace, and added that he was surprised Magistrate Silberman had even entertained a summons.

The Magistrate came back sharply and said that he was running the court and knew his business. Where upon he ordered Warrant Officer Daniel Fischer to draw up a complaint against Mrs. Auerbach for disorderly conduct. After the full complaint had been drawn, a police man stationed himself between the two women and the case again went on. Before that, Mrs. Smith, who had been ill, said that she needed a chair and the Magistrate ordered that one be brought.

Mrs. Auerbach, in telling her side of the case, said that she thought the whole matter was "extraordinary". She said that the letter incident had been forgotten by her a year ago and that she knew Mrs. Smith's voice and that overhearing her talk to tradespeople in the hall or by meeting her occasionally in the elevator. She was emphatic in saying that she had had nothing to do with the notice to the Board of Health.

"Both of you ladies," said Magistrate Silberman, "appear to be of culture and refinement, and as it looks like a little misunderstanding, I must warn you both that in future you must not molest, or have anything to do with or speak to each other in any way."

Mrs. Smith, with drew her complaint and the charge was dismissed.

HER CAT MUST HAVE PLACE IN WHICH TO PLAY.

So Woman Refuses to Sell Property Worth $750,000.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(Associated Press).—A woman who owns a yard facing 50 feet of Fifth avenue at 39th street, in the center of the city's most fashionable shopping district, refuses to sell it because her cat "has to have a place to play in." The property is worth about $750,000, according to real estate men.

The dollars paid on it each year in taxes would, if stacked dollar on dollar, make a hurdle not to be sneered at by anything short of the cow who jumped over the moon. The cat is "just one of these yere everyday walkin' round cats." It was never known to take a prize at a cat show.

Other Reasons.

Other wealthy people have given strange reasons for refusing to sell business district property which was eagerly sought by many buyers Some time ago a man who owned a building in Broadway just below Times Square wanted contract stipulations that none of the prospective buyers would lease it to certain businesses. His list began with aviary and went right on down the alphabet to zylophone dealers, skipping so few lines of business that none would take the place

Just above the Times Square section of Broadway an aged property owner had a vacant five story building that an automobile sales house wanted to lease. The papers were drawn up, and when the interested parties had gathered to sign it, the automobile representative remarked that his concern was going to put "a nice electric sign on the roof". The owner laid down his pen and said no electric signs were going on top of his building. The deal was not closed and the building remained empty for six years when the owner died.

The United States, as a whole, is spending $40 for each city child's education. For each country child, it is expending $24.

FRANCE DISPLACES GERMANY AS MECCA FOR U. S. STUDENTS

More Than Four Hundred Americans Registered at French Universities This Summer.

By EDWIN HULLINGER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, Sept. 21.—That Paris and other French university cities have already taken the place formerly held by Berlin and Heidelberg as Meccas for ambitious American college students has been revealed by statistics recently compiled by the American University Union in Paris.

American young people are flocking to France now in even greater numbers than they formerly did to Germany, largely as a result of the excellent publicity work of the returned doughboys. Some of the students, of course, were in France themselves during the war.

More than 400 Americans are formally registered in the various universities of France this summer. Three-fourths of these are at the Sorbonne, Paris University. Grenable, in the French Alps, has attracted about fifty. Dijon reports another fifty.

Paris also bids fair to replace Berlin as a finishing place for American musical students. A large number of students of piano and voice are already studying in Paris, and the number is steadily increasing.

As always, the Latin Quarter is alive with Yankee art students. The Rotonde, famous rendezvous of students and birthplace of the Bolshevik Revolution, cubism, and many other isms, has been turned into a regular American hangout, where English is more often heard than French.

KEEP HAPPY BY SERVING OTHERS.

Philosopher on Nothing a Year Gives Advice.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 21.—William Park, 75-year-old philosopher and philanthropist on nothing a year, says the way to happiness is contentment of mind ad doing for others.

He lives on the "left-overs" of other people and gives freely from his hoard to the less fortunate.

All he has in the world is a little shack, a few good books and health He says he wants for nothing.

Six o'clock every morning finds him started on his morning constitutional through the wholesale district, where he picks up fruit and vegetables.

He has found others in need and has been glad to share his little. For years he managed to pick up a morning paper for a bed-ridden old lady who lived next door. She was shut off from everything except for the newspaper, for which she was too poor to subscribe.

Sometimes he found women's magazines in quite good condition, which greatly pleased her. He gathered scraps for her chickens and kept the sting of poverty from her to the best of his ability until her death a few months ago.

"The trouble with most of us these days is that we want too much. I have a roof over my head, enough food to eat, flowers in my home (cast off as dead by florists and which I revive), a few good books a few well seasoned friends and health.

"I have a $500 Liberty Bond put away for my burial and the remainder is to go to the Salvation Army.

"What more could an old man want?"

SAYS HER RECOVERY IS ALMOST LIKE A MIRACLE

FROM HELPLESS INVALID TO COMPLETE RESTORATION OF HEALTH, STRENGTH AND HAPPINESS IS WONDERFUL CHANGE MRS. ROOT EXPERIENCED IN THREE WEEKS — STATEMENT ONE OF MOST REMARKABLE ON RECORD.

MRS. JENNIE ROOT

"Just a week before I started taking Tanlac I was down in bed, so crippled up with rheumatism I could not move without help. My son had taken Tanlac, and it had done him a world of good, so one day he brought home a bottle and said, "Mother, I want you take this." When I had finished that bottle, I felt like a different woman, and by the time I had finished my second bottle, I was out in the garden hoeing.

"Tanlac has simply done wonders for me; it almost seems like a miracle." This is the remarkable statement made recently by Mrs. Jennie Root, residing at 1409 Powers St., Portland, Oregon, and is only one of tens of thousands from well-known men and women who are daily testifying to the powers of Tanlac.

Continuing her wonderful statement, Mrs. Root said, "For years I suffered terribly with rheumatism, and would often be down in bed for days at a time. In the last five years there was not a time that I didn't feel those rheumatic pains all through my body. About two months ago I got very much worse and my arms and legs were so bad I was almost helpless and couldn't even hold a pen to sign my name. I was so weak I could not do any housework. I couldn't even sleep, and had no rest day or night. Even to walk a few steps would tire me out completely When I tried to walk I would stagger, and when I did walk a little way and sat down I could not get up without some one helping me. I had no appetite and hardly ate enough to keep me alive. I could not stoop over far enough to get my shoes on.

"I never knew what a night's sleep was, and would lie awake for hours. At times I would get very cold and would have to get up and sit by the fire all huddled up, and my daughters would put hot water bottles all around me. I was treated by four doctors and took all kinds of medicine. Nothing ever did me any good. I am just like a different person now. All those terrible aches and pains have left me, and only the other day I was able to walk up four flights of stairs in an office building when the elevator was out of order.

"My appetite is just splendid now, and just to-day for the first time in years, I felt so hungry that I had to go and eat a piece of pie between meals. In fact, I can't remember the time that I have felt as well as I do now. I have not only regained my health and strength, but I have gained fourteen pounds in weight. To tell you the truth, I wouldn't exchange the benefit I have received from Tanlac for the best ranch in Oregon, and I will praise it as long as I live."

SOUTHERN WOMEN FIGHT LYNCHING.

Committee in Atlanta Finds No Extenuation for Crime or Mob Violence.

ATLANTIC, Ga., Sept. 21.—"We find in our hearts no extenuation for crime, be it violation of womanhood, mob violence, or the illegal taking of human life," declares a statement just issued by a special section of the Georgia State Committee on Inter-Racial Co-operation, composed entirely of women, which has just been organized here to banish all groups which would take into their own hands the execution of justice and to set up a single standard of morals both in the white and the coloured races

This appeal condemns the protection of womanhood by criminal methods, asserting "if there is any crime more dangerous than another, it is that crime that strikes at the root of and undermines constituted authority, breaks all laws and restraints of civilization, substitutes mob violence and masked irresponsibility for established justice and deprives society of a sense of protection against barbarism."

Resolutions adopted at the organization meeting outline the scope of the committee's activities and acknowledge the responsibility of sharing with all good citizens "the duty of emphasizing and perpetuating the ideals of our fathers in the founding of this commonwealth in wisdom, justice and moderation."

Morals and ethics are among the new studies to be added this fall to the curricula of the public schools of Chicago.

PIANO OF ROYALTY

Whenever Royalty has visited Canada it has always been a piano made by Ye Olde Firme Heintzman & Co., Limited, George and Hunter Streets, Peterborough, that has accompanied them in their journeys and been placed at their disposal when resident in Quebec or other centres. Some years since when the Duke and Duchess of York, now King George and Queen Mary, visited Canada, it was a Heintzman & Co. piano that accompanied them throughout their journey on the Royal train from ocean to ocean. When the Prince of Wales, so beloved by everyone, was here later, he made the request that the Heintzman & Co. piano should be placed at his disposal. One of the popular styles of the Heintzman & Co. pianos is that known as the Duchess of York, named after the style piano used by Queen Mary when she visited Canada.

FIX STATUS OF FORMER HUN COLONIES

IS QUESTION OF TAKING INTO ACCOUNT SUGGESTIONS BY THE UNITED STATES, DECLARES LORD ROBERT CECIL

MANDATES PROPOSED

GENEVA, Sept. 21. — (Canadian Press).—Lord Robert Cecil, representing South Africa, after plainly indicating to the Political Commission of the Assembly of the League of Nations yesterday that he thought the United States' claims respecting mandates could be satisfied, withdrew his demand that the terms of the A. and B. mandates be fixed at once.

It was pointed out that the A. mandates were so tied up with the Treaty of Sevres that it would be impossible to proceed immediately to adopt them. But Lord Robert insisted that the B. mandates concerning the former German African colonies could be fixed at once.

H. A. L. Fisher, of Great Britain, said hat the Council could not accept a suggestion by the Assembly to adopt the mandates as proposed while negotiations were going on between the United States and the four mandatories.

Bold Modification.

Lord Robert replied that it was a question of taking into account the suggestions of the United States. The Council could boldly modify the mandates, he said, in the sense indicated by the United States and give the territories the status of which they were so much in need. Mr. Fisher insisted that the Council would refuse such a suggestion.

After Mr. Fisher, Great Britain; M. Raynal, France, and M. Boullet, Belgium, had assured the Commission that their governments would give the Mandates Commission every facility for scrutinizing the administration of the territories under mandate, Lord Robert withdrew his resolution and the Commission adopted the recommendation that the Assembly ask the Council to insist that the powers push the negotiations with the United States and reach an agreement at the earliest possible moment.

Relations Vague.

The relations between the Council and the Assembly, which remained rather vague after the first efforts of the popular body of the League to qualify them last year, took an unexpected development to-day. The Council on its own initiative referred to the Assembly the Vilna dispute, which it had been considering for more than a year without reaching a conclusion. This is the first instance in which the Council has thus recognized the joint jurisdiction of the Assembly and the Council in disputes of this kind.

Immediately after the Council took this action, the political commission of the Assembly adopted a proposal to admit Lithuania to the League. Professor Askenazy, of Poland, by order of his government, vigorously opposed the admission of Lithuania, alleging mistreatment of the Poles in Lithuanian territory. He proposed adjournment, but, after almost the entire Commission spoke in favor of admission, he said he would withdraw his motion if the Assembly promised to send a committee to Lithuania to investigate the treatment of the Poles.

FEW HINTS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

Cook oatmeal over night and in the morning add a cupful of well-washed raisins.

As soon as fruit cake is cool it should be wrapped in waxed paper and then in cloth.

Victorian bouquets of pink, lavender and yellow everlasting flowers with paper lace frills are favors that decorate the table.

The odors from freshly painted walls will be readily absorbed if a bucket of fresh water is set in the room over night.

Baby's stockings when badly worn at the knee can be cut down to sock length and a buttonhole edge crocheted around the top for a finish. Use pale pink or blue mercerized cotton for the edging.

To cut brown bread when hot, use a piece of common twine instead of a knife. Cross the twine after it is put around the loaf the width of the slice and draw the ends; the bread will be cut smoothly and evenly.

LAST WORD IN AUTO TIRE VULCANIZING

DAWSON & JOHNSTON INSTALL IMPROVED VULCANIZER, CORNER GEORGE AND M'DONNELL STREETS.

Just the class of tire repairing the motorist is looking for—safe guarding against a return of trouble—is guaranteed by Dawson and Johnston who in their new premises at the corner of George and McDonell streets, have installed modern facilities for tire vulcanizing which assure the last word in effieiency. With the very latest style of vulcanizing machine, embodying a newly patented arm for repairing re-liners, they can, without cutting from the outer surface, so build up and renew the fractured tire from its inner side as to guarantee the maximun of protection for the inner tube from air pressure blow-outs or punctures. An outstanding innovation in auto tire rpairing, this premier vulcanizer enables Dawson and Johnston to administer to a damaged tire what is aptly called the "double-cure" treatment, from both within and without, a process in vulcanizing which practically restores the repaired spot to its original strength.

Dawson and Johnston ask a share of motorist's patronage, and stand behind their statement that with their new machine they can vulcanize so efficiently that no "comebacks" may be anticipated in a method which not only spells "satisfaction" but enchances the life of a tire.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour, Gassy Stomach and Acid Indigestion.

Doubtless if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, bsmuth, soda, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little bisurated magnesia — not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate, oxide or milk, but the pure bisurated magnesia which you can obatin from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little bisurated magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow and moreover, the continued use of the bisurated magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

WHEAT TARIFF NOT HELPING FARMERS.

According to Arguments Presented By the Wall Street Journal.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(Canadian Press) The Wall street Journal has presented a number of arguments to show that the emergency tariff of 25 cents a bushel on imported wheat has failed to help the United States farmers. In a recent editorial on the subject the paper said.

"The wheat imported from Canada, the only imported wheat worth mentioning does not compete with wheat grown by the American farmer, or even replace that wheat in the manufacture of flour. It supplements the American farmer's wheat and would continue to do so if the tariff were $2 a bushel. The Canadian wheat imported is different in size, in weight, and in color when ground, and is indispensable in the manufacture of any standard brand of flour.

"This imported grain is essentially a grade of hard wheat of which not a kernel is grown in the state of Minnesota. But the miller needs this grain to mix in definite percentage with his American wheat to suit the palate of the American consumer.

"Consequently the tariff on imported wheat is no more caculated to protect the farmers of North-Dakota and Minnesota than a tax on door knobs. All wheat looks alike to the "farmers friend" in Congress who meets any objection of this kind by telling his victims that Wall street necessarily knows nothing about farming. Wall street would go out of business if it tolerated for two minutes the farmers ignorance of vital facts.

GETS SEPARTION FROM AGED HUBBY.

Court Denies Millionaire Stokes Divorce.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The legal battle between W. E. D. Stokes and his pretty young wife, Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, ended in the Supreme Court when Justice Edward R. Finch denied the suit of the millionaire for a divorce and granted Mrs. Stokes an interlocutory decree of separation on her counter suit.

Justice Finch rebuked Mrs. Stokes for parts of her testimony against the aged millionaire as "exaggerated, if indeed some of it really happened at all." He said:

"This is shown by the fact that these occurrences are not entered in the body of the diary which she relied upon, but are placed at the end of the book and are only referred to by stars placed in the regular portion of the diary. In addition, while Mrs. Stokes was suffering this cruel and inhuman treatment alleged by her, she was writing most endearing and affectionate letters to her husband.

"While making due allowance for the exaggeration and unreliability of the testimony of the defendant (Mrs. Stokes) there yet remains sufficient evidence on which to find a decree of separation especially in view of the fact that the testimony has not been contradicted.

BROADWAY WORRIED.

Theatre-Goers Applauding is Worrying Managers.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(Canadian Press.) —The impulse of theatre-goers to applaud actors as they step out from the wings each night is worrying Broadway. One manager has included in the programme a request that the audience break itself of the habit.

The custom began with the greetings which star worshippers always extend on the first appearance of leading actors. Spurred on, skeptics aver, by complimentary tickets, the custom spread to lesser mortals. The last straw came the other night when tumultuous applause interrupted a performance on the appearance of a minor character, whose only assignment was to announce that the coach and pair are ready, sir.

A SOUTHPAW MAY GUIDE THE YANKEES OUT OF WILDERNESS

HARPER IS SHOWING GOOD FORM—THE NATIONAL LEAGUE RACE IS TIGHTENING UP AGAIN

(By Henry L. Farrel.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(United Press.) — Last year a left-handed Moses went to Cleveland and led the Indians to a pennant. This year it seems that another southpaw might be able to guide the foosteps of the New York Yankees out of the darkness which in they long have been floundering.

Laughing Harry Harper, who drew laughs from the wise ones when Miller Huggins picked him off the chute last winter, is playing the role of "Duster" Mails, the Cleveland saviour of 1920.

Harper, with a broken finger, sustained early in the season, polished a seat in the dugout, until a few weeks ago, when Huggins had to use him in a pinch. He's working regularly now and turning in games regularly.

The smiling southpaw has not only gained in his last four games for the New Yorkers, but has shown impressive form in every victory.

Yesterday, when Mays, Shawkey and Hoyt were used up, Harper went in and trounced the Tigers in workmanlike fashion, putting the Yanks back in first place.

Last winter when Huggins cleared his roster of left handers, his theory was criticized, as a portsider is considered a necessary part of every big league's equipment. Huggins said he did not need a lefthander, but he is needing Harper badly now and the veteran is delivering.

Babe Ruth, another southpaw of ability, warmed up yesterday for a half hour with Hoffman, Huggins perhaps may call upon the swatking to do a little mound work in the last hard mile. The Yanks are again holding a slight lead, with the help of the trusty Boston Red Sox, who knocked off the Indians with a late rally when it looked all against them.

The National League race tightened up again when the Giants were trimmed by the Cubs, while Pittsburg was resting out under rain. The Giants now have a lead of three games.

BIG CROWD WILL SEE THE C. G. E. PICTON CONTEST

The Picton team which meets the Canadian General Electric Company outfit at Riverside Park on Saturday in an O.B.A.A. intermediate game, won the Ontario championship last year, and their team is going even stronger this season, winning their own league handily, and beating the Trent Valley League champions in two straight games. Croft, who will do the twirling for them, is a real pitcher and he is backed by a pretty likely team. The C. G. E. crew are in the best of shape, however and are confident that they can tie a knot in the aspirations of the Bay of Quinte winners. The game will be called at 3 o'clock and will attract a big crowd of fans.

SQUIRRELS TAKE TO GOLF.

CARLETON PLACE, Ont., Sept. 21.—(United Press).—Even squirrels have fallen to the lure of golf. Squirrels residing on the local golf course have been noticed to eye golf enthusiasts in a peculiar manner. The reason has just been learned. Leslie Reynolds stalked one of the squirrels to a hollow tree and found a cache of 41 golf balls. Search of similar hiding places on the course revealed 50 more lost balls.

Queen's Park 0, Albion 4.

THIS TIME LAST YEAR.

Cincinnati was eliminated from the National League pennant race when the Reds dropped a double-header to the Pirates. Adams beat Luque and Ring 2 to 0 in the first game, and Ponder beat Reuther and Ring 3 to 1 in the second game.

ELECTION NEWS

TORONTO, Sept. 21. — (Canadian Press.)—The new Cabinet reads like the sounding of the death knell, was the comment of Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal Opposition in an interview here to-day, according to the Toronto Star. Mr. King's criticism of the new Cabinet appointments was largely on the ground of extravagance. He pointed out that at the time when he said retrenchment was urgently required, Premier Meighen had increased the number of portfolios in the Cabinet rather than reducing them.

ENORMOUS PRICES PAID FOR STAMPS AT PARIS AUCTION

One Hundred and Fifty-Six Thousand Francs Paid For a Single Postage Stamp.

By WILFRID FLEISHER
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

PARIS, Sept. 21. — The sum of 156,000 francs has been paid for a single postage stamp, a little square of blue paper from Hawaii with a large figure 2, dated 1851.

It was only one of the famous collection of the late Duke Ferrari de la Renotiere which yielded in one day's sale at the Hotel Drouot, the fabulous sum of 1,100,805 francs.

The Ferrari collection was conceded the finest in the world. The late Duke had inherited a large fortune from his father, an Italian financier, and is said to have spent 200,000 francs annually in buying stamps. Ferrari was of German birth, and his collection was confiscated by the French Government at the outset of the war in 1914. It is now being auctioned off at intervals, the proceeds being placed to the credit of the German indemnity bill.

The Duke was completely absorbed in his collection. Such was his passion for stamps, that it is said, that although a confirmed bachelor, he was at one time induced to advertise for a wife on condition that she bring him a one penny Mauritius 1847. He had willed his collection to the German Government.

The entire collection was valued by experts at from 30,000,000 to 50,000,000 francs. Stamp collectors have come to Paris from the four corners of the globe for the sale.

The lot that drew the highest bid was a pair of stamps from English Guiana, the vertical 2 cents black on pink, dated 1850, and post marked. These went to an Alsatian tobacco dealer for 210,000 francs. This bid for two little bits of tarnished paper on which even the picture was indiscernable under the post mark, is the highest ever recorded at a public sale.

A set of 2,000 Uruguayan stamps, valued at 40,000 francs, brought 111,000 francs. The 2 pence blue indigo of Mauritius was bid 60,000 francs; the 4 cent black on blue from English Guiana, with the letters E.D.W., went to Mr. Caspary, the American collector, for 44,500 francs. A number of others brought from 12,000 to 30,000 francs each.

The highest bid for a single stamp heretofore recorded was 99,500 francs for the 2 pence blue indigo Mauritius, bid at a sale here in May, 1920.

VICTORIA HEIGHTS PROPERTY

The City of Peterborough, beautifully situated on the banks of Otonabee, still continues to extend its limits westward, as evidenced by the annexing of the property known as "Victoria Heights," a portion of the Hatton property. Marked improvements in reclaiming and cleaning up this property is quite noticeable. The undergrowth of weeds, brush and shrubbery has been removed, with the permission of the proper authorities, and a bonfire is all that remains necessary to complete the fine appearance of this beautiful site. Several tall and stately tree are left, which adds materially to its appearance.

By reference to an advertisement in our real estate columns, it will be seen that Mr. W. H. Quinlan 372 Water street, is handling this roperty and will no doubt be pleased to meet interested enquirers. Many of the lots in this section have been sold, and others are now open for purchasers. Read the advertisement on page 2.

AT THE THEATRES

Monday night had every evidence of what we used to call at school "blue Monday." There really is no reason for the disappointment depicted on many faces because the city is full of theatrical attractions or 'movies," rather. But last week with its successful Fair tried many people's tempers and purses. There were so many novel amusements, so much to be seen, so many strangers that the ordinary list of attractions last night seemed small by comparison. And the worst of it all was—no stock company at the Grand. Poor Frank Mayo as "The Fighting Lover" tried to arouse enthusiasm, but the audience wanted Rex, Zana and all the other favourites. So popular is this company and their varied repertoire that nothing in the moving picture line will make up for Monday night minus "Rex" and Co. We certainly must not be selfish because our good neighbours in Kingston deserve some of the good things in life, but I thought of the "probabilities," as the weatherman puts it, for the theatres this week as uncertain, cloudy, a trifle dull, but with the return of Mr. and Mrs. Snelgrove next Monday night the prospects are "Fair and Warmer." I believe this Avery Hopwood farce is to be the attraction for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, next week. It should make a record hit, because the fun is fast and furious, the cast is very well suited to that variety of shows and Mr. Snelgrove and Miss Vaughn do some of their very best work in the piece.

Bed-room farce may mean anything, but handled skilfully by the Rex Company, the refinement that is always evident in Mr. and Mrs. Snelgrove's work, removing any trace of crudeness, there is no reason whe patrons of the Grand should not fill the house. We all know Rex and his charming wife now. They feel at home with us, so what is more natural than to see them playing around on the stage in chummy, intimate fashion, doing and saying things at which we shall laugh happily and spontaneously? For those who may not care to laugh audibly (should there be any such) there will be much worth seeing. There is special scenery, attractive interior settings, and I'll say pretty Miss Vaughn in negligee will be—well—we'll all be there, so no more for the present.

At the beginning of this article I spoke of the other attractions in town. There really were splendid offerings. "The Foolish Matrons" gave us three stories of lives widely different, and yet all true to life. As usual in pictures, one might say that some points are stressed too much, others not enough, but, after all, in spite of the vogue for realism, the great attraction in the stage is the lure of seeing life "as we'd like to have it, not as it really is." An English actress recently said: "Yes, I love to play golf, to live naturally, to get away from the stage. Yet they call me a 'realistic actress.' Perhaps, I am, but I am artificial jurt the same on the stage. I could not talk as I do on the golf links. The public wants me as they find me on the stage and they do not realise that I am acting, but I know it."

The combination of Hope Hampton, that beautiful screen actress who scorns make-up, and Percy Marmont, who will be seen at the Allen the end of the week, is a happy one. Marmont is one of my favourite screen actors. He is not so very handsome, but he possesses that reserve strength, he controls himself until I often expect to hear his voice telling the beautiful heroine how much he loves her, and to give that impression before the camera is very difficult. The tendency is to overdo emotional scenes, but Marmont never does. He was an officer in the Royal Flying Corps and entered the studios in California shortly after being wounded in France. His bearing and screen presence won him instant opportunity, and he now plays opposite Elsie Ferguson, Catherine Calvert, Alice Joyce, and in this picture with Hope Hampton he is at his best.

Thomas Meighan has won a place in the hearts of movie fans that is almost unique. He was an excellent actor, was playing in Boston in "The College Widow" thirteen or fourteen years ago, when he met his wife, Frances Ring, who was in the same popular show. She is extremely pretty, a sister of Blanche Ring, the famous comedienne, but since she became Mrs. Meighan twelve years ago she has retired, and together with Mr. Meighan their cozy bungalow in Hollywood spells happiness and content for both. A brother of Mrs. Meighan's, Cyril Ring, is in the cast of "The Conquest of Canaan," to be seen this week at the Capitol. It is a bit of a coincidence that Thomas Meighan attained his first great success in "The Miracle Man," and so did Betty Compson, who does such excellent work in the feature picture at the Capitol the first of this week. Meighan was interviewed in the hospital when he was making "Why Change Your Wife." He suddenly said: "Yes; why change your wife? I've only had one wife. I've had her for twelve years and I would not change her for anything or anybody in the world.

"All Dolled Up" is a cute name for a show and Gladys Walton is a cute little star. There is something very attractive about a really small, pretty woman, and she is so young with it all that one simply can't help loving her. There is nothing so pitiful to me as to see old women whose charms are still potent, not realizing that the impression of youthful, innocence and gaiety can only be given by one whose years are still very few. The camera is pitiless. Personality, culture, a charming choice and sympathetic manner may win admiration for the woman of thirty, but I find movie audiences very critical, and some very famous people indeed are instantly labelled by their erstwhile admirers. Last week some person back of me said: "Huh, Mary Pickford isn't getting away with it as she used to. She's very cute and it is a fine picture, but she can't do the five-year-old stuff any more. Gladys Walton does, and wait till you see her again this week at the Grand in "Short Skirts."

LAURA.

AT THE GRAND.

LADIES' NIGHT.

Ladies' matinees at popular prices have become the usual thing at most houses once a week, and you all know what 'Ladies' Night" means at a club, but "Ladies' Night" in a Turkish Bath—ah! that's another thing, and only a trip to the Grand tonight will disclose what it means. In spite of the frank and candid display of feminine beauty on the billboards, some people have had the impression that tonight's show will be for "ladies" only. Such was not Mr. A. H. Woods' intention when he sent out this show with the first company to play outside of New York. After a run of one year at the Eltinge Theatre there, the piece was shown to capacity audiences at Poughkeepsie, Syracuse, Buffalo, Brantford and St. Catherines. And when a clever farce comedy such as this one, full of pep and brimming over with fun, plays to capacity business there usually are a few men among those present. At any rate, in the absence of our beloved Rex Stock Company whoever comes to the Grand tonight will get plenty of fun. The show is full of pep, the lines clever without being vulgar and they tell me that in spite of much splashing and swimming about near the boundary between the humonrous and the ribald, the comedy keeps within the bounds of decency and good taste. Spicy? Yes! But so is plum pudding, fruit cake, and—oh! many other things in life which we can't very well do without. Those familiar with Turkish baths know that the ritual there is more gymnastic than anything else. Remember how you steam and steam, how determined-looking attendants rub and pound you, and finally you rest. Oh! how good that last hour before you emerge refreshed, rejuvenated and reduced! How uncomfortable those three young men must feel I can readily understand. Fancy being in such an embarrassing situation—forced to fly percipitably from one room only to be decidely "de trop" in another. And men—young men—are so shy! Well, Avery Hopwood alone writes wonderful farces, so this one, the joint work of Hopwood and Charlton Andrews, should be something to remember. The cast has been given several times, so I must just remind you that Ralph Bunker, Muriel Hudson and all the rest are first-class people.

AT THE ALLEN.

Can you imagine a crook refunding money to a cab driver for undercharging — refusing to take too much cash for the sale of his umbrella and restoring five hundred dollars to a stolen pocket book, that he knew nothing about. It's seems incredible but that is what Tom Moore does in his newest Goldwyn dramatic comedy, "Beating the Game," coming to the Allen Theatre to-morrow. You will be thrilled through a maze of delightful situations, more surprises and action than any other Moore picture.

Nothing was too high that would not engage the covetous attention of Tom Moore as "Fancy Charlie," in "Beating the Game." In his newest Goldwyn production he starts his career as an expert safe cracksman, and aspires to be the biggest man in his line but strange events cause him to take the straight road and in one year he becomes known as "Honest Tom Smith," and mayor of a hick town. A picture worth seeing twice but be sure and see it once.

AT THE REGENT.

"All Dolled Up", the Universal photodrama was on last night at the Regent Theatre has everything that exacting screen fans like to see

First of all it has Gladys Walton in the starring role. Then it has a logical story told with dramatic punch, and a climax that winds up the evening with a thrill.

Gladys Walton is unusually popular among local playgoers and "All Dolled Up" will go far toward winning those who have not already fallen under her spell.

AT THE CAPITOL.

Thomas Meehan in the "Conquest of Canaan" will be the feature at the Capitol for the last three days of the week. Meehan needs no introduction to the movie fans of Peterboro. His work is finished in every detail and he may be expected to develop a large patronage for the last half of the week. In addition to this there will be a good selection of high class vaudeville and other picture features for which the Capitol is noted.

INJURED IN RUNAWAY.

WELLINGTON, Ont., Sept. 20.—A serious accident occurred to George Smith, Jr., of Hillier, as he was delivering empty cans at Morden's factory here. Some cases fell off the wagon and frightened his horses, which bolted up the railway tracks. Smith was thrown from the wagon and one wheel went over his body, breaking three ribs, bruising his back and almost tearing off his left ear.

A Car as Fine As Its Wonderful Motor

Everywhere you hear the Chalmers motor spoken of with real enthusiasm by its owners.

It is due the Chalmers motor that it should be praised. For it is truly a wonderful car.

Its Great Performance

It is wonderful in the efficiency it gets from to-day's poor gasoline. In the added miles it returns. In the way it performs and stands up.

These things are largely due to preheating the fuel by the hot-spot before it enters the cylinders.

As a direct result of this fine performance, upkeep and replacement costs on the Chalmers are surprisingly low.

Motor Not Only Feature

But Chalmers excellence is far from beginning and ending with its motor. It is a car that is finely built in every detail.

It affords consummate riding comfort, drives with a minimum of effort, and is beautiful in design and finish. We invite you to look into Chalmers records and Chalmers standing without delay.

STIMULATE TRADE RELATIONS BETWEEN ...STATES AND CANADA

This May Be Result of Visit of British Chemists to New York—Boost International Comity.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21. —(Canadian Press.)—Increased commercial relations between Canada, the United States and Great Britain will grow out of the recent visit of a party of British chemists to this continent according to Sir William J. Pope, head of the Society of Chemical Industry of Great Britain.

Sir William came to the United States with a delegation of the society of which he is the head, to join in the recent international conference with members of the American Chemical Society. The British deleagtion came from Canada following the annual meeting of the society held in conjunction with the Canadian Chemical Society in Montreal. In an interview given prior to sailing on the steamship Celtic for London, Sir William said:

International comity will, in my opinion, be greatly stimulated by the visit which the chemists of Great Britain have made to the United States and Canada. I believe that this will be the beginning of a new era in the trade relations between America and Great Britain. English industrial chemists feel from what they have seen here that they will be able to avail themselves of the cheap water power and the well developed transportation of the American continent to undertake many of their manufacturing processes on this side of the Atlantic. Water power is especially abundant at low cost in Canada. Undoubtedly British manufacturing chemists will be able to carry through many of the preliminary processes in the making of fine chemicals here and thus save considerably on transportation charges of raw material. This applies especially to products made from coal tar, and to various animal and vegetable products.

"The future cannot fail to unite chemistry here with the chemistry on the other side. There is evidently a strong desire in this country to enter into closer relations with English industry."

MEIN—NELSON.

A very pretty wedding took place at 11.30 this morning at Trinity Methodist church, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion with palms, ferns and gladioli, when Mary Almina, youngest daughter of Mr. Wm. Nelson, 364 Smith street, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to W. Wilbert Mein, of Toronto, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mein, of Picton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. E. Malott.

The bride, who entered on the arm of her brother, Mr. A. W. Nelson, was charming in a suit of reindeer velours, with beaver collar and touches of embroidery. She wore a large black hat and carried a bouquet of ophelia roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Maud Alice Nelson, wore a large black hat and carried premier roses. Mr. Norman Mein, of Picton, supported the groom.

Mr. George H. King played the wedding march and rendered soft music throughout the entire ceremony, accompanying the singing of a very sweet vocal solo, "Because," sung by Mrs. George H. King during the signing of the register. Mrs. King wore grey taffeta with black hat and corsage of premier roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Mein left immediately after the ceremony on the 12.04 G.T.R. train en route for New York and Washington. They will return by way of Montreal and Picton and will reside at 375 Spears avenue, Toronto.

Among the many beautiful gifts received was a cut glass bowl from Trinity church choir, of which the bride was a member, and a set of dishes from the staff of the Examiner Printing Company. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome player piano, to the bridesmaid a string of pearls and gold cuff links to the groomsman.

WOMEN DIVIDED ON JURY SERVICE.

One Suggests They Might Be Screened in Some Cases But Hear Testimony.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The screening of women jurors in the trial of certain cases has been suggested as a possible solution of the mixed jury problem, whose difficulties were set forward by County Prosecutor A. C. Hart of Hackensack, N. J.

Mrs. Peter Bodine Cregar of Plainfield said that women truant officers and others sometimes sat behind screens in the local court-rooms when the testimony was not of a kind to be repeated in good society. This arrangement enabled them to hear the testimony without public embarrassment.

"I don't know how feasible that would be in jury trials," she said. "I doubt if it would do. Personally, I believe strongly that women who have the suffrage should have the responsibility of jury duty, but I realize that it might lead to difficult situations. I think that in practise judges and lawyers know the character of testimony which is to be given and use their discretion in keeping women off the jury when the testimony is repulsive.

"I served in a damage suit where a truck hit a street car. There was no such question involved and on the whole it was an interesting experience"

One woman juror who favored the service of women without discrimination in all kinds of jury trials was Mrs. Stephen G. Van Hoesen of Plainfield. Mrs. Van Hoesen has had considerable experience in public life. She has not only served as a juryman, but is now a Justice of the Peace and also a Deputy Sheriff. She is understood to be the only woman Deputy Sheriff in the East.

"If the right kind of women are chosen on the jury," she said, "the kind of testimony does not matter. They are, for the time, not females, but jurymen. If the woman is of the right kind, she will not be injured.

"I think a good deal of discretion is usually employed by the courts in regard to the cases on which they use women jurors. I believe the practice in Middlesex County is to use women on juries only with their consent.

"Women differ greatly in their view of the subject. On the juries on which I have served, no two women have agreed whether the experience was pleasant or unpleasant, instructive or a waste of time. In one case one woman told me she would have been better employed at home, that she was embarrassed and uncomfortable and didn't like it. Another woman said: 'It was an education. I feel that it benefited me greatly.'"

Chiropractic For Gall Stones

Gall Stones are formed by excessive heat crystallizing mineral elements in the bile. This excessive heat is caused by a subluxation of a vertebra which produces pressure upon the nerves regulating the expression of this heat producing function in the gall bladder. If those stones are cut out, what is going to hinder fresh stones from being formed? The only logical procedure is the removal of the pressure upon these nerves, permitting free and unhindered transmission of mental impulses from the brain to the liver and normal expression of the same. This is the business of the Chiropractor to adjust such vertebral subluxations. Many cases are on record of people suffering with Gall Stones who have been restored to Health after taking Chiropractic Vertebral Adjustments.

CHIROPRACTIC AND NATURE

Nature is the CHIROPRACTOR'S only aid —Adjustments relieve pressure from the nerves and make the way free for Nature to do her part in sending Mental Impulses through them to MAKE AND KEEP THE BODY WELL. Most Diseases are due to pressure upon nerves along the sides of the vertebral column. This pressure interferes with their functions; hence, inflammation, unnatural action, pain and distress are manifested where these nerves end. All diseases are prolonged until pressure upon those nerves leading to the affected parts is adjusted. It is the business of the CHIROPRACTOR to release this pressure by adjusting the subluxated spinal segments to normal position.

VOL. XLIX., No. 69 PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1921 PRICE THREE CENTS

THREE HUNDRED BODIES HAVE BEEN IDENTIFIED

TOWN OF OPPUA COMPLETELY DESTROYED BY EXPLOSION —DEATH LIST MOUNTING.

RED CROSS RELIEF

(By CARL D. GROAT.)

BERLIN, Sept. 22.— Penetrating the fog of poisonous vapour which still hovered low over Oppau, the scene of the greatest explosion disaster in German history, rescue corps, gas-masked, to-day fought for the lives of possible survivors, while reports came back that the death roll would total at least 1,500. Five hundred and ninety bodies have been extricated from the shattered ruins about the nitrate plant of the Badische Aniline Works, near Ludwigshaven, which was destroyed, together with the little town of Oppau, by a series of terrific explosions yesterday morning.

Scores of injured were taken from the wreckage far from the scene of the original explosion, but it was feared that all those trapped in the fatal area had been killed by poison fumes which yesterday prevented rescue work.

Piteous scenes were witnessed at the cemetery at Mayence, where the bodies of nearly 200 dead were laid out for identification by relatives. In most instances the victims had been so mutilated by the explosions that they could not be recognized.

Investigations as to the cause of the explosion will be started at once. Rumors blaming the Bolsheviki and other enmies of Germany for the disaster were current here and near the scene of the explosion, but were unconfirmed.

The first explosion occurred at 7.30 yesterday morning, while a change of shifts was under way. It was followed on instant later by another, more terrific, which actually lifted the main factory building from the ground, hurled chimneys, machinery and men hundreds of feet into the air, completely buried and destroyed three shift trains bringing workmen to the factory, and was felt for a distance of fifty miles around. All workers in and about the plant, about 800 in number, were killed. Further explosions followed.

The Rheinich High Commissioner has donated 100,000 marks for relief work in Oppua, the little village which was completely destroyed. The French supply corps, near the scene of the disaster, has opened free food kitchens and shelters for refugees.

Three hundred bodies have been identified and hundreds of others found mutilated beyond recognition. At Ludwigshafen, the huge hospital, all the schools and many public buildings have been requisitioned by the Red Cross.

MAYENCE, Sept. 22.—(Canadian Press).—French troops and volunteer workers toiled all night in the ruins of the Badische Aniline Company's war-born chemical plant at Oppau. Estimates of the dead ranged as high as 1,500 to-day, and at least 1,500 were injured. The town was virtually swept away. It is believed that two gasometers exploded and that nitrogen compounds were detonated.

TEAM OF HORSES CUT TO PIECES

PORT HOPE, Sept. 22. — On Tuesday evening two horses were cut to pieces by the train from the north, due here at 10.20. The horses wandered on the track at a crossing a mile or two this side of Blackwater where the accident occurred. The train was travelling about twenty-five miles an hour, it is said, and both horses were literally cut to pieces. Half of one horse was found beneath the tender when the train was brought to a standstill.

LAST WORD IN AUTO TIRE VULCANIZING

Just the class of tire repairing the motorist is looking for—safe guarding against a return of trouble—is guaranteed by Dawson and Johnston who in their new premises at the corner of George and McDonell streets, have installed modern facilities for tire vulcanizing which assure the last word in efficiency. With the very latest style of vulcanizing machine, embodying a newly patented arm for repairing re-liners, they can, without cutting from the outer surface, so build up and renew the fractured tire from its inner side as to guarantee the maximun of protection for the inner tube from air pressure blow-outs or punctures. An outstanding innovation in auto tire rpairing, this premier vulcanizer enables Dawson and Johnston to administer to a damaged tire what is aptly called the "double-cure" treatment, from both within and without, a process in vulcanizing which practically restores the repaired spot to its original strength.

Dawson and Johnston ask a share of motorist's patronage, and stand behind their statement that with their new machine they can vulcanize so efficiently that no "comebacks" may be anticipated in a method which not only spells "satisfaction" but enchances the life of a tire.

A politician without patronage is like a cat without claws.

Age Old Question

UNIQUE CASE TO BE THRESHED OUT IN NEW YORK COURTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—(United Press).—The question of the equal guilt of men with that of women in offences against morality—the age old question of the "single standard"—will be threshed out in the courts here next Wednesday, with a millionaire mine-owner, Edward N. Breitung, as the central figure.

Breitung will be tried on a charge of vagrancy, upon which his three women companions in a recent incident were convicted.

The wealthy coal and oil operator, reputed to be worth more than $18,000,000, was arraigned yesterday on the technical charge under a section of the penal code which holds guilty any one who "aids, abets or participates in the crime of vagrancy." This law was sustained by a decision rendered in New York in 1910 by former Judge W. Adhams, and never since then reversed or overruled.

Breitung will be the first man ever to be tried under the legislation, and the whole question of a "single standard" of punishment and of morality will be discussed.

City Magistrate Jean Norris, the only woman on the bench in the City of New York, was instrumental in bringing about Breitung's arrest.

The case has aroused the greatest interest here, entirely aside from the prominence of the principal. Society and club women, who for years have been leaders in the protest against the custom of the courts in finding members of their sex guilty and fining or imprisoning them while permitting their male associates to go free, will be present to hear the case argued.

William O'Shaughnessy, assistant district attorney, will prosecute Breitung and urge the "single standard."

The millionaire will be defended by George S. M. Dalie, a New York attorney.

Breitung, it is charged, on the afternoon of July 9, 1921, was found by detectives in the home of Mrs. Nellie Kift, at 640 Madison Ave., in the company of two girls, Edna Whitney and Edna Clark, both about 20 years old. The three women were arrested, charged with vagrancy, and Mrs. Kift was sentenced to jail, while the Clark girl was confined in a hospital, and Edna Whitney allowed to go home under suspended sentence. The millionaire was called as a witness for the defence, but refused to testify on the grounds that his testimony might degrade him. Counsel for the girls then asked Breitung's arrest, arguing he was a confederate under the new law, but it was not until yesterday that Chief Magistrate McAdoo conceded to Magistrate Jean Norris' request that Breitung be arrested.

The millionaire's lawyer to-day declared that Breitung went voluntarily before the court for arraignment, and that the whole thing was fixed up beforehand.

DAMAGING EVIDENCE AGAINST ARBUCKLE

GIVEN BY AL. SEMNACHER, IN CONTRADICTION OF HIS PREVIOUS TESTIMONY.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Sept. 22.—(Canadian Press.)—Al. Semnacher, maanger of Miss Virginia Rappe and a guest at the party given by Roscoe C. ("Fatty") Arbuckle in San Francisco, that resulted in Arbuckle's being held for Miss Rappe's alleged murder ,yesterday appeared before the Los Angeles County Judge and gave testimony which officials of the District Attorney's office said will be of great value to the State in its prosecution of the motion picture comedian.

According to the testimony given by Semnacher, under oath to the judge, on the morning after the alleged attack on Miss Rappe, Arbuckle admitted to Semnacher, Lowell Sherman, motion picture actor, Fred Fishbach, motion picture director, and Harry McCullough, Arbuckle's chauffeur, that he had taken Miss Rappe into a room and there had committed certain acts in connection with the alleged crime.

The testimony of Semnacher was immediately sent to Matthew Brady, District Attorney, San Francisco. At the time it was forwarded Mr. Brady was questioning Mr. Fishbach in San Francisco, according to telephone conversation between the officers of the District Attorneys in the two cities.

Direct Contradiction.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 22. — Testimony said to have been given yesterday by Al. Semnacher before the Los Angeles county judge in relation to the Arbuckle murder case is "in direct contradiction of his testimony before the San Francisco Grand Jury," District Attorney Brady said.

Brady said he would have Semnacher here to-morrow for further questioning. He announced also that Lowell Sherman, another witness, who is missing, could be made the subject of a grand jury indictment in the event he fails to answer Brady's demand to return to San Francisco.

LIKES CANADA

LONDON, Sept. 22—(Canadian Press Cable).—Sir John Simon on return to England expressed himself full of enthusiasm for Dominion of Canada and its people and his delight at trip. He would not state his opinion on Canadian attitude to question of legal appeals to Privy Council.

ELECTION NEWS

Mr. G. N. Gordon, M. P., this morning gave as his opinion of the new Cabinet which is supporting the Honorable Arthur Meighen, Prime Minister of Canada, that they were a first class lot of pall bearers. Mr. Gordon said that there was not a single man there that was not either friendly to or connected with the big interests, and that there was not one man in the Cabinet who was known as a champion of the rights of the common people.

Mr. Gordon's opinion is that the group that has bene called in to form the new cabinet and go to the country is reactionary, and will never have a chance to administer the affairs of the country after the next general election.

DR. MICHAEL CLARK'S LETTER

CALGARY, Alta., September 22. —Canadian Press. — H. W. Wood, President of the United Farmers of Alberta, said last night he had nothing to say regarding Dr. Clark's letter to Mr. Crerar, because the member for Red Deer had not discussed the principles of the U.F.A.

THE VOTERS' LIST.

VICTORIA, Sept. 22. Canadian Press.—Declaring that the Meighen Government had broken faith with the people of Western Canada in the matter of representation, Premier John Oliver stated at the opening of the new Liberal Club that the Minister of Jusice at Ottawa, referring to the voters' lists, had said that they "would take off that list and put on that list just when they saw fit."

QUIET AT OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, Sept. 22.—Comparative quiet reigns at the capital to-day, following the announcement of the new Meighen Cabinet. The Council was called for noon, and most of the new Cabinet members were present. Dr. R. H. Manion, the new Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, arrived from Fort William this morning and was duly sworn in. R. B. Bennett, the newly-nominated Minister of Justice, is not expected to come for a week as he is engaged in a law case at Calgary. In the meantime Hon. Hugh Guthrie will be acting Minister of Justice.

Dissolution will not come in time to avert the nominations for the by-election in West York.

The issuance of the writs will, however, cancel the polling day. Dissolution may be expected at any moment, but whether the writs will be issued concurrently remains to be seen. It is considered probable that the Premier will clean up the whole business before he leaves for the West at the end of the week.

Among the matters to be cleaned up, and not the least difficult of them, is the filling of existing vacancies in the Senate and elsewhere.

The reconstructed Cabinet will have some say in the selection or in the approval of those selects so that former predictions may gang agley. That Sir George Foster, Hon. J. D. Reid and Hon. J. A. Calder are certain to secure three out of the ten Senate vacancies is taken as a matter of course. The decision to replace Hon. C. J. Doherty with R. B. Bennett was, it is learned, an eleventh hour one, arrived at on the eve of

Albanian Disputes

ALLIES ASKED TO HEAD OFF A NEW BALKAN WAR—TEXT OF NOTE.

(BY HENRY WOOD)
(United Press)

GENEVA, Sept. 22.—Immediate intervention by the Allies to prevent the Serbo-Albanian dispute forming into a New Balkan war was asked in a note addressed to the powers of England, France and Italy by the Council of the League of Nations to-day. The threatened conflagration in the middle Europe powder box, where the slightest flare can start another of the interminable Balkan wars, may be averted by the Council's action, but the League itself has been split into two factions by the introduction of the dispute between Albania and Jugo-Slavia in the assembly, the Allied members of League Council, moreover, are lined up against the non-allied temporary members, lastly the allies themselves are divided into two camps over the question, Albania's appeal to the league declaring that Serb artillery was bombarding Albanian villages and demanding that the League intervene, was answered by the Serbian representative to the assembly who said that the borders of Albania not having been fixed, Serbia was only attempting to occupy what rightfully belonged to her, the assembly at once divided, some nations favored intervention, others leaving the matter to the big powers, it was the first test of the League's attitude toward an appeal to Article X. of the Allies. England was disposed to recognize Albanias frontiers as cleimed by that country and fixed in 1913 while Italy refused to consent to that position, as there are certain islands within those frontiers she wants for herself, the majority of the council favored backing Albania's claim to the boundaries of 1913 and in consequence, a note was today addressed to the powers, asking them to aid Aibania against Serbia.

LOST $100 ON TRAIN

Coming in on the G.T.R. noon train yesterday one of the feminine passengers who got off at Peterboro left her bag, a crocheted affair lying on the seat. Missing it a minute later, she returned immediately to the seat she had occupied, to find that it had been taken in the meantime. It contained $100 and the woman appeared quite disattracted over the loss. Enquiry at the railway station last evening elicited the information that nothing had been seen or heard of it.

BARBER "PANNED" $500,000 FROM WHISKERS IN ALASKA

MINER'S SHAMPOO GOOD FOR $10 IN DUST, WHILE A CYANIDE BATH WAS A MINT—PROSPECTOR RETURNS TO COLLEGE TOWN WITH SUIT CASE OF GOLD.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Max Belke, Evanston barber, who a decode ago held forth opposite the campus of the North-Western University, has returned home a wealthy man. He carried a suit-case loaded with gold and his raiment radiated wealth. His story of how he set forth to invade Alaska after selling his barber shop reads like a romance.

"It was thirteen years ago that I left Evanston for the Klondike," said Belke. "I traded my razor for pick and pan and started on my search for gold. It was hard work. I got a little mine and washed the gravel in the creek for three years. Once I thought I had found a nugget, but it turned out to be a Bryan button of the 1896 campaign. I panned enough dirt to fill Lake Michigan, but never got a spot of color.

"At the end of the third year I was flat. A bunch of the boys were whooping it up in the Malemute saloon when the great idea occurred to me. If I had failed to mine in the mines there might be a chance left in the mining of the miners. I started a shampoo parlor, and my success dates from that moment.

"These miners, working continually in gold dust, were certain to carry away a certain amount of residue in their hair and beards. As some of these beards had not been trimmed since the great glacier started to melt, the field was lucrative.

"On my first day I shampooed $10 gold and $1 cement out of some very indifferent thatches. On the second day I succeeded in inducing some sour-doughs from the interior to visit my barber shop. I added a face massage to the menu and I massaged $28.35. The 35 cents was war tax. There was a little side money in the business. I charged $1 apiece for shampoos and the same price for massages and kept all the byproducts.

"Rapidly I grew wealthy, but my fondest dreams were realized when I invented the cyanide process bath, a little bit of cyanide in the solution. The great unwashed became a prolific source of revenue. Even an Indian whose head showed no color in the clean-up would assay $100 the ton in the cyanide tank. I expect to take a trip to the coast in a day or so. Half a million is my stake and I am going to enjoy life for a few years."

LONDON, Sept. 22.—(Canadian Press Cable.) — Despite seriosu unemployment sale of Savings Certificates continues to reach nearly millon weekly. AN INSTRUCTIVE MEETING OF THE MEMBERS OF O.M.A.

ABOUT FIFTY DOCTORS GATHERED IN THE CITY YESTERDAY—THE ADDRESSES.

An enthusiastic meeting of nearly fifty of the members of the Ontario Medical Association for the district, comprised in the counties of Peterboro, Victoria, Durham, Northumberland, Hastings, Prince Edward and Haliburton, took place yesterday afternoon and evening at the Empress Hotel.

Dr. J. A. Morgan, President of the Peterboro Medical Association, gave a brief but hearty speech of welcome to the visiting physicians, and then handed the chairmanship of the meeting over to Dr. E. A. McQuade, of Trenton, the District Counsellor for the Association.

During the afternoon, interesting and instructive papers were read by Dr J. M. McCulloch, of Peterboro, on "Cardia Murmurs," by Dr. A. C. Kindred of Tweed, on "Discorders Peculiar to the New-Born Child," by Dr. F. P. McNulty, of Peterboro, on "Pain in Appendicitis," by Dr. N. F. Sutton, of Peterboro, on "Physical Therepy," by Dr. R. A. McComb, of Toronto, who gave a very enlightening address on "Cystitis and Allied Causes of Frequency," and by Dr. T. C. Routley ,the able secretary of the Ontario Medical Association, who closed the afternoon session with a resume of the progress made in medical legislation during the past year, most of which was due to the fact that the Association now had over 1800 members in the province compared with 600 three years ago.

Dinner was served at 7 o'clock and very complimentary remarks were passed by the guests on the excellence of the viands and the service provided by Messrs. George N. and Chris. Graham. A fine musical programme was provided by well rendered vocal solos from Mr. Asa Huycke and Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield.

The meeting was called to order after dinner and a short address was given by Dr. F. J. Farley of Trenton, this year's genial president of the Ontario Medical Association. Dr. Farley told of the success which he and Dr. Routley and others had when visiting units of the Association in the Northern Counties during the past summer and of the excellent example afforded by them to those in the more populous districts.

This was followed by a lengthy and very interesting discourse by Dr. F. W. Marlow, of Toronto, on "Symptomatology and Treatment of some Gynaecological Conditions."

After a discussion of this address, the meeting decided to hold next year's meeting at Trenton.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the local society for the successful and detailed arrangements made by them for yesterday's meeting.

After the general session was brought to a close, a meeting of the executive of the Peterboro Medical Association took place to re-arrange the winter's programme. The number of meetings was reduced to 12, the first to take place on October 6, when Dr. Bingham of Toronto, will give an address.

THIS MAY DELAY RETURN NOTE TO DEVALERA---IRISH SITUATION IS AT A STANDSTILL

ELECTION IMPROBABLE

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

GAIRLOCH, Scotland, Sept. 22.—Differences of opinion between members of the British Cabinet committee, which met with Premier Lloyd George to consider the Irish situation, were to-day reported to be delaying the British reply to the latest note from Eamonn De Valera.

Lloyd George's intention, it was understood, was to formulate a reply which would be acceptable to Sinn Fein, lead to a conference, avoid loose interpretation by members of the Dail Eireann Cabinet and at the same time place the responsibility for a possible break upon De Valera when the Cabinet committee, including Sir Hamar Greenwood, Lord Birkenhead, Winston, Churchill and Lord Fitzalan, Irish Viceroy, met with Lloyd George this morning it developed that there was not complete accord with the Prime Minister's intended course. A reply at paving the way for a conference was expected to be sent at any time, however. Reports of a possible halt in negotiations and an impending general election, resulted in pressure being brought upon Lloyd George for an immediate answer. Nothing in the nature of an ultimatum was expected before the meeting to-day, although at least three of the members of the committee were known to favor such a course. It was authoritatively stated that a general election as a result of the Irish situation alone was not likely to take place. Parliament would be not be dissolved and an appeal made to the electorate, but the Prime Minister and members of his government might address meetings throughout the country, giving an account of their stewardship.

Prospects of Conference.

LONDON, Sept. 22.— (Canadian Press.)— Prospects of a conference between Sinn Fein and members of the British Cabinet were declared today to be less hopeful as a result of yesterday's consultation between the Premier and several members of his Cabinet at Gairloch. Several of this morning's newspapers reflected this view and reports state that the ministers showed more rigid attitude toward Southern Ireland. They demand that Sinn Fein withdraw claim that delegates would enter the conference as representatives of a sovereign state and are taking an unbending attitude.

LONDON, Sept. 22.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—Although party managers of the Coalition government have issued a declaration apparently intended as a denial of rumors of an impending general election, most observers regard question of probabilty of an early appeal to the country as being exactly where it has been for months. Arrangements made to stump the country this autumn were completed before the Irish negotiations reached the present stage, and were seemingly not influenced by the possibility of an appeal to the country.

THANKSGIVING DAY MONDAY, NOV. 7TH

Many inquiries have been rife of late by citizens interested in knowing just exactly what date Thanksgiving Day will fall on this year. And The Examiner can now answer that the day fixed by a Dominion Order-in-Council for each recurring year, is the Monday directly preceding Armistice Day, November 11th. Consequently, this year Thanksgiving Day falls on Monday, November 7th.

RAIN PREVENTED RECORD ATTENDANCE AT LAKEFIELD

ENTRIES WERE DOUBLE THOSE OF LAST YEAR---MAIN FEATURES OF THE FAIR.

An almost constant drizzle, interspersed with several heavy showers, did a great deal to mar the attendance at the Lakefield Fair yesterday. The entries this year were exceptionally good; double those of last year, according to Mr. Thompson Braden, the energetic Secretary-Treasurer, so that the bad weather spoiled what would doubtless have been a record attendance. However, a large number of people braved the downpour; the grand-stand was filled for the afternoon events, and a sizable crowd patronized the amusements and circled amongst the various fine exhibits.

In the main building the poultry show excelled everything else. Turkey gobble-- enquiring-looking ducks, huge specimens of geese with orange bills, hens of all sorts, freshly-laundered large white ones, black, buff and speckled, tall, haughty-looking birds with red anklets, Brahmas with their fleshy legs, black Spanish, Wyandottes, tiny Dorkins, buff Orpingtons and Plymouth Rocks cackled and crowed in their wire cages. When the crowd on the grand-stand applauded in a very frantic manner, the fowl joined in with a grand chorus of approval.

Flower Section.

Here also were the vegetables, large and small, fruits arranged prettily on long tables, bright pots and vases of flowers, foliage and ferns, preserves, wonderful-looking cakes sensibly guarded by wire netting, plump biscuits, shiny buns and flaky cookies, attesting to the worth of the housewives of Lakefield.

The artistic section was well patronized, with some good exhibits of painting in oils and water-colors, the school children's work of water-color flowers, examples of penmanship and maps was very well done, and there were some excellent examples of burnt wood. The fancy work was a credit to the creative fancy of the ladies of the village, in the different ideas manifested in embroidery, crochet, tatting and knitted goods, to say nothing of the useful articles like aprons and wonderful pieced quilts and spreads. A display of cut glass was very attractively arranged, and something quite worthy of note were the pretty exhibits of pressed flowers and grains. Grains of all sorts were on view at a side table, with monstrous sheaves of golden wheat.

The Midway.

A white-clothed dining-table with pretty vases of asters was ready for hungry visitors in one corner of the long building, and there were several booths outside for ice cream, soft drinks and candy. Most of the amusement vendors were spieling to a damp but still hilarious crowd, and, between showers, did a very good business. Kewpy damsels, both blonde and brunette, demure and haughty, unclothed and with monstrous silken petticoats, waited for the skilful thrower; 'Maggie and Jiggs" took refuge in a box out of the rain, but the four black cats of one enterprising gentleman offered a permanent target for more or less lucky marksmen, and the strong man who displayed his bunchy and superfluous muscle before an admiring throng seemed to be quite unmoved by the prevailing moisture. The band from the Chemong Indian Reserve rendered some fine music during the afternoon.

The cattle and horse exhibits contained many excellent entries this year, and there were some fine animals displayed in the ring. Mr. Jos. J. Duffus had a large display of Fords of all sorts—a sedan, a coupe, a touring car, a roadster, a one-ton lorry, a one-ton speed waggon, a Fordson tractor and a Fordson tractor and plow operating in the field next the grounds. Mr. W. S. Howson of the Manning Garage had two Chevrolets on view—a baby grand and a 490 special—and Mr. Percy Stock was showing two Studebakers—a touring car and a runabout.

The Fair Board.

Mr. Thompson Braden, the Secre-

APSLEY AND DISTRICT NEWS

APSLEY, Sept 22.—A quiet wedding was solemnized at St. Stephens Church, Chandos on Tuesday September 20th, when Mrs. Annie Booth became the bride of Mr. James Downing. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Windsor. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. A. G. Spence.

Mr. and Mrs. Downing afterwards left on a wedding tour to Buffalo and other points, and on their return will take up residence in Apsley.

The stock, implements and household effects of Mr. T. F. Harvey, Chandos, were disposed of by auction on Thursday last by Mr. Fred Bullied. The prices realized by the stock were disappointing, cows going at $33, and sheep at $4.25. The pure-bred Shropshire ram, pedigreed, fetched only $6.50. The whole flock of 15 sheep it is said fetched less than the owner paid for the ram.

The low prices realized for stock which are shipped to the Toronto Stock yards are nothing less than a calamity to the farmer in this district. A two-year-old weighing 800 lbs netted its owner $18. Another farmer shipped 3, 2 year olds whose gross weight was 1840 lbs for which he received $33.12. The same man refused $15 each for these when they were calves. Still another netted $160 for nine two year olds for some of which he paid $25 each eighteen months ago. One farmer reports that he has received an offer from one buyer of one cent a pound live weight for all the yearlings he can supply.

The annual Harvest Thanksgiving service was held at St. Stephen's Church, Chandos, on Tuesday evening September 20. The church was prettily decorated and the liberal thanks offerings of vegetables, fruit etc. tastefully arranged by, Medames R. Tanner P. Tanner and Everett.

A sharp frost was experienced on Monday morning the thermomenter registering 26 degrees at 7 a.m. Ice of an appreciable thickness was formed on still water, and all garden stuff was blackened and withered when the sun shone out.

Several from Apsley took in the Peterboro Fair and loud in their praise of the excellence of the Exhibition.

Mr. and Mrs Parcels of Havelock visited latter's mother Mrs. Woodbeck, Chandos on Sunday. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Parcels junior and children

CAMPBELLFORD FAIR ALMOST MADE A NEW RECORD DESPITE RAIN

PRODUCTS OF FIELD DISPLAYED IN LARGE QUANTITIES---BLUE RIBBON STOCK--THE HORSE RACES

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 22. — The Campbellford Fair was accounted for yesterday. It was not the fault of the exhibitors that the annual product of the Seymour Agricultural Society did not register a record attendance. It rained nearly all the afternoon but it takes more than rain to squelch interest in public activities in Campbellford and district.

The exhibits were admitted to be better than ever before and had it not rained all attendance records would have been broken. As it was the attendance was estimated by Secretary J. N. Stone to be about 2500, close to last year's record. In the face of the weather handicap President Alex Hume and the Secretary expressed satisfaction to the Examiner at the number of persons on the grounds and were exceedingly pleased at the excellent exhibits in every class.

Good Poultry Exhibit.

A feature of the fair was the fine poultry exhibit and many remarked that it was to be regretted there was not a poultry building. In the main building vegetables, dairy produce, home cooking and needlework were exhibited. There was a real Midway with "red hots," spielers, "Kewpie dolls," "iron-jawed men," and snakes. The De Laval had the principal tent exhibit, and their milkers and cream separators attracted considerable interest.

Judging the horses, the dri[illegible] and stock drew the crowd, w[illegible] the 40th Regimental Band gave an excellent programme of music between the heats of the horse races.

The Horse Races.

Robert Hewitt of Brighton started the horses. The judges were: Dr. Hancock of Colborne, J. F. Fleure, Warkworth, R. T. Dunlop, Frankford, Frank Montgomery of Peterboro ,and H. G. Bertrand, Campbellford, were timers, and J. N. Stone was clerk. The results of the races were:

TORONTO BEACHES EASILY DEFEAT HASTINGS JUNIORS

VISITORS TOO BIG AND EXPERIENCED FOR TRENT TEAM ---FINAL SCORE WAS 24 TO 8---HASTINGS WERE GAME BUT COULDN'T STOP HUSKY BEACHES.

HASTINGS, Sept. 21.—The junior Toronto Beaches trotted out a big, husky team here this afternoon for the "sudden death" semi-final in the junor series of the Ontario Lacrosse Association and hung up the one-sided score of 24 goals to 8 on Hastings juniors. The local boys were outweighed, but they weren't outgamed. Beaches not only were heavier, but they were speedier and looked all over like a string of intermediates. Three of their players are from the senior Beaches, and while they were all listed as eligible juniors, the home crowd was dubious of the age of some of them. Their team play was impressive and their defense particular presented an array of strength which Hastings found difficult to get through. They checked well and generally looked good enough to give an average intermediate team a stiff argument. Rain spoiled the attendance, but cleared up shortly before the game was called. The ground, however, was wet and slippery.

For the home team Stevenson, Clapper, Richardson and both the Scriver boys were as good as usual, but Beaches checked them too closely and the defense refused to be drawn out. Reeves and McLean of the seniors had all the earmarks of veterans, and on the home Kay, Johnston and Dainard showed a fast, smooth combination. The game was clean throughout and played in the friendliest spirit.

The teams were:

Beaches—Goal, L. Weaymouth; point, G. Robinson; cover point, E. Reeves; 1st defense, R. McLean; 2nd defense, H. Verner; centre, F. Herd; 2nd home, H. Cotton; 1st home, G. Kay; outside home, E. Johnston; inside, G. Dainard; spares, J. Mysall, E. Worthall, E. Lickley, G. Hanna, R. Paris.

Hastings—Goal, J. Gould; point, O. Scriver; cover point, W. Dainard; 1st defense, W. Tate; 2nd defense, Bruce Clapper; centre, O. Cruikshank; 2nd home, K. Kennedy; 1st home, F. Scriver; outside home, B. Richardson; inside home, S. Stevenson; spares, H. Walsh, Cecil Whitred.

Referee—Percy Lancaster, Havelock.

Penalty timekeeper—Don Robertson, Campbellford.

Beaches ran up a score of 7 goals to 1 in the first quarter and had a 12 to 5 margin at half time. In this period Hastings were at their best and played the visitors on almost equal terms. It was 18 to 8 at the end of the third and 24 to 8 at the close. The Toronto boys exhibited in their style the benefits of the object lessons of senior games and of the presence of seniors on their line. Their attacks were invariably swift and often left the ball-carrier a chance to bore through unchecked while Hastings were covering up the rest of the shock force. Reeves, the big cover point, got a whole row of goals by this raiding method. To him were credit five of the seven scored by Beaches in the first period alone. Stevenson counted for Hastings in that quarter.

The home team started the second period with a fine rally, Stevenson and Clapper getting two nice goals on combined plays. Beaches [illegible]ed the figures to 10 to 3 when Stevenson came back with a beauty and Fred. Scriver made it 10 to 5.

Kay opened the third for Beaches and Stevenson dodged through the Toronto defense for Hastings' sixth. It was a clever individual effort. Bruce Clapper scored the last goal for the home team. Beaches had most of the play in the final period. R. E. Paris, "subbing" and Kay getting most of them. Paris camped close to the Hastings goal, often hanging behind it, taking a pass to one side and reaching around the post with the ball. He worked fast at inside.

Joe Gould gave a creditable performance in goal in spite of the big score. The defense without Rogers, who had two fingers amputated some time ago, was weak, affording the little goaler scant protection. Beaches found little opposition in that section, and to all appearances they were not extending themselves throughout the game. Hastings tried hard to the end, but they were fitted against a heavier and more experienced team.

LONDON POLICE QUELL DISORDER

UNEMPLOYMENT IS ACCOMPANIED BY SURPRISINGLY LITTLE DISORDER.

LONDON, Sept. 22.— (Canadian Press Cable.)— Deputations of unemployed continue to harrass the relief authorities urging more or less extravagant allowances. These bodies have, however, generally stiffened their attitude to these demands lately.

Some scuffling occurred to-day outside a London police court when several leaders of the unemployed were charged with unruliness, but taking the country all around, the present state of distress is accompanied by surprisingly little disorder.

John MacLean, the noted Glasgow Communist, was to-day sent to trial on a charge of sedition, it being alleged that he told the unemployed: "If you can't get food in a constitutional way, then take it."

The Trades Union Congress unemployment committee has sent a request to Premier Lloyd George to receive a deputation to discuss a national unemployment policy and urging the assembly of parliament immediately to handle the question.

Chairman Clynes of the Labor Party, has written to the Premier to the same effect.

October 9th will be observed as "Unemployment Sunday," and public meetings will be held in every locality to urge a national policy for the relief of the people out of work.

Considerable rioting by the unemployed occurred at Aberdeen where the police carried out baton charges following the appearance of a deputation of unemployed before the town council to ask for relief.

Efforts to promote a general policy of paying no rent continue abortive.

ADDITIONAL DETAILS OF CATASTROPHE

WRECKED GERMAN INDUSTRY WAS A FACTOR IN PROLONGING THE WAR.

HEAVY DEATH LIST

MAYENCE, Germany, Sept. 22.—A great explosion yesterday at the chemical products plant of the Badische Anilinfabrik Company at Oppau, on the Rhine, wrecked the town and spread death and destruction on every hand. The number of killed is variously estimated at from 1,000 to 1,500 and the injured at close to 2,000. The report says that there were 3,000 men on the spot at the moment of the explosion and it is believed that about half of these were killed.

The town of Oppau is a scene of utter desolation, more than a third of the houses having been completely destroyed, while the roofs of the others were swept off as if by a whirlwind. Here also many were killed or injured.

The explosion is attributed by some to excess pressure in two adjoining gasometers, the whole of this part of the works being literally pulverized. Where the gasometers stood is now a funnelshaped hole 130 yards wide and forty-five yards deep, while twisted girders and debris of every description lie scattered about. For a distance of several hundred yards, not a wall is left standing.

Occurred in Storehouse.

The directorate of the company is quoted as saying that the explosion occurred in a storehouse containing four thousand tons of nitrous sulphates, which had previously been examined and was believed to be free from danger of explosion.

All the workmen's dwellings in the vicinity were razed to the grounds. At Mannheim, on the opposite side of the river, thirty-five persons were seriously injured and two hundred or more slightly injured. Ludwigschafen reports say that three workmen's trains were buried under the wreckage and many children on their way to school in that town were injured.

Heart-rending scenes were witnessed on all sides. At the little cemetery on the outskirts of Oppau there are already more than 200 bodies laid out on the grass. Numerous tombstones were lifted and hurled in various directions by the force of the explosion. There was not a door or window left intact for a radius of three miles.

French medical units are aiding in the rescue work. Assistance also has been rushed from all the neighboring towns, and all public and private motor cars and vehicles were requistioned.

New Method Manufacture

BERLIN, Sept. 22.—The Ludwigschafen correspondent of the Allgemine Zeitung, says the disaster at Oppau was caused by a nitrogen tank after which four other tanks exploded. In the building at the time were eight hundred workers, and all of them it is feared, perished. Pieces of machinery weighing half a ton were hurled into Ludwigschafen. The report says he learns that a new method of manufacture was being tested in the laboratory.

The Bourse Committee has decided in view of the lack of details concerning the damage to the Badische Anilinfabrik plant to omit its stock from the official list.

Has an "Evil Sound"

LONDON, Sept. 22.—"The name of the Badische works has an evil sound in allied ears," says the Daily Mail, "for there the first poison gas used in the war was produced and throughout the war chlorine, pholarne, and lachramatory gases were manufactured there for the German army. The works did more than any other German industrial concern to prolong the war by supplying high explosives. They were severely damaged in the course of twenty-nine air raids which the British and French made on Mannheim, one of the chief objectives of the allied bombing squadrons.

"The Badische works are recognized as the largest dye and high explosive concern in the world. More than ten thousand persons were employed there before the war and recently betwen 10,000 and 15,000. The concern has wide ramifications in the German copper, coal and sugar industries."

.....THE KU KLUX KLAN.

Reports from London, Ontario, to the effect that the Ku Klux Klan is spreadnig its tentacles into Canada and that propaganda is being carried on to bring about the formation of Canadian branches of this notorious secret order are disturbing. There is no place in this country for such an organization and the authorities should not fail to inform those who are seeking to establish the hooded hordes of the Ku Klux here that Canada does not need or want a secret society whose policy is to take the la win its own hands. There may have been some justification for the organization of the original Ku Klux in the Southern States of the United States, but the need has long since passed, and if there is any genuine attempt to foist this ugly, vicious society upon the people of Canada no time should be lost in letting the promoters know that Canadians have confidence in their laws and in the administration of those laws, and have no desire to have the control of organized society delegated to a mob of masquerading ruffians. The Ku Klux Klan had better remain within the boundaries of the country in which it had its inception. Canada has no welcome for it, except such as is offered by the jails and penitentiaries.

CAPT. MANION'S APPOINTMENT.

One appointment made by Premier Meighen in the shuffling of his Cabinet that will be well received, especially by the returned soldiers of Canada, is that of Capt. R. J. Manion of Fort William as Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment. The new Minister is himself a veteran of the great war and has, since his election to Parliament, keenly interested himself in matters pertaining to the returned soldier and his problems. It is unfortunate that his appointment has been so long delayed and that the department could not have had Capt. Manion at its head during the period when the repatriation of Canada's army was the biggest task before the country. Senator Lougheed, who first presided presided over the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, never succeeded in winning the confidence of the veterans and did not appear to throw himself into the work with the vision and enthusiasm that such an important portfolio demanded. The new Minister, who appears to have the personality and qualities needed for his position, comes to the department when its activities have largely been curtailed and too late to accomplish so that the Fort William veteran will not be given much opportunity to demonstrate his ability as an administrator.

much effective work on behalf of his comrades of the war. In fact, the portfolio has been unfilled and

THE NEW CABINET.

Premier Meighen's re-organized Cabinet was sworn in yesterday and held up for the inspection of a critical country. The verdict will not be definitely known until after the general election; in the meantime the tenor of the comment depends largely upon the political bias of the individual. At least the Premier has succeeded to a considerable extent in making his cabinet geographically representative and has done better than Sir Robert Borden was able to do in securing a French delegation. The portfolios of Secretary of State, Postmaster-General and President of the Privy Council are all assigned to new ministers from Quebec. The appointment of H. H. Stevens, of Vancouver to the Department of Trade and Commerce, was expected, for he has for some time been slated for promotion, nor should the selection of the fiery Dr. J. W. Edwards, of Frontenac as Minister of Health, Immigration and Colonization occasion any surprise. The securing of R. B. Bennett, K.C., of Calgary, for the Ministry of Justice, was probably the most successful feature of the Premier's cainet-making operations. The Calgary man is big in physique, voice and ability and will do much to mend the Covernment's broken fence in the west. Familiar figures fade away from the limelight as the names of the new cabinet are thown upon the screen. Foster, Reid and Crothers drop out of the picture and but little trace is left of the Union cabinet selected by Sir Robert Borden four years ago.

A CHANCE TO HELP.

President Denne, of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, has hit upon a very commendable plan of maintaining the interest of the citizens in Peterborough's big exhibition and of impressing upon them the fact that the Peterborough Industrial is their own show. He has invited people generally to write to the Fair Board, offering suggestions as to what should be done to improve the Exhibition next year, whether in the programme offered, or in the exhibits or in the accommodation provided, or in any other department or feature. Citizens who found anything connected with this year's Exhibition to complain of are urged to write to the secretary, Mr. F. J. A. Hall, before the next meeting, so that the defects can be remedied for next year if the complaints are found to be justified. Those who consider that the Exhibition could be improved by the addition of this feature or the elimination of that one are also asked to help the Exhibition directors by forwarding their suggestions to the secretary as soon as possible. President Denne in fact puts the matter up to the whole community and invites everyone to help make Peterborough's fair better still. If you want more horse racing or think the midway should be enlarged or believe that more grandstand attractions should be provided, don't hesitate to write to the Exhibition Board and tell them your opinion. A multitude of counsel will enable the directors to get a close line on public opinion and to begin their planning for next year's Exhibition, backed by the warm-hearted interest of the community.

GROWTH OF THE CITIES

The populatione of Toronto is now placed at 522,667 and that of Hamilton at 118,243. In both cases growth has been relatively rapid. When the figures of the census for 1921 are complete it will be found that very considerable propotion of the population total has been segrated in larger commercial centres. A swelling tendency in that direction has ben unmistakable for years past. Half a century ago, when the Dominion was in its swaddling clothes, a high percentage of the aggregate population was classified as "rural." Canada was then essentially a pastoral country; and notwithstanding what has occured, agriculture must still be recognized as our basic industry; but since about 1881 we have moved speedily forward in the development of manufacturing, and today the preponderance of our commercial interests is centred in the cities and towns.

This movement toward the growing centres gathered marked impetus since 1871. Taking all the places which in that year had a population exceeding 10,000, and comparing the total for 1911, the result is very striking. For example, in 1871 the aggregate of all centres having a population in excess of 10,000 was 386,334. Contributing to that total was but a single city with a population of 1000,000 or over—Montreal, Quebec came next with 59,699, and Toronto followed with barely 59,000. In 1911 the cities and towns thus classified had a population of 2,024,476, representing a gain of 425 per cent. in four decades. The growth during the past ten years will be revealed by the census now under process of tabulation, but it has been so decided that it might be safely assumed at least 3,500,000 people are to be found today in cities and towns having a population of over 10,000. If the proposition be reduced to a basis of 2,000, there can be no doubt that fully 60 per cent. of all people in Canada are thus living at the present time.

This change, whatever may be its advantages or disadvantages, clearly suggests the steadily rising importance of our commercial interests apart from agriculture. The co-relation of all interests is, of course, obivous; but we are here dealng wth a fact which must be definitely recognized. While the urban population has grown so rapidly as to outstrip the rural, the latter still holds a vastly important place in its relation to the whole interests of the Dominion. The rural population might, however, be regarded as having reached a stationary position as to numbers, since the accretive powers of the cities and towns will probably balance the increase of population in the prairie provinces through immigration. On the other hand, the continued growth of the cities is inevitable. People do not move fom the large centres to the country, attractive as ought to be the prospects of life on the farm, while a rising number of people flock annually from the rural districts to the cities.

THE STRENUOUS RUSH.

In these electric days apoplexy, heart failure and nervous breakdowns register too often their protest against the strenuous rush which allows no change and forbids relaxation or diversion. Some of us forget to allow sufficient margin to the page of life; we feel that we must scribble, no matter what or how poorly, on every needle point of the white space before us. Those of us who have become addicted to unresting toil and are afflicted with the speed mania at our tasks would do well to join the Congregationalist in this resolution of "recreation: "Resolved, that I will summon Play as my armorbearer to gird me for the battle of work looming beyond; that I will invoke Slumber to atone for many a night defrauded of its dues; that I will for a little while enthrone Idleness as the king of my hours, and let him issue omnipotent commands to all my weary being."

BOBBED-HAIRED GIRLS ARE TABOO.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 21.—Girls with bobbed hair have been declared taboo in two St. Louis downtown restraunts. Short orders and short locks can't be served simultaneously the managers have decided, and they have issued an informal edict against those young women whose artistic tastes have not been mitigrated by more commercial surroundings.

However, exceptions have been made to the rule. Those who have been ordered to bob their hair to prevent it falling out will be retained, Miss E. Ninnert, head waitress at one of the places, said, but those who merely bob their hair because it is a fad are under the ban.

Although there are those who advance the contention that the soup is safer with bobbed and netted hair, the restaraant management does not agree with them, and, while maintaining a standing order for all girls to wear nets, holds that bobbed hair is hoydenish.

KENT, JR. IS BROUGHT BACK

Chapter 69.

Kent, Jr. had been found. It was a reality. His sturdy arms around my neck and the pressure of his little body against my heart as I greeted him at the front door, flooded my soul with a prayer of thankfulness.

I held him off at arm's length and feasted my eyes upon him. Thank God, he had not been harmed!.

"Kent boy, run in there to Daddy," I told him.

Poor Kent still slumped, heart-broken, in a chair with his hands across his eyes. He had not even heard the doorbell ring, or the sound of baby's voice in the hall when Tom Barney had brought him in.

I followed the boy to the door and stood watching with tears of relief and happiness rushing down my face. He ran into the room eagerly. When he saw his father's dejected attitude he seemed to hesitate a minute. Just the shadow of a cloud crossed his baby face, and then he tip-toed ever so carefully toward his father's stooping shoulders.

Even Kent's dazed sense must have been stirred by the boy's nearness. He moved a little and then raised his head slowly from his hands Kent Jr. caught his father's hands as they dropped and in another moment he was climbing joyfully into his arms.

'Hello, Daddy!" he cried, his little voice trembling with the joy of seeing him again. "I thought you was asleep."

I shall always have a mental picture of the expression of thankfulness and exquisite joy on Kent's face. Every line of pain and cynicism faded from his features. His expression was sublime. His dark brown eyes lit up with a shining radiance and stretching out eager arms he folded the boy to his heart, clinging to him passionately. His feelings were to deep and overwhelming for words.

He just hugged and hugged Kent, Jr. on to him and kissed him again and again. And the boy was just as eager and strenous with his hugs.

I could imagine how strange and perhaps frightened the child had felt and how glad he must be to get back to his Daddy again.

My own heart was so thankful and happy, and I could not bear just standing and looking on any longer. I longed to take my two boys in my aching arms—arms that had ached through fear of having lost them. Now I knew that they were mine again, and most wonderfully and strangely united. It was as if our three souls had touched exquisitely in perfect oneness and understanding.

I crossed the room quietly and sank down gently on the arm of Kent's chair. My arms encircled his shoulders and I drew their two precious heads against my breast.

Kent, Jr., climbed up a little higher in his father's arms and patted my cheek fondly.

We sat like that for many long, happy minutes.

At last Kent lifted his tear-stained face and looked into my eyes.

"God has been very good to me, Barbara! He has brought back our boy—and—and he has at last brought me to my senses. I see it all plainly now—see it as you have tried so hard to make me."

I could not answer him. I could only press his head up closer to me and kiss his trembling lips again and again. I was very thankful, too. I thanked God that he had brought my baby back safely to me, but even more I thanked him that Kent had at last come to a bigger understanding of life.

I caressed the deep lines of retrospection that furrowed his dear forehead and I loved each one of them. They were deep lines that had stirred his very soul.

I wondered if they knew, those two precious heads held so close to my heart, how tragically near I had come to losing them.

A Heintzman & Co. Piano Purchased by Melba for Her Australian Home

Melba, the world's great singer, has purchased through Mr. Walter F. Evans, their Vancouver representative, a beautiful Grand Piano of "Ye Olde Firme," Heintzman & Co., Limited, for use in her boudoir studio in her Australian home.

It was possible for Madame Melba, in her world travels, to test out the finest pianos of the world's most famous manufacturers in Europe, the United States and Canada.

When it came to a personal purchase, the buying of a piano for her own studio, the choice was with Melba as with Tetrazzini, a Heintzman & Co. Piano, the instrument always used when concert touring in Canada.

This piano was shipped on the same steamer that carried Madame Melba home again to her beloved Australia.

—Strongest of all influences with these famed artists in buying a Heintzman & Co. piano was its unrivalled tone and touch.

MANY ANGLES IN IRISH ISSUE.

A Complex Mass of Ambitions, Desires and Needs Envelopes the Situation in the Emerald Isle.

By CLYDE A. BEALS
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

DUBLIN, Sept. 21. — The Irish movement is a complex mass of ambitions, desires and needs. The only persons who understand it to their own satisfaction are those who are so vitally interested and have their eyes so glued to the goal that they can not see what is pushing them.

Some say the issue is clear—that it is a matter of driving out of the country the invading English.

Many Englishmen and many Americans say the issue is religious, that in the south the Catholics combine against the Protestants, and that in Ulster the Protestants combine against the Catholics.

Some say the issue is economic—that Ireland wishes to have more control over her trade than she has at present and more opportunities of developing her industries to support the population that she is capable of supporting.

Some say it is purely political — that Ireland abhors the humiliation of having her laws made by a body in which she can have only a small representation.

Some will say that the movement is nationalistic—that Ireland feels the surge of national consciousness and wants to be free to foster it.

Some, finally, will say that the movement is a labor one—that it is Ireland's participation in the Socialistic and other movements that are taking place in different forms in other countries.

Actually, it is no one of these, least of all religious. It is like a chameleon on a grandmother quilt.

Certainly, it has the aspect of driving out the invader. The English got their hold on Ireland just as they got their hold on Britain. They were asked to take a hand in a local dispute, and, like the proverbial camel, when they got their nose in, they just squatted all over the lot. But that was some seven hundred years ago.

The movement has been religious, but outgrown it. Two members of the present Cabinet and a fair sprinkling of members of the Dail Eireann are not Catholics. The constitution of Sinn Fein says: "Membership shall be open to all adults of Irish birth or parentage irrespective of sex, class or creed, who accept the constitution of Sinn Fein, save that no member of the British armed forces, nor pensioner thereof, nor any person who has taken the oath of allegiance to the British Government shall be eligible so long as he retains the office or position involving that oath."

The movement to-day is probably dominantly economic. But the era is industrial and economic and it seems likely that the Irish movement has taken on that aspect because of the era and does not arise from economic motives. One Irish leader wrote: "The Irish have shown by three hopeless rebellions in every century how loathsome to them is the character which British statesmen would mould them." So the movement cannot be said to be purely economic. Yet it has that aspect. One hears that Ireland needs lower tariffs than England collects because her workmen receive usually half the pay of an English workman. One hears that Irish foreign trade is undeveloped because England puts obstacles in the way of ships visiting the harbors. The movement has a very definite economic side.

The movement has a political aspect, but it is not only political. Irishmen are too well-known in America for it to be necessary to point out their political nature. They object to having their laws made at Westminster. They believe that Parliament considers chiefly English interests, and De Valera has said: "An Irish right can never give way to an English interest."

The nationalist aspiration has probably been largely responsible for keeping the movement alive for so long. The Irish point out that their civilization is one of the oldest in the world. The surge of this national feeling is like a slow pulse, rising now and again, to win the freedom of expressing the Gaelic civilization unhampered by the imposed personality of another race.

The labor phase is expressed in the Irish co-operative movement. The co-operatives have made a deal, or will shortly, with the Dail Eireann by which in return for their support the Dail will see that in bidding for public or private undertakings they will have an opportunity equal to that of individual enterprise.

To appraise each influence is practically impossible. In the aggregate they are powerful. Their power lies in the devotion each inspires in its proponents for the whole movement.

BEHEADED IN SIGHT OF WOMAN.

Hotel Elevator Shoots Up and Negro's Head Lies At Her Feet.

ATLANTIC CITY, September 21. —Locked in a rapidly mounting elevator, with the head of of Stephen Green, its colored operator decapitated before her very eyes, was the terrifying experience through which Mrs. Mary Stevens, of 1706 Leeds avenue, an employee of the Hotel Traymore, passed through recently. An automatic safety device on the 14th floor stopped the car.

Mrs. Stevens entered the servants' elevator while Green, the operator, was standing outside. In some way, as yet undetermined, the car started on its upward flight. Green attempted to jump on board and was caught between it and the first floor. His head rolled to the feet of Mrs. Stevens and his body fell into the pit. Mrs. Stevens shrieked in horror and fainted.

Hotel employees who heard the woman scream took another car and went to the top of the shaft. They broke open the doors of the runaway elevator. Mrs. Stevens was still unconscious. She was taken at once to her home and put under the care of a physician, who said her condition was serious.

The police and county authorities instituted an investigation. County Physician Souder rendered a verdict of accidental death. There will be no inquest. In view of the eary hour at which the accident happened none of the guests of the hotel were aware of the tragedy.

HEAVY CORN CROP.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Sept. 21. (United Press).—Farmers throughout northern New York are reported to be highly elated because of the wonderful growth of corn during the past month. At many farms corn has reached a height of over twelve feet and every indication points to one of the greatest crops on record in the North Country.

The bumper corn crop is particularly welcome, as the hay crop this season was very light and of poor quality. Now, however, with silos filled to the top with ensilage, many farmers will be able to winter their cattle, who otherwise would have been forced to sell them.

Hitting the High Spots at the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition

Choice Lay Between the "Whip" and the "Merry-Go-Round"—Competition in Washing Machines

We went to the Fair last week and looked at all the exhibits, at all the made-in-Canada goods, at the sewing machine that does nearly everything but pull out the bastings, at the washing machine grinding an unfortunate sheet in and out of soapy water, at the bees crawling up and down an enormous honey-comb, at all the variegated fancy-work, the cattle and poultry and horses, at the huge block of filtered ice, and then we went and looked at the whip. The whip is such an undignified sort of performance, such a jerky, sidelong, humpy combination of movements. People always look so silly on the whip. A fat girl was screaming loudly at every sudden motion.

Then we went and considered the merry-go-round, that paradise of the youngsters. The merry-go-round is quite an exciting affair. You fly through the air on top of prancing, fiery-eyed steeds, and it takes a great deal of skill and foresight to keep oneself from falling off. We were thoughtfully considering the merry-go-round, then, when my companion, who is nothing if not decisive, announced firmly that she intended to take a ride. Torn between the knowledge of an inevitable dizzy head and an aversion to being left alone while she careered madly about the arena, I finally consented to mount an inky animal with crimson open mouth and nostrils. He refused to come down out of the air, and it took a long step to reach him. With some misgivings, therefore, I mounted, and the thoughtful old gentleman who seemed to be inspecting proceedings at one side, smiled broadly. We clutched our safety rods and each got a foot into a stirrup. The saddles seemed inclined to slip and we held on tighter and tighter. The horses started to move and rise gently. The man came around for the tickets. My companion was brave enough to hand him her slip, but I could only hold mine tightly clutched in my hand. He reached up and removed it, seeming quite unmoved by the whole perilous proceeding. I was on the point of telling him that I was sure I would fall off, but resolved to see it through to the bitter end. A gentleman with puzzled look sat in the inner circle, computing figures on a little slip of paper. His lips moved in soundless words. Presently we began getting up speed, and my coal-black charger took the bit in his mouth and started a stationary race. The tall old gentleman smiled broadly at us as we rushed past. I looked down. My skirt looked all right, but still—. The lady ahead declined in dignified grace in a seat. We whirled ever more madly up and down. I clutched my horse's mane. Then the mechanism stopped and we got off. My horse neared the ground this time, but that of my companion stayed in the air. It was necessary for her to jump, and the observant old gentleman watched the proceedings with a critical air. "Do you know what he did. He winked at me!" she said indignantly, but I said nothing. My surmise about a dizzy head had been quite correct.

The Traill Family of Lakefield Pioneers in Northern District

Literary Ability Was Characteristic of More Than One Member of the Family

The death of the late Miss Katherine Agnes Strickland Traill of Lakefield at the age of 86 removed one of the last of the children of that pioneer couple, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Traill, who came to Canada in 1832, when Peterborough and the district surrounding it was little more than a clearing in the bush. Mrs. Traill, better known as Catharine Parr Traill, came of a talented family, five of whom contributed to the literary efforts of their time. Her sisters, Elizabeth and Agnes, were joint authors of "The Lives of the Queens of England," Sara and Jane wrote "Rome, Regal and Republican" and Catharine Parr Traill herself was the author of numerous literary works. When seven years old she and her sister, Susan, commenced writing little tales to amuse themselves, and at the age of seventeen her literary efforts netted her the sum of "five golden guineas" from an English publisher. "The Blind Highland Piper and Other Tales," 'Nursery Tales," "Prejudice Reproved," "The Young Emigrants," "Sketches from Nature," "Sketch Book of a Young Naturalist" and "The Stepbrothers" followed in rapid order with ever increasing remuneration. In 1822, when the young authoress was 20 years of age, she wrote "Little Dowby, the Field Mouse," and "Keepsake Guinea and Other Stories."

Her sister, Susanna, who had married Mr. John Wedderburn Moodie, author of "Ten Years in South Africa" and "A Soldier and a Settler," had introduced her young sister to Mr. Thomas Traill. He and "Katie," as she was affectionately called, were married in 1832, and came to Canada in the same year. The voyage occupied 41 days before anchor was cast before Montreal. Here Mrs. Traill was stricken with cholera, but recovered quickly from the dread disease which claimed victims of so many of the immigrants to our shores in those days.

In the sketch, "Sunset and Sunrise on Lake Ontario," Mrs. Traill gives an account of the journey from Brockville to Cobourg. From there they went in a light wagon to the shores of Rice Lake, there to take the steamer for Peterborough. The log house which did duty as tavern on the shores of Rice Lake, the encampment of the Irish emigrants, the little steamer "Pem-o-dash," the Indian word for fire-boat, which had no cabin, was half-decked, and carried a sail in addition to the steam propeller, and the flowers and fruits that grew by the way, are all described. "Owing to the rapids and the shallowness of the river, the steamboat was unable to go up the whole way to Peterborough, so a large, unwieldy-looking scow had been engaged to meet it at a point called the 'Yankee Bonnet,' so named from a fanciful resemblance the topmost branches of a tree growing on the bank had to the sort of cap worn by the Yankees," says the chronicle.

Her first sight of the present city is described as follows: "Beyond the stream the forest opened out into a wide grassy plain, and the lights from a few scattered houses told us we were on the site of the now populous city of Peterborough." They were put up at "Mr. McFadden's Hotel" for the night, and the following morning were met by Mrs. Traill's brother, Mr. Strickland, who had come to Canada seven years previous. Mr. Strickland had a clearing on the shores of "Lake Katchewanook, the first of the chain of lakes of which the Otonabee is the outlet." Here "there was good soil, fine timber, excellent water-power, rich mineral deposits, and the probability or remote certainty that at some future date the lakes would be connected by canals, the river made navigable by the construction of locks, and a water highway be obtained from Lake Huron via Lake Simcoe to the Bay of Quinte and the St. Lawrence."

Mr. Traill drew his Government land grant, the principal portion being in Verulam Township, the smaller in Douro, and Mr. Moodie, who followed the Traills to Canada, also settled in Douro. In 1835 Mrs. Traill recommenced her literary endeavors. "The Backwoods of Canada" was written and published later in London for the "Library of Entertaining Knowledge" series. In 1839 they removed to Ashburnham, where they lived until 1846, when they went to live on a rise called Mount Ararat above a deep ravine on the shores of Rice Lake. In 1850 "Lady Mary and Her Nurse" was published, followed by "The Canadian Crusoes," "Lost in the Backwoods" and "Alice in the Forest." "A Guide for the Female Emigrant" was a volume containing much useful knowledge also. Mrs. Traill was an ardent lover of the manifestations of nature and in 1860, after the death of her husband, her botanical notes were utilized in supplying the letter-press for her niece, Mrs. Fitzgibbon's 'Canadian Wild Flowers," and in 1884 Mrs. Traill published her "Studies of Plant Life in Canada," also illustrated by her niece, later Mrs. Chamberlin. An honor in this connection which was later paid to Mrs. Traill was the naming of a remarkable fern which she found growing near the village of Lakefield, as Mrs. Traill's shield fern.

In 1893, hearing that a little island in Stoney Lake where a poor Indian girl was buried was to be sold, she wrote to the Department at Ottawa to ask that it should be granted her. The request was granted, an extract from the official letter reading:

"I have the pleasure to inform you that by the same post you will receive a patent for 'Polly Cow's Island,' in the River Otonabee, township of Douro.

"It has been a great pleasure to everyone here, from the highest to the lowest official, to do everything in their power to do you honorable service and gratify your every wish—every one of them feeling that the most any of them can do is but the smallest acknowledgment which is due to you for your life-long devotion to Canada."

The foregoing information was gleaned from a biographical sketch which prefaces "Pearls and Pebbles, or Notes of an Old Naturalist," an interesting volume which was published in 1894. At that time, it must be remembered, the authoress was 92 years of age, so this truly remarkable old lady retained the freshness of her intellect to an advanced age, as illustrated in the interesting pages of this volume. She died in 1898 at the age of 96 years, having spent sixty-six years of her life in Canada, seeing the present age of progress replace the life of the backwoods, the clearing replace the forest and the hand of the white man wipe out the last vestige of the savages who still roamed the land when she came here, a young English bride.

It has been said of her daughter, Miss Katherine Agnes Strickland Traill, who died on Sept. 11th, that she inherited the sweetness of disposition which made her mother beloved by all who knew her, and her whole life was touchingly described in her funeral sermon as "a long innocent walk with God."

Girls Work

An open meeting of the Girls' Work Board in connection with 'teen age girls' classes in the Sunday Schools was held on Tuesday evening at the Young Women's Christian Association, presided over by the President of the board, Miss Charlotte Layton. About 25 members attended. Mrs. Percy Hetherington and Miss Mary Elliott, who attended the Lake Couchiching conference for leaders at Muskoka this summer as delegates from George Street Methodist Church, gave very interesting reports on the work carried on by the conference. Mrs. Hetherington's report dealt with Miss Taggart's course on Sunday School methods and Prof. Gilmour's dissertation on 'The Book of Amos." Miss Elliott reported on Dr. McLeod's addresses on "Child Psychology" and on the course in regular Canadian Girls in Training work, which was given by Miss May Gemmel of Toronto. A great deal of information was derived from these interesting reports on valuable methods of proceeding with C.G.I.T. work.

FROCK WITH CAPE

Little capes are picturesque additions to many of the new season's frocks. Here gray matlesse has fashioned a frock whose cape is finished at the top with roses in self material. Roses appear again to begin the skirt draperies. The blouse is kimono in effect with square cut neck and an opening down the front. Belt is plaited silver.

Deceptive Names

Just for the information of any bewildered ladies who may be confronted by unfamiliar names in autumn and winter weaves it might be said that there are numbers of peculiar names in vogue just now for materials. The Parisian couturiers, which last, of course, is merely a hifalutin name for dressmakers, specialize in this sort of harmless deception. One meeting with the term "Perllaine Dentellee" for the first time might reasonably think it had something to do with one's teeth. It hasn't. It is only the name of a winter coating for women, and is woven with a pebbled surface suggestive of innumerable tiny beads, with a border design in contrasting color. "Quadrillee Crepe" suggests an Egyptian dance in the latest musical comedy. It is said to be ideal material for sport skirts, and boasts an Egyptian border with a medium-sized check design. "Les Grosques Quadrillee" is "a striking weave whose broad stripes are crossed by a Grecian design in such totally different colors as grey and coral on brown and tan, or white and royal blue on grey and navy." Then there is "Les Ravures Perllaine," which is striped in just the width for a [illegible] box pleat, with red, tan and gold stripes on brown, black and navy grounds. "Panvelaine" is a sister to duvetyne and duvet delaine, two materials which really started this conglomeration of wordings some seasons ago.

Household Hints

The lightness of pancakes depends on the beating.

Scald the milk for your custard. It should then be poured hot on the eggs.

Mushrooms are delicious when frizzled in butter just as you would frizzle dried beef.

To prevent woollen gloves from shrinking when they are washed, put clothespins in the fingers while they are drying.

To prevent stockings from "running" stretch the tops wide and stitch around several times on sewing machine.

There is no way of finishing kitchen and closet shelves in so sanitary a way as with a good coat of white paint, followed, if you like, by a coat of white enamel.

On Fashions

Day dresses will have a high neck finish.

Flouncings, bindings, draperies and scallops are still good.

The pointed bodice and full skirt are having a small revival.

Black velvet and white crepe de chine are combined in the little frock.

One of the newest fads for the garden enthusiast is a fancy leather apron, painted if one so desires with floral designs.

Hats and gowns of taffeta are shown whose only trimming is in flowers or large graceful designs paineed on by hand.

Novel sleeves are the principal new features of blouses as well as other garments, and two-color combinations are in high favor.

Stylish is a voluminous cape of black crepe de chine lined with white, with its huge collar of monkey fur in shiny black and white.

Petticoats will probably play a stronger role the coming season than for some time, with longer skirts an assured fact and still greater width generally accepted.

A new corset that suits ample figures as well as slight ones is a model combining brassiere with corset. It is very pliable and suggests the curves of the figure without giving a stiff corseted effect.

FROM "PURPLE SPRINGS"

"Marriage," began the old doctor, in his most professional tone, as one who reads from a manuscript, "is one-fourth joy and three-fourths disappointment. There is no love strong enough to stand the grind of domestic life. Marriage would be highly successful were it not for the fearful bore of living together. Two houses and a complete set of servants would make marriage practically free from disappointments. I think St. Paul was right when he advised men to remain single if they had serious work to do. Women, the best of them, grow tiresome and double-chinned in time."—From "Purple Springs."

WORN FINGER TIPS.

When the finger tips begin to go through turn the glove inside out and stitch the finger ends on the machine, shortening each one enough to remove the worn spots. Then trim the seams and turn. This is quicker and neater than darning and does not shorten the fingers enough to be noticeable.

The name of the letter Q comes from the French "queue", meaning a tail, as the letter O with a tail.

Recipes

Coffee Sponge Cream.

Heat in the upper part of a double boiler one cupful and a half of cold coffee, three-quarters of a cupful of milk off top of the bottle and one-third of a cupful of sugar; then add one and a quarter tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatine, softened in three tablespoonfuls of cream. When the gelatine is dissolved, stir in the yolks of two eggs, beaten with another third of a cupful of sugar and a few grains of salt. Cook until the mixture coats the back of the spoon, remove from the fire and add one-quarter of a teaspoonful of vanilla extract. Cool, beat with an egg beater and fold in the stiffly whipped egg whites. Beat until very thick and light, and pour into an ornamental mold. Chill on the ice and serve with sweetened whipped cream.

Cream Fruit Pie.

Bake a deep pastry shell with a fluted rim of crust and when cold fill with the following: Scald three-quarters of a cupful of milk and thicken with four level tablespoonfuls of flour, blended with a quarter of a cupful of milk. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until thickened; cook for four minutes and add one egg beaten with six tablespoonfuls of sugar and a few grains of salt. Cook for a moment to set the egg and flavor with a quarter of a teaspoonful of vanilla extract. After the shell is filled, cover with any sliced and sweetened fruit, as peaches or bananas, and arrange a meringue over all. Return to a slow oven to brown over.

Cuban Baked Apples.

Core four large juicy apples and fill the cavities, from which the cores have been taken, with a mixture of chopped preserved ginger, grated lemon rind, sugar and ground cinnamon. Pour into the pan in which the apples are placed one large cupful of water and add three tablespoonfuls of the ginger syrup, a tablespoonful of sugar and the juice of half a lemon. Bake, basting frequently with the liquor in the pan and serve the fruit with the liquor poured over them. If desired, the fruit may be peeled, in which event, bake in a covered pan.

Cheese Potatoes.

Have ready three cupfuls of creamy mashed potatoes and season to taste with salt and paprika. Add three-quarters of a cupful of grated American cheese, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter and a tablespoonful of minced parsley. Beat until very light, fold in the stiffly whipped white of one egg and heap in a mound on a greased tin. Dust with additional grated cheese and brown over in a quick oven. The potatoes to be creamy should be a little more moist than for ordinary mashed potatoes.

JUST ONE APPLICATION AND THE HAIRS VANISH

(Modes of To-Day).

A harmless, yet very effective treatment is here given for the quick removal of hairy growths: Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the undesirable hairs, apply paste and after 2 or 3 minutes remove, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. One application usually is sufficient, but to be certain of results, buy the delatone in an original package. Mix fresh as wanted.

Just a Little Green Plant

It is just a little green plant, but they call it the Indomitable, because it refuses to be cast down. Time and time again it has come to the verge of utter extinction, and they would say sorrowfully, "It is done for now," when, lo and behold, a few more tiny stems would spring up, green leaves unfold, and there it was as bright as ever.

It started out by being a gift of love from a very deaf lady who brought it as an appreciation of kindness. It was a fine, budding little plant, with trefoil leaves and a few frail white blossoms. Time went on and it throve, but, going away for a two weeks' vacation, they forgot it, and it baked and blistered in a sunny window without a single drink for all that time. Sere and yellow were the leaves and the white blossoms all dried up when they returned. Drastic measures were necessary, so the knife was resorted to. It was cut down to within an inch of its life and then petted judiciously with a little weak tea and a cigar stub now and again. Presently, it was up and doing as well as ever and arrangements were shortly made to move it into a new home. This was a fine, large roomy pot, with plenty of rich earth that had matured and rinened for many years beneath a spicy cedar hedge. Then it surpassed itself altogether. It burst into a riot of bloom, families and families of tiny green stalks and feathery white flowers arising from the new soil and falling all over each other. But it is thought there was dissension in the home, for presently it began to droop once more. Left for another fortnight this summer, in the hands of a too asiduous friend, it evidently went on a spree of wet and chlorinated hilarity, for its owner's return found it absolutely waterlogged, with only one or two moist remnants of its former grandeur remaining. All hope was gone. No plant in such a state of dissipation could recover. A fond farewell was tendered and it was placed outside a window to expire in peace. But this dauntless little plant doesn't mean to die. It has taken a new lease of life. The warm sun poured down and dried it out, pulled out some fresh runners, and now it stands up straight and dauntless, a hardy little mass of vivid green. The Indomitable is on its feet again.

THE HOME CIRCLE

There are too many fathers who will tie up the dog at night and let the boy run loose.

It will not be long until we still estimate the baby's worth by saying she is "worth her weight in coal."

Trouble comes to all of us, but each one is interested only in his own brand. Bear this in mind and don't bore other people by constantly repeating your troubles to them.

Let plenty of fresh air and sunshine into your homes. The sun may fade the rugs, but it kills the germs and it is better that you should have faded rug than that you should have sickly children.

Try to be thankful that things are as well with you as they are, and don't fret yourself and your good wife into an early grave for the sake of making a little money. Do not let good opportunities pass for making money! Neither, be forever worrying because more opportunities don't come your way. If you own your own home and are out of debt lean back and enjoy life a little. A happy fireside is better than a big bank account.

Stirring up bitterness in a neighbor's heart is never profitable or pleasant. One way to avoid doing this is to keep your chickens in your own yard, especially during the gardening season.

Young people, it's up to you what you do with your life. All the friends you can gather about you cannot make it a success, nor can your enemies make it a failure. Do not depend, as many of you do, on rich or influential friends to push you up the ladder of success. Do your own climbing and then you will not have to come down again to pay off your obligations.

Silence is the best weapon to use against a vulgar or spiteful tongue. Remember this the next time someone tries to pick a quarrel with you.

Sometimes a woman whose life seems bounded by the four walls of her home gets very restless. Her house work becomes irksome because it seems to avail nothing. Her life seems to herself very narrow and much of no account. When these thoughts come to her she should remember this; that the woman who has a home and keeps it well has no mean sphere in life. In the home is the hope of the nation and the world.

Not long ago, in Chicago, a fanatical father shot his son because he was running with evil associates and getting into evil habits; the father wanted to keep him out of the penitentiary where he probably would have gone sooner or later. It is strange that so many fathers wait until the penitentiary looms large on the horizon before they attempt, as this father attempted, though with less success perhaps since their treatment is not so strenuous, to keep their sons outside of those stone walls. It seems that they do not realize the power of evil associates and evil habits early in life. Why do they allow their young boys to wander about the streets at night free to choose whom they will for friends, and what they will for entertainment?

If you have the blues brother, go out and work in the garden. Work hard. Work so hard that every joint aches and the perspiration drips and runs off your nose and chin. Work until you think you can't work any more and then keep on for another half hour or so. Then take a hot bath and an hour's nap and we will venture when you wake the blues will have left you to seek more fertile soil. Incidently you will enjoy the fruits of your toil later on.

Doctor Frank Crane says: "I believe more firmly every year of my life that a man's happiness depends upon what is inside of him and not upon what is around him." In other words, if you would be happy, go to bed at sensible hours, have a sensible diet and sensible habits, and wear sensible clothing.

WHEN ENGINE KNOCKS LOOK FOR TROUBLE.

When an engine knocks something is wrong. Whenever there is a rattle something is loose that ought to be tightened. It takes quite a little skill to locate the different kinds of knocks, but practice makes perfect. By going over the engine carefully these may be eliminated one by one.

Spark knock is due to spark being advanced too far, particularly when going up a hill. The engine slows down and the explosion comes before dead centre, causing a knock. If spark is retarded the knock disappears.

Overheating causes a knock by firing the gas before the piston reaches upper dead centre on the compression stroke. The exploding gas expanding meets the piston going up and makes a knock. Overheating may be noted by steam at radiator.

Carbon knock is caused by red-hot carbon in cylinder head setting fire to the mixture when the gas has been compressed to a certain point. Remove a spark plug and look in cylinders for presence of carbon.

The last classification is a large one as it includes wear or looseness of all moving parts of an engine. The principal knocks are main bearing, connecting rod, wrist pin, piston slap, fly-wheel, etc.

New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

Have the DEAD a NEW WAY to Communicate With the LIVING?

THE dead have found a new way of communicating with the living, if the so-called "book tests," which are now attracting great attention in England, are accepted as evidence that such is a fact. Investigators of spiritistic phenomena, among whom are found men of great literary and scientific fame as Sir A. Conan Doyle and Sir Oliver Lodge, declare this latest method of receiving messages from the spirits is "part of a scheme devised by those communicating with us 'from the other side' to get messages through in a way that cannot be attributed to conscious activity on the part of the medium or to telepathy or mind reading." This is undoubtedly the appearance, and this is what Sir Oliver Lodge considers the truth.

Sir Oliver explains all this in the report which appears in a book entitled "The Earthern Vessel," a volume by Pamela Glenconner and dealing with spirit messages received in the form of "book tests."

In her book, to which Sir Oliver wrote the preface, Miss Glenconner says that a man named F. W. H. Myers, who died twenty years ago, was well aware of the difficulty in accepting spirit communion as an authentic explanation of the lucidity of an entranced medium. Sir Oliver Lodge and his friends gradually found that as a supplement to the more ordinary communications, certain special devices are being employed. Most of them were "apparently initiated by Myers." His object was to reduce the number of alternative explanations, and especially to eliminate telepathy as a necessary element in interpreting the facts.

Thus the new method known as "book tests" has now made its appearance. The evident object of this method is to send messages in such a form that they shall be unintelligible not only to the medium and to the person receiving them, but to everybody, until the clue is followed up and the message decoded, when the meaning ought to be unmistakable.

The "book test" method, as explained by a writer in Current Opinion, consists in specifying the number of a page in a book, itself indicated only by its numbered place on a given shelf in a bookcase whose position is described, in a house to which the medium need have had no access, though a house presumably, or usually, well known to the ostensible communicator. The idea is that a sentence shall subsequently be found on that page by any one who follows the instructions and identifies the book, which sentence shall sufficiently convey an intended message, or shall show a similarity in thought to what has otherwise been said, or shall be appropriate to the actual circumstances or past connection of communicator and intended recipient.

Chance-coincidence suggests itself as the first obvious explanation; but the number of such tests already received is said by this time to be great enough to make that explanation difficult.

Were he pressed to say what explanation, if any, begins to commend itself to himself, Sir Oliver Lodge says he would have to confess himself in a difficulty. It seems to him probable that to explain all these things we shall have to admit access to a set of facts or "mental phenomena" hitherto ignored by science. It may even be found that a few of the things now and on the whole wisely relegated to the ash pit of superstition will have to be disinterred and reconsidered.

As an illustration of the method, one of these "book tests" may be given. Edward Wyndham Tennant, known as "Bim" in the tests, and George Heremon Wyndham are concerned in this particular example of them. They communicate from the "other side." The test itself was given through the mediumship of Mrs. Leonard, controlled by "Feda," in the drawing-room at Wilsford Manor, Salisbury, England. Pamela Glenconner was taking notes. Others were present besides those named. "Feda" is quoted as saying that "Bim" has brought George again. ("Feda" was a remote ancestress of Mrs. Leonard, the medium.) "Feda" goes on to say that George is glad his former messages reached his mother. "Bim" and George between them have got a "book test" for her now.

"Have you got a book that he was connected with?" he asks. "Dark green color close to the book. Look on page 27 if you can find this book, and on the left side of the page there is a message from him. Or something you could take as a message from him."

These directions were sent to George's family. His father had lately come to live at "Clouds," the home of the Percy Wyndhams, and had placed the books he brought with him in shelves in the drawing-room.

He first sought among the books that had belonged to George, but found they consisted only of a few old lesson books, containing nothing applicable. He then looked among the other books for one bound in green. The first volume he took down was "The Memoirs of Lord Edward Fitzgerald" (by Thomas Moore, edited by Martin MacDermott, 1897).

The writer was George's great-great-grandfather. On page 27 the words opening a paragraph are as follows: "What would I not give to be with you to comfort you, dearest Mother."

Mrs. Leonard, the medium controlled by "Feda," has never visited at "Clouds," nor has she been there.

These revelations have occasioned an immense amount of comment in the scientific press and the comment is skeptical. The eminent rationalist, Joseph McCabe, says that the evidence in this case is still to be subjected to tests that would establish its validity. Many objectors note that the columns of a newspaper, taken at random, would substantiate any theory of spirit communication with accidental repetitions of words.

The first success was met with in the system of cross-correspondence; that is, the obtaining of similar or corresponding messages, almost simultaneously, through three or four different amateur mediums or automatic writers, some of whom lived in different countries and were unacquainted with each other. The persons figuring in this report wrote quite independently and spontaneously, and often did not understand the meaning of what they were writing. Their writing told them to send unintelligible script up to the central office of the Society for Psychical Research in London, presumably for further study. An investigator who collated the manuscripts found that the disjointed sentences, the apparently stray literary quotations, "exhibited unmistakable coherence and correspondence one with another," and were capable of significant and characteristic interpretation.

The next method adopted by the group of communicators representing the Society for Psychical Research "on the other side," was the sending of more or less obscure literary allusions and the invention of classical problems of such intricacy and essential scholarship that they were beyond the scope of the transmitting medium and were often unintelligible at first to the people receiving and studying them. Sometimes, indeed, they were recondite enough to puzzle living classical scholars until some hint or clue was afforded by the ostensible framer of the problem, when the significance of the whole leaped to light.

How "SPIRITS" Are Now Said to Find MESSAGES HIDDEN in BOOKS

In the "Book Test" Method the "Spirit," Speaking Through the Medium, Specifies to the Person for Whom the Communication Is Intended the Number of a Page in a Certain Book Whose Position in the Bookcase Is Precisely Indicated, with the Idea of Finding on the Chosen Page a Sentence Containing the Message the Departed One Wishes to Convey to the Living.

The VALUE of CLEAN WINDOWS

IT is all well and good to preach the gospel of clean and airy windows, but it is still better to have them. Writing in a recent issue of the Times Trade Supplement of London, an English doctor has some interesting things to say about sunlight and fresh air. The dirty window, states this authority, is a kind of screen between health and those who seek it. Like the coal smoke, it impoverishes the sunlight. Unlike coal smoke, it can be removed at a relatively small expenditure of trouble. Sunlight exercises a profound effect in killing the germs of disease. More important than this is its effect on the human being at work. This effect is becoming better understood as time goes on. Recently, Dr. Leonard, the well known English authority, wrote:

"The citizen, by his indoor life and by the smoke and dust of cities, is withdrawn not only from the influence of sunlight, the radiant energy of which has undoubtedly a most potent influence on the cutaneous (skin) nerves and feelings determined by these, and probably a no less important influence on the blood and other tissues exposed to its action."

The dirty window, of course, shuts out what little of the sunlight this individual might obtain. As Dr. Hill points out, the winter life of a city dweller is a poor substitute at best for "a man's life." He spends his day within doors except for a brief walk to work or the train. The quickening effects of the sunlight are denied him even when the sunlight is available, for the dingy office or shop is provided against the penetration of that healing warmth.

This is all loss, continues this English authority. Men so weakened by their surroundings cannot and do not remain in good spirits. They become pale and irritable. They work badly and they develop distempers of the mind. Like sickly plants, they become the easy prey of disease. Their output is below that of which they are capable.

The lesson to be derived from the foregoing is that it is the part of good business administration to provide ample window space in the shop, office or factory building in the first place, and to keep such windows or any other windows clean at all times. Tests made on employes working behind dirty windows and the same employes working behind clean windows generally reveal a 5 to 15 per cent. increase in efficiency. There is no question about the importance of ample light, particularly sunlight where possible, in the workaday world.

HOW the GROWTH of a TREE Is RECORDED

A MAPLE tree in the Botanical Gardens of Bronx Park in New York city is the subject of a very interesting experiment. It is being used in a test of the dendrograph, an apparatus for recording the growth of a tree.

To a casual observer the tree appears to be merely the central support of a wire cage, such as might be used for housing some small animal, and many visitors possibly approach it with that in mind. There are four square walls of wire and a roof which meets the tree trunk above.

A closer look reveals the fact that there are no animals or birds, although something that looks somewhat like a bird house is attached to a bracket at one side. This in reality is the little tin house or cover of the recording drum of the dendrograph. Other parts of the apparatus are the collar and belt of blocks which encircle the tree and the recording rod which marks the tree's growth on the cylinder. The collar attachment is in contact with the trunk of the tree at only two points.

The instrument was installed before growth started and is to stay on the tree until the end of the summer, it is explained. The machine gives a continuous record of all changes in volume in the trunk of the tree. It records these changes with extreme accuracy.

Having been satisfactorily installed, the dendrograph needs no further adjusting, or in fact attention of any sort, excepting that once a week the clockwork must be wound and a new record sheet placed on the recording cylinder.

The tree whose daily and hourly growth is thus being noted and recorded is a young sugar maple about a foot in diameter, a native tree, not planted, but having sprung from a chance seed.

The official memoranda accompanying the dendrograph stated that "the instrument consists essentially of a belt of blocks to be clamped around the trunk of a tree in such manner that it is believed that no modification of the growth action of the tree is caused except at the actual tangents where the blocks touch the tree. This belt of blocks serves as a stable support for the recorder and other parts of the apparatus.

The essential feature of the apparatus is the yoke, made up of slotted bars of bario, an alloy with a very low temperature coefficient, which is held in position by the upright "fingers" of spring brass wire which hold the yoke in place without exerting any notable pressure on the tree.

The purpose of the instrument is to record changes in the distance between the contact screw on the opposite side of the tree and the arm of the bearing lever, with the implication that changes in distance indicate changes in volume of the trunk.

In installing the dendrograph it was advised that the belt of blocks be placed in position as nearly horizontal as possible around the trunk of the tree, a meter or more above the ground, with the instrument block on which the record is placed on the south or southeast side of the tree.

The machine was devised by Dr. D. T. MacDougal, former director of laboratories at the New York Botanical Gardens and now director of the botanical research department of the Carnegie Institution of Washington. The dendrograph is one of a number of instruments which are being utilized this year, having been set up in various parts of the United States to get comparative data. Dr. MacDougal will make use of the data thus obtained in his study of growth phenomena.

Folding BEDS Forty CENTURIES OLD

FOLDING BEDS are generally supposed to be an American invention. This ingenious plan of economizing room seems a natural development of the modern city flat. Many old persons still boast that such a bed is a new-fangled idea which was unknown in their youth. A very serviceable folding bed has just been discovered in an ancient tomb of Egypt, which shows that the invention is at least 4000 years old and probably much older. The folding bed shown in the accompanying illustrations is of painted wood and dates from Gebelein Empire period—1580 to 1150 B. C.

Folding Bed Found in an Ancient Egyptian Tomb. At Right, Same Bed, Unfolded.

The style in folding beds forty centuries ago appears strangely familiar. The ancient bed was made of wood and painted. It stood on six legs which were neatly turned, showing that the lathe was in use in those days. The bedstead folded on itself, so that when turned up it took up about one-half the space required when it was open. It turned on a simple hinge which even after four thousand years is serviceable and works as well as ever. The old bed is very dry and brittle, but it is in amazingly good condition, and even the paint with which it was decorated appears still fresh and bright.

The ancient Egyptians thought a great deal of their folding beds. The particular bed, shown in the accompanying illustration, was a model about one foot in length, made to be placed in a tomb. It was selected, along with various other articles of use in the home, with the idea that it would be needed after death. It is clear, therefore, that the ancient Egyptian was so fond of his folding bed that he did not want to part with it, but hoped to use it in a future life. Certainly the folding bed enjoys no such popularity in this day.

It is significant that this form of bed was found in the tomb of a wealthy Egyptian, probably a prince. It was, therefore, not a piece of furniture used by the poor. It seems probable that it was considered a great luxury in ancient times on which only a millionaire could afford to sleep.

The mattress and bedding used in this remarkable piece of furniture has not been preserved. From the holes in the frame it might be concluded that it was originally laced with a series of cords running crosswise, similar to the modern cord mattress. The bedding probably consisted of a heavy blanket or roll of blankets laid over the frame and rolled up and put aside when the bed was folded up for the day.

The bedstead is complete even to the headpiece, which stands upright at the head of the bed, doubtless to hold the pillow in position.

Why Chinese Scholars Study Their Lessons Aloud and Recite Standing with Backs to the Teacher

WHY Chinese students study their lessons aloud and stand with their backs to the teacher while reciting are phenomena upon which western minds have expatiated from time immemorial. These two peculiarities of the Orient are indeed the only facts relating to Chinese school life that many adults over had clearly impressed upon themselves while being put through the educational process.

As to the reasons for these eccentricities, however, both books and teachers usually maintained a discreet silence, and the vague opinion was formed in explanation that since the Chinese lived on the other side of the world they did everything opposite out of sheer perversity. That was all there was to it.

As a matter of fact, according to a highly intelligent Chinese, these seemingly wrong-headed methods result from purely practical considerations. For centuries the principal subject of study in the Chinese schools has been the national classics, especially poetry, of which every Chinese scholar worthy of the name commits an astounding quantity to memory. As Chinese poetry is written to be sung or chanted, obviously the student can learn it correctly only by repeating it aloud. In that way the young celestial trains both eye and ear at the same time and greatly facilitates the work of memorizing.

Some Chinese schoolmasters, who usually take their pupils into their families and give instruction in their own houses, where, of course, the teachers are often occupied with extraneous matters, shrewdly remark also that by obliging a boy to study aloud you can be sure that he is giving at least a modicum of attention to his work and that he is not merely wool gathering.

The practice of compelling the student to turn his back to the teacher while he recites likewise developed naturally with the Chinese system of instruction. A youth being called upon to repeat what he has learned by heart is brought before the desk, behind which the master is seated. On the desk the teacher has open volumes written in large characters, by which the pupil might be able to refresh his recollection if he could see them. Consequently he is made to face the other way.

VACCINE to PREVENT MADNESS in DOGS

THE discovery of a vaccine to prevent rabies in dogs has just been announced by Dr. S. Umeno, a noted Japanese veterinary surgeon of Tokio, who has just written an article reporting the success of his work, after trying it on many thousands of animals.

According to his own figures, Dr. Umeno has vaccinated 31,307 dogs. Of this enormous total, he says, he has had just two failures, one dog having died as a result of the vaccination, while in another case the vaccination was not considered as having been effective enough. Among non-vaccinated dogs kept under similar conditions there were numerous cases of rabies, he reports.

Dr. Umeno's report, published in a leading Tokio medical journal, declares that there is a real necessity for preventive measures if dogs are to continue to be a favorite household pet, fondled by children and older persons alike. There is always danger, he says, and for that reason he went out to find a remedy which would eliminate the possibility of rabies. He believes that he has found it in his new vaccine and that hereafter rabies can be eliminated if laws are passed requiring that dogs be vaccinated, just as there are laws all over the world compelling humans to be vaccinated against smallpox.

Dr. Umeno prepared his vaccine by innoculating the brain of a rabbit with the fixed virus of rabies. One part of the material thus obtained was mixed with five or six parts of phenolized glycerine water. Then, in order to diminish its virulence, the mixture was stored for a certain period, either at ordinary room temperature or in an ice chamber.

The quantity of vaccine used is regulated according to the size and breed of the dog, the usual dose being six cubic centimeters of the vaccine to about 15 pounds of dog. This quantity of the vaccine is injected into two different parts of the dog's anatomy. These figures were obtained after scores of experiments and careful notation of the symptoms following the vaccination.

Vaccination treatment, says the veterinary, not only will be a general preventive, but will save the life of many a valuable pet when there is real danger of rabies in the neighborhood. It was to a large extent his great love for the dog that caused him to seek a remedy for its worst enemy among diseases.

How OIL Is Now USED to SETTLE Shifting SAND

OIL is often used to pour on "troubled waters," but now it is also employed to settle shifting sands. Between Pendleton in eastern Oregon and the mouth of the Columbia river the building and maintaining of the Columbia highway has met aggravating conditions caused by the careless conduct of the wind that blows upstream almost constantly through the summer months. The high waters of the Columbia river in the spring carry down huge deposits of sand and silt. When the waters have gone down, the sand remains, dries out, and the wind, carrying it away, forms dunes similar to those found along the ocean beach or on the shores of Lake Michigan.

These constantly shifting sand dunes had to be tamed in some manner, so, after unsuccessful efforts to regulate things and to keep the dunes from encroaching upon the newly constructed stretches of highway, it was decided to use oil. The oil was applied to the slopes as well as to the shifting sands as far as possible on either side of the road.

The equipment for oiling the sands, as described in the Scientific American, consists of two supply tanks or drums and a tractor which draws the oiling rig and supplies steam to the compressor tanks carried on a trailer. The oil is heated by the steam and is forced through a hose with a nozzle made of a short piece of half-inch pipe. The oil is atomized by the steam and is sent in a fine spray for 100 feet or more. The distance the spray carries depends a great deal upon whether it is directed with or against prevailing winds. Where possible the spraying is carried on with the wind.

PREPARING FOR WORLD'S SERIES

BAN JOHNSON WANTS A FIFTY CENT BLEACHER SEAT—NEWS OF THE SPORT WORLD.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Ben Johnson, president of the American League, last night declared himself in favor of a return to normal in World's Series prices of admission, and said he was in favor of restoring the 50-cent bleacher seat.

Mr. Johnson, John Heydler, president of the National League, and Federal Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, Baseball Commissioner, will meet here to-day to arrange preliminary details for the 1921 championship series.

Should the reduced prices for World's Series admissions be proposed, Mr. Johnson said he would vote in favor of a 50-cent-$5 minimum and maximum for the forthcoming series.

Prior to the 1918 series bleacher seats were 50 cents. In that year bleacher admissions were doubled, and the top price was set at $5. Last year top prices were $6.60.

At to-day's meeting a tentative schedule for the series will be drawn, Pittsburg in the National League, Cleveland in the American, and both the New York clubs being considered. The matter of selecting umpires for the series will be gone into, two to be selected from each league, and their salaries for the fall classic will be fixed.

GOLF SURIVIVORS.

OTTAWA, Sept. 22. — (Canadian Press).—Playing under unfavorable weather conditions, in the face of a bitter wind which swept across the greens and with overcast skies forever threatening to deluge the course with rain, Miss Alexa Stirling, of Atlanta, Ga., Canadian ladies' champion, and Mrs. W. A. Gavin, of the Bellclair Club, of New York, the only United States contestants for the ladies' golf championship of Canada, were again successful in the "survival of the fittest" round played yesterday. Miss Stirling defeated Mrs. H. K. Rowe, three up and two to go, and Mrs. Gavin won from Miss Joyce Hudson, Toronto, three up and two to go.

Miss Cecil Leitch, British champion, also successfully negotiated yesterday's round, eliminating Miss Doris Chambers, also of England, six up and five to go. Miss Edith Leitch, sister of the champion, defeated Mrs. J. E. Ridout, six and four. One of the United States participants will be eliminated by the play to-day. Miss Stirling is drawn with Mrs. Gavin, in what promises to be the most stubbornly contested match of the tournament. Miss Cecil Leitch will play Miss Sidney Pepler, of Toronto.

DEFEATED OUIMET.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 22.—(Canadian Press).—In one of the most thrilling golf matches played in a national amateur championship tournament, Harold Johnston, Minnesota champion, defeated Francis Ouimet, of Boston, formerly national open and amateur champion, by taking the 36th hole, 4 to 5, and winning 1 up. The outcome of the match was in doubt until the last two putts hung on the lips of the cup. These hanging putts were emblematic of the evenness of the contest, and signified why neither player failed to gain an advance for both wasted putts at critical stages.

WITH THE CRICKETERS.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 22. — (Canadian Press).— The second day's play in the Philadelphia vs. Eastern Canada cricket match was called off yesterday when there was no let-up in the rain which prevented the resumption of the match yesterday morning. The contest was declared a draw, as the visitors were unable to remain over to-day. Honors were about even at the end of Tuesday's innings and a half of play. The local team scored 198 runs to the visitors' 104 for five wickets.

CHANGE OF WATER WAS THE CAUSE OF DIARRHOEA

People moving from place to place are very much subject to diarrhoea on account of the change of water, climate, diet, etc. Prompt treament with in such cases relieves the pain, checks the diarrhoea, and thus does away with the suffering, the weakness and oftentimes collapse associated with an attack of this kind. It does this by checking the too frequent and irritating stools, settling the stomach and bracing up the weakened system, thsu rendering it without a peer for the treatment of all bowel complaints of both old and young.

Mrs. Ernest S. Beaton, Grayburn, Sask., writes:—"Coming out here from the East, my two little girls took very sick, the change of water, etc., giving them diarrhoea. They were so pale, and used to vomit everything they would take, so I finally got a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and I must say it certainly helped them. I have also used it when my children were teething and it is all you claim for it."

HOSTILITIES AGAIN IN THE NEAR EAST

Jugo-Slavia and Albania Disturb the Peace.

GENEVA, Sept. 21.— (Canadian Press.)—Announcement that hostilities between Jugo-Slavia and Albania have broken out, has startled the Assembly of the League of Nations in session here, and there is a disposition on the part of the more prominent to bring the situation before the Assembly immediately, as it brings up once more troubled international relations that have made the Balkans the trouble centre of Europe. The action of the Council of the League in referring to the Assembly the Lithuania-Poland dispute over the status of Vilna was unexpected.

TALKING PARROT TIMES SPOONING.

Sends Couples Home at Reasonable Hour.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—"Yokel," a parrot, whose former owner conducted a saloon in the Maxwell District, and was turned adrift when the saloon went out of business, has found a new job.

Peter Schaeffer, policeman, found the bird asleep in a tree near Wilmette. The policeman decided to take the bird to the police station. On the way to the station the policeman was treated to sundry original observations, such as:

"It's 1 o'clock, boys. Close the s'loon."

"It's morning now. Gotta get up."

"Such shocking conduct."

After a consultation at the police station it was decided to turn the bird's talent to good use, So "Yokel" was given a job as park censor at Wilmette.

"He makes the best kind of a sparrow policeman," said Policeman Schaeffer.

"He gets out on a limb in the park and starts shouting:

"'Ten o'clock, stop your spooning now and go on home,' and most of the couples go without stopping to see who's doing the talking."

A VERDICT FAVOUR CAMPBELLFORD MAN

CIVIL ACTION HEARD IN BELLEVILLE—MR. G. N. GORDON CONGRATULATED.

Special to the Examiner.

BELLEVILLE, September 21. — The Fall Assizes before the Honorable Mr. Justice Hodgins, closed last night with a verdict for the defendant in the case of Eva White against John Maynard of Campbellford. Miss Eva White, who was employed in Peterborough, but formerly lived in Campbellford, brought an action against John Maynard, an elderly and well to do jeweller and business man of Campbellford, alleging he made improper proposals to her in his store on March 11th last, and took liberties with her for which she claimed $2000 damages.

The action was tried with a jury before the Honorable Mr. Justice Hodgins, at Belleville, and lasted two days and was vigorously contested by Mr. G. N. Gordon, M.P., of Peterborough, and Mr. I. A. Humphied, of Campbellford, acting for Mr. Maynard, and Messrs. Porter Butler and Payne, who were the solicitors for Miss White.

The defence brought evidence that the mother of the plaintiff had made two settlements with men within the last few years on claims of similar kind, and a number of Campbellford business men gave evidence for the defendant, Mr Maynard, that the plaintiff's reputation for morality in Campbellford was not good. Both the daughter and the mother, however swore that things had taken place which should not have happened, and maintained their statements in spite of cross-examination.

However, the jury vindicated the defendant by giving a verdict in his favor and dismissing Miss White's claim against him.

After the verdict every member of the jury came forward and congratulated Mr. Gordon om his conduct of the case.

ELECTION NEWS

the new Cabinet reconstruction, as was also the decision to bring in Mr. Manion. The Premier states that Mr. Doherty will receive some other appointment. Concerning what it shall be there is much speculation. It is not considered likely that he would accept the High Commissionership, but there are rumors that he may go to Washington as Canadian plentipotentiary, a position provided for two sessions ago, but so far never filled.

OTTAWA, Sept. 22.—(Canadian Press.)—Nominations in West York will not be interrupted by dissolution, was the announced decision today, but the by-election will not be held. Every effort is being made to fix a date for the general election. "It may be taken for granted, however," was the official intimation, "that the day will be well ahead of Christmas."

"FREE PRESS" COMMENT.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner)

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 22.—The "Free Press," the organ of the Progressives, comments on the new Minister of the Interior this morning as follows: "Since 1892 the Department of Immigration always has been in charge of a Western Minister, in the following order of succession: Daly W. Sifton Oliver, Rogers, Roche, Meighen and Calder. The reason for this question of immigration and colonization is preeminently a Western problem. In the reconstituted Ministry this portfolio goes to an Ontario Minister, Dr. Edwards, of Frontenac, a man who has not the remotest qualification for filling the position, in some respects the most important in the whole administration. If Dr. Edwards were to be really Minister of Immigration, the 'Free Press' would strain its vocabulary in trying to express adequately its opinion of his unfitness, but in this case it is easy to be philosophical about Dr. Edwards' tenure of office as Ministry of Immigration, as for the firebrand representative of Frontenac no abiding place, rather it is where he takes his one-day rest, a Sultan to the realms of death addressed."

SHAUGHNESSY FOR SOLICITOR-GENERAL

MONTREAL, Sept. 22.—(Canadian Press.)— There is a rumor to the effect that Hon. William Shaughnessy, son of Baron Shaughnessy, may become Solicitor-General, and run for election in St. Annes. Mr. Shaughnessy was captain and adjutant in the Irish Rangers and is a lawyer by profession.

CHECKING OVER SCHOOL PUPILS

School Authorities Guard Against Diphtheria Outbreak in the City.

Diphtheria has been responsible for several deaths in the city lately and in the public schools of the city precautionary measures have been adopted to offset the danger of an epidemic.

Dr. A. W. McPherson, Medical Supervisor for the Board of Education, has authorized a check of all the pupils in the public schools. By this means diphtheria "carriers" will be detected and isolated for special treatment. Absentees will be checked up and the cause of their absence determined.

The presence in the city of a number of cases of diphtheria has resulted in a number of enquiries being directed at the school authorities. Parents who are anxious about their children can have their offspring immunized with anti-toxin, which is supplied by the Provincial Board of Health Free of Charge, and is administered by the family physician. This is a safeguard against diphtheria for a limited period.

Heaviness was shown by Bethlehem Steel, American Sugar, Pullman, Food Products and Utah Copper.

Mexican Petroleum swung into line with other leaders during the first hour, rising two points, and Bethlehem more than recovered its loss. Other Oils, Steels, and Equipments hardened, especially General Asphalt, Pacific Oil, Crucible, Republic, Vanadium, General Electric and Baldwin. Food Products was the only conspicuous stock, falling to a new low record. Call money opened at five per cent. PUBLIC LIBRARY OPEN ON SUNDAY AFTERNOONS

MEMBERS OF LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN TO BE IN CHARGE

The initial meeting of the season of the Local Council of Women was held yesterday afternoon in the green room of the Young Women's Christian Association considering the inclement weather, there was a very good attendance. Mrs. A. Mowat, president of the Council, occupied the chair.

After the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting by Mrs. C. E. Jamieson, a letter from Mr. F. M. DelaFosse was discussed This was in connection with the request made by the local Council last season that the Public Library be opened on Sunday afternoons during the colder weather, to accommodate anyone desirious of using the same. It was decided to accept the offer of the Library Board for the months of October, November and December the library to be open on Sunday afternoons from two o'clock to five-thirty, with members of the local Council of Women in charge. A motion was carried that the Otonabee Chapter of the I.O.D.E. be asked to act as moniters during the month of October, All Saints' Guild and W. A. for the month of November, and the 57th Chapter I. O. D. E. for December.

After some discussion, it was decided that the question of girls, auxilaries to the local council of Women was impractical

With regard to the matter of attending meetings of the Board of Education, it was suggested that members should attend these.

Miss F. Walton reported on the progress of her committee in suppressing objectionable literature. By unanimous vote of the meeting, it was affirmed that in its opinion, the showing of Roscoe Arbuckle films should be permanently barred.

SEX WAR NOW IN ENGLAND.

Men Claim Preference in Their Right to Work.

A sex war has broken out in acute form in Great Britain, according to a London correspondent, who says that the new organization of war veterans, the British Legion formed by the fusion of all vererans' organizations, has adopted the drastic policy of "turn out the women." The legion has already a membership of two million and will further be increased by the addition of not less than one million men who were disabled in the war. Women's organizations throughout the country are protesting and declaring that they will fight for equality of treatment for the women's right to work.

The acuteness of sex conflict, more than realizing as it does the worst predictions of those who sow the seeds of such economic disturbance in purely political agitation of the suffragist movement, is brought about by the unprecedented amount of unemployment in Great Britain today by the wage war, which employers declare is necessary before a profitable resumption of foreign trade in which more than two million workers are directly involved can occur.

One demand for the newly formed legion is for the immediate removal of woman labor from all government departments, the women to be replaced by men at all costs, by ex-service men as far as possible. The legion will bring its influence to bear upon other employers for similar treatment. An amendment to the constitution seeking to include ex-service women as full members of the legion was only supported by thirteen branches and was thus lost by a huge majority. Other amendments seeking to protect the widows, sisters and daughters of fallen comrades from this drastic policy, were also lost.

Another drastic claim of the legion is that all disabled men should be removed entirely from the labor market and should be supported by the state as a debt due by the people of the country to whom they owe their existence as members of a free nation.

The Right To Work.

Further, the legion's assertion of the "right to work" is more imperative than any that has been put forward by the Labor party or the industrial organizations. Ex-service men who are unable to find employment, the legion demands must be maintained at full trade-union rates. The present government unemployment "dole" is at about one-third of the lowest rates.

For this purpose the legion advocates the setting up of national workshops, supported by the state, in which disabled men shall have the opportunity to receive training, and to work when trained, at a wage of $20 a week, with allowances for children and a bonus on results.

The Officers' Association has joined the legion together with the Comrades of the Great War and the two great national organizations of Discharged and Demobolized Soldiers and Sailors. The fusion is indirectly the result of the advice of Lord Haig, the British commander-in-chief, who told them last year that they would never win recognition of their claims on the community until they united in a single body. Lord Haig was elected president and the Prince of Wales patron but neither have so far made any comment on the advanced policy adopted by the new organization

The legion has declared its independence of all existing political parties; but this does not mean that it will refrain from politics. Besides bringing pressure to bear both on the government and the Labor Party in pursuance of its aims, it is going to put up its own candidates for election to parliament and to all public bodies, though its funds may not be used for electioneering purposes.

An immediate demand of the legion, pending the application of its ultimate programme for employment is a 50 per cent. increase on all disability pensions. It refuses to be used as a recruiting agency and will be neutral in all labor disputes. On international questions it supports the League of Nations and has decided to affiliate with the Inter-allied Federation of Ex-Service Men.

Suits of Distinction

To the woman whose taste in dress is instinctively toward the most correct in matters of style and quality, here are fashions which will not only mark the wearer as distinctively modish in her attire but will give that touch of true vogue to one's wear which comes only by purchasing the best that can be had, both in just-rightness to the mode of garment and the just-rightness of the quality and price.

Satin Finished Broadcloth Suit, size 20, priced at $42.50

The material in this Suit is of beautiful texture, a soft satin-finished broadcloth in an excellent shade of navy blue. The coat is finger-tip length—one of the outstanding features of this season's modes—while down the back of coat from collar to waist are several rows of silk stitching. There are double pockets on this model. The outer pocket is stitched same as back of coat, while the inner pocket is about half the size and is handy for small change or car fare. The collar closes high about the neck. Beautiful grey colored satin lining adds greatly to the value of this Suit.

Extra Fine Quality Navy Velour Suit, $52.50

A more tailored Suit, suitable for a matron or the figure that demands a tailored garment. The workmanship in every detail on this garment is of the best that can be had, and the only trimming consists of rows of buttons on sides of coat. The skirt is gathered at back and has slash pockets and belted at top. The plainness of this Suit gives it a better and more distinctive touch.

Exclusive Suit of Rich Brown Velour, fur trimmed, $85

The work on this Suit is astonishing. On the skirt of this rich brown velour suit coat is a wonderful massive design which covers the entire coat up as far as the waist, worked in silk braid. Around the neck is a collar of French beaverine, giving the fall touch and also adding great warmth to this model. The lining of rich plain colored satin is in natural shade. The Suit is absolutely an exclusive model and you will like it for the exceptionalness of its style.

URIC ACID IN MEAT BRINGS RHEUMATISM

Says a Little Salts in water may save you from dread attack.

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly; keep the feet dry; avoid exposure; eat less meat, but drink plenty of good water.

Rheumatism is a direct result of eating too much meat and other rich foods that produce uric acid which is absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate the uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

GIRL BETRAYED BANDIT GANG.

Her Loyalty Outweighed By Hunger.

DETROIT, Sept. 21.—The police rounded up a bandit gang charged with six daring jobs in the Springwells district, and obtained, it is said, a complete confession, leading to the recovery of the loot, consisting of candy, gum, pencils, padlocks, flashlights and miscellaneous artidles. The gang consisted of two boys, 13 and 14 years old, and the sister of the latter, aged 12.

The activities of the gang began Saturday, when they broke into a fruit store at 6197 Livernois avenue, getting candy, pop, fruits and rations for their campaign. Camp was pitched in a vacant field, and in the morning the gang breakfasted comfortably on the loot.

Break Into School.

Just at daybreak Sunday they smashed a plate glass window and raided a hardware store on Warren avenue west, helping themselves to flashlights and other articles of value. Next they visited the offices of the Liberty Lumber Co., getting hammers and a hatchet. In the office of the Harrich Stamping Co., at Miller Road and Thayer avenue, they tried to break the safe open by pounding, but succeeded only in damaging it such an extent that it cannot be opened now without force.

Unable to crack the safe, the gang rifled the lockers of employes of the company, and the bandit queen got a gay dress out of one of them, with which she immediately invested herself. Later Sunday they entered the MacDonald school on Warren avenue west, and got pencils, books and rulers. Sunday afternoon they broke into the office of the Chapman-Spier Lumber Co., on Miller road.

By this time the bandits were growing hungry, and the bandit queen demurred imperiously against any further jobs until after dinner. Having no money, they tried to exchange some of their loot for food, but the restaurant keeper's suspicions were aroused. The police stepped in.

Won Over by Food.

It was the girl, at the end, who betrayed the gang. She had asked her comanions for food in vain. But Sergt. Thiesen and Patrolman Lanahan, of the Springwells police, escorted her to a table laden with steaming food, and she made her confession with mouth full.

"You're a peach!" said her brother when informed of the betrayal.

But the queen turned her back and shrugged her shoulders, and reached for another piece of bread; and the boys, with aching hearts and aching stomachs, finally agreed that her story was correct.

The gang was taken to the Juvenile Detention Home.

GIRLS TAKE TO MISSION WORK.

1,200 Girls and Women Seek Appointment.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22. — (Associated Press).—More than 1,200 girls and women recently have applied for appointments as foreign missionaries, according to Miss Mabelle Rae McVeigh, candidate secretary of the Women's American Baptist Foreign Mission Society. Ages of applicants, Miss McVeigh said, range from 14 to 45.

"Probably one reason for the astonishing increase in the number of applicants," Miss McVeigh said, "is the fact that the war has made the world seem smaller, so that foreign lands no longer seem as distant as they formerly did."

AMERICAN LEGION IN FRANCE AT THE DEDICATION OF THE MONUMENT AT FLIREY WHICH HONORS THE WORK OF THE AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES.

National Commander John Emery, of the American Legion, Marshal Foch, Ambassador Herrick and the French Minister of War Barthou were present. The monument, which is a blunt obelisk shaped shaft, bearing bas reliefs of two "Doughboys" with appropriate inscriptions, stands beside the road, facing the village, between the village and the old fighting front. From the monument the trenches and entanglements of the former battle line are still visible. Flirey itself, where every house was destroyed in the war, is now half rebuilt.

WANT $25 A WEEK FOR THE UNEMPLOYED.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Work or Federal unemployment allowance will be the demand of a mass meeting of the Amalgamated Metal Workers of America in Washington Square Park on Sunday.

The plan asks for a minimum of $25 per week for unemployed, to be raised by a tax on all incomes in excess of $5,000 that is derived from non-productive sources.

An Epic or Dramatic Poem.

In designing a house and gardens, it is happy when there is an opportunity of maintaining a subordination of parts; the house so luckily placed as to exhibit a view of the whole design. I have sometimes thought that there was room for it to resemble an epic of dramatic poem.—Shenstone.

FORTH WENT THE DAUNTLESS THREE TO MOW THE GRASS AT EIGHTY-THREE

YOUTHFUL ANTICS OF AGED PIONEER VETERANS IN FAR AWAY SASKATCHEWAN.

OXBOW, SASK.—(By Mail).—A very interesting sight could have been observed on the north side of the town on the morning of August 11th. On the south side of the Glen Ewen road, and still inside the town limits, is a slough, which, like most of the sloughs this year, has a heavy crop of grass. The remarkable feature of this slough on August 11th is, that one could have seen two staunch and hale, but elderly men, busy taking off the crop. The man who swung the scythe so boldly, was celebrating his eightieth birthday, in the form of youthful athletics, while his assistant, a boy of seventy-four years manfully followed up, with the finishing touches of hay-making in the good old way. Enquiry reveals the fact that the slough is owned by a third youth, who is only eighty-three years of age. The owner reaped the crop last year himself. But, this year he decided to let the other boys "in on the lark," and they are cutting it on shares. Needless to say, the youthful antics, in the hay field, of these three athletes was delightful to behold. Anyone seeking the "secret of youth" will find it in the habits, spirit and attitude of men like these, who have played life's game well and are now not scrapping with the "Umpire."

Life is a great game in any age, or in any land. But, to have lived in Canada from 1837 to 1921 is surely a gift of the Gods. To have now, unimpaired faculties, confronting the future with hope and expectation, is a triumph over time and decay. Consider the period from any angle, and the impulse to change, and development has no parallel. In "37" the long struggle over "The Family Compact" had culminated in revolt. The early years of these men were fired by its passions, and moulded by its aims. The agitation over political and social unrest that followed "The Act of Union," and led up to "Confederation" formed the environment of their early manhood. These men carry in their memory the story of Canada's first railroad, and can tell of the arrival of the first construction train, in their district in Old Ontario. They can recall how telegraph, submarine cable, steamships and railroads became commercial enterprises, and, at the same time, crown their life with personal reminiscences of their first experience of electric cars and electric light, of aeroplane, wireless telegraphy, X-ray, submarine and air-ships. Intimate association, in what, to us, is the far off past, with John Sanfield McDonald, T. D'Arcy McGee and Sir John A. McDonald, in his early magnetic prime, was the privilege of some of these men. The story of The Crimean, The American War, and the Franco-Prussian war, are even more vivid than the events of 1914. Following Confederation, came the purchase of the Hudson Bay territory, and the impulse to expansion and the surge westward from the older provinces in the eighties and nineties of last century. And, now, with these vital and historic memories, and the experience of two provinces to ponder, they are filling out the evening of life's day in a "green old age" in Oxbow.

One of these men is William Galloway, eighty years of age. He was born of English-Scotch parentage, in South Monaghan Township, Peterboro County, Ontario, in 1841. He is not one of the original "Cavan Blazers," but, he has sat on the top rail of a snake fence and watched the "originals" go by. Of his school days, he remembered best the part of the year he was obliged to be out of school. Life in a new country was strenuous for boys, and their educational opportunities were limited. In 1874 he married and lived in Bethany until 1882, when he came west and settled at Boscurvis. Since 1918 he has lived in Oxbow.

Galloway's partner and first assistant is Robert Ross. He was born in the Township of Ketley, near Smith's Falls, Frontenac County, Ontario, March 28, 1840. His early life was typical of boy life in a new land—plenty of hard work and few privileges—educational, or otherwise. In 1872 he married, living on the old homestead until 1890, when he migrated to Manitoba. A bad hailstorm swept away his first crop, that promised great things, and left him at the end of the season, a poorer, but a wiser man. Stern necessity compelled him once more to trek westward. He found a home seven miles south of town in 1892, where he carried on successfully his farming operations until 1918. The story of privation, difficulty, and disaster, surmounted by the grit and courage of men like Mr. Ross, is Western Canada's best inheritance.

The third subject of this sketch is Richard Southam, owner of the slough referred to. He was born of English parentage, in Ops Township, Victoria County, Ontario, Jan. 16, 1838. If there is anything in environment, he should be a deeply religious man, for his childhood and early life was spent under the shadow of Mt. Horeb,—a land, beautiful with hill and dale, and picturesque with forest, lake and river. The conditions that belong to pioneering in a heavily timbered new country were all his—the forests had to be hewn down, the logs had to be piled and burned, the stumps pulled and the stones gathered. Egerton Ryerson had not gotten in his fine work for education in Ontario in time for him. The most vivid recollection he has of his school days is how sore his hands were, when a certain lady-teacher had given full vent to her devotion of "learning." He married in 1862 and lived prosperously in the place of his birth until 1890, when he came west and settled a short distance from Oxbow. The usual experiences of a western pioneer have all come his way, and, have been faced with western fortitude. Such careers should be cherished in the memory of this land as the foundation of our community life

FIGHTS FEATURED DANCE IN GALWAY

THREE OF THEM BARED IN COUNTY POLICE COURT, OF WHICH THE CASE ON TRIAL SEEMED THE MILDEST.

The hearing of a charge of assault alleged by Angus Goselin, of Peterborough, to have been committed on him by Moss Young and William Young, of Summerville township, near Kinmount, proceeded in the county police court before Magistrate Langley this morning. The encounter took place during a dance on September 2 at Mount Irwin, six miles from Kinmount. Mr. V. J. McElderry appeared for the accused, and Mr. G. W. Hatton for the prosecution.

Goselin testified that after one of the dances he and his fiancee and her cousin started to leave the hall. As they neared the door, four men, William Young, Moss Young, Edward Hickey and David Henderson rushed him through the porch.

"William Young grabbed me and threw me down," Goselin staed. "Some one kicked me while I was on the floor, and I was also punched. I didn't get a poke till I was on the ground."

Mr. Hatton—Was there any cause on your part?

Plaintiff—No, sir. I had talked with William Young before the assault took place. He said another party had told him I had said I was going to beat him up.

Did he bring the man to you? No I told him to get the men and we would fix it up.

Were you going to fight him?

No. I wanted to fix it up peaceably.

How long before the assault did Young tell you that?

About half an hour.

Goselin said he now bore no signs of injury from a blow. He hadn't found it necessary to call in a doctor. A blow on the head, he said, had affected some glands and stiffened his neck. He had not hit anyone in the scuffle.

The evidence of the two girls corroborated Goselin's sstory in the details of the four men having crowded him through the porch. They had seen nothing beyond that.

Constable Stratton.

Provincial Constable Stratton said that when he went up to Kinmount Hickey had been absent several days. Bringing the Youngs to Peterborough they had volunteered a statement to the effect that they wanted to fix things right. Wm. Young said he did strike Goselin and was going to plead guilty. They blamed Edward Hickey for disappearing at that time.

Mr. McElderry objected that the men had not been warned that their statements would be used against them.

In an effort to adduce further evidence, Mr. Hatton called Joseph Byrne, a young farmer of Sommerville township, about four miles from Mount Irwin. He said he had not seen the assault on Goselin. It was all over when he went outside.

James Byrne, brother of preceding witness, was home from Detroit on his vacation.

"And you ran into some excitement," suggested Mr. Hatton.

"I'll say I did," replied Mr. Byrne in the most approved American locution.

"When I went out," he began, "Hickey had my brother's wrist in his mouth chewing it. He still has the marks of the bites."

Mr. McElderry pointed out that this was irrevelant to the Goselin case, and Mr. Hatton recalled Joseph Byrne to clear up the episode mentioned by James Byrne.

Joseph Byrne, recalled, said: "When I went out of the hall I saw a group of people. I pushed my way through. I saw that Edward Hickey had a fellow down and was choking him. I helped pull Hickey off.

Mr. Hatton—Why didn't you tell us that before?

Witness—I wasn't asked.

Who was on the ground?—Bob Burns, my cousin.

Mr. Hatton—You had lots of fun that night.

The court did not attempt further to unravel the stories of these fistic episodes or to discover whether there had been any other Donnybrook features to the dance.

Defendants' Statement.

Moss Young said he lived on his father's farm in Sommerville township. "I was in the porch talking to Walter Fern. Edward Hickey was standing outside back of me. I saw this Goselin and my brother coming through the door. They were in a clinch. David Henderson and Frank Peters were behind them. William Young rolled Goselin over and then got up. Goselin went back into the porch."

William Young swore as follows: "I danced one set and was coming through the door. I met the two girls and a strange fellow (Goselin) behind them. When I was nearly past him he struck me. I clinched him and we fell sideways through the door. In the clinch I struck him with my head. He tried to roll me under but I rolled him. I then let him up. He went inside and I stayed outside. I am guilty to a certain extent. I didn't know Goselin. I hadn't spoken a word to him that night. The only previous time I had seen him was in Kinmount last spring.

Mr. Hatton— Had you told him you heard he had threatened to beat you up?—No.

Young said he had formerly kept company occasionally with Goselin's fiancee.

Mr. Hatton—You weren't jealous of this stranger taking this nice little girl from you?—No.

Mr. Hatton—It would have been perfectly natural if you had. Is what Constable Stratton says true?—Yes.

Why did you say Hickey was trying to put it over you?—I thought when he ran away he was.

How was that?—He was supposed to be arrested with the rest of us.

Wouldn't he have been safe to stay?— I don't know whether he would or not?

According to your evidence he had nothing to do with it?—Neither he had.

Defendants both declared that Hickey had no hand in the fracas. The court adjourned for lunch at this stage.

MORALITY CLAUSE IN CONTRACTS

PLEDGING ACTORS AND ACTRESSES TO BEHAVE THEMSELVES IN PRIVATE LIFE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—(Canadian Press).—A "morality clause," pledging actors and actresses to "conduct themselves with due regard to public conventions," on pain of forfeiting their positions with five days' notice, will be inserted in all contracts drawn up in the future between such actors and actresses and a large local film distributing corporation, the company's attorneys announced here.

This action was taken, a statement by the attorneys said, as a direct result of the Arbuckle case in San Francisco, although it was emphasized that the company in question has no direct interest in that case, or any similar one. The attorneys pointed out that as contracts have been drawn, a company was liable not only to continue the pay of an actor or actress "who forfeits the respect of the public," but has to bear the obliquy of still having them in its employ.

"Pictures on the market, or released and unreleasable, are sufficient penalty to pay for an infraction of the moral law of an employee in whose name millions may be tied up, and over whose moral conduct the company has no control whatever," they added.

UNUSUALLY LIGHT CROPS, THIS DISTRICT

THOUSAND ACRES THRESHED IN A WEEK, NEARLY TWO FARMS A DAY.

According to a local man who is in touch with farmers it is not taking the threshing gangs long this fall to thresh out most of the crops. One gang told him they threshed 1,000 acres in a week nearly two. There will be no need for late threshing they affirm. Reports from all parts of this district indicate unusually small grain crops, but they are more fortunate

The millet and corn is better than usual and cattle will not likehere in having feed for stock than ly have to be sold for lack of feed as is certain to the experience in districts where the feed crop is poor.

Cutting corn and filling silos is in full swing in th countrv and most of the silos will be crammed full.

KEEP ON BOILING WATER YOU DRINK

IS ADVICE OF SUPERINTENDENT DOBBIN OF WATER WORKS

While the temperature of the water in the river is lower, no improvement in its condition is noticeable and under no circumstances would citizens be justified in ceasing to boil their water R. L. Dobbin waterworks superintendent stated today. With the water getting cooler an improvement has taken place in other years but this fall season is exceptional in that large gangs of men are working in the water at the filtration plant, and at the dams at Nassau and Lakefield.

Pollution Serious

Mr. Dobbin said today he did not expect any improvement for several months. So serious did the pollution become several weeks ago that another pound of chlorine was added to the dosage and the water is now getting 13 pounds of chlorine per million gallons, the greatest chemical treatment it has suffered yet.

Generally speaking the water is in a similiar condition to last year when it was October before the M. O. H. felt safe in advising citizens to drink water straight from the taps and it will be October this year or possibly November, before the danger of an unsafe water supply is past. So far this month the water has been warmer than last year, although there have been many citizens talking about a cold September.

A year ago today the temperature of the water at the intake was 60 today it is six degrees higher.

ONLY 700,000 IN ALL PALESTINE.

A Population Much Less Than in Galilee During Life of Christ.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—(Associated Press).—There are now barely 700,000 people in all Palestone, a population much less than that of Galilee alone in the time of Christ, says Sir Herbert Samuel, the British High Commissioner there, in a report just made public.

Ten thousand immigrants arrived in Palestine in the seven months between September, 1920, and May, 1921, he reports.

Sir Samuel attributes the scarcity of the population to lack of development.

The financial condition of Eastern and Central Europe, and internal difficulties within the Zionist organization of the United States, says the report, have prevented the Zionist movement from providing, as yet, any large sums for enterprises of development or colonization. As a consequence, while there had been much pressure to admit Jewish immigrants, there had been little expansion in the opportunities for employment, he declared.

The water supply for Jerusalem having been found to be insufficient, the Government is bringing into use some ancient reservoirs of vast capacity, named the pools of Solomon, but of unknown date, possible Herodian, situated eight miles away.

The garrison of the country has been reduced to 5,000 combatant troops, imposing a charge of £2,500,000 on the British exchequer, or at the rate of £500 for every fighting man.

TRAIN FOR LIFE IN APARTMENTS.

Girl Pupils Being Educated in Economy.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—(Associated Press).—On the assumption that most girl pupils some day will marry and make their homes in small city apartments, public schools here are being equipped to teach them how to keep house economically and efficiently under those conditions.

Part of the equipment of the domestic science department, of each of the new standard school buildings opened this year, is a model flat, filling the space of one ordinary schoolroom, and including a kitchen, living-room, dining-room, hall, bedroom and bath.

Adjoining the model flat is a large cooking room and three small kitchens, separated by railings, the entire unit providing for the instruction of 40 pupils at once.

RAISIN BREAD.

Remember, do you, the delicious, fruity raisin bread that you used to get before the war—the kind that made you a raisin bread fan? Well, it's coming back!

Yes, sir! Smack your lips, for it's coming. Lower raisin prices have done it.

Raisins are now 30 per cent. lower in cost to the baker, which permits them to sell a generous loaf at reasonable prices and comply with the late Federal edict which requires at least 2 oz. of raisins to each 16-ounce loaf of bread.

So look for a big revival of real raisin bread. Your baker and your grocer will be selling it. You'll see it in their windows and show-cases.

The "old days" are returning in more ways than one. Good old-fashioned raisin bread with raisins in it is proof of it.

Love never counts the cost—probably because it seldom has the price.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE ALLEN.

Some people think that all you need to contribute to a "Fresh Air Fund" is fresh air, but Tom Moore, as "Honest" Tom Smith in "Beating the Game," his newest Goldwyn picture at the Allen Theatre to-day, Friday and Saturday found a way to open the purse strings of a hesitating populace. He also devised a "Trade At Home" scheme that built up a town. For his honesty and earnest efforts, he was elected Mayor.

Just one year previous, he was an expert safe cracksman and a fugitive from justice.

MOVIES' SMALLEST LEADING MAN IS JOHNNY JONES.

Who is the smallest leading man in motion pictures? Johnny Jones. He is also the youngest — twelve years old, but carries home to his fond parents a man-size pay envelope. He has been on the stage or before the movie camera for eleven and one-half years—meaning that he started acting at the age of six months. Johnny stars in the famous series of "Edgar" comedies written by Booth Tarkington and produced by Goldwyn. The latest of his efforts, "Edgar's Little Saw," will be seen at the Allen Theatre for 3 days, commencing to-day.

"Here's five thousand dollars to establish yourself in a hick town. I want every man, woman and child in that town calling you 'Honest' Tom Smith. At the expiration of one year I will come to you and show you how to make a real killing." Thes are the terms Tom Moore known as "Fancy Charlie" must fufill in his latest dramaticomedy, "Beating the Game" coming to the Allen Theatre Today under the supervson of the Goldwyn Pictures Coropation.

Caught in the act of robbing the apartment of a supposed master crook, he accepts this pact to gain his freedom. A crook story with a new twist, rife with escapades and accomplishments of "A Man Who ared."

AT THE CAPITOL.

REAL MAIN STREET IN 'THE CONQUEST OF CANAAN" SHOWN HERE

Conquered by Thomas Meighan in Picture After Many Thrilling ing Experiences.

There's a "Main Street", that runs through "Canaan", the mythical city which Booth Tarkington wrote about in "The Conquest of Canaan." In Canaan were some who were respectable and others who were not. Once you were placed in the latter class, it was next to impossible to live down the disgrace.

Here, the respectables looked up to Judge Pike as their leader. His word was law. The unrespectable accepted him because they knew that he owned their homes, their saloons and had their lives in the hollow of his hand.

At the title suggests, Main street in Canaan was conquered and by two of the unrespectables, Joe Louden and Ariel Tabor. Ariel was fortunate enough to inherit money which took her to Paris. Joe could not bring himself to conform with the Main Street conventions which aroused such prejudice within him that he was forced to leave town to carve out a better career.

The development of this interesting plot, which brings out the bigness as well as the pettiness of a middle-size town, is illustrated in the Paramount picturization of "The Conquest of Canaan", which will be shown at the Capitol theatre today Thomas Meighan, as Joe Louden stars in the picture and Doris Kenyon in the role of Ariel Tabor, plays the leading feminine part.

The balance of a big picture program and two double vaudeville acts of merit will comprise an entertainment of more than ordinary interest for the amusement seeker especially at the reduced prices of admission now in vogue at this popular resort. FANI FAN

AT THE GRAND.

TO-NIGHT

Girls of a generation ago and the clothes they wore are brilliantly contrasted with the girls of today and the clothes they dont' wear in "Short Skirts." Gladys Walton's most recent Universal photodrama. The story is to be told on the screen of the Grand Theatre beginning tonight and will show an unusually popular cast in her support.

Thousands of people are familiar with the fascinating story of "Short Skirts," for it originally appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. In magazine form it was called "Cabella Drives the Nail" and was regarded as one of the snappiest tales from the versatile pen of Alice L. Tildesley.

Kittenish grandmothers and sophisticated grand-daughters are cleverly "kidded" in the prologue to "Short Skirts". The star's work is said to be even more brilliant than in her previous features, which is an assertion that Walton fans will demand to be proved.

AT THE GRAND.

When one of our youngest stars is featured at two houses in the same town within a week, we have pretty good proof of her popularity. Youth, sweet, glorious youth! What an attraction it is—how universally appealing! Gladys Walton has more than even this big attribute, however. She can act and she gets her audience every time. The desire to appear grown up, to get away from parental restraint and live for herself—those were the forces which started the ball rolling in "Short Skirts." It really is a difficult thing to manage young women of a certain age these days, and I think that an infinite amount of discretion should be used in telling them what to do and what not to do. A friendly word of advice from her mother's fiance, the temptation to revenge herself on the man who dared to reprimand her, and who was seeking political honors, followed by all kinds of troubles and difficulties. How Natalie Smith finally extricated herself through love, of course, and sees the folly of her course, makes a satisfactory story and the attractive little star knows how to be so snappy, so full of the joy of living, that we all fall for her, forgive her indiscretions and love her. The picture is a Universal special, directed by Harry B. Harris and produced by Carl Lacumbe, and the cast, besides Miss Walton, includes Harold Miller, Ena Gregory, Jack Mower and Edward Martindel.

THE ROYAL PIERROTS.

The announcement that Miss Alma Gray, with an all English cast, will be here on Saturday afternoon and evening, is interesting. There is no better form of amusement than singing and dancing, especially when it is good. If it is out of the ordinary so much the better, and these well known people should put on a splendid performance. A glance at their itinerary on this world tour is worth while. They have played at Gibralta, Malta, Cairo, Aden, Bombay, Kandy and Calcutta, so they are surely cosmopolitan and have acquired world-wide fame. The word "Pierrot" means a comic character used originally almost exclusively on the French stage. The costume we are familiar with, for such a character, is the loose pantaloon affair with blouse caught in at the waits, tightly banded wrists, with great ruffles, large frill about the neck and a very tall cone shaped hat— the proverbial dance's cap. The whole is usually white with large black discs and the female costume for Pirrette is similar, exchanging a short skirt for the pantaloons. Sometimes a harlequin effect is given by one black and one white stocking.

"FAIR AND WARMER."

On Monday night, September 26th, the Rex Stock Company, supporting Miss Zana Vaughn, fresh from a week in Kingston, will present Avery Houwood's famous farce, "Fair and Warmer." It was the original bedroom farce—some say it is the best ever written —it is the play that made Madge Kennedy famous. The dialogue is clever, it produces gales of laughter, the situations are funny without being objectionable, and it is one of the best offerings of the Rex Company's repertoire. Mr. Snelgrove tells me he and all the company enjoy themselves while doing it, the audience enjoys the performance and everybody's happy. Critics in every city agree that "Fair and Warmer" is one of the best plays produced by the Rex Company and they have been often asked for repetitions.

LAURA.

AT THE REGENT.

The One Man Trail, with Buck Jones is a splendid picture Buck Jones is arriving very fast. Each succeeding picture is increasing his popularity. This is a good story, well acted and will please the majority where shown.

SIGNS OF OIL IN GERMAN GUINEA.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Sept. 22.—(Associated Press).—The search for oil which has been going on with meager results for years in the large island of Papua, has been extended to the portion known as German New Guinea, where it is said there are much better indications. This territory is now under Australian mandate.

Experts of the Anglo-Persian Oil Company, which has an agreement with the Commonwealth by which each will share in the benefits of any discovery, are prospecting thoroughly. Several private parties also are in the field.

Oil prospecting is being retarded, however, because the Australian Government has not decided on a land policy for mandated territories.

Baked Sardines.

Drain a can of sardines and lay in a baking dish. Mix four tablespoons of bread crumbs with the oil from the can, two tablespoons of hot water, salt, pepper, and a teaspoon of tomato catsup. Sprinkle with lemon juice and bake.

NEW YORK STARTS REHEARSING THE WORLD'S SERIES TO-MORROW

FINAL GAMES HAVE ALL THE TRIMMINGS OF THE REAL SHOW—RESERVED SEATS SOLD

(By Henry L. Farrell.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—(United Press.)—Sure of one end of the big show, New York will start rehearsing the world's series here to-morrow. Cleveland and the Yanks will start a four day battle for the American League pennant that will have all the trimmings of the real show. The Yank Club owners and the police also expect to handle a crowd of 40,000 at each game of the series. Every reserved seat in the plant has eben sold for every game. While the Yanks go into this series to battle it out for the rag, the Giants practically are "in." McGraw's men have several more games to-day, three with the Cards, two with the Phillies and one each with the Braves and the Robins. Pittsburg has eleven more games, two with the Robins, four with the Phillies and five with the Cards in St. Louis. If the Giants win five out of the last eleven straight to get a tie. If the Giants win four out of the seven, the Pirates have to win eleven in a row. If the Giants win only three the Pirates must win ten out of eleven. With the American it is different. The Yanks have a lead of one point, and the only sure way for them to cinch the pennant is to win every one of their remaining eleven games. Cleveland, with only nine more games on the schedule, is a little better off than the Yanks. The series starting to-morrow will be also decisive if one of the clubs sweeps the series. An even split, which is not improbable, will bring the settlement of the argument into the very last week of the race, according to the way they are going now. After the series with the Yanks, Cleveland has the rest of the schedule with the White Sox, while the Yanks have to take in the Browns, the Athletics and the Red Sox.

MURRAY AND ROSE TO PLAY AGAINST OSHAWA

Lorne Rose and "Micky" Murray of the Peterboro Central League team, will be members f the All-Star team which is to meet Oshawa on Saturday at Oshawa. Hap Harrison and Stan Lowe were also entered for this game but neither of them is available for Saturday. Jake Solomon is advertised to manage the All-Stars but he will also have to be an absentee as he has to look after the interests of the O.B.A.A. at the Picton-C.G.E. game. Mr. Arthur Johnston of Peterboro, who presented the Johnston Cup to the League, will attend the game and also the banquet in the evening, when the Oshawa team are to be the guests of the League, and are to receive the Championship Cup.

KAY AND SOLOMON TO HANDLE SATURDAY'S GAME

The big event in local sporting circles this week is the clash at the Riverside Park on Saturday between the Picton team and the C. G. E., in the intermediate O.B.A.A. series. Both teams are confident of victory and they will have the strongest line ups in action. The game will be called at 3 o'clock with Alex. Kay working behind the plate and Jake Solomon on the bases. The winners of this series will go into the semi-finals of the intermediate series.

FORMER LOCAL MAN SECRETARY OF THE CHAMPS

Among the despatcheh in Monday's Examiner was one to the effect that Calgary had won the pennant for this year in the Western Canada Baseball League.

It might interest local fans to know that the secretary-treasurer of the Calgary club is Walter S. Davidson, formerly of Peterborough, who was also the first secretary of the Canadian League team here.

This professional league was reorganized last year after the war, including clubs from Winnipeg, Moose Jaw, Regina, Saskatoon, Calgary and Edmonton.

Calgary also won the honors last year.

TORONTO TEAM HERE NEXT WEEK

The Bankers, the local Juvenile League winners, will not go to Toronto on Saturday as expected, to meet Young Varsity for the juvenile championship. The Toronto winners have been unable to secure grounds and instead of home and home games only one fixture will be played, Young Varsity playing the Bankers in Peterborough, a week from Saturday.

Ignorance is the inspiration of all argument.

There is always something back of a shadow.

ROAD RACING TO BE DISCUSSED

There will be a meeting in the Y.M.C.A. at 8 o'clock to-night of all young men interested in road racing for the purpose of discussing the advisability of renewing the Thanksgiving Day road race. All those interested are urged to attend.

GUMMERS MEET WAXERS

On Friday night at the Water street Alleys, a five pin game has been arranged between the Gummers and Waxers from the Nashua Paper Co. This game will be witnessed by a big crowd from the factory.

AN EXCITING MULE RACE

Mrs. J. Griswold Webb driving "Nellie G. Good," and Mrs. Roosevelt, Jr., driving "Happy B"—the two participants in the second annual classic turf event—the mule race at Rhinebeck, N. Y. Just as "Happy B" rounded the last lap for the home stretch—she was bitten by a mischievous wasp. With a sudden burst of speed she overtook her opponent and they crossed the line neck to neck.

AN OUTSTANDING FIGURE IN GOLF

REMINISCENCES ZEIHR DAILY

LONDON, Sept. 5—(Canadian Press)—One of the outstanding personalities in golf is Andrew Kirkaldy, the professional attached to the Royal and Ancient Club. "Andra," as he is affectionately known to the thousands of intimate golfing friends, has told his story in a properly illustrated volume, entitled "My Fifty Years at St. Andrews." It is a book crammed full of amusing reminiscences of a life spent on the classic links, in the company of distinguished amateurs and famous professionals.

He had many encounters with Vardon, but never once did he beat him. Those were in the gutta ball days when Vardon could putt. In later years "Andra" often reproached Vardon about his execrable putting, declaring that he could not putt a ball into his (Kirkaldy's) mother's wash-tub. Even Vardon admits that "Andra" is not very far wrong. Twenty years ago Vardon was invincible, and it was Kirkaldy who was forever warning Taylor, Braid, and Herd, the great contemporaries, to "watch the greyhound." They certainly watched him, but, as Taylor sorrowfully explained, "None of us can catch him." Kirkaldy regards Vardon as the greatest of all golfers, because he clearly demonstrates that the game is an art. "The game is a pure joy for him, for he makes every shot in such an effortless way, always with a faint smile flickering over his features." Kirkaldy aptly describes it as the "Vardonic smile."

Although he could never defeat Vardon, Kirkaldy has beaten Braid, Taylor, and Herd more than once. He regards Braid as a "prince of sportsmen," who when he lost a match would say, "I deserved to lose, and you deserved to win."

Sandy Herd has perhaps entered more into Kirkaldy's life than any of the rest of the "Great Four." As boys they began their golf with shintie-sticks in the narrow streets about the old cathedral. Kirkaldy says that Herd has no equal in playing in a gale. He brings over his right hand at the moment of striking, and hugs the ball well of the wind. Herd is a master at half-heeling the ball, and making the wind fight for him, instead of fighting against him. Kirkaldy's stories are illimitable. He tells of "Wee Bennie" (Sayers), his lifelong friend and keen rival, playing in a match at Wemyss, where from the third tee he drove his ball on to the roof of the castle. The ball struck among the ivy forty yards up. Sayers, always very nimble, ran up the castle wall like a squirrel, taking a club with him. He managed to secure a foothold among the stones and the ivy, and played the ball almost to the green. Everyone cheered the "wee devil," as Sayers is known among his friends.

Many stories have been told of the famous "Hell Bunker" at the fourteenth hole at St. Andrews. Kirkaldy tells of a match he once had with a clergyman who was extremely anxious to beat "Andra," and promised Willie Brown, his seventy-two year old caddie, an extra half-crown if he succeeded.

At the fourteenth the clergyman hit his ball into "Hell," and the caddie, seeing his ball lying tucked up against the face of the steep bunker, muttered—thinking disconsolately of the half-crown—"That's a hell of a lie, sir, Ye'll never get it out unless ye tak' a spade."

"Willie Brown" said the clergyman severely, "don't you ever read your Bible? Don't you know that sinners go to hell, where there is a lake of fire and brimstone?"

Brown's reply was as follows: "Hold your tongue, minister. We're both in Hell now, an' it's no such a bad place after all; more sand than brimstone, anyway."

Even the Bishop of London has been in "Hell"—and got well out. His Lordship was playing with Kirkaldy, and had the misfortune to put his ball into an almost unplayable place in the hazard. He despaired of getting it out, but to his astonishment he made a miraculous recovery. The Bishop was so surprised that he climbed out of the bunker, and, pleased as a boy, shouted, "That was a good shot, Andrew?" "Yes," said Kirkaldy, "you got out of Hell very well. When ye die," he added naively, "mind and take yer niblick with ye." The story is made more piquant by the fact that the crowd that was following the match was composed mostly of ministers.

CARE WITH CAR BRAKES DURING WET WEATHER.

The approach of the rainy weather is a time when the motorists who have only commenced to drive their own car this summer, should exercise special care in travelling over the asphalt pavements of the city. If they continue to apply their brakes with the same pressure as in dry weather, they will more than likely slide into the vehicle ahead of them, or else skid into the sidewalk, with possible damage and danger to themselves. This is the more likely just after a drizzling rain has commenced, or after the first fall of snow. Several collisions have occurred during the past week because of this, but fortunately no accidents have resulted to individuals.

The driver of a car should not only see that his brakes are good and sufficient, as is compelled by the motor vehicle law, but he should approach his stopping place slowly, and apply such pressure to the brake that the rear wheels are not locked. If they are a skid is sure to result, and on a down grade the car is likely to turn completely around, and may overturn. When a skid occurs turn the wheels in the direction of the skid, in order to straighten up, and in descending a hill keep the engine in second or low, so that only gentle pressure on the brake is necessary to keep the car under control. There are many devices on the market for keeping the windshield clear of rain drops, while there are many home systems that can be used,—it is essential that the vision should be clear, especially on dark, wet nights.

SERBIANS REPULSED.

GENEVA, Sept. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Further charges of Serbian aggression were made to-day in a message received by the Albanian delegate.

A detachment of Serbs, disguised as Albanians, attacked the Albanians north of Meridita, near the Jugo-Slav border, on Sept. 21, messages stated, but Albanian forces repulsed the attack.

LADIES' NIGHT AT THE GRAND

"Ladies Night" the offering at the Grand Opera House last night, has been described by a New York critic as a farce that continually skates on thin ice and occasionally breaks through. The big audience who saw the production last night will agree that this description is unusually apt. In fact the word "occasionally" could have been dropped from the sentence without marring the accuracy of the criticism. Avery Hopwood and Charlton Andrews who wrote "Ladies Night" decided that bedroom farces were becoming too common and casting about for a new locale for the display of lingerie and feminine charm, selected a Turkish bath as a novel and effective spot for their purpose. The result is a farce that depends to a considerable extent for its success on the good eyesight of its audience. A short sighted individual would be entitled to a refund.

"Ladies Night" deals with the troubles of Jimmy Walters, an impressionable young inventor who finds himself so bothered by the frank exposure of feminine beauty afforded by the modern evening gowns that he cannot go into society Two of his friends hit upon the scheme of administering homeopathic treatment by taking him to a Bohemian ball, where costumes are similar to the gown described by Kipling as "nothink much before and a little less than half of that behind." The hall is raided, the three escape into a nearby Turkish bath on ladies night, and of course on the night that the wives of the two of them and the fiancee of the other have elected for a visit to the institution. The fun is fast and furious and even Max Sennett never succeeded in making more effective use of bathing suits than the producer of 'Ladies Night" has done. The cure proves successful. Jimmy is able to look at women without losing his mental equilibrium and all ends happily. "Ladies Night" was written for fun purposes only, there could never be any one like Jimmy Walters for there is no occasion to go to Bohemian dances to get accustomed to feminine charms. The modern street dress makes every day an education along that line or more correctly along those lines.

Peterboro saw the original New York cast and production last night, the settings being the ones used in the Eltinge theatre. The company was uniformly good. Ralph Bunker as Jimmy carried off the chief honours, but Dave Jones and Stanley DeWolfe were keen contenders in the fun making stakes. Josephine Saxe scored heavily as Dulcy Walters and Ebba Andrus, Muriel Hudson and other members of the company added to the enjoyment by their intelligent interpretation of the parts. There were no dull moments.

On Saturday the Royal Pierrots headed by Alma Gray will be the attraction at the Grand.

TIRE TROUBLE IS NOW RARE.

Since the days of a quarter of a century ago when motoring was in its infancy, the tire industry has passed through many radical changes, each change lessening the cost and increasing the joys of motoring.

Imagine the motorist of today having to change his tires or repair punctures every ninety miles! And yet that is exactly what happened in those pioneer days of the pneumatic tire.

Today it is no uncommon thing for a motor-car to run more than 100 times that distance without encountering serious tire difficulty. But these improvements have all taken time—they have required the most expert manufacturing chemists and research engineers. Today the mileage is measured by thousands of miles and months' of service.

It is a far cry from the old pneumatic tires invented by Dr. Dunlop to the cord and fabric tires of today, and every change has made it possible for the motorist to save money.

True, these "old-timers" made good by increasing the joys of motoring by placing a film of air between the motorist and the road, and clumsy and inadequate as they were, they served their purpose well, and the motorist was entirely satisfied.

But where is the motorist now who would be satisfied with making a tire change every ninety miles?

The modern motor-car tire is a marvel compared with these crude affairs of long ago. In size, strength and durability the modern tire is a mechanical masterpiece, and the service they deliver under all conditions is seemingly an impossibility, when we consider that tires are only rubber and fabric or wood, yet they serve like steel.

BUDDHIST BIBLE WORK OF 108 VOLUMES

At Litang, about a hundred miles to the east of Batang, in Tibet, where there is a large lamasery, and in the lamasery of Derge, about 200 miles above Batang, in the Yangtze Valley, the printing of religious books is an industry of importance. The Kanjur, which is the Buddhist Bible, and the Tanjur, its commentary, each comprising 108 volumes, are printed in the two lamaseries from blocks on which characters are carved. The blocks occupy many large rooms and the printing of one set requires the work of many men for many days.

In Litang, until recently, there was a copy of the Tanjur which was written out by hand in gold and silver. The paper had first been lacquered with Chinese ink. The gold and silver fluids in which the characters were written were made by rubbing the precious metals on a rough stone and mixing the powder with glue water. It was destroyed a few years ago by Chinese soldiers who understood nothing of its value.

No woman should give way to grief. Let her bob her hair and wear them rolled and everything may come out all right.

Gold is tried by fire, and man often by gold.

A CHIMNEY FIRE.

The fire department responded to an alarm from Box No. 17 at 11.25 a.m. to-day to find a chimney fire at the residence of Mr. D. Andrews, 47 Lafayette Avenue. Three gallons of chemicals were sufficient to extinguish the blaze, with no resulting damage.

A curious old Jewish custom was observed recently in Edinburgh, when a number of Hebrew volumes, scrolls of the law, phylacteries and synagogue utensils, no longer in use, were publicly buried in a Jewish section of the city. The intention of the law is to prevent the books and appurtenances of the Judaic religion being treated disrespectfully, and also to secure their preservation. Three Jewish synagogues in the city have recently been amalgamated, and the sale of one of them made it necessary to decide whether many books and articles used in its worship should be stored or buried, and it was decided that they should be consigned to the earth, in accordance with custom. The ceremony was a unique one, so far as the Jews in Scotland are concerned.

THE SOVIET TO OPEN UP NEW POLICY

CAPITALISTS WILL FIND A PLACE IN THE NEW REGIME —THE NEW REGIME.

PRIVATE BANKING

By EDWIN HULLINGER.
(Copyright 1921, by United Press.

MOSCOW, Sept. 23.—The Soviet government has decided to return to private capital all industries throughout Russia save four railways and metallurgical, textile and fuel sources," M. Kamenoff, head of the Moscow Soviet and member of the Bolshevik Cabinet, declared in an exclusive interview with the United Press to-day.

The complete scope of the Soviet's new economic policy was revealed by Kamenoff, who declared Russia is on the eve of national re-organization of a most sweeping character, which will include reinstallation of a large part of the capitalistic machinery abolished in the revolutions of 1917.

Kamenoff, who was formerly Russian trade representative in London, and is now one of the real powers in the Bolsheviki government, told in simple English the story of Russia's realization that Communism could not be attained at a single bound, and of the determination of the present government to completely re-organize Russia's national and industrial life and to make way for capitalism.

The New Regime.

A small man, with a long, flowing brown beard, Kamenoff is not the fiery figure of Lenine, but he will exercise almost equal power when the new regime is in force. He was neatly dressed in a brown suit, cut in English fashion, as he received the United Press correspondent in the office of the former Governor-General of Moscow, which now is painted a brilliant red and bears a huge label of the Moscow Soviet.

"Private banking is to be restored in Russia, but on a co-operative basis,' Kamenoff said. "The National Bank of Russia will open within a few days with a charter identical with that of the Bank of France. It will resemble the National banks of the United States. Free financial intercourse with foreign nations will be permitted.

"Of the four basic industries which the government will continue to maintain, fuel and oil sources may also be turned over to private exploration with the government retaining a measure of control."

The Bolsheviki are ready, this Cabinet Minister declared, to grant concessions to American and other foreign capitalists for the exploitation of natural resources of Russia, such as coal, wood and oil. They are prepared to discuss with foreigners whose property was confiscated in 1917, the question of indemnity. The new policy of the Soviet, Kamenoff said, meant that the government was retaining the title to land and buildings and leasing property to private firms the same as an ordinary landlord.

Restrictions Removed.

"All restriction upon private commercial and industry activity will be removed forthwith," Kamenoff said.

"We realize now it has proved impossible to refashion society at one stroke. We never would have gone to such extremes if it had not been that war conditions, both civil and foreign, compelled iron measures to preserve the Soviet's existence.

"Dictatorship of the proletariat was a war measure. For the first time since 1917 we are now able to pursue a policy of gradual evolution. Infusing Socialist features as society adjusts itself to them."

Retention of public utilities has established a foundation, the Soviet leader said, whereon the government can build later. At the same time it is considered that control of national agencies is still necessary for the defence of the country.

ROSCOE ARBUCKLE ARRAIGNED TO-DAY

EVIDENCE CHARGES PRISONER WITH INHUMAN TREATMENT—PRELIMINARY HEARING.

(BY M. P. TRACY)
(United Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Sept. 23.—Evidence that Roscoe Arbuckle, movie comedian, assaulted Virginia Rappe, in an inhuman manner causing, injuries which resulted in her death will be produced at his preliminary hearing on a murder charge to-day, District Attorney Brady announced.

Al Semenacher, Miss Rappe's manager, and formerly Arbuckle's close friend is expected to make this accusation on the witness stand. He will testify Brady said, that after Arbuckle had taken the girl to his bedroom and torn off part of her clothes he attacked her with a piece of ice in such a manner as to humiliate her and cause injuries from which she died.

A VALEDICTORY TO ENGINEERS

FAREWELL BANQUET HELD LAST EVENING BY ENGINEERING INSTITUTE.

With the expressions of regret at their separation and with wishes that the future may only hold good things for them the Peterboro Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, last night at a complimentary dinner at the Empress Hotel, bade farewell to Charles E. Sisson and three associate eggineers who have been transterred to Toronto, in connection with the trasformer department of the Canadian General Electric company. Mr. Sisson A. L. Sutherland, J. E. Hess and G. L. Jones were presented respectively with badges of the E.I.C. in gold, silver and bronze, the presentation which culminated a royal send-off being made by the senior member of the branch, Mr. R. B. Rogers.

P. P. Westbye described C. E. Sisson as a man who has lived up to the ancient oath of citizenship taken by Athenian youths in these words:

"We will never bring disgrace to this, our city, by any act of dishonesty or cowardice. We will fight for the ideals and the sacred things of our city both alone and with many. We will revere and obey the city's laws and we will do our best to incite a like reverence and respect in those who are prone to annul them or set thm at naught. We will strive increasingly to quicken the public sense of public duty. Thus in all these ways, we will transmit this city not only, not less, but greater and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us.

"I think Charlie Sisson could have that oath in his youth; I think he has lived up to it continually", said Mr. Westby in proposing the toast to Mr. Sisson and his associates. Mr. Westbye referred to Mr. Sisson and his associates. Mr. Westbye referred to Mr. Sisson's public service in which he said he had discharged his duties in a way creditable to himself and to the Engineering Institute. His connection with the Y.M.C.A. and the Chamber of Commerce, Sunday School and Church work was commended by the speaker.

"It has always been my opinion that Mr. Sisson is a happy man. Wealth and position does not alone mean happiness. Happiness in my mind means giving to and serving others of his abilities. He has served the city of Peterboro well; he has served the Engineering Institute well. I also want to remember the other men who hav been working with Mr. Sisson and are leaving and last but not least, we want to remember Mrs. Sisson and the family."

Will Have a Gap

"We are all glad to be here to show our friendship and respect for these our friends. We have come here with glad hearts but with a certain amount of regret", said L. D. W. Magee. "It is only fair and just to them that we tell what a gap their going will make." Mr. Magee spoke of his kindly association with the engineers over a period of many years. "It is pleasant to know" he said "that they are not going far away, it is pleasant to know they will be associated with other engineers and it is pleasant to know they will have greater possibilities of progress."

"I am sure I voice the opinions of all who are here to-night when I say we heartily confer with all that Mr. Westbye and Mr. Magee have said of the guests of the evening" said Prsident P. L. Allison. Their departure means a real loss to the city."

C. E. Sisson greeted with the School of Science yell from lusty throats was all but drowned out when he attempted to reply."I am deeply sensible of the compliment paid myself and associates in the

A DECISION RESTS WITH COVERNMENT

OPTIMISM RUNS HIGHER IN DUBLIN THAN IN LONDON —CABINET CALLED TOGETHER.

AN IRISH DIVISION

(By Lloyd Allen.)

LONDON, Sept. 23. — (United Press.)—The fateful and possibly final decision of the British Government towards a peace conference with the Sinn Fein was impending to-day.

The British Cabinet Ministers who had been called to Gairloch to confer with Lloyd George upon the reply which will be forwarded to Eamonn De Valera's latest note insisting on sovereignty, but agreeing to a conference were considering individually drafts of the proposed note submitted to them by the Premier.

Ireland, according to latest reports, looked forward hopefully to the British decision.

Feeling of optimism ran higher in Dublin than in London, where strong opposition to conciliation as long as De Valera insisted upon Ireland sovereignty has developed.

Prof. MacNeil, speaker of the Dail Eireann, has written a letter to the London Times, published to-day, in which he quotes English and Irish statesmen, including Smuts and Lloyd George, showing that the Crown is the connecting link of the British commonwealth.

MacNeal leads up to the idea that the "connecting link between Great Britain and Ireland may be found in the union, but not in the merger of the crowns of both countries under the same sovereign."

Belfast views with alarm, not only the possibilities of a peace conference leading to an Irish division, but the remark while 'growth of Sinn Fein camps in Ulster. According to Unionist officials, Ireland's Republican army camps are being augmented by numerous recruits, and daily drilling takes place. At Seabourne camp, it was said, 300 troops of the Republican army have been concentrated, together with arms, ammunition, including machine guns and motor lorries.

BEGUN A BOYCOTT.

BELFAST, Sept. 23.—(Canadian Press.)—Shopkeepers have begun a boycott of goods from Southern Ireland in reprisal for Sinn Fein boycott. Posters in shop windows signed "by order of watch committee," state that this condition will obtain until the boycott of Ulster is removed.

PLEADED FOR A DAILY CATHOLIC NEWSPAPER

BUT EDITOR OF CATHOLIC FREEMAN BALKS AT DIFFICULTIES IN CONDUCT.

MONTREAL, Sept. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Describing the secular press of Canada as "immoral and corrupt," Rev. Geo. O'Toole of Cantly, Quebec, was called upon to justify these adjectives by Bishop Couturier of Alexandria, Ont., at the meeting here today of the Catholic Truth Society of Canada. Father O'Toole then explained that the word "immoral" was used in the theological rather than in the popular sense.

The incident arose in the course of a plea made by Father O'Toole for a Catholic daily press. In the ensuing discussion Rev. Father Casey, editor of the Catholic Freeman, Kingston, told the audience that if his difficulties with the conduct of a weekly had to be multiplied six times, he would be sorry for those who attempted the establishment of the daily paper.

THEATRES

REGENT—Feature, 'The One Man Trail", Eddie Polo in "King of the Circus" and Sunshine comedy.

CAPITOL—Thos. Meighan in the "Conquest of Canaan", a super-feature picture. Also big vaudeville program.

ALLEN— Goldwyn presents Tom Moore in "Beating the Game", a Story of love, thrills and surprises 'Son of Tarzan".

GRAND — Gladys Walton, the sweetest girl in pictures, in "Short Skirts", a 2 reel comedy. Special musical program.

GENERAL JOHN PERSHING.

PARIS, Sept. 23. — (Canadian Press.)— Newspapers are devoting much space to the coming conference at Washington. The "Lavenir" asked to-day if Pershing's visit was not for the purpose of conferring with French leaders preliminary to a conference. Pertinax, political editor of the "Echo De Paris," says France should confine herself to a firm defence of national interests. "She should let Asiatic matters severely alone."

ELECTION NEWS

To the Examiner, Mr. J. H. Burnham, ex-M.P., said to-day: "Yes, I intend to submit my name to the Conservative convention on Thursday evening next. No doubt there will be several others but in any event there will be no division and Conservatives will present a united front. I was not so certain of submitting my name until I read Mr. Mackenzie King's positive statement that the Liberal policy was against protection, that it would be what it had always been, for revenue tariff only. Now, in the face of German's extremely cheap goods, owing to the fact that she is manufacturing at about one-eighth the cost that we are it is utterly impossible for Canada to drop her protection. And how Mr. King could do as he did in Toronto in company with Mr. Fielding, launch his campaign for revenue only in the face of Great Britain's adoption of protection against Germany, and of the complete turnover in the United States, is more than I can understand. It is true that Mr. King and the Liberal party had to adopt their policy of old or turn Tory, but they are in a very awkward position. One hour after Canada takes off her protection Canadian orders would be cancelled and transferred to Germany. And to the farmer let me say that while it is true that the West can only expand exporting, and therefore is terribly anxious over its foreign market, the Ontario farmer exports very little grain; his whole market is very largely here at home, and therefore his interests are entirely different from those of the Western Provines. All these things have induced me as a patriotic Canadian to jump into the ring, if I am wanted. All the difficulties which existed at the by-election in February have been removed. The Conservative party takes its stand in Canada once more. So you see whatever comes of it I will submit my name at the request of very many kind friends on Thursday evening."

OPEN HOSTILITIES

EDMONTON, Alta., Sept. 23.—(Special to the Examiner).— There is a fairly well defined movement on foot to save Dr. Michael Clark, federal member for Red Deer and run him for one of the Edmonton constitutions, the movement has not as yet take any definite shape but scores of prominent citizens have expressed their willingness to solemnly support Dr. Clark in case he decides to turn his back on his old riding. Since his break with his former chief. The Hon. T. A. Crerar leader of the National Progressive Party, open hostilities have broken ouot between Dr. Clark and H. W. Wood the farmers' leader, it is regarded locally that fighting Red Michael is unlikely to run in Red Deer and for this reason it is believed that Edmonton would welcome him with open arms as the doctor has a host of admirers in the city. There is also a belief current in the city that despite the defection of some of the dyed-in-the-wool U. F. A. supporters in Red Deer his supporters in that constitutory would rally to him as before.

HUNGARY MUST EVACUATE LAND AWARDED AUSTRIA

PARIS, Sept. 13. — (Canadian Press.)— Hungary must in the near future completely withdraw from Burgenland, or West Hungary, awarded to Austria by Treaty of Trianon or be forcefully expelled by the Allies, she was notified by Council of Ambassadors here. Hungary has been given a brief period to entirely evacuate.

EAST CITY'S NEEDS WERE EMPHASIZED

BUS SERVICE SAID TO BE SOLUTION OF TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM.

FIRMS REPRESENTED

Councils committee of the whole last night discussed the solving of East Citys transportation problem by a bus service from George street to Roger and north to Dufferin. E. A. Barnswell, Toronto technical representative of one large English bus manufacturer and Frank and Oliver White Peterboro and C. C. D. Afleck Toronto, representing another English firm explained the merits of their respective buses, and gave prices and cost of maintainance.

A Single Decker

Mr. E. A. Barnswell recommended single-deck bus on account of the crown on the roads, the roughness of the roads and the trees and he advised one-man bus with front entrance. The bus represented by Mr. Branswell is of the petrol-electric type that is the power of the motor is converted into electricity from a generator and this electricity operates an electric motor that drives the wheels. The representative said the power was delivered to the wheels in this way to insure steadiness and to eliminate gear shifts. A single-decker 32 passenger, F.O.B. Peterboro based on a $4.10 rate of exchange would cost $11,000 or a double-decker seating 48 to 57, $13.-277. A smaller type of single-decker would cost $8,900.

Mr. Barnswell said the bus would "get" six miles to the gallon of "gas" and the total upkeep he figured would be 40 to 45 cents per mile. He advised the committee that if one of their buses was purchased a mechanic would be sent down to instruct the driver in the control of the bus.

The bus represented by the other men had a straight drive from the motor to the wheels and had a four-gear shift. Prices quoted by them were much the same as for the other —$11,000 for a 32-passenger single-deck bus, f.o.b. Toronto. Estimates of upkeep were also about 40 to 45 cents per mile.

The committee did not take any action, but a meeting will be held with Hydro-electric representatives in regard to East City transportation in the near future and the Hydro will be given the information received from the representatives of the two companies.

Could Operate Here.

Both representatives were unanimous last night that the buses could be operated successfully here. Mr. Afleck said if there was an unusually heavy snowstorm a plough could be placed in front of the bus and the way cleared before a trip.

The utility of the bus to handle rush crowds was emphasized.

DISTRICT MEETING TO BE HELD HERE

A meeting of the 57th Chapter of the I.O.D.E. took place yesterday afternoon in the green room at the Y.W.C.A. with Mrs. E. B. Clegg in the chair.

The attention of the meeting was occupied principally by arrangements for the District meeting of the I.O.D.E. which will take place here on Wednesday, October 11th, in the G.W.V.A. hall. Between 200 and 300 members are expected to be present from different parts of the district. Among the speakers will be Mrs. H. S. Burkeholder of Hamilton, president of the Provincial Chapter of the I.O.D.E. for Ontario, and counsellor on the Dominion executive. Arrangements were made for the supper to be served the visitors in the G.W.V.A. hall, and committees were appointed to look after all details.

It was decided to hold a tea under the auspices of the 57th Chapter, on Armistice Day, and considerable discussion took place also over the annual bazaar, which will be held in the Y.M.C.A. in December.

A WOMAN ELECTED.

LOVERS NEED NOT SHY AT EUGENICS

CATTLE BREEDING PRINCIPLES NOT PART OF EUGENIC POLICY

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(Canadian Press.)—Lovers need not shy off at the mention of "Eugenics". Eugenists do not decide to abolish love as guides to selections in marriage but to purify it of harmful effects. This is a message of Major Leonard Darwin, son of late Chas. Darwin, before the second International Congress of Eugenics. He deprored misconception which credits Eugenists with desire to substitute cattle breeding principles for romance.

NEW MEMBERS FOR SOCIETY

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY WILL DISTRIBUTE OPTIONS TO MEMBERS.

The president of the Horticultural Society, Dr. J. E. Middleton, informs the Examiner that through the booth conducted at the Exhibition, 33 more members were added to the Society, which, although encouraging, is still very low as compared with other centres. The new members added during the exhibition will receive one of the following options: 25 tulips, named early flowering; 25 narcissus, named, hardy; 25 jonquils, (sweet scented daffodils); 50 crocuses, or 2 named varieties of peonies.

The president believes that there are still a considerable number of citizens who would wish to take advantage of securing one of the above options, and also to assist the Society, and he advises that those so desirous should communicate with himself or the Secretary at 358 George street, or by phoning 1360.

In increasing the membership of the Society a corresponding increase in the yearly Provincial Government grant will be made, thereby ensuring further financial asssitance in the beautifying of the city.

Beautification of City.

The Society has already made considerable strides in beautifying the various unsightly corners throughout the city, and the limitations of this work are only confined to the amount of interest shown by the citizens in supporting the Society by membership.

With the closing of the summer season it is the purpose of the Society to plant the two beds at Central Park and the corner of Park and Raid streets with tulip bulbs, the effect of which will be remembered by the mass of bloom in the Central Park last spring.

Numbers 1 and 2 wards have taken over certain corners for their care under the supervision of Mr. I. Boddison and Mr. J. W. Fraser, respectively.

Mr. Fraser, captain of Ward 2, reports that with the assistance of Mr. P. P. Westbye, the triangle at the southwest corner of Inverlea Park has now been filled, and a circular bed of tulips has been planted in the centre, and the grass seed sown in the remaining portion of the area should give a good foundation for an attractive grass background in the spring.

This work deserves the commendation of all the citizens, and should be supported to such extent as to show a still greater increase in the Society membership.

INDIAN'S ASSAULT WAS NOT PRESSED

WILLIAM KNOTT OF CURVE LAKE, PAID $20 COSTS

For turning his daughter-in-law out of his house with rough handling that was only hinted at in court William Knott of the Indian Reserve at Chemong Lake was assessed $20 by Magistrate Langley in the County Police Court Thursday afternoon to cover the costs. The charge of assault against was not pressed by the Crown on Knott's promise not to again. Mr. Langley reminded him that he had always been well thought of in Lakefield and throughout the district around Curve Lake, and that he was expected to be kind and chivalrous to women. Knott was alleged to have rushed his daughter-in-law out of his house last Monday night exposing her to the chill of early fall.

It was stated that Allan Knott, son of William Knott, was absent guiding a fishing party while his wife remained with his father. Knott paid 13 in court and promised to pay the remaining $6 to Constable David of the reserve as soon as possible.

SHOT THREE TIMES AND KILLS SELF

NEW YORK TRAGEDY ATTRIBUTED TO JEALOUSLY---VICTIM IN HOSPITAL.

WOMAN IN CASE

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.— (Canadian Press.)— Miss Mildred Hanan said by the police to be a daughter of the late John A. Hanan, of the famous shoe firm, was shot three times early this morning as she was emerging from an apartment house in Brooklyn with John S. Borland, an importer. Mrs. Grace Lawes, who fired the shots, then killed herself with a bullet through the brain. Boland attributed the shooting to jealousy, admitting that he had quarrelled with Mrs. Lawes over Miss Hanan. Mrs. Lawes is a daughter of Mrs. M. E. Ditmars, San Francisco, and for four years lived with Miss Hanan in an exclusive Park avenue district.

Miss Hanan is in a critical condition in the hospital.

FROWNS ON PADDING POLICE COURT COSTS

COUNTY MAGISTRATE LANGLEY WILL DEMAND ECONOMY IN NECESSARY EXPENSES.

Reducing from $26 to $18 a taxi driver's charge for a trip to Kinmount and back, as shown in the bill of costs against William and Moss Young in connection with their trial for assautling Angus Goselin, County Magistrate Langley declared on Thursday afternoon that he would not tolerate excessive and extravagant expenses.

The bill was presented by Provincial Constable Stratton, and as the young men were fined $40, the costs of the court amounted to $70.37, Magistrate Langley closely scrutinized it, exactly as he has done in other court cases. The item of $26 for conveying Constable Stratton to Kinmount was particularly criticized and His Worship at first cut it down to $15, saying "that is more than what I think is right."

License Inspector Stewart stated that he never paid more than $10 for a motor trip to Apsley and return, and two of the witnesses from Kinmount who had driven to Peterborough by automobile presented a bill of only $10 and the cost of the gasoline used. Together they had the use of the car for the entire day for only $10 and "the gas." This bore out the Magistrate's contention that the Peterborough taxi driver's bill was exorbitant. He told Constable Stratton that four garage men in Lakefield would be glad to secure the county police business at much lower terms.

No matter how serious the crime upon which a man has been convicted," said His Worship, "he has the right of protection against extravagant costs and it is my intention and my duty to see that he gets that protection."

TROTSKY ANNOUNCES POLISH ULTIMATUM TO RUSSIAN SOVIETS

MOSCOW, Sept. 23.— (Canadian Press.) — According to Moscow newspapers which print a digest of Trotsky's speech announcing receipt of Polish ultimatum, the Soviet War Minister emphasized the fact that the situation is critical, and expressed confidence that Russian workmen are ready to defend the Soviet. "We must not shut our eyes to it, but I don't believe there is any prospect of war just now, as Roumania will not put her existence at stake at a time when she has her hands full at home. As to Poland, although the situation is more alarming, one must not forget Poland is exhausted," he said.

FACING FAMINE, THE ESKIMOS OF LABRADOR DEVOUR THEIR OWN KIN

GRUESOME STORY OF A FORGOTTEN PEOPLE BROUGHT TO QUEBEC BY CAPTAIN LIVING—TALES OF HORRIBLE CANNIBALISM.

SUPPLIES BEING SENT

QUEBEC, Sept. 23.—Even so young a country as Canada may boast of, or consider otherwise, the possession of a lost empire, according to a story which has trickled down the coast line of the St. Lawrence, all the way from the barren wastes of the Labrador, just past the little known Mutton Bay, as far east as the mouth of the Straits of Belle Isle, lies this forgotton region. It is the home of a semi-aboriginal race of Canadians and Eskimos, and the tale brought from this frozen empire by Capt. Living, the superintendent of the Dominion Government Reindeer Preserve, teems with an amazing interest.

A Forgotten People.

Capt. Living is of the type which has furnished the heroes to romance. A short, muscular, keen-eyed veteran of the Canadian West, of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, and a graduate of numberless expeditions whose missions have been to lead the march of progress and civilization in the far-flung wastes of the Dominion, he is now engaged in furthering the most interesting of all his undertakings—that of spokesman for a forgotten people.

This forgotten people number some two thousand. They neither vote (for the simple reason that they are not included in any electorate district), nor have they any official voice either in the Provincial Legislature or in the Federal Parliament to bespeak their intentions.

They Are Starving.

At the moment they are starving. The fish catch has been a failure, and without any other sort of livelihood they face famine. So terrible is this famine that tales of the most horrible cannibalism have been pouring down into the last white man's post—that the Eskimos of the Hinterland have turned to the devouring of their own kin.

Capt. Living has just voyaged down some eight hundred miles to appeal to the Taschereau Government for aid for the stricken people of his dominion.

Premier Taschereau Helps.

Fortunately, his appeal has not been in vain, and Premier Taschereau has promised flour, molasses, tea and lard in such quantities that the dread peril has been met. The story of these settlers in the country into which only the most hardy have dared penetrate, told The Star by Capt. Living, is an epic of pioneering. In this coast area, which extends some two hundred miles on the fringe of the Arctic Circle, there is but one industry, fishing, and when the fish catch fails, starvation and misery follow. This year the average catch has not netted more than $50, yet flour costs $16 a barrel. As the Eskimo is prolific, and his family may number up to twelve children, it may easily be conjured what the extent of the misery may be upon such an income. Capt. Living tells of a visit to a family where the only diet for months had been fish washed down with the unpalatable drink of a coffee brewed from burnt toast; of families who never tasted during the famine seasons of meat or the much needed lard for nearly one year at a stretch. At the moment, Capt. Living is in Ottawa endeavoring to enlist the aid of the Government to carry the supplies which he has secured from the Taschereau Government to his district.

INSTRUCTIVE ADDRESSES AT MISSIONARY MEETING

MISS NELLIE TURNER, OF CAMPBELLFORD WAS THE CHIEF SPEAKER — MILLBROOK NEWS

MILLBROOK, Sept. 23.— The Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of the Methodist Church held their opening meeting after the holiday season on Tuesday, September, 20th at 3 p.m.

Miss Nellie Turner of Campbellford, who is a very earnest and impressive speaker, gave a most interesting address. After expressing her pleasure in meeting former friends in Millbrook, and stating that it was always a joy to go anywhere on the master's business, Miss Turner went on to say that there are 150,000 reasons why every woman should be a member of the W.M.S. and 12,500 reasons why we should attend every meeting, if possible, because 150,000 women go out every year in China, in one district alone, without the gospel.

Miss Sparling, a missionary there, in writing home said. "In one month 12,500 women in our district, will have passed into the beyond without hearing of the Saviour. There will be 1250 graves each month in each miles of the ten miles of graves of these heathen women."

In view of this tragic fact Miss Turner suggested some inscriptions which might appropriately be placed on the tombstones of these heath en graves, and a contrasting one on those of Christian women.

Christian: 'Christ in you, the hope of glory."

Second mile, Heathen: "The wicked shall be turned into hell, and all the nations that forget God."

Christian: 'Him that cometh unto me, I will in no wise cast out."

Third Mile, Heathen—"The unbelievers shall have their part in the lake that burneth with fire and brim stone."

Christian: "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish"—

Fourth mile, Heathen: "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God".

Christian: 'Christ died for our sins".

Fifth Mile, Heathen: 'All we like sheep have gone astray."

Christian: "But the Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all."

Sixth Mile, Heathen: "The wages of sin is death."

Christian: "The gift of God is eternal life through Christ Jesus our Lord."

Seventh Mile, Heathen: "He that believeth not the Son shall not see life but the wrath of God abideth on him."

Christian: "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation."

Eight Mile, Heathen: "I went mourning without the sun."

Christian: "Unto you that fear His name shall the Sun of righteousness arise with healing in His wings."

Ninth mile, Heathen: "The idols of the heathen are the work of men's hands."

Christian: 'Bless the Lord, O my soul, and all that is within me bless His Holy Name."

Tenth Mile, Heathen: "Is it nothing to you, All ye that pass by?

Christian: "The stone is rolled

GALWAY YOUTHS MADE PAY $110.37

MOSS AND WILLIAM YOUNG FOUND GUILTY OF ASSAULTING ANGUS GOSELIN.

Convicted of assault upon Angus Goselin of Peterborough at the dance held in Galway Township on September 2, Moss Young and William Young, brothers, living in Sommerville Township, near Kinmount, were each fined $20 and costs by Magistrate Langley in the County Police Court on Thursday afternoon. The amount which the two young men were together required to pay was $110.37.

"Let it be known in the vicinity of that hall that if any more brauls come before me there will be a big surprise for someone," Magistrate Langley pointedly remarked to his audience, which included the witnesses in this case.

"I find that Goselin received actual bodily harm, but not to the extent to which he has sworn," His Worship continued. "I have come to the conclusion that the two Youngs and Edward Hickey took part in pushing Goselin out of the hall, that they did assault Goselin and are all equally guilty of what happened outside."

The concluding evidence yesterday brought out no new points. Walter Fern said he was taking with Moss Young outside when William Young and Goselin in a clinch came through the door. They fell on the ground and David Henderson and others were pushed down the step by the crowd in the porch behind them, trambling on the two men on the ground.

Frank Peters: "I didn't see anything until they were getting up."

David Henderson said that it was the first time the Young boys appeared in a Police Court. Witness was calling off the dances, and after assembling one set was going out to the porch to call another.

"Both men were down when I saw them," said Henderson. "The crowd behind me shoved me out over them. I didn't trip over them."

"You didn't kick Goselin?" Mr. McElderry asked.

"No, sir."

"You heard the evidence of Goselin that you helped to shove him out?"

"That is a wrong statement. I was inside."

Mr. Hatton: "You deny positively the statement of Goselin and the two girls that you and Ed. Hickey and the two Youngs pushed Goselin outside?"

Henderson: "I certainly do."

"You weren't in the porch when Goselin went out?"

"No; I was in the hall."

"Had you heard there was a scuffle

TELEGRAPH AND CABLE NEWS

DUBLIN, Sept. 23.— (Canadian Press.)— Captain Henry Harrison, Secretary of the Irish Dominion League, declared he considered a demand from Prime Minister Lloyd George for a declaration of allegiance from the Sinn Fein leaders preliminary to a conference would obviously cause a conclusive rupture of the negotiations for a solution of the Irish problem. Such a demand, he said, would be a sin against the Irishman working for peace and the great mass of the British public.

The way out, Captain Harrison declared, was Dominion status for Ireland, which he hoped would speedily be discussed at an unconditional conference, when Mr. Lloyd George's offer could be elucidated and his conditions examined in detail.

INGERSOLL, Ont., Sept. 23. — (Canadian Press.)—The creditors of the defunct Ingersoll Ice Cream Cone Company met at the plant yesterday when a statement of the company's affairs was read by Assignee Harry Vigeon, of Toronto. It was mentioned that there was nothing for the shareholders. Local shareholders invested the sum of $15,000 in the business since operations were begun. When the company came here the sum of $25,000 was secured from the corporation. Other local creditors, it is understood, will lose about $4,000.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—(Canadian Press Cable).—Agricultural interests here, continue to fight against the admission of Canadian Cattle into this country.

VANCOUVER, B. C., September 23. — Canadian Press. — Deciding that the Gold Seal Company had violated the provisions of the Government Liquor Act by selling liquor in British Columbia, Magistrate Shaw yesterday found the company guilty and imposed a fine of $1000. The decision will be appealed and the case taken to a higher court.

The prosecution was made on the charge that the company took orders here and delivered the goods from the Vancouver warehouse.

The defence was that orders taken were forwarded to Calgary, and the office in Calgary having accepted them, telegraphed them back to the Western Canada Liquor Company, a subsidiary company here, which completed the transaction by delivering the goods . The company maintained that the orders were dealt with outside the province by this method.

INVESTIGATE CREDITS.

MONTREAL, Sept. 23. — Shoe manufacturers and wholesalers of Montreal and district at a meeting here passed a resolution recommending that that when any application be made for compromises or extension of credit the case should be referred to the Canadian Credit Men's Association for investigation and a recommendation. By a second resolution the meeting recommended that all cases of assignments be referred to the Canadian Credit Men's Association for investigation and recommendation to the creditors. Both resolutions were adopted unanimously.

ISSUE MANIFESTS.

LONDON, Sept. 23.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—The labor party has issued a manifesto declaring that unemployment is a national problem requiring a national policy. It asserts that the government's scheme which places the main burden upon local authorities is unjust, inadequate and indefensible and that it must be abandoned in favor of such more generous assistance from the national treasury.

TRANSIT CONFERENCE.

GENEVA, Sept. 23. — (Canadian Press.)—During to-day's session of the League of Nations Assembly, Sir George Perley of Canada entered objection to a resolution proposed by the Commissionof Transit providing that one-third of the members of the League might call a transit conference when the Assembly was not in session. Sir George contended that this would give a minority of the League power to do what a minority of the Assembly was unable to do.

CONSULTING PARLIAMENT

UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM DISCUSSED BY LLOYD GEORGE AND LABORITE MAYORS.

MUST SHARE BURDEN

LONDON, Sept. 23.—(Canadian Press) An unofficial report issued last night concerning a meeting held yesterday afternoon at Gairrloch between Mr. Lloyd George and the London borough Laborite mayors says Mr. Lloyd promised earnest consideration of the unemployment problem, but laid emphasis on the point that the central government could not shoulder the burden alone.

"Co-operation between the government and local authorities, manufacturers, bankers, and organized labor, is essential," said the Prime Minister "if we are to get grips with the problem."

The Prime Minister added he was taking immediate steps in that direction. Parliament must be consulted however, and when it met he said he would make a statement on the whole problem.

In the meantime the Prime Minister told the mayors the Cabinet Committeee was planning to assist seriously embarrassed boards of guardians to obtain loans with which to deal with unemployment.

The mayors in presenting their case urged that the government shoulder the entire problem.

FOREST FIRE IN LUMBER COUNTRY

LARGE FORCE OF MEN FIGHTING THE FIRE—TELEPHONE WIRES DOWN.

SARANAC LAKE, N.Y., Sept. 23. —(Canadian Press.)—The timbered slopes of Mount Baker, near here, were threatened late yesterday with great damage by a forest fire which started on the site of lumbering operations near Moody Pond. A strong west wind not only increased greatly the danger of the fire getting beyond control, but also broke down telephone wires to observation towers on nearby mountains, leaving the situation in other part of the district in doubt. Telephone service between Ampersand Mountain and St. Regis Mountain was disrupted.

A large force of men, led by Ranger J. H. Hopkins, was fighting the Mount Baker fire last night. Some residents feared that the fire would duplicate that of 1908, which denuded the mountain of its valuable timber growth.

The forest fire at Tupper Lake was believed to be under control to-day.

CANDIDATE IN VICTORIA.

LINDSAY, Sept. 23.—The name of Mr. T. H. Stinson is persistently mentioned as a possible candidate in the coming Federal election contest in Victoria and Haliburton.

ACCOUNT OF FATAL PARTY

LOWELL SHERMAN WAS AMONG THOSE PRESENT AT ARBUCKLE'S PARTY.

NEW YORK, September 23. — Canadian Press. — District Attorney Swann has obtained from Lowell Sherman, motion picture actor, a graphic account of the party in San Francisco which had for its epilogue the death of Virginia Rappe.

Sherman, who attended the party staged in the rooms of "Fatty" Arbuckle, now facing a charge of murder, was located by the District Attorney's office after he had jumped off the Twentieth Century at Harmon, N.Y., and disappeared in an automobile with a red-haired woman.

Found in his apartment here, Sherman explained that the woman was his wife, that he had sought to elude publicity and not Mr. Swann, and that he had been waiting for an invitation to appear at the District Attorney's Office. He professed himself as ready to return to the Pacific Coast to testify at the Arbuckle trial.

An assertion which appeared several times in Sherman's formal statement mailed last night to District Attorney Brady in San Francisco, was that those who had attended the party had not felt any great concern over Miss Rappe's illness, the concensus of opinion being that she simply "had a bun on." Sherman declared he had never asked Arbuckle what occurred between him and the girl after they had entered his bedroom and closed the door, and Arbuckle never had told him.

Everybody was feeling the effects of whiskey and gin, according to Sherman and a phonograph was making a mad racket throughout the party. After a cold bath had failed to revive the girl and she had been put to bed, Sherman said that at the suggestion of Arbuckle he had cleared the suite of guests and dismissed the matter from his mind, not taking the girl's illness seriously.

"Arbuckle did not express to me an opinion as to what was the matter with the girl," said Sherman. "I did not see Arbuckle put his arm around the girl before she went into the bedroom or put his hands upon her. Arbuckle was sitting in the chair next to the sofa upon which she sat. He, was sitting with a drink in his hand, laughing and talking."

Asserting that Mrs. Delmont, another guest, did not seem to be at all upset about anything that had happened to Miss Rappe, Sherman continued:

"I went back to Los Angeles with Arbuckle the next afternoon. I never

DR. CLARK'S CHARGE.

In various sections of Canada the Agrarian party and the Independent Labour party have formed an alliance for campaign purposes. The terms upon which this joining of forces has been accomplished have not been officially stated, but in his letter to Hon. T. A. Crerar, Dr. Michael Clark declares that there is a "gentleman's agreement" between the two parties by which the Labour forces are going to swallow the tariff policy of the Farmers, while the latter, on the other hand, are to "wink at least one eye" at the Labour party's campaign for State insurance against unemployment, old age pensions and other legislation of the same kind. Dr. Clark describes this alliance as "a detestable log-rolling policy," of which he is heartily glad to be free. The charge made by the member for Red Deer is one in which the country is rightly interested. An agreement in which for purposes of political advantage both sides give up the principles upon which their organizations are supposed to be founded is an unsatisfactory basis for a political campaign, and if Dr. Clark's allegation is untrue the heads of the Farmer and Labour forces should lose no time in setting forth the true facts concerning the amalgamation of the parties.

WHERE WILL IT END?

If the moral standard of a large section of the community is reflected by some of the stage offerings that are sent to us from the United States there is no reason to feel that any substantial progress is being made towards a brighter, cleaner world. Salacious plays are not written and produced for fun, but because it is profitable to write and produce them, and when a production such as was offered Peterborough play-goers a night or two ago can continue for a whole season in New York City it is fairly evident that there must be a very numerous class of people to whom such attractions appeal. Bedroom farces, boudoir plays, lingerie, frank displays of undressed anatomy, franker speeches, filth thinly camouflaged as humour, each "daring" farce out-daring its predecessor, the carnival goes on. There is a Board of Censorship to check up the screen offerings, but the spoken drama is given wider latitude and takes full advantage of it. Every time that it seems that the limit must be reached along comes another production that makes its predecessors appear like a Sunday School concert. Where is it going to end?

ARMISTICE DAY.

The decision of the local branch of the G.W.V.A. to arrange a fitting celebration of Armistice Day in Peterborough this year should be enthusiastically received by the citizens and the veterans should be given the hearty co-operation of the community in making the event a suitable observance of this most important anniversary. Many dates in connection with the war are of great historic interest, but it is not possible for all to be celebrated, and the anniversary of the end of the conflict perhaps furnishes the most appropriate occasion for a public function such as is being planned by the Great War Veterans. The citizens of Peterborough will be urged to wear red poppies in memory of the men who gave up their lives during the conflict, and in this connection it is interesting to note that the artificial flowers to be sold for the Armistice Day celebration are being made by war widows and orphans in France, and as the proceeds of the sale of these flowers will be used for relief work among local returned soldiers and their families a liberal response by the public will benefit two worthy causes. The veterans should be given every assistance in making the ceremonies they are planning a thorough success.

A REAL SERVICE.

To most citizens the announcement that the reading rooms at the Public Library are to be kept open on Sunday afternoons will scarcely be of even passing interest. They have their own cosy homes and the society of their friends and the Public Library as a place in which to spend a winter Sunday afternoon does not appeal to them. But there are many residents of the city who have no homes of their own and whose boarding-house bedrooms are sometimes neither warm nor cheerful. For them the opening on Sundays of the public reading rooms is a matter of interest and importance and they will be grateful to the members of the Local Council of Women whose interest in the matter has resulted in the decision to place the Public Library at their disposal, and who are making this privilege possible by supplying attendants to look after the reading rooms on Sunday. The Council of Women are in this matter, as in many others, doing a real community service and they will receive the thanks of many citizens who will be able to enjoyably and profitably spend what otherwise would be dreary and cheerless hours.

SOLDIERS OF FORTUNE.

A few days ago there sailed from the Port of New York a regiment of soldiers bound on a journey as romantic and as thrilling as any in that glorious catalogue that chivalry and thirst of adventure have inspired in men of courage since time immemorial.

It is not surprising, then, that a veteran soldier of Canada walked at the head of that legion.

These men were recruits for the war of Spain against the Riff tribesmen and they sailed in answer to the call that sets hot blood coursing through the veins and the pulses throbbing "whene'er the blast of war sounds in the ears."

Ask one of this adventurous company what bond with old Spain draws him across the waste of ocean and he would likely stare in dumb amazement.

What, then, has spurred these men to high endeavor in this latest crusade? Not the lure of gold—men of the stamp of Porthos and d'Artagnan leave it to their stay-at-home comrades to gather the golden moss.

Did the zeal of a great faith urge them to action? The stones of the aisles of great cathedrals are not worn with the feet of such restless wanderers.

Was it love unrequited that sent them hot-foot to distant climes? The still waters of deep passion are not stirred by the pebbles tossed idly in sunny dalliance.

These men are going where the fighting is, because they were suckled on the traditions of men of like passions as they themselves. They are the descendants of the Terrible Drake, of Raleigh and of Hawkins, of the Gentlemen Adventurers trading into Hudson Bay, of the men who served in Flanders with Marlborough or crossed the sea with the Carignans. They are the great-great-grandsons of the men who ran away to fight with Rodney and Montcalm.

The drums of Devon beat up a thousand of just such men when the German hordes were loosened. They are the fighting men whose sword is at the service, not of the highest bidder, but of the bugler who calls them with the clearest note.

Some will find a lonely grave at Melilla or on the barren wastes that fringe the line of fortresses that Spain must win back. Some will return, and if there is fighting in Texas or Timbuctoo, in Hong Kong or Honolulu, they "will come and have a romp with you whenever you're inclined."

They are no plaster saints these soldiers of fortune, but the world is the richer because of them. They are the link that binds this material world with the golden age of Ulysses and the Olympian gods. They are mad, careless, rollicking adventurers, idealists if you will, and once more they have heard the tocsin of the clan.

WOULD YOU.

If I knew that a thought of mine
Were outside of love and untrue,
That suffering and pain
Would follow its train,
I wouldn't think it. Would you?

If I knew that a word of mine
Hastily spoken, and not true,
Would sadden one life
Lead to malice or strife,
I wouldn't speak it. Would you?

If I knew that an act of mine
Were tinged with error's hue,
That would cause a man
To fall as he ran,
I wouldn't do it. Would you?

RUSSIAN GOVT. SHIRKS ITS RESPONSIBILITIES

PRACTICALLY TELLS SUFFERING MILLIONS TO TAKE CARE OF THEMSELVES.

MOSCOW, Sept. 23.—(Canadian Press.) — Everywhere throughout Russian the government is unloading its responsibilities on the people. Factory workers are being urged to obtain their own materials, run their own affairs, and obtain their own food. "Do not depend upon the Central government for everything," is the burden of instructions broadcasted by the government since domestic free trade was instituted and the new economic policy of the Bolsheviki was declared.

Great numbers are out of employment, rations are reduced, and those in nationalized factories are being paid in manufactured goods or in money instead of food. Apart from the extremists there seems to be a general opinion that the scheme of granting concessions to operate industries is only camouflaged capitalism.

The burial of an unidentified American soldier in the National Cemetery at Arlington, Virginia, on Armistice Day, November 11, it is said, will draw the most notable assemblage since the peace conference at Versailles.

Author of "Love"

TOM BARNEY TELLS HIS STORY.

Chapter 70.

But what of Tom Barney?

In my thankfulness and exquisite joy I had forgotten him. He had come in with the boy and then in my eagerness and happiness I had completely forgotten that it was he who had brought Kent, Jr. back to us.

When I had folded Kent, Jr. in my arms and then sent him to his father, I had left Tom Barney standing in the hall by the front door. That was the last I had thought of him. I got up from the arm of Kents chair and hurried from the room.

"Tom, oh Tom! Where are you?" I called.

I found him in the kitchen, sitting in a kitchen chair with his feet on the table, smoking a cigarette. He jumped to his feet as I rushed toward him and tossed his cigarette into the sink.

"Tom—Tom!" I cried, catching his two hands and gripping them hard. "There—lean over, I want to kiss you," I declared, the tears rushing to my eyes.

"Barbara, I'm so glad I could bring him back safely to you," he said vehemently. "You have been such a wonderful friend to me. And I love the kid too," he added, pushing the back of his hand across his eyes.

"Friendship is such a splendid thing, isn't it, Tom!" I ejaculated happily. "But come, I want you to tell us all about it. It seems like a terrible dream, and I'm so thankful to be awake again. How did you get Kent, Jr.? Where was he?" I questioned all in one breath.

We went back into the living room together.

Kent, Jr. was sitting on his father's knee and apparently doing his best to tell all about his extraordinary adventure. And between the two of them we finally learned the story.

"You see, Kent told me that you were going up in Connecticut for the day," Tom began. "I didn't say anything, but decided to get away from the office early if I could and run up to see the kid—I didn't want to promise for fear I couldn't make it. I sort of had it in my head to get up about 5 o'clock when he would be having his supper."

"Muvver, I didn't have any supper," Kent, Jr. suddenly interrupted. And so, of course, I had to get something for him at once. It had never entered my head in the terrible excitement of it all. In a few minutes he was cuddled up on my lap and getting great satisfaction out of a glass of milk and a slice of bread and butter.

"I got away from the office very early," Tom went on again, "and took a bus, but when I reached 57th street I discovered it wasn't the right one. It didn't go up the Drive so I decided to walk over instead of transferring. I guess it was Fate that made that happen.

"I had gotten to about 85th street, and was hurrying along, thinking of business. I wasn't looking to the right or left. Then I heard a mighty familiar young voice calling, 'Barnee!' at me from acros sthe street.

"It didn't take long for me to get across to him," Tom declared strenuously. "At first the kid seemed to be alone, but as I reached the other side of the street I noticed a fellow a few feet away interviewing a taxi driver, I picked Junior up in my arms and like a flash the fellow turned and bolted through 85th street like mad. It was all so sudden and unexpected that I didn't have time to act. I'd give a lot to be able to get my hands on him now," he asserted vehemently.

GOLF CHAMPIONS MEET IN FINALS AT OTTAWA LINKS

MISS CECIL LEITCH AND MISS ALEXA STIRLING WILL GET TOGETHER.

RIVERMEAD GOLF CLUB, Ottawa, Sept. 23.—(Canadian Press) One of the greatest golfing events of the years will take place here today when Miss Cecil Leitch, champion woman golfer of the British Isles meets Miss Alexa Stirling, champion of the United States and of Canada, in the sem-finals for the ladies, premier golfing honors of the Dominion Both these players eliminated their opponents yesterday Miss Leitch easily vanquishing Miss Peppler of Toronto, and Miss Stirling defeating Mrs. Gavin New York metropolitan champion, after a bitter, brilliant game. The United States champion, has not been doing overly well in the series, but yesterday she exhibited her best form, playing steady, brainy, and at times brilliant golf, and if her game today approaches what it was yesterday Miss Leitch will be campell ed to play her mightiest to carry off the honors.

While the British champion will be fighting against Miss tirling her sister, Miss Edith, will be matching her skill with the only Canadian left in the sem-finals, Miss Molly McBride of Beaconsfield. Miss McBride has been playing good, although not brilliant golf, and will give Miss Leiach a hard game. Should she lose and her sister vanquish Miss Stirling the strange result will follow that two English women, who are sisters, will be left to fight it out for the Canadian championship.

One of the surprises of yesterdays games was the elimination of Miss Ada MacKenzie of Toronto. The ex Candian champion had been exhibiting good form all week, and the expectation was that she would reach the semi-finals. Miss Edith Leitch however, proved too strong, although the closeness of the battle may be seen from the fact that it did not end until the seventeenth green.

Not a Bite of Breakfast Until You Drink Water

Says a glass of hot water and phosphate prevents illness and keeps us fit.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind incombustible ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste, toxins and ptomainelike poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before breakfast each morning drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the bowels the previous day's poisons and toxins, and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.

or going to be one?"

"No."

"Did you know Goselin?"

"No; I saw him earlier in the evening."

"What kind of dances were they?"

"Square dances."

Mr. Hatton: "You haven't given up the 'bunny hug' and those kind?"

Magistrate Langley: "They haven't got to that yet."

Mr. Hatton: "Did you see any one under the influence of liquor?"

"No; I saw no signs of liquor."

Complainant Recalled.

Goselin and the two girls, recalled by Mr. Hatton, maintained that their statements at the morning session were true.

"Have you any reason to change your mind?" Mr. Hatton asked.

All three replied in the negative.

To Goselin: "Was anyone present when Wm. Young told you he heard you had threatened to beat him?"

Magistrate Langley: "Will. Young says you hit him when you were leaving the hall with the two girls. Is that true?"

"No, sir, it is not true."

Mr. Hatton: "Did you hit him at all?"

"No."

CONCERT AND PUBLIC DANCE AT LAKEFIELD.

Fitting Climax to Annual Fair — Peterboro Talent Contributed to Happy Evening in Memorial Hall.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 23. — The concert held in theMemorial Hall on Wednesday night under the auspices of the Lakefield Agricultural Society, was a success in spite of adverse weather conditions and several other attractions. In the absence of Mr. E. J. Galvin the president, who was unable to be present, Mr. Thompson Braden, the secretary, introduced the first performers, Mr. Park and Mr. Frank Clarke of Peterboro, who gave a violin and banjo duet which was of high order and merited the hearty applause accorded them.

Mr. Smith, of Peterboro, gave a rousing sea song in a rich baritone and responded to an encore with "Mary of Argyle."

Miss Hazel Davidson gave a reading in her inimitable style, and Mr. Markham brought down the house with a comedy selection. Mr. Clarke contributed a banjo solo, which was much appreciated. The Misses Cassidy, of Peterboro, gave a sword dance in costume and responded to the prolonged encores with the Highland Fling.

This brought the first part of the program to a close and during the intermission Mr. Marling introduced Mr. Thomas of Peterboro, a 93rd. battalion man, who saw active service with the 5th C.M.R. He was badly gassed, being confined 3 years and 1 month in a hospital, and is endeavoring to get a start in civil life by performing a few card tricks. Mr. Marling asked for a generous response to the appeal.

Mr. Thomas proved a veritable wizard and dazzled the audience by his sleight of hand and promised to give a further performance at the close of the entertainment.

The Second Part

The second part of the programme was as follows:

Duet — Violin and Banjo: "The Mocking Bird", by Dr. H. G. Park and Mr. Frank Clarke.

Reading—Miss Hazel Davidson.

Solo—Mr. Smith.

Solo—Mr. Markham.

Banjo Solo—Mr. Frank Clarke.

Irish Jig—The Misses Cassidy.

Miss Alice Hunter served as accompanist.

Mr. Thomas gave a further exhibition of card tricks after the program closed.

The audience was appreciative of the varied numbers presented by Peterboro talent and our hopes in the near future to have the pleasure of enjoying another such evening.

After the concert a very enjoyable dance was held.

INSTRUCTIVE ADDRESS

away. I am the resurrection and the life."

In concluding Miss Turner said the Holy Spirit could touch the heart of John D. Rockefeller, and other millionaires, and release enough money to send the gospel around the world, but that is not the Lord's plan. He wants each one of us to help His command is: "Go ye" and His reward based on: "Inasmuch as ye did it", or "Inasmuch, as ye did it not."

During the afternoon a duet 'Only a Smile", was sung by Mrs. Sayles and Miss Stewart, and after Miss Turner's address, Mrs. Sayles sang, "Ashamed of Jesus".

The Auxiliary decided to hold a membership contest for October, dividing the village into two districts and appointing two members Miss Pendrie and Miss Stella Hetherington, as captains for the east end, and Miss Hampton and Mrs. Richards for the west end, the object being to secure as many new members as possible, while former members who pay their fees at the next meeting will count for the side in whose district the reside.

The meeting closed with the benediction and while refreshments were srved, a social hour was enjoyed by all present.

The Evening Session.

In the evening Miss Turner addressed the girls of the Mission Circle and the Mission Band, basing her remarks as the text: "Every wise woman buildeth her house," and urging the folly of building with any other material than that which will endure. Since the final test is "so as by fire", and the whole lifetime is spent upon the task.

Miss Florence Deyell sang a solo, 'I Shall see Him" and the Mission Band girls gave an exercise in costume, entitled: "Jesus wants the young Canadians", which was very instructive, and well rendered.

After a vote of thanks to Miss Turner for her services, the meeting closed with the benediction.

Autumn Wedding

A pretty autumn wedding was solemnized in St. Thomas' Church on Wednesday at 1 p.m. when Miss Mabel Howden, became the bride of Sergeant William Galbraith of Detroit, the Rev. Canon Allen officiating.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and the bride who looked charming in her travelling suit of navy blue with squirrel furs and hat to match, was given away by her step-father, Mr. Robt. Howden.

The bridesmaid, who also wore a navy blue suit with moleskin furs, was Miss Hazel Johnston of Toronto, a girl friend of the bride's, and the groomsman was Mr. Howard Galbraith, a brother of the groom.

A reception was afterwards held at the bride's parents in Cavan township, where the guests, numbering [illegible] were assembled after the ceremony at the church.

[illegible] Galbraith left by motor about four p.m., for Toronto, and afterward will leave for their future home in Detroit.

LLOYD GEORGE BETTER.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—(Canadian Press.)— Although Mr. Lloyd George has practically recovered from his recent illness, it is understood that he will not return to London until about October 1. Pending his return there will be no meeting of the entire Cabinet.

The Prime Minister, however, is in close touch with all his colleagues regarding the reply of Eamonn De Valera, and has personally consulted some of them. Consequently he will be in a position to communicate the considered reply of the whole Government.

TELEGRAPHIC AND CABLE NEWS

CRITICIZE SCHEME.

LONDON, Sept. 23.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—The scheme suggested by Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, Secretary of State for the Colonies, for federating the governments of the Crown colonies under High Commissionerships, continues to meet with chilly criticism. Particular objection is raised respecting such colonies as submit increasingly persistent demands for fuller control of ther own affars.

FUR AUCTION.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23. — (By Canadan Press.)— Marten, both Canadian and Japanese, starred at the fourth day of the fur sale, when a sales total of $360,000 wo srealized. The grand total to date is $2,175,000. Among yesterday's offerings were more than 820,000 house cat pelts, part of which were apparently bought for export to Germany. The prices obtained for it were not high, as measured by those obtained a couple of years ago, and the best pelts brought nearly a dollar less than the record figure of $1:40 that was established here at the winter sale in 1920.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

GENEVA, Sept. 23.— (Canadian Press.)—Lord Robert Cecil, in the League of Nations Assembly yesterday afternoon, demanded of the political committee of the Assembly that the troubles between the Albanians and Jugo Slavs be discussed immediately in view of the alarming news of conflicts between the Albanians and Jugo-Slavs.

WILL OPPOSE CANAL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(Canadian ress.)—Inauguration of a campaign to organize national opposition to Government aid in the construction of the proposed St. Lawrence ship canal, was announced last night by the executive committee of the Hudson Valley Federated Chambers of Commerce.

In a statement the committee stated that such a canal would merely bring prosperity to Canadian producers at the expense of those in the United States and that farmers of the middle western Sttaes had been misled into believing that it would bring deep sea vessels to load at Lake ports.

SCENE IN PARLIAMENT.

BELFAST, Sept. 23.—(Canadian Press.)—There was a scene in the Ulster Parliament yesterday afternoon when William Coote objected to the estimates, declaring that payment of members acting as secretaries was in the nature of a bribe to vote with the Government.

"That is very unfair and spiteful," Sir James Craig, the Premier, sharply rejoined. "God forbid that any Prime Minister or any responsible person would dream for a moment at this time of peril for Ulster that I or anybody else should be tied to a certain policy."

FINED THOUSAND DOLLARS.

SUDBURY, Ont., September 23.—Canadian Press.—Telesphore Laflamme, an ex-officer of the Montreal police force, who has been engaged in bootlegging business for the past ten months at Gogama, a lumbering village on the C. N. R. one hundred miles northwest of Sudbury, was fined one thousand dollars and costs or three months for a breach of the O.T.A.

EASTERN GALICIA.

LONDON, September 23. — Canadian Press. — The sixth commission of the League of Nations has adopted, with slight modifications, the proposal of Hon. C. J. Doherty, of Canada, that the Council of the League be invited to direct the attention of the Ambassadors' conference to the urgent need for regulating the status of Eastern Galicia.

MARKETS QUEIT.

MONTREAL, September 23. — Canadian Press. — The domestic trade in cash grain continues very quiet here. The undertone to the flour market is easy. A steady feeling prevails in mill feed and demand for rolled oats is fair. There is no change in the baled hay market. Prices are maintained in eggs, and there is a fair demand for potatoes. A firmer feeling obtains in the butter market and cheese is quiet.

DEVELOPING NORTH

NORTH BAY, Sept. 23. Canadian Press.—Reports recently published in the Toronto papers to the effect that an early start is to be made in cutting the right of way from Cochrane north to Moose Factory, are incorrect, according to official advices received here. Chairman Lee of the T. and N. O., with Commissioners McLaren and Martin, will hold a conference here on Tuesday, with Premier Drury ,to discuss important questions pertaining to railway development in the north.

OUTLOOK ENCOURAGIING.

LONDON, September 23. — Canadian Press. — Reuter's correspondent at Wellington cables that Governor-General Viscount Jellicoe, in his speech at the opening of Parliament, referred to the effect of the fall in prices of the principal products on the prosperity of New Zealand.

The Speech from the Throne said the outlook was encouraging, and also announced that a number of important measures of local interest as well as questions arising from the imperial conference and the revision of the customs tariff would be proceeded with.

ACCOUNT OF FATAL PARTY

saw Miss Rapep after that and never inquired about her because I did not take any of it seriously.

"I do not know whether Mr. Arbuckle communicated with her or asked about her. If he did he did not do so in my presence.

"I never asked Arbuckle what he thought was the matter with the girl. He seemed to have the same opinion as everyone else—that the girl had a bun on and was ill. He did not seem in any way upset about it, anymore than anybody who was at the party.

"I never heard Miss Rappe express an opinion as to what was the matter with her at any time."

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

ONE SINGLE LIBERAL PARTY IN DOMINION

DECLARES HON. TASCHEREAU AT BANQUET TO HON. RUDOLPHE LEMIEUX IN MONTREAL—ELECTION ISSUES DISCUSSED BY LEADING POLITICIANS.

TARIFF FOR REVENUE

MONTREAL, Sept. 23. — At a banquet tendered here by a brilliant gathering of political friends and admirers to the Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, former Solicitor-General of Canada, under the Sir Wilfrid Laurier Administration, and a statesman who has held other posts of high honor in and for this Dominion, Mr. Taschereau declared that 'Urom the Atlantic to the Pacific there is and ought to be only one single Liberal party. He also wished for one Conservative party.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, after reviewing his career in Parliament with particular reference to the defeat of the Liberal party in 1911, spoke of conditions as at present, and said that while the defeat of the present Government would be an easy matter, the work of restoring the country with its enormous national debt, its railway problem, the economic crisis, and the unemployment problem to face would be nearly a super-human task.

Financial Question.

The financial question was one of the most important and there was only one way to meet it, namely, by practising the most implacable economy in the budget. By reducing expenses to the minimum the burden of taxation would be gradually lightened and the Canadian dollar would find its normal course. Interest payments, expense of administration and debts of honor contracted during the war could not be evaded, but all other expenses should be pitilessly cut to the bone or suppressed. The militia, the navy, public works should be watched most carefully by the Minister of Finance.

In regard to the nationalization of the Grand Trunk System, Hon. R. Lemieux said that the proposal of Lord Shaughnessy seemed to him the only possible solution with some revised terms. Though the cry of monopoly might be raised, he preferred monopoly to bankruptcy.

Meighen's Chosen Ground.

Right Hon. Mr. Meighen had, he said, chosen the ground on which the coming elections should be fought. According to the Premier the tariff would be the only election cry. The Premier had claimed that the Liberal party would, if returned to power, wipe out the tariff. Mr. Lemieux pointed out that the Liberal party had never any need to borrow other people's titles in the vain attempt to regild its shield and recover popularity." Mr. Taschereau also tendered the homage of the Province of Quebec to Mr. MacKenkie King, remarking that a "Conservative majority reduced from 70 to 20, and by elections turned to Liberal triumph, proved the skill and success of Mr. King's guidance."

A Mere See-Saw.

Discussing the questions of parties in the Dominion, Mr. Taschereau said: "From the Atlantic to the Pacific there is an there ought to be only a single Liberal party, as indeed I could wish there should be only one Conservative party. Break up these parties, confuse their lines of separation, and the constitutional system becomes a mere see-saw where every best movement is paralyzed. History will lay to the charge of the Conservative party the grievous fault of having aimed the first blow at our political system by founding the Unionist party. It is moribund to-day from the effect of this irreparable fault. The groups springing up everywhere, animated by no political traditions, knowing no discipline and heeding no motives but local interest and immediate advantage, are the natural children of the ill-asserted Unions brought about of late in Ottawa."

Protective Tariff.

On the tariff Mr. Taschereau remarked that his Liberalism called for a tariff which protected the consumer and also the authorities of the country. These results were by no means incompatible, but might well be obtained by a tariff for revenue, such as was professed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The speaker said that he was well aware that he was touching upon one of the most thorny questions in the political programme of the party. He knew that the party's chiefs in the Federal arena would be called upon to devote to it their intelligence and their devotion, perhaps even to the extent of some humility when recalling former days and youthful orations. And yet he did not see that were would be no forsaking of the political principles by adapting them to the exigencies of the troubled period through which they all were passing.

Bolshevist Autocracy.

Mr. Taschereau said that his Lib-

SHOT-PUT COMPETITION

Will Be Held at Bowling Green To-Night.

The bowlers' shot-putting competition is scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock to-night at their grounds at the corner of Aylmer and Brock street. It is a handicap affair with only two of the entrants, T. McArthur and R. G. Sturgeon, putting from scratch. The others are given various handicaps of from six inches to five feet. Quite a lot of interest has been aroused over the contest and all the talent will be out.

CHARGED WITH FRAUD.

OTTAWA, September 23. — Canadian Press. — Evidence concerning ten charges against William G. Domoney, alleging that he wrongfully obtained money from the Department of Militia in connection with exchanging English money at par, was heard here yesterday afternoon before Deputy Magistrate Kidd. At the conclusion of the evidence H. J. Burns, representing the defendant, secured an adjournment until Sept. 30. It will then be decided whether a prima facie case has been established.

It is easier to criticize people than to appreciate them.

HOTEL PRICES DOWN

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept. 2.—(Canadian Press). — Commencing the first of October the menu prices at all Canadian Pacific Hotel dining rooms will be reduced sixteen per cent., which may in some varieties on the menu reach as high as 20 per cent.

Announcement to this effect was made here by C. E. Ussher, General Manager at Montreal, who is now in Vancouver.

DECIDING GAME IN C.G.E. SOFT-BALL LEAGUE

The final and deciding game in the soft-ball league at the C.G.E. will be played this afternoon beginning at five o'clock between teams representing the engineering and draughting departments. They have already played three games without a decision the last going ten innings to a tie.

RAIN IN THE WEST

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., 23.—(Canadian Press).—Rain fell here which will prevent any resumption of harvest operations for a few days Farmers report that further rain will lower the grade of the wheat, which would amount to a serious loss owing to the heavy yields throughout this area. Weather conditions today are bright, with a drying wind, and if continued, a resumption will be made on Saturday.

WILL NOT BRING BODY UNKNOWN SOLDIER TO U.S.

GENERAL PERSHING DENIES SUCH IS HIS MISSION TO FRANCE --- GENERAL ALLEN WILL SELECT REMAINS OF DEAD HERO FOR NATIONAL HONOR.

PARIS, Sept. 23—General Pershing informed the newspapers correspondents last night that he would not return to the United States with the body of an unknown United States soldier. His trip, he said, had nothing to do with the selection of a body, and no private soldier was accompaying him for the purpose of making a selection.

This announcement caused surprise inasmuch as all the dispatches from the United States had declared that General Pershing was bringing a private from the ranks to choose the body.

General Pershing will go to London after the ceremonies in France and decorate the grave of the British "unknown soldier" with the Congressional Medal. He will proceed from Liverpool, arriving in New York in time to receive Marshal Foch.

The selection of the unknown United States soldier whose body is to be interred in Arlington, will be in the hands of Major Henry T. Allen, Commander-in-Chief of the United States Army of Occupation, according to General Pershing, who added that he himself would be in the United States when the body arrived.

He will go to Coblenz about the end of the week to attend a review of all theUnited States troops on the

A PLEASANT EVENING IN CENTRAL SCHOOL

UNDER AUSPICES HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION—ENTRANCE CERTIFICATES PRESENTED.

The Home and School Association of Central School held a very pleasant open meeting Wednesday. Mrs. F. Miller, the president, was in the chair, and the minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. R. Denne.

The musical numbers on the programme were a piano solo by Miss Margaret Denne; vocal solos, by Miss E. Dix and Mr. O. M. Steer; a vocal duet by Mrs. C. Hughes and Miss E. Williamson, accompanied by Mr. Walden; and a violin solo by Arnold Spencer, all of which were very much enjoyed. Variety was added by readings from Miss K. Vincent and Miss J. McGill.

Certificates Presented.

The most interesting feature of the evening was the presentation of the certificates to the successful entrance pupils of the school, by Mr. R. F. Downey, the principal. In his remarks Mr. Downey called the attention of the parents to the necessity for vigilance on their part in helping the boys and girls to achieve this certificate—the one which, no doubt, brings greater pleasure than any which they might receive in the continuance of their schooling. He said that the situation of the school in the business section, with its many attractions, added to the difficulty of the pupils, thus making it a greater achievement on their part to obtain the certificate, and adding to the responsibility of the parents in seeing that the leisure hours of their children were properly supervised.

Mr. A. Mowat spoke of the increase in the number of Entrance candidates during the last twelve years, and said that the percentage of pupils in the city of Peterboro, who took a further course of study, was above the average. He also spoke of the fine spirit which exists at the school showing that something more than actual book-knowledge is being instilled in the minds of the pupils, through the influence of parents and teachers.

After some points of business had been discussed, refreshments were served by the graduating girls, and the meeting was closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

GOOD DEBENTURE SALE.

OTAWA, Sept. 23. — (Canadian Press.) —A profit of $200,000 was made for the City wnen City Council, in June last, refused to accept the recommendation of the Board of Control for the sale of a Civic six debenture by a private tender.

BANKS OF ENGLAND TO CONTINUE FOR A TIME CONSERVATIVE POLICY

FINANCIAL CIRCLES DISAPPOINTED AT ABSENCE OF REDUCTION IN RATE—PARTING OF THE WAYS.

LONDON, Sept. 23.— (Canadian Press.)— The London Times says that many persons in financial circles were disappointed yesterday (Thursday) at the absence of a reduction of the bank rate in London, following upon the United States Federal Reserve Bank reduction of Wednesday. It understands that this absence is attributable to prospects of a considerable fresh inflation in the next three months.

In its financial notes, the Times says it is not believed in financial circles that the decision of the court of the Bank of England "indicates that the monetary monopolies of London and New York, which have hitherto travelled a parallel course, have reached a parting of the ways, but that the present condition of national finances make it desirable for it to pursue a conservative policy for the next few weeks.

The Times notes that the London rate since the armistice has been governed by the United States rate.

FAMOUS ENGLISH ACTRESS IS DEAD

PASSED AWAY IN LONDON, ENGLAND, YESTERDAY

LONDON, Sept. 23.—(Canadian Press) The death is announced of Mrs. Charles Calvert, the actress.

Mrs. Calvert was born in 1836 and went on the stage at seven, playing with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keen. In addition to having won fame in London and the Provinces, Mrs. Calvert was well known on the American continent many years ago, where she played as a member of Edwin Booth's company and with Mrs. Langtry and Mary Anderson. Her more pronounced successes were in Shakespearean roles.

REPEAL OF DEFENSE OF INDIA ACT, NOW

ALSO ROWLATT LAW, WHICH HAS CAUSED BAD FEELING AMONG HINDUS.

LONDON, Sept. 23.— (Canadian Press.)—The committee of the Indian Legislature appointed some time ago to investigate repressive laws, has recommended the immediate repeal of the Rowlatt and Defense of India Acts, saying educated opinion resents their continuance. The committee urges in view of recent events and possible developments that a portion of the Unlawful Associating Act, and the Seditious Meetings Act be temporarily retained.

The Rowlatt law has been the cause of particularly bad feeling in India. It gives the authorities, among other things, the right of summary arrest, detention without trial and secret trial without confronting an accused person with his accuser. It was opposition to this law which gave Mahatma Gandhi his chance to start the great movement of non-co-operation which led to the Amritsar affair, in which hundreds of persons were killed or wounded by General Dyer's British troops and the resultant bitterness that has annoyed the British officials ever since.

local branch arranging this dinner. So far as I personally am concerned I feel myself filled with humility. I appreciate very very much the kind things said by the three speakers. It has been a great pleasure to be associated with the members of the branch. What little I have been able to accomplish has been a pleasure. I hope we will find the time and inclination to do something in the Toronto branch."

J. E. Hess and G. L. Jones suitably replied to the toast and three other engineers: R. Carson, W. H. Jaegar, and C. E. Burton, non-member of the Institute but guests at last night's function expressed their regret at leaving Peterboro. W. J. Armstrong and E. Oke affiliate members who have been transferred spoke briefly.

Toast to Institute

A. L. Killaly proposed the toast to the Institute and R. L. Dobbin in replying to it pointed out the progress made by it since its establishment in 1887. The membership from a scant few had grown to 4,500, located in 20 branches. Mr. Dobbin praised the openness of the Canadian Institute compared with that of the American in allowing engineers of every branch to enter.

There were over sixty members, associates, student members, and affiliates at the dinner and these sixty odd threats were exercised during the evening on numerous songs. A. L. Irwin ably presided at the piano. The best, musical number of the evening was the rendition by the C.G.E. Octette of Passing the Buck in all its sweetness. The singers were G. S. Parlour, A. B. Gates, W. N. Cruthers, T. E. Gilchrist, P. Manning, W. Rose, J. Convery, and C. Dickenson.

The affair was concluded with a vote of thanks unmistakably presented to the pianist, W. N. Cruthers, chairman of the committee and all others who assisted and with the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

eralism was opposed to "the Bolshevist autocracy at Ottawa and the ruling, taxing and improvement of the people by arbitrary orders in council," which if it had not been for the unresisting fatalism called forth by the war with its attendant horrors the people would have risen against. When Mr. King came to make out his inventory on the morrow of his coming triumph he would not, he (Mr. Taschereau) forget to enter among his assets and at its real value to Canada and venerable Province of Quebec. No party could govern without it. If the Conservative party had ceased to exist in Quebec it was because it had tried to ignore this province and dispense with its support.

Legouin's Alliance.

In conclusion Mr. Taschereau, referring to the presence of Mr. Legouin, said that in alliance with "Mr. King and his popular lieutenants his name would be a guage of overwhelming victory. A universal request had been made to him to enter the Federal scene of action and it had been pointed out to him that he could not rightfully withhold from the service of his country the ability and activity which he had placed at the disposition of his province during the fifteen years he had been Premier of Quebec."

THREE CAPTIVES BEAT UP BY N. Y. POLICEMAN.

Men Accused of Picking Pockets Are Badly Mauled —Kicked and Punched.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Three alleged pickpockets were severely beaten by a policeman in plain clothes on the platform of the Interborough subway station at Broadway and Ninety-sixth Street in sight of about twenty late passengers. After beating the men till he was stopped by a subway employe, the policeman took them to the West 100th Street Station, where he lodged a charge of attempted grand larceny against them.

The beating took place at 3:20 a. m. The policeman, who was off duty, was waiting for a train on the uptown platform when, he said, he saw three men trying to pick the pockets of a fourth man sleeping on a bench. He got a uniformed subway employe to assist him and then arrested the trio.

Pulling the men off the bench, the policeman started to punch and kick them. They tried to escape his blows, but the subway employe collared two of them and bystanders surrounded the third. Then the policeman ran over to this man and struck him several times. Next he went to the place where the subway employe had the other two, and beat the prisoners unmercifully with his fists. The men were unarmed and made no resistance. They said nothing except to plead their innocence and to utter cries of pain under the policeman's blows.

"If I had my blackjack with me I'd knock your brains out, you ——— ———!" the policeman yelled, punching them again. After several minutes he drew his pistol. Placing the muzzle to the forehead of one prisoner he exclaimed:

"I'd like to put a bullet through your head."

Then he started beating the prisoners again. They yelled louder than ever as his blows fell, and begged him to stop. Finally the subway employe intervened.

"That's enough! That's enough!" he said. "Take them to the station house."

The man who, according to the policeman, was the victim of the alleged pickpockets had awakened during the excitement. He was a well-dressed, middle-aged man, whose eyes were rather bloodshot and whose manner was somewhat bewildered.

"Look through your pockets," said the policeman, "and see if you've lost any dough."

"Well," the policeman replied, "it's a wonder you've got anything left. They were working on you long enough."

Just then an uptown train came along and the alleged prospective victim got aboard. The policeman did not ask his name or address, or tell him to appear in court.

At the West 100th Street station in the afternoon it was said the arresting officer was Patrolman Joseph Dunphy. Dunphy had been off duty for three hours and twenty minutes when he made the arrests. His prisoners said they were Ralph Fine, 23 years old, a salesman, of 211 East Third Street; Joseph Lyttle, 22, a tailor, of 118 West 64th Street, and Harry Miller, 23, a steamfitter, of 116 West Seventieth Street.

The prisoners were booked on the charge of attempted grand larceny and then taken to Police Headquarters for the morning line-up before masked detectives. Later they were arraigned in the West Side Court, where Magistrate Levine sentenced them to ninety days each in the workhouse on Blackwell's Island.

HAVE RULED OUT THE OBSOLETE IN AIR LANGUAGE.

U. S. Army and Navy Adopt New Terms—Blimp and Aero No More.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Standard aeronautical terms, devised and compiled by the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, have been officially prescribed for use in the army and navy. Hereafter, the new order states, the officers of the two air services will use the regulation nomenclature.

For some time, aerial experts point out, laymen have been calling anything that traverses the air an "airship," whereas the word "aircraft" should be employed. They say that all balloons, rigid and non-rigid airships, or lighter-than-air craft, are constantly being termed "blimps," a slang word now obsolete, but originally used to designate a non-rigid airship, driven by an engine installed in an airplane fuselage slung beneath the gas bag.

The word "hydroplane" has often been misused in referring to a seaplane; "hydroplane" designates a sea sled, which planes on the surface of the water but does not take to the air. An airplane has been called an "aero," which, it is explained, is as wrong as calling a boat a "water." The words "aeroplane," have been done away with and "airplane," "seaplane" and "airship" have taken their places.

According to the recent published report of the National Advisory Committee "aircraft" constitutes any form of craft designed to navigate the air and is divided into "aerostats" and "airplanes." Aerostats comprise lighter-than-air craft, embodying a container filled with gas lighter than air, such as hydrogen and sustained by its buoyancy. They include "airships" and "balloons."

'Airplane' Officially Ousts 'Aeroplane.'

The word "airplane" is now used to designate craft heavier than air, obtaining their support from the action of the air on the wings, and driven through the air by screw propellers. "Tractors" are airplanes having their propellers in front, "pushers" having them in the rear. Usually airplanes are equipped for land work with wheeled landing gear, but when fitted for alighting on water with a boat or pontoons, the term "seaplane" is used.

"Airships," as the craft formerly known as lighter-than-air are now called, are divided into three types; rigid, whose form is maintained by a metallic frame within the gas bag or envelope; non-rigid, whose envelope is kept taut by the pressure of the contained gas, and semirigid, maintained by a rigid or jointed keel and also by gas pressure. These three types are all propelled by gas engines located in a hull or car, or in individual engine houses suspended below the supporting envelope, and controlled by means of rudders and fins.

"Balloons," the second division of the aerostat class, have no power plants nor means of controlling their horizontal flight. They include free, or flight balloons of the old style spherical type; captive, secured by a cable to the earth; barrage, captive balloons used in forming an aerial barrage against airplane attacks; kite, an elongated captive balloon such as the Caquot observation balloon, which has tail fins to keep it headed into the wind; nurse, a small heavily fabricated balloon used for storing gas and filling service balloons; and pilot and sounding balloons employed in securing meteorological data.

The heavier-than-air types of aircraft now officially termed airplanes, are divided into several classes according to the number of planes or wings, which are usually superimposed, namely:—monoplanes, biplanes, triplanes and multiplanes. There is also the Langley type of airplane, which is still called the tandem from the arrangement of its double set of wings on approximately the same level.

"Seaplanes," airplanes designed to rise from or light on the water, are classified in two groups; boat seaplanes, having a central hull not unlike a boat, and float seaplanes, whose landing gear consists of one or more floats or pontoons.

ACQUITTED MURDER CHARGE

MONTREAL, September 23. — Canadian Press. — Raoul Berlinguette was acquitted by a jury in the court of King's Bench of the murder of Georges Jobin, furrier, who was brutally beaten to death with a hammer in his store on Amherst street, on the evening of May 14th last. The acquittal was a mere formality as Mr. Justice Monet had previously ruled that the Crown had not succeeded in adducing sufficient evidence to warrant the trial going to the jury for decision.

MICHAEL KALININ PRESIDENT OF RUSSIA

Most Americans believe that Nikolai Lenine is president of Russia, whereas he holds an office which corresponds to that of the British premier. Michael Kalinin, a peasant, for more than two years, has been president of the All-Russian central executive committee. His position is only about as politically powerful as that of the French president, and, whereas the French executive's position is mostly social, the Russian president is mediator, champion and political adviser of the peasant masses of Russia.

Kalinin's office in Moscow is not in the Kremlin, but in an ordinary office building in the heart of the city. It is the one place in Russia where no "papers" are demanded when one enters and no guards stand about the doors.

BY THE WAY

The portrait of Frederick F. Garber, head of the firm that designed one of Cincinnati's most beautiful downtown buildings has been found on the arched ceiling of that building. It was executed by W. Mazur, the skilled sculptor who did all the important modeling. The portrait was inserted partly as a jest, but also as a tribute to the man to whose talent the structure is virtually a monument.

Thousands have passed in and out of the arcade, which is the striking feature of the new building, and stared at the sculptured ceiling, observes the Cincinnati Times-Star. Some may even have noted among the flying Mercuries and other decorative motives two bas reliefs showing a man's face. These faces are in the arches above the stairways both east and west. The clever artist has added flying locks and in other ways given the aspect of a snake to the relief. But close inspection revealed the truth; the four faces are as many portraits of the Cincinnati architect.

Sculptors with an active sense of humor can point to a famous prototype, no less than Michelangelo himself. It seems that one of the cardinals criticized unduly, so the great Italian master felt, something about his Transfiguration group in the Sistine chapel. "So that's the way of it," or words to that effect, sneered the genius. "All right, he can go to hell." So straightaway he placed the cardinal there among the group of tortured souls writhing in the pit, and there, moreover, is the cardinal to this very day.

BRAKES ON ALL FOUR WHEELS.

Medium-Priced Car Will Follow Lead of Others.

Medium-priced automobiles will soon be produced with four-wheel brakes.

That is the conclusion of automotive engineers, based on the successful introduction of brakes on all wheels of a high class American car and on several European models.

The brakes on the American car are worked by hydraulic power. But the simple hand and foot brakes of today may easily be applied to all four wheels. An S-shaped arrangement under the chassis may be so connected with the brake levers as to apply the pressure both forward and back with the same motion.

Application of four-wheel brakes will decrease skidding. That has been proven with the automobiles that are equipped with brakes on the front as well as rear wheels.

When the brakes are applied suddenly to the rear wheels of a fast moving car, all the weight and momentum of the car are thrown forward, and the front wheels grip the pavement. If there is the slightest turn of the steering wheel at that time, the rear wheels will skid dangerously while the front wheels hold tight.

Application of brakes on the front wheels at the same time obviates this danger. As the brake pressure is divided evenly among all four wheels, the weight of the machine is equally distributed so that the possibility of skidding is diminished.

First armored motor cars were made in 1899.

PRINTERS' STRIKE PLAYED A PART IN ST. RLY. ARBITRATION

Delays Court Proceedings Because Reports on Former Peterborough Arbitration Case Not Printed.

A QUESTION OF VALUE

TORONTO, Sept. 23. — (Canadian Press.)—The Printers' strike played a part in the Toronto street railway arbitration proceedings yesterday by way of delaying the progress of the work. Before the Board could announce its ruling on the admission of evidence of value over a period of three years, Mr. Tilley wished to put in as a precedent a Peterborough arbitration case which had gone to the Ontario Court of Appeal.

But the law reports had not been printed, and he had it only in typewritten form. He had discovered the case yesterday afternoon, had copies of the judgment typed and sent, one to Mr. McKay for the company, and to each of the arbitrators. Hours would have been saved if it had not been for the strike tying up the printing. In the Peterborough case the award was based on a value spread over three to five years. Chief Justice Meredith had dissented from the majority of the Court of Appeal, and held quite clearly that the giving of value over a period of years was quite wrong, and that as a matter of fact, it was impossible to get an "average" cost. The Peterborough case was that of the taking over by the City in 1915 of the Electric Light Plant, and the City resented the award of $154,000 made by the arbitrators, and appealed it. But the Court of Appeal held against the City. The point of the case seemed to be that the arbitrators had accepted evidence of value over a period of years, but had not stated on what evidence their award was based. Chief Justice Meredith pointed out that the arbitrators had omitted to rule as they went along on the calss of evidence submitted to them, and Mr. Tilley stressed the argument that the five year period value was not accepted by the Chief Justice as the proper basis. Mr. Rowell replied that the Court had approved the award and held it to be legal and binding, despite the dissenting verdict of the Chief Justice. Therefore it was clear that the evidence was acceptable.

The Board decided to accede to Mr. Tilley's plea to hear arguments on the case, but Mr. Rowell objected that he had not even had time to read the 36-page Peterborough judgment, and his colleague, Mr. McKay, had been called to another court. The Board therefore adjourned until 12 o'clock to give Mr. Rowell a chance to read up the case and prepare his argument.

GRANDMA NEVER LET HER HAIR GET GRAY

She Kept Her Locks Dark and Glossy, with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.
